Conference on the Maryland Constitution Here October 7

About 100 political scholars, politicians and interested citizens will gather here on Saturday, October 7, to discuss the Maryland Constitution and whether it should be changed.

The conference will be a prelude to a general election coming up in 1990 in which Maryland voters will decide whether a Constitutional Convention should be called to revamp the 40,000-word-long state constitution.

Harry Basehart of Salisbury State's Department of Political Science initiated the conference to call public attention to the upcoming vote. He hopes it will help stimulate wide discussion of the basic structure and function of government in Maryland, and whether its constitution can meet future needs as it exists today.

The state is required by law to hold a general election every 20 years to determine "the sense of the People in regard to calling a Convention for altering this Constitution..."

Drawing from the wording of the law, Basehart has titled the upcoming conference, "The Sense of the People: A Conference on the Maryland Constitution."

The one-day conference is backed by a grant from The Maryland Humanities Council, Inc., and also supported by the Maryland Office for the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States and by Salisbury State University.

Participants include several staff members and delegates to the ill-fated Maryland Constitutional Convention of 1967-1968.

That convention was called by the late Governor Millard J. Tawes. After months of intensive effort the revised constitution that it produced was rejected by state voters in the 1968 November election.

It was determined afterward by students of the whole adventure, that much of the reluctance of voters to accept change centered on proposed revisions relating to local county governments and the possible introduction of a more regionally based system of government.

Berliner Kicks Off Great Leader Series

The founder of the only billion dollar financial institution on the Eastern Shore launches the 1989-90 Great Leader Lecture Series.

Henry A. Berliner, Jr., founder, president and chief executive officer of Second National Federal Savings Bank, will speak on Thursday, September 14, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The series, in its third year, is sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

"Mr. Berliner epitomizes the spirit that has been established during the first two years of the Great Leader Lecture Series as an entrepreneur, innovator and industry giant," said Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the Perdue School. "He represents the essence of great leadership."

A 1956 graduate of the University of Michigan, Berliner was president of the Student Government Council there, student speaker at his graduation ceremony, and the first student ever to address the University Faculty Senate in executive session. He earned his Juris Doctor

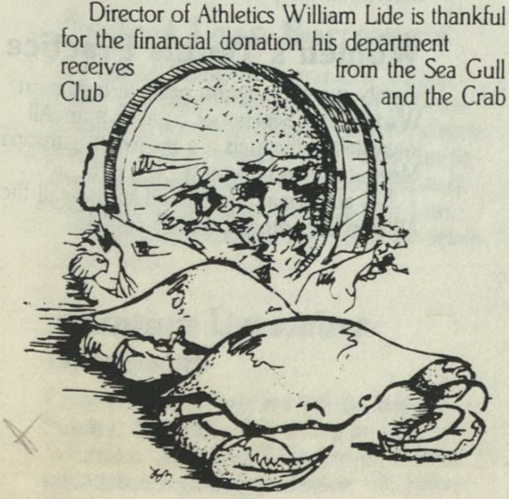
Crab Fest September 17

A football team trip to the Coco Bowl in Puerto Rico. A special dinner for the championship field hockey team. Wrist watches and plaques for MVP players. These are just a few of the benefits enjoyed by Salisbury State student-athletes over some 15 years through the auspices of the Sea Gull Club.

The Club is currently involved in organizing and planning its fall season fund raiser, the second annual SSU Crab Fest, sponsored by Arby's Restaurant. The event will be on Sunday, September 17, from 2-7 p.m. at Canal Woods Swim & Tennis Club.

Last year's inaugural crab fest was a big success, with over 500 people attending. Crab Fest chairman Dave Rodgers believes the annual event could grow significantly larger. "Last year, being the first year, we had a good crowd," said Rodgers. "I expect another good turnout this year, with the event growing bigger each year as it becomes more established."

Director of Athletics William Lide is thankful for the financial donation his department receives from the Sea Gull Club and the Crab Fest, but also cites the event's non-financial benefits as a positive drawing card.



"Obviously, the money we raise is of great benefit to our student-athletes and our athletic program," said Lide. "But, more than that, this event is a good opportunity to bring our alumni and friends back to the University on a regular basis. We would like to have them see first-hand the benefits of their contributions."

The latest tangible benefits to the Sea Gull athletic program include the impressive Hall of Fame trophy case and the state-of-the-art Nautilus Center opened last year in Maggs Center. Both were established through the help and assistance of donations from the Sea Gull Club.

Lide hopes to utilize funds raised from this year's event to assist in improving the traditional weight room used by both the student-athletes and the general student population, as well as to improve the athletic training facilities used by student-athletes in recuperating and rehabilitating from injuries.

Image, a reggae band from Washington, D.C., will provide musical entertainment at this year's Crab Fest, and SSU student-athletes will once again serve as hosts, hostesses and food servers. The menu will include fried chicken, sweet potatoes, corn-on-the-cob, homemade rolls, soft drinks and watermelon in addition to the obvious favorite, Maryland crabs. Beer will also be on sale.

Tickets for the all-you-can-eat event are $15 and are available through the Athletic Department, 543-6340, the Alumni Association, 543-6042, the Foundation Office, 543-6175, and First Shore Federal Savings & Loan, 546-1101

Drug Symposium

The Medical Technology Department, a program that teaches clinical laboratory science, will sponsor a symposium on issues surrounding drug abuse on Friday, September 22, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"The addictive power and medical side effects of drugs cause an enormous burden not only to society, but particularly to the health care system. It is of prime concern to those who are associated with laboratory work," said Diane Hayes, symposium coordinator. Such a burden has created the impetus in recent years to screen many individuals for drugs and has raised concerns about the methods employed in the laboratory for such testing.

Dr. Yale Caplan, chief toxicologist for the State of Maryland Medical Examiner's Office, will be reviewing various analytic techniques in the laboratory for the detection of abused drugs

Campus Recreation

Campus Recreation offers 14 intramural events for the fall semester. It also has information on sports clubs: Women's Soccer, Outdoor Club, Aerobics, Cycling, Martial Arts and others.

Campus Recreation urges all to get involved in the Fit-For-Life event. This event is a combination run, cycle and swim throughout the semester and provides an incentive for those persons wishing to be involved in a regular fitness program.

The NFL Grid Guesser allows you to make your picks each week in hopes of winning the weekly T-shirt. Get a date and play co-ed volleyball and co-ed soccer. Walleyball will be offered in the spring. Don't miss the All-Nighter event on Parents' Weekend. Be sure to sign up for the Sportsweek 5K Run and also the annual Turkey Trot (frozen turkeys given to winners). Information sheets and entry forms are available two weeks before play begins (see schedule).

Health/Fitness Internship Meetings

All Physical Education majors who are planning a Health/Fitness Internship (PE 479) for the spring 1990 semester should meet with Dr. Bob Cross before September 30.

New Names, Faces Dot Sea Gull Athletic Staff

With the start of a new academic and athletic year just around the corner, the peace and quiet of coaches planning strategy in air-conditioned offices has quickly given way to the huffing and puffing of actual practices in the outdoor August heat. Most of the fall teams have been practicing for about a week, with the exception of the football team, which began preseason drills on August 22. Coach Joe Dailey's troops conclude their two weeks of preseason camp with scrimmages against Anne Arundel Community College on Friday and the University of Pennsylvania on Saturday.

In addition to the many new student-athletes which will be competing as Sea Gulls for the first time this fall, several new faces have joined the able staff of athletic coaches and administrators which comprise the SSU athletic department. First and foremost among the newcomers is Michael Vienna, named to the post of assistant athletic director. Vienna comes to Salisbury after serving as the athletic director at Kent State University at Salem for the past five years.

Newcomers among the coaching staff include Rhonda Warmsley, who will have a hand in directing two of the SSU teams. Warmsley takes over as head coach of the women's basketball team, and will also serve as co-head coach of the volleyball team. Serving as co-head coach with Warmsley is Barry Shreve, another newcomer to the athletic staff, but not a newcomer to the campus community. Shreve also serves the University as an assistant professor of psychology.

Another familiar face in a new position is Jerry Thomas, who takes over as head coach of the men's and women's cross country squads. Thomas should have no trouble adjusting to his new role as he has been the team's assistant coach for the past three seasons under coach Don Cathcart.

Two other newcomers to the staff are Ruth Brown, a former cheerleader at SSU, who returns as coordinator of the cheerleading squad, and Leslie Bartoshevsky, who will work with Pat Lamboni as the assistant athletic trainer.

In addition to the football squad's two scrimmages this week, the soccer team will conclude its preseason with the annual alumni game, scheduled for 2 p.m. on Saturday. Coaches Warmsley and Shreve will also have a chance to see their team in competition for the first time on Saturday in a scrimmage at the Naval Academy.

Swim Team/Club

Women's swim team and men's swim club will have an organizational meeting on Wednesday, September 13, at 4 p.m. at the pool. All men and women who wish to participate should attend the first meeting.

If you are unable to attend, see Ms. Rosie Barretta in the pool office or call 543-6357.

Women's Tennis Practice

Varsity women's tennis practice begins on Wednesday, September 6, at 3 p.m. All interested individuals are invited to participate. Meet at the tennis courts.

For additional information please call the Athletic Department at 543-6344.

Health Center Services

The Health Center is open from 8 a.m.-noon and 1-4 p.m., Monday-Friday. A nurse is on call for urgent consultations on the weekend and as needed during the week via pager system.

Students are seen on a walk-in basis by the Health Center nurses. Those students who require physician evaluation will be given an appointment. The Health Center physician is available for a part of each day Monday-Friday.

The Health Center offers a wide variety of services to students including treatment for injuries, illnesses, gynecological problems and sexually transmitted diseases (STDs). Additionally the Health Center administers allergy injections and immunizations, offers mono and pregnancy testing and contraception and pregnancy counseling, and performs several laboratory procedures. Referrals may be made for dental, medical-surgical and planned parenthood needs. Urgent problems may be referred to the Emergency Room at Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

Off-campus health care providers, including physicians, dentists, hospitals, radiologists, medical laboratories and pharmacies, will charge students for services and supplies; therefore students are urged to carry health insurance. Insurance information may be obtained from the Health Center or Dean of Students Office.

An $18 per semester health fee is included in the fee structure which full-time students pay at registration. Part-time students, faculty and staff may utilize the facility for limited services only, such as blood pressure screening, weight checks, emergency first aid, immunizations and health education screenings. Part-time students may elect to pay the $18 Health Center fee to utilize the full range of services.

The University requires that all students be immunized. Documented dates of immunizations should be forwarded to the Health Center. Students requiring immunization will be contacted and scheduled for immunization throughout the semester.

Student Insurance Plan For Students

Students and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to enroll in a flexible and convenient insurance plan, The Sentry Student Security Plan.

Any full or part-time student who is registered and attending a state accredited college or university that formally authorizes the Sentry plan is eligible to enroll. Coverage may also be maintained during the summer vacations and up to one term after graduation. This program offers several good options.

Please stop by the Health Center for a brochure or application. Salisbury State University has authorized this insurance program.

Student Loan Borrowers

All Stafford (formerly Guaranteed Student Loan) and Supplemental Loans to Students (SLS) loan borrowers must attend a mandatory entrance interview before loan funds can be released to them. Failure to do so immediately will result in the cancellation of their loan.

Contact the Financial Aid Office for details, 543-6165.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Atrium Gallery Carvings

The Atrium Gallery, located in the main concourse of the University Center, will begin its 1989 fall exhibit schedule with the works of Salisbury-based folk art carver, Ted Nichols. The Gallery will be open from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily, beginning, Monday, September 11. The free exhibit will run through October 2 and is open to all.

Nichols is a carver of contemporary folk art. Folk art was originally a non-elitist art made by ordinary people. Today, it is highly valued and eagerly sought by most discriminating collectors and connoisseurs. Independent from academic tradition it takes a simple and unpretentious approach, oriented more from craft than fine art traditions. The pieces are often whimsical or humorous with emphasis on pattern rather than accurate form and realistic representation.

Nichols, a former student at Salisbury State, began carving as a child. His childhood hobby of building birdhouses and whittling whistles with his grandfather advanced to furniture-making and remodeling as an adult. He was first drawn to American folk art during the Bicentennial.

With no formal artistic training, he has gleaned his art from many sources. He has been influenced by local carvers Lem and Steve Ward, Artist N.C. Wyeth, African carvings and the nature he sees in his own back yard. Each piece he makes is an original interpretation, however, not merely a copy. Nichols begins each work with a chunk of wood and uses a variety of power and hand tools. It can take from an hour to several weeks to complete one piece and no two are exactly alike. The final sculpture is often painted by fellow-artist and business associate, Rebecca Nichols, who has been working with him for four years. She paints the pieces with acrylics, oils, or milk paints and then uses a hand-rubbed wax finish. Notable is the feather painting technique on some of the display works.

The exhibit includes animal carvings such as rabbits and dogs, religious subjects like Noah's ark and a nativity, people carvings like "Jerry's Family," plus several varieties of cats. The works will be displayed on Nichol's own handmade furniture.

Nichol's carvings have been displayed in numerous magazines and books including Country Living and Woodworking News. Various craft stores, antique shops, art galleries and museums across the United States now display his work. In addition to giving demonstrations and lectures, Nichols is in the progress of writing a book that will focus on design, carving techniques, tools, style, and business application.

For more information on the Nichols exhibit contact Atrium Gallery Director Donna Forgash at 543-6100.

Ulm Makes Presentation

Dr. Ronald Ulm, professor of experimental psychology, contributed to the 20th American Medical Society on Alcohol and other Drug Dependencies (AMSAODD) Convention held in Atlanta, GA last spring.

His presentation titled "Naltrexone in the treatment of alcohol dependence: Preliminary data," was part of a three-hour continuing education course for physicians called "Neurobiobehavioral Dynamics in Substance Abuse: Basic and Clinical Aspects."

The course presented the latest scientific and clinical information about the structure and function of the nervous system involved in addiction, susceptibility to addiction, recovery and relapse prevention.

Ulm's presentation detailed the preliminary results of a new approach for treating alcohol dependence by Dr. Jospeh Volpicelli of the Department of Psychology and Psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

According to Ulm, the approach involves using a non-addictive drug called natrexone as an adjunct to traditional therapy. Patients receiving the drug showed reduced craving for alcohol as well as reduced relapse rates compared to control subjects receiving placebo treatment.

"Presumably, this is because naltrexone blocks the involvement of alcohol with the brain's opioid reward system, thus removing the rewarding effects of alcohol," said Ulm. Ulm emphasizes that the treatment approach is new and in the experimental stages, and while preliminary results are highly encouraging, caution must always be used in evaluating new approaches. The research is a partial result of a 10-year collaboration between Ulm and Volpicelli in investigating various aspects of the motivational bases of behavior.

Burgess on Art Committee

James L. Burgess, chair of the Department of Art, has been appointed by Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer to be Salisbury Mayor Paul Martin's representative on the statewide committee for selecting art work to be placed in new multi-purpose centers.

Burgess will be working with seven other committee members, under the direction of Jody Albright of the Governor's Office of Art and Culture. Architects for Salisbury's new center are Hord, Coplan and Macht of Baltimore. The committee plans to select a 3-D artist to work with the architects.

Should any sculptor be interested in being considered for creating work for this local building, he or she should contact Burgess at 543-6270.

Heidler Gives Paper

Dr. David S. Heidler, assistant professor in the Department of History, recently delivered a paper at the annual conference of the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic at the University of Virginia.

Heidler's paper, "Beyond 'Created Equal': The Dilemma of Southern Political Dissent in the Era of Good Feelings," examined the protests of Southern agrarian Republicans during the administration of James Monroe. Using a comparative approach, Heidler showed that the 19th century Southern agrarians were influenced more by the ideology of Tory conservatives in early 18th century England than they were by John Locke's Whig philosophy.

Heidler maintains that this basic incoherence in Southern dissent made it chronically ineffectual. Consequently, the agrarian tradition was rapidly abandoned for the pro-slavery sectionalism that caused the Civil War.

Doctorates Earned Seven Salisbury State University faculty and staff members have earned their doctoral degrees during the past year. They are (left to right): Jeanne Heidler of the History Department, Ph.D. in American military history from Auburn University; Arlene White of the Modern Languages Department, Ed.D in foreign language education from the University of Maryland College Park; Scott Ralston of The Perdue School of Business, Ph.D. in agriculture economics from the University of Tennessee; Karen Badros, chair of the SSU Nursing Department, Ph.D. in human development education from the University of Maryland College Park; Mary Gillespie, director of Instructional Media, Ph.D. in human development from the University of Maryland College Park. Pictured separately are: Wavie Gibson of the English Department, Ph.D. with a concentration in rhetorics and linguistics from the Indiana University of Pennsylvania; and I. Eugene White of the Psychology Department, Ph.D. in human development from the University of Maryland College Park.

New Book Rack Director

The summer months were a time of transition for the Book Rack.

On August 1 Stanley Shedaker became the new director. Shedaker comes to SSU from the MBS Textbook Services in Columbia, MO. At MBS he served as the national director of marketing development. Prior to his position with MBS, he was the director/manager at the Northern Illinois University bookstore.

Shedaker holds a M.B.A. from Monmouth College and a B.S from Rider College.

His philosophey of running a bookstore is "buy broad and small. Make a real statement that we're in this business, whether it be florescent shirts or tie-dye shorts." Already one can see a change in the Book Rack. New and exciting displays are being made almost every day.

Shedaker also sees the bookstore "as an extension of the classroom, not only as a laboratory but also a place for students to intern, to actually experience the retail business and earn credit for their experience."

A former employee of Shedaker's said, "The bookstore is a positive experience for students. Our store is becoming an extension of the classroom."

Watson Now Buyer

Nancy Watson, a 17-year veteran of the Book Rack, has become a buyer for the store. Formerly the retail coordinator, she will do the major portion of the buying.

She will be glad to assist anyone with their requests. Contact her at 543-6085 or stop by the Book Rack and talk with her.

Hedeen Teaches Gifted

Dr. Robert A. Hedeen, professor of biological sciences, was again chosen to participate in the Johns Hopkins University summer program for academically talented high school students.

It was the 10th anniversary of the Center for Talented Youth program. Academically gifted students are identified from all regions of the country and are invited to participate in one of the summer residential programs.

Hedeen taught marine biology at the Franklin & Marshall site.

Code of Conduct Revised

President Bellavance has approved revisions in the University's Code of Conduct which will allow the University to take disciplinary action against students who are arrested or receive criminal citations connected with off-campus parties or serious criminal acts. This change was given legal approval in a January 1989 opinion issued by the office of the Maryland Attorney General.

The change in policy is primarily targeted at students who host large parties which are disruptive to the community. Past complaints include alcohol violations, disorderly conduct, vandalism, littering, illegal parking on private property and obscene behavior. The relatively few students who host such parties cause serious disruption for community residents and create a negative image for the majority of SSU students. One result has been that some landlords and property managers refuse to rent to students.

Salisbury City Police will continue to respond to complaints from community residents. If, in the judgment of the responding officer, a situation is serious enough to warrant an arrest or criminal citation, students on the lease will be held responsible. A police report will be forwarded to the University and a campus judicial hearing will be convened.

Directory Information

Salisbury State will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information with prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as student's name, local address (if listed), date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of an athletic team member, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, most recent previous educational agency or institution attended and listing of officers of student organizations (including names and addresses).

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, or stop by room 212, University Center.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Policies

A mailing was sent to every student the week of August 21 which contained copies of the Code of Conduct, Alcohol Policy and Sexual Harassment Policy. If you did not receive your copies please stop by the Dean of Students Office, room 212, University Center.

Center for Personal and Professional Development

Most students, during their college careers, experience concerns of a personal, interpersonal academic or career planning nature. At SSU, the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) is designed to help students deal with these concerns by providing personal counseling, career planning and job placement services.

The CPPD counselors, Bob McBrien, Joe Andrade and Kathryn Reading, can assist students in resolving issues which may be interfering with personal growth or academic progress. The counselors will also conduct outreach programs throughout the year dealing with such developmental issues as time management, relationships, stress management, eating disorders, sports psychology, etc.

At the CPPD, career development specialist Terry Clay and placement services coordinator Linda Benson help students and alumni to define and pursue career goals. Career counseling, occupational interest testing, the SIGI PLUS computerized career guidance system, career planning workshops and career planning library are a few of the available career planning resources. Job placement services include placement counseling, resume and interviewing workshops, on-campus recruitment, credential service and the placement library.

Located on the second floor of the University Center, the CPPD is open 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday. Evening hours will also be made available once the semester begins. Appointments can be made in person or by calling 543-6070. Walk-in hours are 1-3 p.m., Monday-Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students.

SIGI PLUS Introduced

This fall the Center for Personal and Professional Development is introducing a new computerized career guidance system called SIGI PLUS. SIGI PLUS (pronounced "siggy plus") will given students access to an easy-to-use computer program which helps them learn the decision-making process involved in planning a career.

To begin, students can identify which values are most important to them in planning for a career. Then SIGI PLUS will identify careers which match the student's values and interests. The student can continue with SIGI PLUS to learn about hundreds of vocations—what skills are needed, the chances for advancement, salary ranges, job security.

SIGI PLUS is written in plain English and does not require any prior knowledge of computers. Moreover, students can utilize all of the sections or choose to use only particular sections of the program.

Because only one student can use SIGI PLUS at a time, students will need to make appointments to use the program. For more information about SIGI PLUS or to make an appointment, contact the CPPD at 543-6070.

Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will once again hold a "Monster" Book Sale on Wednesday, September 13, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on the plaza in front of the Library. (Rain date is Friday, September 15.)

Books will be 35 cents each or three for $1. All sorts of books will be sold. Some may even be useful for coursework. There will also be give aways.

Gilbert Thoreau Participant

Joseph Gilbert, vice president of Administration returned from Concord, MA where he participated in the Thoreau Society Annual Meeting this summer.

He was also a participant in "A Thoreau Excursion" which was a celebration of the 150th anniversary of John and Henry Thoreau's trip on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers, a trip that ultimately led to Henry Thoreau's first book, A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers. For four days the participants traveled by canoe between Concord, NH and Concord, MA. At the end of each day's paddle, a public lecture was presented on a particular aspect of Thoreau's life or writings.

"A Thoreau Excursion" was sponsored by the Thoreau Society and was supported by grants from the New Hampshire Humanities Council and the Massachusetts Foundation for Humanities and Public Policy, state agencies for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Gilbert was accompanied by Salisbury State graduate James Dawson of Trappe, MD and Dr. Martha Daily of Salisbury.

Murray Teaches Teachers

Dr. Laura Murray, assistant professor of biology, gave Maryland public school teachers a closer look at the Chesapeake Bay, teaching a summer course which emphasized the ecology and habitats of the Bay, analyzed the problems associated with the Bay and provided classroom applications of materials covered in the course.

Taught in conjunction with the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Biology 502; Biology and Environment: Chesapeake Bay Ecology for Teachers consisted of two full days of lecture at SSU and 10 days in the field, on the Patuxent River and the Bay. Students made a canoe trip to freshwater marsh in the headwaters of the Patuxent, sailed down the Patuxent on a skipjack sampling the river's water quality and studied the Bay's ecology on workboats from Smith Island.

The course was designed to meet state educational initiatives for environmental education in public schools.

Lide at Conference

Dr. William E. Lide, director of Athletics, attended the national Association for Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) in Anaheim, CA this summer.

The annual conference attracted athletic directors throughout the United States and elsewhere. Among the topics discussed were issues related to cost containment in athletics, governance among the three divisions (I,II and III), scheduling and the pros and cons of Propositions 42 and 43.

Math Workshops Here

The Maryland, Washington, D.C. and Virginia section of the Mathematics Association of America sponsored a pair of workshops at SSU this summer attracting 55 mathematics teachers from colleges and universities throughout the country as well as Puerto Rico.

Supported by a National Science Foundation Grant, it marked the 13th year the MAA has held workshops at SSU.

The workshops were coordinated by Dr. Ben Fusaro of the SSU Department of Mathematical Sciences.

KIDWELL HONORED Irving L. Kidwell (right), chairman of the board of directors of College Park (MD) contractors, was inducted as an honorary member of the SSU chapter of Delta Mu Delta, the national honor society in business administration.

Presenting the award is Dr. Bellavance. Ninteen regular members were inducted into the society which honors superior academic achievement by business administration students.

Health Center Staff Info

John Zimmerman is the newest member of the Health Center staff.

He attended Pennsylvania Hospital of Nursing and earned a diploma in nursing. Since that time he attended the University of Maryland at Baltimore and received a bachelor's degree and later a certification as an adult nurse practitioner. For the past five years he has been practicing as a nurse practitioner in employee health at Peninsula General Hospital. Presently he lives in Bivalve with his wife, Connie, and daughter, Michelle.

The remainder of the Health Center staff returns after a productive and relaxing summer. Rosemary Cupp, Ann Patey and Karen Rickards attended the Maryland College Health Nurse Association Conference hosted by the University of Delaware in June. Brenda Hooks, Barbara Ryan and Jana Long were involved with a volunteer training program in Washington, D.C. for persons concerned about HIV testing and Persons with AIDS. Dr. Louis H. Himes attended a conference in California titled "The Power of Quality." Jana Long also participated in the Outward Bound Experience which was sponsored by the Residence Life staff. Karen Rickards was a participant in the Freshmen Wilderness Experience.

The Student Health Advisory Committee (SHAC), a group of students who provide input regarding student health concerns and also serve as a liaison between the Health Center and the University community, has been a valuable asset. Students interested in serving on the committee should contact Mrs. Hooks at the Health by calling 543-6262.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program will begin its fall session on Monday, September 18. The program will once again offer aerobic dance and Nautilus workouts as well as periodic fitness assessments. Program hours will be Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 5 - 6 p.m. If you have not previously registered for the program please pick up a registration packet from the Physical Education office.

Rupert Presentation

Dr. Terry Rupert, assistant professor in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics, presented at the 32nd World Congress of the International Council of Health, Physical Education and Recreation held July 17-20 at Frostburg, MD.

Rupert, a featured presenter, presented two topics, "Improving Coaching Behaviors Through Pedagogical Techniques for Team and Individual Sport Coaches" and "High School Principals Attitude Toward Physical Education as Surveyed in Three Geographical Regions of the United States."

Grant Aids Youth

Dr. William E. Lide, director of Athletics, and Rev. Jesse E. C. Abbott, pastor of the Family Worship Center West Road in Salisbury, received a $2,000 grant from the Wicomico Drug/Alcohol Prevention Center this summer.

The grant is awarded to foster spiritual, physical and mental development among disadvantaged youth in the Salisbury community without regard to race, creed or color.

The program is called "Bridge Builders" and is sponsored through The Family Worship Center. Over 90 youngsters from 6-16 are presently participating in the program. It is offered on a year-round basis.

SSU FALL CLASSIC

Golf Classic Upcoming

Some 144 golf enthusiasts are expected to tee off at the fifth annual Salisbury State University Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 20, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

Roy Beauchamp, of Ahtes Hanna McLaughlin and co-chairman of this year's tournament, anticipates the field to fill quickly.

"I am very pleased with the community support given the tourney last year and expect it to be even better this time, both through participation and sponsorship," said Beauchamp. Dick Young, president of Salisbury Brick Co., is the other co-chairman.

This year's prime sponsor is Barr International, a well-known local truck sales and service business. Stu Barr, representing the company, indicates that he and his father own an operate two other companies, Barr Transportation Center and Barco Truck Rental and Leasing, which are also supporting the event. The Barr businesses have employees totaling 110 and the other ventures, Barr Transportation Center and Barco Truck Rental and Leasing, have become an integral part of the community.

Barr said, "We are pleased to be the prime sponsor of this important event for the University. The school has been very important to the community for such a long time and it's time we all realized SSU's tremendous impact."

The purpose of the event is to raise support for special programs and projects no longer funded by the State of Maryland. Some programs that benefit from the event are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, the Salisbury State University Honors House and campus beautification.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $50 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the-round use, a roast beef and chicken buffet that evening and complimentary gifts.

And as a special feature, the first golfer to sink a hole-in-one on the number 11 or 14 holes will win $2,500 in cash.

The low gross team of golfers will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Tropies will be given to low gross and net, men, women and mixed teams. Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded for other low gross and low net teams; cash and merchandise awards for long drive on various holes and closest ball to the hole on other par-3 holes will also be awarded.

Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation which sponsors the tournament, views the success of the tournament as a great benefit to the SSU Foundation.

Gearhart said, "not only does the tournament help to continue our close ties with the community, but it provides needed funds for worthwhile University purposes."

First Sea Gull Century

On Saturday, October 7, the Salisbury State Bicycle Club will sponsor bicycle rides of 25 miles, 50 miles or 100 miles (century). The rides leave from Maggs parking lot at 7 a.m. The registration fee of $5 includes a t-shirt, maps of the rides, sag wagon support, refreshments along the rides and marked routes.

A pre-ride carboload dinner will be held the evening before at the Dining Hall. The cost is $6.25 if you are not on the meal plan. Ride packets may be picked up at dinner or between 6-7 a.m. the day of the ride.

Registration forms are available at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs or from Bicycle Club members.

Athletics Position Open

The Department of Physical Education is seeking an outgoing, enthusiastic individual to work part time with the Faculty/Staff Wellness Program.

Qualfications include a background in health and wellness and a working knowledge of basic fitness assessment techniques. Current CPR certification is required. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Those intested should contact Dr. Bob Cross, Department of Physical Education, Salisbury State University, by September 25.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Outdoor Club Meeting

The first Outdoor Club meeting will be at 9 p.m. on Monday, September 11 in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. This will be an introductory meeting for new members and a welcome back for all members.

Information will be provided about the semester's programs and trips including backpacking on September 22-24; horse packing on October 6-8; white water rafting on November 4-5; ropes course on November 17-19. Final sign ups for backpacking at Delaware Water Gap on September 22-24 will be at the meeting at 9 p.m. on September 18.

The hike will be easy-to-moderate, suitable for new backpackers. Cost is $5 for members and $8 for non-members. Equipment rentals are available.

Minority Health Issues Offered Fall Semester

A course in Minority Health Issues is being offered this fall. The three credit course will meet on Tuesdays from 5-8 p.m. at the Hall Education Building near Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center. The course is open to any interested student seeking undergraduate or graduate credit, as well as qualified non-degree students.

The course will focus on exploration of health issues for minority populations such as cultural/ethnic groups, migrant farm workers, homeless people and gays. Issues addressed will include: What problems do minority clients and providers encounter in the official health care system? What alternatives exist? How do politics and economics affect minority health concerns? What are the major health problems? How can these problems and issues be effectively addressed?

The course will be taught by Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor. Roberson holds a Ph.D. in transcultural nursing and an M.S. in community health nursing. She has been conducting research with southern rural African-Americans for the past nine years and has had almost 30 years of varied nursing experience in multiple settings across the country.

For more information, contact Roberson at 543-6420.

T'ai-Chi Ch'uan Courses

The Office of Continuing Education is sponsoring two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, an ancient system of Chinese physical culture. The courses will be in the Maggs Center Dance Studio and start in September.

A Beginner I course is held on Mondays, beginning September 11. A Beginner II course for those who have had some exposure to T'ai-chi Ch'uan will be held on Tuesdays, beginning September 12. Each course is from 8-9 p.m. and run for 10 meetings.

The teacher is Dr. B.A. Fusaro of the Department of Mathematical Sciences. He introduced T'ai-chi Ch'uan (TCC) courses to the physical education curriculum. In 1988-89 he taught two TCC courses to West Point cadets while a visiting professor at the U.S. Military Academy. Fusaro spent 1970-71 on a Fulbright Exchange program in Taiwan and spent his spare time studying TCC.

TCC is a non-aerobic excercise that requires no special physical or physiological equipment. For more information call at 543-6470.

CLEP Test

The College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 18. The deadline for registration is Monday, September 18. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, HH 155.

Affirmative Action Plan

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (HH-134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or corrections for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD.

Economic Center Established

The Perdue School of Business has established The Salisbury State University Center for Economic Education. The purpose of the Center is to promote understanding by students in grades one through 12 of economic concepts, institutions and activities. The Center will serve school districts in Wicomico, Dorchester, Somerset and Worcester counties.

The Center is affiliated nationally with the Joint Council on Economic Education and regionally with the Council on Economic Education in Maryland. According to Dr. Carol Adams Jarvis, executive director of the Council of Economic Education in Maryland, "With the establishment of the Center at Salisbury State, all school systems in Maryland are now served by economic education centers."

The Center will act as a resource center, providing teachers in the four counties with materials, workshops, administrative support and college-level courses in economics and economic education. Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the Perdue School, said, "through teacher training, curriculum development, generation of new and unique material and joint ventures, the Center will attempt to make an immediate and indeed lasting effect on economic education throughout the area."

Edward Frampton has been chosen to be the Center's director. Frampton was born in Easton and is a graduate of Easton High School. He received a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Virginia, a Master of Arts from East Tennessee State University, and a Master of Philosphy from the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. He has taught economics at Salisbury State since 1987.

On his appointment, Frampton said, "I welcome the challenges of this new venture, and I look forward to working with the teachers and administrators in enhancing their students' understanding of the economic principles needed to be effective consumers, workers and citizens in American society."

Pre-Nursing Students

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for spring semester is October 1.

This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing and submitted no later than October 1. Applications received after October 1 will be considered on a space available basis.

The application deadline for the fall 1991 semester is March 1, 1990.

Sunday Mass

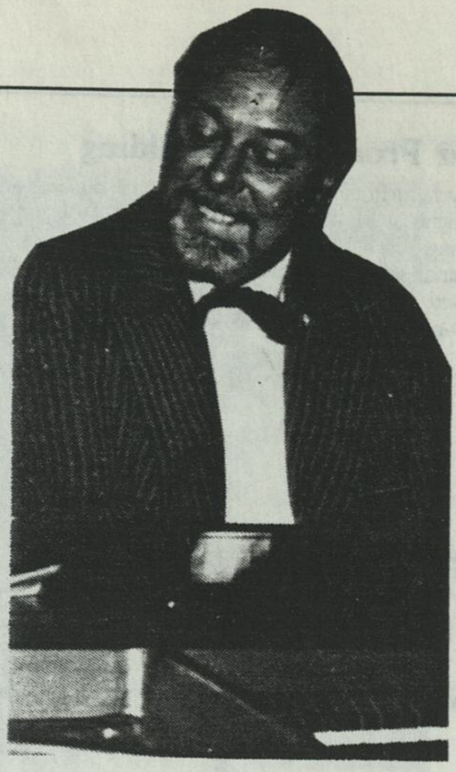
The Newman Club (Catholic student organization) will offer Mass on campus each Sunday that school is in session.

Mass will be at 3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Student Center. All are invited.

Orchestra Rehearsals

Rehearsals for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University are beginning soon. Starting September 10, SSO rehearsals will run on Sunday evenings with some sectionals being scheduled. Students who play string, wind or percussion instruments and are interested in playing with the SSO may audition for placement.

Please call Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the Department of Music, at 543-6385.



Lenny Grazier of the Shore Jazz All Stars

Shore Jazz All Stars Perform September 7

Lenny Grazier's Shore Jazz All Stars will be the featured entertainment at a reception for students, administrators and faculty on Thursday, September 7, from 3-5 p.m. The event, sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, will take place in the main lounge of the University Center; refreshments will be served.

The All Stars consist of Lenny Grazier on piano, Earl Brown on vibes, Jackie Moffit on drums and Charles Upshur on bass guitar. All four have extensive backgrounds in jazz.

Grazier studied at the Peabody and Julliard Conservatories, then went on to a career as an accompanist to some of the finest singers and ensembles in the jazz world including Lou Rawls and Mayard Ferguson. Today he plays piano solo at Phillips Seafood Restaurant in Ocean City and the Atlantic Hotel in Berlin.

Brown studied at Morgan State, Peabody Institute and Rutgers University before going out on his own to create a following for himself along the Eastern seabord. Among the acclaimed entertainers he has performed with are Billie Holiday and Ella Fitzgerald.

Moffit, drummer, is Salisbury-born. He has performed from the "Big Apple" to Nashville and today adds a significant spark to the Shore Jazz All Stars.

Another native Eastern Shoreman rounds out the group. Upshur was born and educated in Northampton (VA) County. He settled in Salisbury in 1962 and since then has worked with numerous groups. He has extensive knowledge of gospel music as well as jazz. He is a musician who keeps the "swing" moving.

Concert Choir

Weekly rehearsals for the SSU Concert Choir are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Power Professional Building.

To participate register for Concert Choir, MUSA 100-001 (one credit hour which may be repeated for credit).

If you have questions, contact Dr. Duane Karna, director of Choral Activities, at 543-6385. His office is in room 109 of the Musical Arts Building.

French Golf Soon

The third annual Wallace Q. French Memorial Golf Tournament will be held at the Caroline County Country Club in Denton on Monday, September 18, at 9:30 a.m. with a "shot gun" start.

The tournament is open to anyone who enjoys the game of golf. Prizes will be awarded and are to include a Ford Ranger S from Easton Ford for a hole-in-one.

After the tournament, there will be a cookout at the Caroline County 4-H Park located in Williston, a short distance from the course.

Each year the 18-hole tournament for men and women is held in a different county on the Shore, so golfers have an opportunity to play on a variety of courses.

Proceeds generated go toward a scholarship fund established at SSU.

This year, the Tidewater Environmental Health Association is awarding the scholarship to its first recipient, Jill Phillips of Newark, MD, a senior at SSU pursuing a degree in biology. Backers hope the scholarship will attract more students to careers in Environmental Health.

French was a long time resident of Salisbury. He worked for the Wicomico County Health Department before becoming state regional director of the Water & Sewer Program for the Eastern Shore.

After his retirement in 1985, he continued his work in the Environmental Health field as a part-time consultant to the Worcester County Health Department.

French had a reputation for being a diplomat in a field where confrontation was frequently the norm. According to Pete Maugans of Ocean City, a long-time friend, "He didn't get easily ruffled and was always a real gentlemen."

Born in Rumbley in Somerset County, French served overseas in the Air Force during World War II. He graduated from Salisbury State in 1950 and taught on Smith Island after the war before joining the Health Department in 1952.

He died in 1986 of a heart attack. Since then, family, friends and co-workers have sponsored the golf tournament to raise money for the scholarship fund established in his memory.

Anyone interested in participating should contact Libby French at 742-5144 or Lester Coble at 479-3666 by Friday, September 1. Fees are $45 per person. Registration covers green fees and cart rental.

School of Education Graduate Assistantship Available

The School of Education and Professional Studies announces a graduate assistantship opening for the fall semester. The assistantship duties relate to recruitment, admission, advisement and retention activities for Master of Education students. Additional duties include assistance in program development in the Master of Education program.

The stipend for the fall semester is $1,900 plus tuition waiver for nine to 12 hours of graduate credit. Candidates for the assistantship should obtain application and reference forms from the Office of Graduate Studies and Continuing Education, Holloway Hall, room 141, 543-6170; for additional information, contact Dr. John Bing, Chair, Program Innovation Task Force, School of Education and Professional Studies, 543-6284.

Walkway to Power Professional Building

People who will be walking or riding a bicycle to/from the Power Professional Building are encouraged to use the crosswalk and walk lights at Rt. 13 and Bateman Street. From Bateman Street use Wayne Avenue to the new building.

The crosswalk has been improved for pedestrian safety and convenience. Wayne Avenue has had sidewalks added, has recently been paved and has had street lighting installed.

Below is a map of the recommended walkway—Main campus to Power Professional Building.

Parking and Traffic Information

Highlights of changes to parking rules and regulations for 1989-1990:

All commuting students will be issued a green parking decal valid in the Caruthers Hall Lot, Chesapeake Lot and Dogwood Lot.

Junior and senior residents will be issued a blue decal valid in the Devilbiss Lot, Chesapeake Lot and Dogwood Lot.

Faculty/staff will be issued red decals valid in the Library Lot and other locations designated by sign in the the lots.

Power Professional Building Parking

The portion of the parking lot on the west side of the building along Wayne Avenue is reserved for Dr. Cooper's office, Trice Appraisals and the Epilepsy Association.

The parking spaces on the north side of the building along Power Street are reserved for University faculty and staff. The parking spaces on the east side of the building (behind the building) are reserved for faculty and staff.

Students who use the Power Professional Building are required to park on the street, either Power Street or Wayne Avenue.

New Program Initiated

In an effort to better inform commuter and international students of campus services available to them, Salisbury State has recently established a new staff position to assist those students in reaching their goals.

Agata Liszkowska has been appointed program assistant for commuter and international students.

The commuter program concentrates on bringing commuting students together, hopefully in a club or organization. It will focus on helping students get information about campus activities and services and organizing their study time.

There is a questionnaire available at the Student Activities and Organizations office second floor of the University Center. The questionnaire is designed to help determine the needs and desires of commuter students.

Also, there will be a reception for commuter students on Tuesday, September 5, from 7 - 8:30 p.m. in the University Center lounge. All concerned with commuters' affairs are welcome to participate.

The international program concentrates on introducing the international students to a new culture and way of life, organizing a club for support and fun and acquainting the University, as well as Salisbury community, with the international experience. It will focus on helping the international students benefit from their stay in the United States by bringing the international and American students together through activities and friendships.

For further information, call Liszkowska at (301) 543-6209.

Research Center Receives Nock Papers

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture accepted several historically important documents from the estate of the late Senator Mary L. Nock this summer.

The papers, donated by her husband Garland Nock, are related to the Senator's family associations with the local area since the 17th century. Included are a land grant for 500 acres to William Keene, made in June 1669, Center Director Sylvia Bradley reports.

Keene, a bricklayer, brought with him from England his wife and several others and received head-rights of land for each person he brought to the province. Another land grant to Jonathan Stott in 1753 was for 132 acres. Both grants were in Somerset County, and both documents have the original seals attached.

A third document was a copy of the 1732 act establishing Salisbury on 15 acres of land at the landing called Handy's or Carr's Landing, purchased from the minor boy William Winder. Nock also donated to the Center a copy of the late Senator's autobiography It Was a Joy and a Pleasure.

All these items will be available to researchers at the Center. This collection is especially significant since Sen. Nock served this area with distinction for so many years, Bradley said.

The Research Center plans to assist in the research and writing of a biography of Sen. Nock, one of Maryland's most important female politicians.

ANNUAL GIFT TO UAS Lyle Grandison (left), two-time president of the Union of African-American Students, receives a $100 gift from Dr. Oscar Chapman, long-time advisor for that organization. The award initiates an annual gift by Chapman to the UAS member he feels best perpetuates that organization's goals and objectives.

In 1964 he joined the law firm of Craighill, Aiello, Gasch and Craighill which he left in 1966 when he was appointed assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia. In 1969, he founded Berliner and Maloney, a firm of 12 attorneys presently specializing in corporate, securities and international trade matters.

He was appointed by Presidents Nixon and Ford to the Commission on Judicial Disabilities and Tenure with the power to reappoint and to remove all local judges in the District of Columbia, and was chairman from 1975-78.

In 1980 he served as chairman of the Reagan-Bush Transition Team for the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative. From 1983-89, he was appointed by President Reagan as chairman of the Board of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation with responsibility for all public improvement and private development activities along Pennsylvania Avenue between the U.S. Capitol and the Treasury Building. He also served as a member of the Board of the International Cultural and Trade Center Commission.

Berliner is proof that "The Perdue School is continuing its commitment to attracting leading CEOs from world class organizations, firms and companies to the Shore," according to Mescon.

All Great Leader lectures are free and open to the public. They are held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at SSU unless otherwise announced. For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series, call The Perdue School at 543-6315.

Foreign Language Testing

Placement testing for French, Spanish and German will take place Wednesday and Thursday, September 6 and 7, from 4 - 5 p.m.

French will be in Potomac Hall 118, Spanish in PH 104 and German in PH 119.

and will present case studies dealing with toxicology and medical/legal laboratory results.

Regardless of the inherent ability or inability of a laboratory to accurately screen for drugs, there are still legal issues of an individual's right to privacy, search and seizure, defamation of character, effects of false positive or false negative results, and determination of actual levels of impairment. During the past year the Supreme Court and some lower courts have been ruling on some of these issues. Jack Schwartz, chief counsel for Opinions and Advice in the Maryland State's Attorney's Office, will provide information at the symposium on the Supreme Court's decisions and their implications to individuals, businesses and laboratories.

In addition, Dr. Phillip Bosserman from the Sociology Department will review an old argument which has recently been revived that drugs should be made legal in the same way that alcohol and tobacco are legal. Drug-related crime disturbingly parallels the organized crime that existed during Prohibition. Dr. Bosserman will explore the pros and cons of using education to prohibit drug use rather than criminalization.

Funding for the symposium is in large part from the Salisbury State University Foundation, allowing for a minimal registration fee. The cost of $10 includes all lectures, a coffee break and lunch. The starts at 9 a.m. and concludes at approximately 2:30 p.m. Pre-registration is required and must be received by Friday, September 15.

For more information or a registration form, contact Hayes at the Medical Technology Department at 543-6331.

Just a Reminder

The first Saturday Open House is scheduled for Saturday, October 21.

Ice Cream Social

The Council on Women's Issues is sponsoring an ice cream social to welcome new students to campus. Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, will give an informal talk, welcoming students and addressing their potential for learning about themselves and women's issues, through networking and other opportunities at Salisbury State.

Students, faculty and staff will have an opportunity to meet each other during the social, which will be held on Monday, September 4, from 3-4 p.m. on University Hill (just outside the University Center). In case of rain, the event will be held in the Gull's Nest.

Any interested faculty and staff are invited to participate in welcoming new students at the event. All new undergraduate and graduate students are invited as well as returning staff members.

Please call Jennifer Berkman at 543-6309 for further information.

New Name for Lower Shore Prevention Resource Center

The Lower Shore Prevention Resource Center has been renamed the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center. The new name reflects a perceived need to better define and communicate the nature of the Center's mission.

The Center is a repository of educational and instructional resource materials available for use by members of the campus community as well as the Salisbury community-at-large. Holdings include approximately 175 videotapes and films, journals, pamphlets, flyers and other printed materials in the areas of alcohol and drug abuse related topics.

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center coordinates educational programming as well as campus activities surrounding alcohol and drug issues.

The Center is located in Annex D (the mobile unit directly behind and adjacent to Maggs). Hours of operation during the academic year are 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday - Friday.

SSPB Offerings

A satirical double feature opens the SSPB fall '89 Film Series. Monty Python's Meaning of Life attacks the British Empire, Catholicism, and gluttony. The film features animation sequences and a short film by Python member Terry Gilliam. I'm Gonna Git You Sucka is a parody of the black exploitation films of the '70s.

The show times for Meaning of Life are Monday, September 4, at 9:15 p.m. and Wednesday, September 6, at 8:15 p.m. I'm Gonna Git You Sucka shows Monday at 7 p.m. and Wednesday at 10:15 p.m. Both show dates will be in Devilbiss, room 149.

Other films for September are The Blues Brothers, Outrageous Animation Festival and the cult classic King of Hearts.

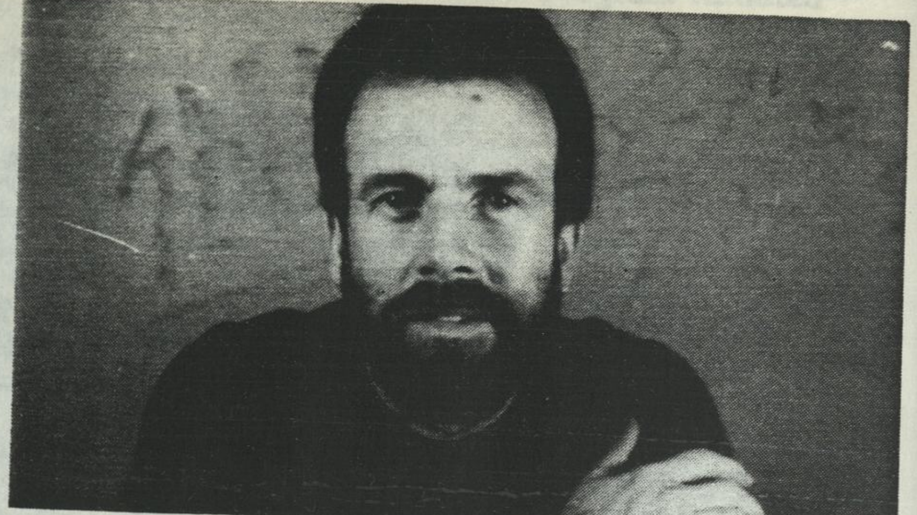
The SSPB film series will be screening films both in Devilbiss, room 149, and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. (Check Devilbiss first.)

On Tuesday, September 5, the Program Board presents the Reggae band, "Image" at the outdoor picnic on the Dining Hall Mall, 4:30-6:30 p.m.

Also on Tuesday, 9 p.m.-1 a.m., there will be a dance featuring a DJ at Maggs Gym, sponsored by SSPB.

Friday, September 8, come out and dance to the sounds of "The Bash," playing a variety of dance music from the Beatles to REM, and the Smithereens from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. in Maggs, also sponsored by the SSPB.

Waters To Read Poetry September 27



Dr. Michael Waters

Michael Waters, associate professor of English, will read his poems on Wednesday, September 27, at 8 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall. The reading will mark the publications of Waters' new book, his fourth volume of poems, The Burden Lifters, by Carnegie-Mellon University Press. Admission is free and a reception will follow.

Waters' previous books include Fish Light (Ithaca House, 1975), Not Just Any Death (Boa Editions, 1979) and Anniversary of the Air (Carneigie-Mellon University Press, 1985). He has edited Dissolve to Island: On the Poetry of John Logan (Ford-Brown & Company, 1984). His poems appear frequently in literary journals such as Poetry, The American Poetry Review, The Georgia Review and The Yale Review, as well as in numerous anthologies, including The Morrow Anthology of Younger American Poets and The Generation of 2000: Contemporary American Poets. An interview with Waters appears in The Post Confessionals, published this year by Farleigh-Dickinson University Press.

Waters has received numerous awards for his poetry, including a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts, grants from the Maryland State Arts Council, a Puschcart Prize and the Towson State University Prize for Literature. In 1986 he participated in the Al-Mermid International Poetry Festival in Baghdad, Iraq. He has taught in the Creative Writing Program at Ohio University, has served as Visiting Professor of American Literature at the University of Athens, Greece, and has been Banister Writer-in-Residence at Sweet Briar College in Virginia.

This is Waters' first reading in Salisbury in more than four years. His new book, The Burden Lifters, is on sale at the Book Rack in the University Center and also will be available at the reading.

Instead, change was forced on Maryland voters by a Supreme Court ruling mandating legislative districts based on population figures. In 1972 an amendment to the state constitution created 47 regional districts for the election of state senators and delegates dividing and crossing the traditional county lines.

The opening speaker at the October conference will be John C. Brooks, chief of staff of the 1967-68 Constitutional Convention and now North Carolina's Commissioner of Labor.

Another speaker will be John P. Wheeler, professor of political science at Hollins College, a constitutional scholar who wrote a book about the 1967-68 Maryland convention called "Magnificent Failure."

The six main speakers have been asked to prepare written papers on their topics which will be printed in booklet form and made available to the public.

Basehart pointed out that Maryland's present constitution is seven times the length of the Constitution of the United States. The long, detailed and tediously worded document is a challenge to the concentration and comprehension of the general reader who will be asked next year to vote whether or not it should be changed.

Basehart believes that unless the general public begins to discuss in advance the various aspects of the constitution and its importance to the future of the state, the issue of change will be determined, by default, by well-prepared special interest groups.

Participation in the conference is open to the public. For registration information contact Basehart at 543-6242.

Fultons Give $2.5 Million To School of Liberal Arts

At a press conference with Governor William Donald Schaefer Tuesday, a major gift of $2.5 million to endow a School of Liberal Arts was announced by Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton of Snow Hill, and Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance.

This is the third multimillion dollar endowment for a school at the University in the past four years. In 1986 Franklin P. Perdue, chairman of the board of Perdue Farms,Inc., donated $2.5 million to endow a School of Business. Last year Richard A. Henson, chairman of the board of Henson Aviation, Inc., also gave $2.5 million to endow the School of Science and Technology.

"This is truly a great day in the history of Salisbury State University," said Dr. Bellavance. "The gift by the Fultons will touch the life of virtually every student on campus. Some 45 percent of all SSU graduates major in the liberal arts and all undergraduates must study a strong core curriculum in sciences and humanities (the largest of which is in liberal arts).

"Everyone associated with the University is deeply indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Fulton," said Dr. Bellavance, "both for their generous gift and their personal commitment to enhancing the quality of education in our region and the state."

"It is difficult to fully measure the impact of this very generous gift," Governor Schaefer said. "Students at Salisbury State University will benefit for years to come because of the generosity of Charles and Martha Fulton.

Charles R. Fulton

"They have done something wonderful for Maryland and we are very grateful to them."

Highlights of the Fulton endowment include the development of curricula emphasizing internships and community service through the liberal arts, a major scholarship recruitment drive to attract highly motivated students, the underwriting of faculty research and development, the enhancement of library holdings and the support of a visiting scholars program.

Said Fulton, "I've always been a firm believer in the importance of education for our nation. The world's problems are becoming more and more complex and will have to be solved by better educated people."

"Salisbury State University is an asset to the community and to the area," Mrs. Fulton noted. "A lot of Eastern Shore people would not have the privilege of attending college if it were not here on the Shore. I think a college education is very important in this day and time."

"I'd like to stress three things," Fulton continued. "This gift is a tribute to the thousands of men and women who helped create an environment where my wife and I would want to work and live. It's also a way of saying thank you for the opportunities to live and work in the great state of Maryland and saying thank you to Governor Schaefer for his leadership in making the state a better place for all ...to raise our families and share in the quality of life here."

Rettew to Give Fall Convocation Address September 14

Elizabeth Rettew officially inaugurates the academic year with her address to the Fall Convocation on Thursday, September 14, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The convocation is attended by University students and faculty in regalia; the public is cordially invited. The speaker traditionally sets the tone for the academic year and the title of Rettew's speech is, "Knowledge: Catalyst for Action."

"I worked this summer with (SSU's) freshman orientation program," said Rettew, an assistant professor in the Nursing Department. "When I asked the new students why they were coming here, they answered they didn't want to start work yet or they wanted a good paying job in the future."

That started Rettew thinking: "I'm concerned that we're getting away from values like intellectual curiosity and using knowledge in a practical way to help others. I'd like students to see learning not simply as a means to an end—a successful career or something profitable. So many are focused on the future or profit."

Rettew is not alone in her concern about today's young people. In a much quoted study by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Education titled High School, community service was suggested as a part of the high school curriculum; it is now being adopted in many schools across the country. U.S. Senator Sam Nunn is also preparing legislation which would provide incentives for young people to engage in community work.

Rettew believes the role of the teacher is critical in helping students make the leap from self-centered consumers of information to becoming sharing members of a community. "At Salisbury State, with a low student-faculty ratio (17:1), we can help students be creative in choosing a direction for their education. We can encourage students to ask questions of themselves, to see themselves in relationship to others, to explore different avenues of thought.

"A study of patients with high blood pressure showed that knowledge of the effects of their illness—fear—was not enough to get them to take medicine," Rettew continued. "But if a nurse came by and said, 'Hi, Mr. Jones, how are you? Is the medicine working?' patients would take the medication. Good teaching is

Campus Recreation offers 14 intramural events for the fall semester. It also has information on sports clubs; Women's Soccer, Outdoor Club, Aerobics, Cycling, Martial Arts and others.

Campus Recreation urges all to get involved in the Fit-For-Life event. This event is a combination run, cycle and swim throughout the semester and provides an incentive for those persons wishing to be involved in a regular fitness program.

The NFL Grid Guesser allows you to make your picks each week in hopes of winning the weekly T-shirt. Get a date and play co-ed volleyball and co-ed soccer. Walleyball will be offered in the spring. Don't miss the All-Nighter event on Parents' Weekend. Be sure to sign up for the Sportsweek 5K Run and also the annual Turkey Trot (frozen turkeys given to winners). Information sheets and entry forms are available two weeks before play begins (see schedule).

If you are unable to attend, see Ms. Rosie Barretta in the pool office or call 543-6357.

Crab Fest September 17

The Sea Gull Club is planning its fall season fund raiser, the second annual SSU Crab Fest, sponsored by Arby's Restaurant. The event will be on Sunday, September 17, from 2-7 p.m. at Canal Woods Swim & Tennis Club.

Tickets for the all-you-can-eat event are $15 and are available through the Athletic Department, 543-6340, the Alumni Association, 543-6042, the Foundation Office, 543-6175, and First Shore Federal Savings & Loan, 546-1101.

Student Loan Borrowers

All Stafford (formerly Guaranteed Student Loan) and Supplemental Loans to Students (SLS) loan borrowers must attend a mandatory entrance interview before loan funds can be released to them. Failure to do so immediately will result in the cancellation of their loan.

Contact the Financial Aid Office for details, 543-6165.

First Sea Gull Century

On Saturday, October 7, the Salisbury State Bicycle Club will sponsor bicycle rides of 25 miles, 50 miles or 100 miles (century). The rides leave from Maggs parking lot at 7 a.m. The registration fee of $5 includes a t-shirt, maps of the rides, sag wagon support, refreshments along the rides and marked routes.

A pre-ride carboload dinner will be held the evening before at the Dining Hall. The cost is $6.25 if you are not on the meal plan. Ride packets may be picked up at dinner or between 6-7 a.m. the day of the ride.

Registration forms are available at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs or from Bicycle Club members.

Athletics Position Open

The Department of Physical Education is seeking an outgoing, enthusiastic individual to work part time with the Faculty/Staff Wellness Program.

Qualfications include a background in health and wellness and a working knowledge of basic fitness assessment techniques. Current CPR certification is required. Salary is commensurate with experience.

Those interested should contact Dr. Bob Cross, Department of Physical Education, Salisbury State University, by September 25.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Drug Symposium

The Medical Technology Department, a program that teaches clinical laboratory science, will sponsor a symposium on issues surrounding drug abuse on Friday, September 22, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program will begin its fall session on Monday, September 18. The program will once again offer aerobic dance and Nautilus workouts as well as periodic fitness assessments. Program hours will be Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 5 - 6 p.m. If you have not previously registered for the program please pick up a registration packet from the Physical Education office.

Health/Fitness Internship Meetings

All Physical Education majors who are planning a Health/Fitness Internship (PE 479) for the spring 1990 semester should meet with Dr. Bob Cross before September 30.

Fall Schedule for Galleries

Salisbury State's two art galleries have announced their fall exhibition schedules.

The University's principal Gallery, which is called the "University Gallery," is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library and has scheduled four exhibitions. These include photographs of ancient Indian rock paintings and engravings from the American Southwest by Salvatore Mancini, September 9 - October 11; paintings and drawings by Henry Rodman Kenyon (1861-1926), a New England artist who worked in a late Impressionist style, October 14 - November 9; and an exhibition of historic clothing and accessories from Delmarva, November 11 - 16.

The Gallery's final exhibition will be the Art Department's Annual Faculty Show, which will be on display November 18 - December 14, except for the period November 22 - 26, when the University is closed for Thanksgiving.

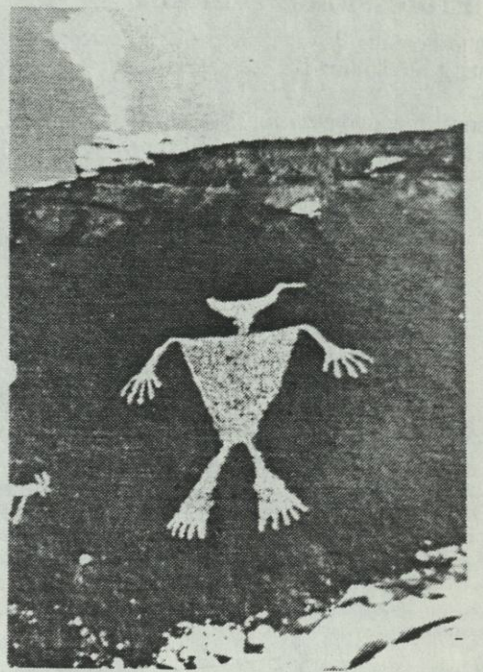
The University's second exhibition space, located next to the bookstore in the atrium of the new University Center and therefore called the "Atrium Gallery," will show the work of several area artists and craftpersons, including folk art carvings by Ted Nichols, September 11 - October 2; oils and watercolors by Helene English, October 16 - November 8; and needlework by the members of the Chesapeake Embroiderers Guild, November 11 - December 6.

The Atrium Gallery will also host two art sales, the Marson Galleries Exhibit and Sale, scheduled for October 13 and 14, and the annual Art Department Scholarhsip Fund Sale on December 8, 9, 11 and 12.

Both galleries are free and open to the public. Exhibition schedules with more detailed information for both galleries can be obtained after September 11 by calling the University Gallery at 543-6271 or 543-6270 or the University Center at 543-6006.

According to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the University Gallery, and Donna Forgash, the University Center's coordinator for the Atrium Gallery, the two galleries have somewhat different missions, but work closely together to provide the University community and the general public with a wide-ranging, balanced exhibition program.

The University Gallery regularly sponsors exhibitions from the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibition Service and other national arts organizations, as well as exhibitions from various commercial, university and artists' co-operative galleries. Its schedule includes contemporary art by both established and emerging artists, works from different cultures and time periods and annual shows of the work of the Art Department faculty and of the graduating senior art majors. Exhibitions are supplemented by weekly gallery talks given each Tuesday by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, tours for small groups and other special events such as lectures, panel discussions, workshops and occasional programs for children.



This image of a broad-shouldered man with a duck on his head, painted about 100 to 400 A.D. on a cliff in southeastern Utah, is a representative example of Salvatore Mancini's photographs documenting American Indian rock art, which will be shown in the University Gallery, September 9 - October 11.

The Atrium Gallery, now in its second year, has exhibited a wide range of work by area artists, craftspersons and University faculty and students, as well as selections from the University Center's permanent collection. A conveniently located, intimate space, it is readily accessible to students and is, Forgash says, ideally suited for one-person shows or group-shows featuring artists who work in similar media. The Atrium Gallery also schedules video programs on various arts-related topics, plus occasional other programs related to its exhibitions.

"Both galleries try to expose students to many different styles and types of art," Ehrhardt said, "though the University Gallery has a more specifically,, defined educational mission." Ehrhardt works closely with faculty in various academic departments in planning the exhibition schedule and related programs, which often have an inter-disciplinary focus.

"We try to have one or two exhibitions each semester that are directly related to academic disciplines," Ehrhardt said. The University Gallery's first exhibition this fall, for example, which features Salvatore Mancini's photographs of ancient American Indian rock art, should be of particular interest to students in world civilization, American history, art history and archeology classes, or to anyone interested in American Indian cultures. "But the photographs are also important as art," Ehrhardt said, "and should be of special interest to art and photography students for their composition and technical excellence."

On occasion the two galleries may schedule exhibitions intended to complement each other. Last fall, for example, the University Gallery hosted "Pieceworks," a national juried show of works in many different media that had been influenced by designs and methods used in making traditional American quilts; while the Atrium Gallery exhibited the kind of traditional quilts, made by the Delmarvalous Quilters Guild, which had inspired the "Pieceworks" artists.

Many of the artists shown in the University Gallery have national and even international reputations, such as Mancini, whose photographs of the architecture and sacred sites of ancient civilizations have received international recognition. "Several of the printmakers in last spring's show of contemporary Japanese prints had international reputations," Ehrhardt said, "and the print show we had last year from the International Graphic Art Foundation was a veritable "who's who of American 20th century artists."

"The University Gallery and the Atrium Gallery are important educational and cultural resources for the campus and the surrounding communities of the lower Eastern Shore," Ehrhardt said. "We hope that people will pay us a visit."

The University Gallery opens September 9. Its hours are Monday - Thursday, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, from 1 - 5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday, from 5 - 8 p.m. The Atrium Gallery opens September 11. Its hours are 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily through October 2, but may vary for subsequent exhibitions.

William Palmer, associate professor of Spanish, attended the National Endowment of the Humanities Summer Institute on "The Intellectual World of Christopher Columbus" at UCLA during during July and August.

At the Institute, 25 professors from around the country investigated multiple aspects of the life of Columbus: his knowledge of the sciences, his language skills, his views of the world, etc. The participants also developed a set of materials for national use in colleges and universities.

Palmer will speak about Columbus and the quincentenary of the discovery of New World before school and civic groups during the year.

Cleary Exhibit

John Cleary, associate professor of art, had his works exhibited at the Knight Gomez Gallery in Balitmore this summer. The show, "Contemporary Images," also featured the works of Sabine Breitenstein, Neil Meyerhoff, Faith Revell and Jose Villarrubia.

Great Leader Lecture

On Thursday, November 2, Gene A. James, president and CEO of Southern States Cooperative, Inc., will speak at 12:30 p.m. Robert Weller, president of Econo Lodges of America, Inc., will conclude the fall lecture presentations.

The lectures by Berliner, Baldwin, Harris and James will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Weller's presentation will be in the Holloway Hall Auditorium.

All the lectures in the series are free and open to the public.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Alumni Association Receives Gifts

The SSU Alumni Association reports a healthy rise of 76 percent in gifts from its alumni in its campaign that ended June 30. The annual spring phonathon and related mailings raised $71,921 in pledges and $54,630 in cash by the end of the campaign. Annual giving by alumni for all purposes rose to $96,849, an increase over the year before of $54,968.

An additional $18,000 in outstanding pledges remains to be collected during the first part of the 1990 campaign year.

John Charrier, Class of '75 who chaired the fundraising committee of the Alumni Board set up last year's fund drive where emphasis was placed on recognition of alumni contributors and a challenge gift program that rewarded new donors and increased gifts.

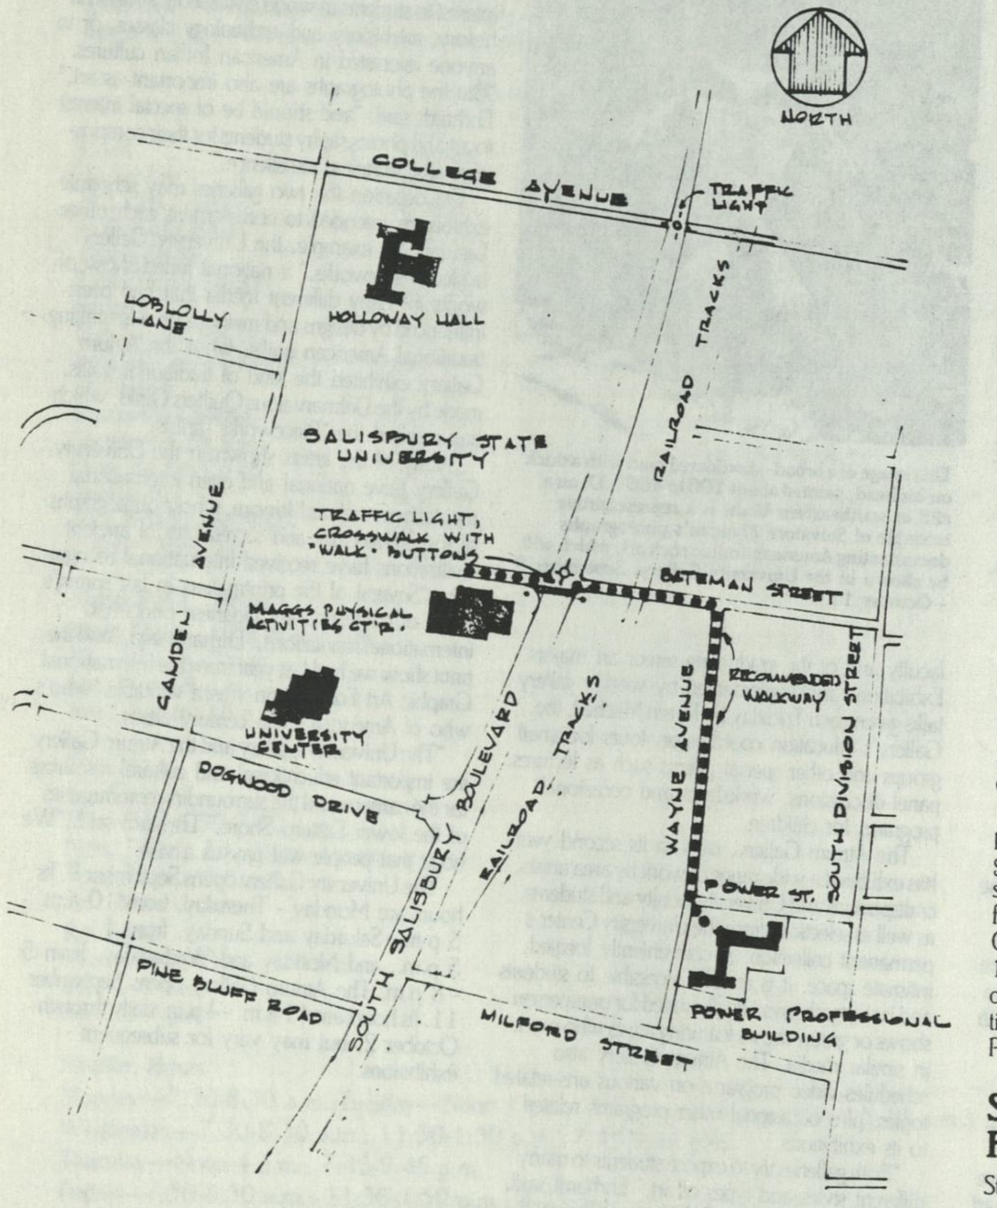
All donors will be reported in an Honor roll of Donors in the fall issue of the alumni news magazine, Scene.

Walkway to Power Professional Building

People who will be walking or riding a bicycle to/from the Power Professional Building are encouraged to use the crosswalk and walk lights at Rt. 13 and Bateman Street. From Bateman Street use Wayne Avenue to the new building.

The crosswalk has been improved for pedestrian safety and convenience. Wayne Avenue has had sidewalks added, has recently been paved and has had street lighting installed.

Below is a map of the recommended walkway—Main campus to Power Professional Building.



RECOMMENDED WALKWAY

Berliner Kicks Off Great Leader Series

The founder of the only billion dollar financial institution on the Eastern Shore launches the 1989-90 Great Leader Lecture Series.

Henry A. Berliner, Jr., founder, president and chief executive officer of Second National Federal Savings Bank, will speak on Thursday, September 14, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The series, in its third year, is sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

School of Education Graduate Assistantship Available

The School of Education and Professional Studies announces a graduate assistantship opening for the fall semester. The assistantship duties relate to recruitment, admission, advisement and retention activities for Master of Education students. Additional duties include assistance in program development in the Master of Education program.

The stipend for the fall semester is $1,900 plus tuition waiver for nine to 12 hours of graduate credit. Candidates for the assistantship should obtain application and reference forms from the Office of Graduate Studies and Continuing Education, Holloway Hall, room 141, 543-6170; for additional information, contact Dr. John Bing, Chair, Program Innovation Task Force, School of Education and Professional Studies, 543-6284.

Student Insurance Plan For Students

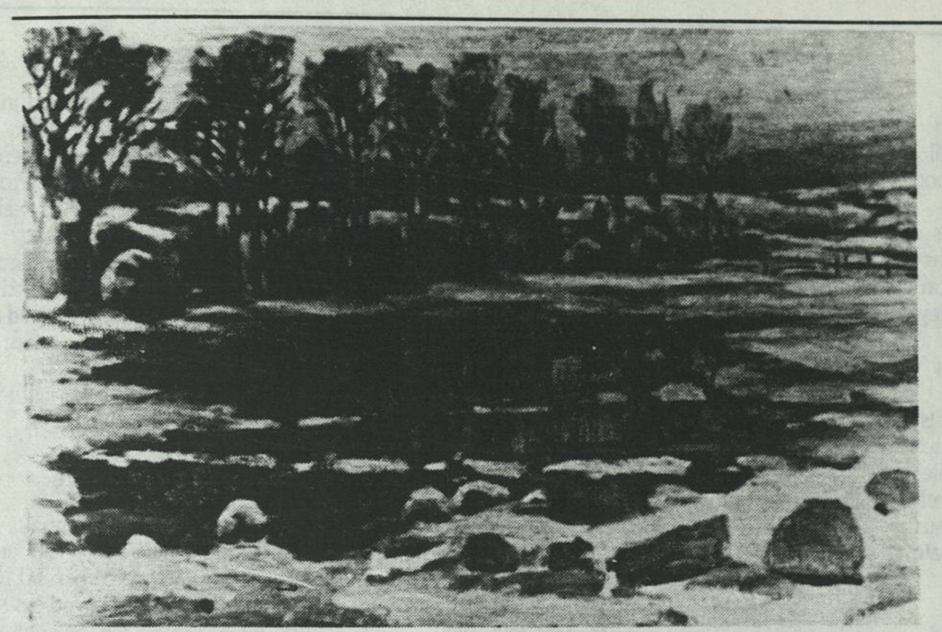
Students and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to enroll in a flexible and convenient insurance plan, The Sentry Student Security Plan.

Any full or part-time student who is registered and attending a state accredited college or university that formally authorizes the Sentry plan is eligible to enroll. Coverage may also be maintained during the summer vacations and up to one term after graduation. This program offers several good options.

Please stop by the Health Center for a brochure or application. Salisbury State University has authorized this insurance program.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.



"Winter in the Marshes," painted around 1900-1910 by Henry Rodman Kenyon (1861-1926), is one of over 40 paintings and drawings by this American Impressionist to be exhibited at the University Gallery, October 14 - November 11. Photograph is courtesy of Dr. and Mrs. Rothwell of Trenton, MI, who own the painting.

Martin Returns

Kathyrn Martin, who has been on leave of absence for two years while attending the University of Colorado to complete her Ph.D. in the Department of Theatre and Dance, has returned to Salisbury State this semester. She is an instructor in the Department of Physical Education and director of the Dance Company.

While at Colorado Martin taught many courses including modern dance technique, history and philosophy of dance and 20th century dance, introduction to theatre and theatre history. In addition to university teaching, Martin also taught at Alexander Dawson School, a private, college prepartory institution for talented and gifted students. While at Alexandar Dawson she taught dance forms and theatre forms, choreographed two dance concerts and directed two plays.

Martin also worked at the Colorado Shakespeare Festival in Boulder. In 1988 she was assistant director to Gavin Cameron Webb in the direction of Hamlet starring Val Kimer. For the 1989 season Martin was choreographer for both Othello and Love's Labour's Lost working under directors Tom Markus and Malcolm Morrison, respectively. Martin also worked directly under Markus as assistant director for Othello; this production starred Jonathan Peck and Randy Moore.

"The University of Colorado is a wonderful place to work, experiment and create new performances," said Martin. "Not only are people ready and open to new ideas, but there seems to be a multitude of competent performers, actors, dancers, musicians, composers, choreographers, directors and designers who respect and support each other's work as well as want to work together."

In February 1988 Martin worked closely with the Colorado School of Music choreographing the opera Falstaff. Following this Martin directed/choreographed Only Blue, an original dance theatre piece which, like a dream play contained text, movement and music. This spring Martin directed and choreographed At the Hawk's Well, a dance play by W.B. Yeats. In keeping with Yeats' original thoughts the play was directed using the forms of Japanese Noh theatre. Masks and a chorus of musicians assisted in conveying the theme of the play. As a result of the success of At the Hawk's Well, it has been chosen to be performed at the National Opera Conference in Albuquerque, NM in November.

"I was very surprised that this work was noticed by opera people," said Martin. "They usually do traditional, classical work. Although Yeats wrote it in 1916 he was very much ahead of his time and trying to create something new for the theatre. I'm not sure that it is even understood today.

"One of the performances was attended by a Yeats scholar," continued Martin "and I was very nervous about what she would think. After the performance, however, she came up to me and told me that the work was a beautiful and precise interpretation of the world that Yeats was trying to create. I don't think that I have ever felt so relieved."

Outdoor Club Meeting

The first Outdoor Club meeting will be at 9 p.m. on Monday, September 11, in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. This will be an introductory meeting for new members and a welcome back for all members. The club will accepts the $5 membership fee at this meeting. Refreshments will be available after the meeting.

Information will be provided about the semester's programs and trips including backpacking on September 22-24; horse packing on October 6-8; white water rafting on November 4-5; ropes course on November 17-19. Quit Smoking Seminar

Have you decided that it's time to quit smoking? If so, you might consider attending the upcoming seminar offered by Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development. During the three-session seminar, McBrien will present a systematic program of educational, behavioral and visualization experiences to guide participants to stop smoking and to maintain their non-smoker's status.

The seminar will be held on three consecutive Tuesdays beginning September 19, from noon - 1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the University Center. To register to participate in this step-by-step approach to kicking the smoking habit, call the CPPD at 543-6070.

Business Leaders Visit

With presidents and CEOs from a number of billion dollar companies, the third Great Leader Lecture Series, sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business will again bring to the area regionally and nationally prominent business leaders this fall.

"It is a world class program," said Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the Perdue School. "Any business school in the country would be proud of our lineup of speakers.

"The theme of the series," said Mescon, "is to promote excellence, and all of the companies represented are first class operations. The series affords a great opportunity for students, faculty and local business people to meet with leaders in a variety of industries."

The first speaker will be Henry A. Berliner, Jr., president of Second National Federal Savings Bank, who will visit the University on Thursday, September 14, at 11 a.m. He will be followed by H. Furlong Baldwin, chairman of Mercantile Bankshares Corporation, on Wednesday, October 4, at 11 a.m. Wyman C. Harris, president of Wyndham Baking Company, Inc., will speak on Monday, October 16, at noon. On Thursday, November 2, Gene A. James, president and CEO of Southern States Cooperative, Inc., will speak at 12:30 p.m. Robert Weller, president of Econo Lodges of America, Inc., will conclude the fall lecture presentations.

The lectures by Berliner, Baldwin, Harris and James will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Weller's presentation will be in the Holloway Hall Auditorium. All the lectures in the series are free and open to the public.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Comedian Here

SSPB presents comedian Randy Levin at the Gull's Nest in the University Center, on Tuesday, September 12, at 9 p.m.

Levin has appeared at the top comedy clubs including Catch-A-Rising-Star, The Improvisation and Dangerfield's. He has also appeared in the film Lean on Me.

Code of Conduct Revised

President Bellavance has approved revisions in the University's Code of Conduct which will allow the University to take disciplinary action against students who are arrested or receive criminal citations connected with off-campus parties or serious criminal acts. This change was given legal approval in a January 1989 opinion issued by the office of the Maryland Attorney General.

The change in policy is primarily targeted at students who host large parties which are disruptive to the community. Past complaints include alcohol violations, disorderly conduct, vandalism, littering, illegal parking on private property and obscene behavior. The relatively few students who host such parties cause serious disruption for community residents and create a negative image for the majority of SSU students. One result has been that some landlords and property managers refuse to rent to students.

Salisbury City Police will continue to respond to complaints from community residents. If, in the judgment of the responding officer, a situation is serious enough to warrant an arrest or criminal citation, students on the lease will be held responsible. A police report will be forwarded to the University and a campus judicial hearing will be convened.

Directory Information

Salisbury State will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information with prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as student's name, local address (if listed), date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of an athletic team member, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, most recent previous educational agency or institution attended and listing of officers of student organizations (including names and addresses).

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, or stop by room 212, University Center.

Sunday Mass

The Newman Club (Catholic student organization) will offer Mass on campus each Sunday that school is in session.

Mass will be at 3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Student Center. All are invited.

Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will once again hold a "Monster" Book Sale on Wednesday, September 13, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on the plaza in front of the Library. (Rain date is Friday, September 15.)

Books will be 35 cents each or three for $1. All sorts of books will be sold. Some may even be useful for coursework. There will also be give aways.

CLEP Test

The College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 18. The deadline for registration is Monday, September 18. Applications are available in the Admissions Office, HH 155.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Center for Personal and Professional Development

Most students, during their college careers, experience concerns of a personal, interpersonal academic or career planning nature. At SSU, the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) is designed to help students deal with these concerns by providing personal counseling, career planning and job placement services.

The CPPD counselors, Bob McBrien, Joe Andrade and Kathryn Reading, can assist students in resolving issues which may be interfering with personal growth or academic progress. The counselors will also conduct outreach programs throughout the year dealing with such developmental issues as time management, relationships, stress management, eating disorders, sports psychology, etc.

At the CPPD, career development specialist Terry Clay and placement services coordinator Linda Benson help students and alumni to define and pursue career goals. Career counseling, occupational interest testing, the SIGI PLUS computerized career guidance system, career planning workshops and career planning library are a few of the available career planning resources. Job placement services include placement counseling, resume and interviewing workshops, on-campus recruitment, credential service and the placement library.

Located on the second floor of the University Center, the CPPD is open 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday. Evening hours will also be made available once the semester begins. Appointments can be made in person or by calling 543-6070. Walk-in hours are 1-3 p.m., Monday-Thursday. All counseling is confidential and free of charge to University students.

Pre-Nursing Students

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for spring semester is October 1.

This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registering for Nursing 300, Professional Nursing Concepts for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing and submitted no later than October 1. Applications received after October 1 will be considered on a space available basis.

The application deadline for the fall 1991 semester is March 1, 1990.

Orchestra Rehearsals

Rehearsals for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University are beginning soon. Starting September 10, SSO rehearsals will run on Sunday evenings with some sectionals being scheduled. Students who play string, wind or percussion instruments and are interested in playing with the SSO may audition for placement.

Please call Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the Department of Music, at 543-6385.

Concert Choir

Weekly rehearsals for the SSU Concert Choir are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Power Professional Building.

To participate register for Concert Choir, MUSA 100-001 (one credit hour which may be repeated for credit).

If you have questions, contact Dr. Duane Karna, director of Choral Activities, at 543-6385. His office is in room 109 of the Musical Arts Building.

Affirmative Action Plan

The University's recently revised affirmative action plan has been approved by Dr. Bellavance and placed on file in a number of locations on campus for access by all University employees.

The plan contains the University's equal employment opportunity policy, provides an analysis of the University's labor force and outlines responsibilities for those involved in the recruitment and selection of faculty, administrators and classified employees.

The plan may be used for reference purposes and is to be updated annually. Copies of the plan have been placed in the Personnel Office, Blackwell Library and the Affirmative Action Office (HH-134), where there are additional copies available for anyone who might like to have a copy.

Please send comments, suggestions and/or corrections for future revisions to Robert Spery, Affirmative Action Officer, Holloway Hall 134, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD.

Said Perdue of the Fultons' gift, "I want to commend Chuck and Martha for their generous gift. I can think of no better way to give something back to the community than to support this University as the Fultons have done, making it not only a major economic force in our area, but a vital and exceptional cultural resource affecting the lives of all."

Said Henson, "I am indeed gratified to hear that Chuck and Martha have become another major benefactor to Salisbury State in initiating the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts. It is not only a great tribute to higher education, but it will be a lasting asset to the entire Eastern Shore area."

Fulton grew up on a farm in Kenton, OH, and started working in the poultry industry during the 1930s for $12 a week. He first met his future wife, Martha Nock, at the 1939 World Poultry Congress in Cleveland. A veteran of World War II, he moved to Snow Hill in 1946 and for the past 43 years has been actively involved in the lives of Eastern Shore farmers, buying grain and selling both chickens and feed to many of Delmarva's growers. In 1965 he merged the companies of Fulton Grain Corporation, Fulton Broiler Service and Nock's Snow Hill Hatcheries with Holly Farms Poultry Industries, Inc., of Wilkesboro, NC. In 1968 Holly Farms merged with the The Federal Company of Memphis, TN. At one time the largest poultry supplier in the nation, Holly Farms Foods, Inc., was processing seven million chickens weekly at the time of its sale to Tyson Foods in July of this year.

Fulton served on the separate boards of both The Federal Company and Holly Farm Foods, Inc. He also serves on the board of directors of First Maryland Bancorp in Baltimore, the second largest bank in Maryland and 86th nationwide.

Mrs. Fulton's roots on the Eastern Shore are both deep and wide. The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Nock of Snow Hill, Mrs. Fulton attended Salisbury State in 1937 and 1938. Her classmates included Hamilton P. Fox , later prominent Salisbury attorney and leader in Maryland politics; Dr. S. Goldsborough Tyler, who became a highly respected professor at Salisbury State University; and poultry magnate Franklin P. Perdue. Her family includes distinguished civic leaders: Her aunt, Beulah Nock Allen, was a missionary to India and her cousin, Dr. Gladys Allen, was both a medical missionary there and later served as Somerset County Health Officer. Allen Memorial Church, a prominent Baptist church in Salisbury, was renamed honoring the Allens. An uncle, Dr. Randolph Nock, a noted surgeon during World War II, performed many of the operations in this area at that time. His widow, Mrs. Frances Nock, still resides in Salisbury.

Another cousin, Garland Nock of Salisbury, was married to the late Senator Mary Nock, President Pro-Tem of the Maryland Senate who served there longer than any other woman in the history of the Maryland Legislature.

The Fultons are deeply concerned about the problems and education of young people in all its aspects, and are active members of Whatcoat United Methodist Church in Snow Hill.

They live on a working farm outside of the historic county seat of Worcester, located some 20 miles southwest of Ocean City. Near their 18th century farmhouse is a pond which serves as home to hundreds of migrating Canada and snow geese during the winter, as well as mallards, black ducks and peacocks all year round. The setting has attracted photographers from National Geographic magazine.

The Fultons' daughter, Jennie Lynn, is married to A.W. Owen also of Snow Hill. The couple have two children and live nearby.

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts has 11 undergraduate majors: art, communication arts, English, history, liberal studies, modern languages, music, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology. Three graduate programs offer the Master of Arts in English, history and psychology. It is the largest school in the University.

Minority Leadership Development Program

The Center for Personal and Professional Development is pleased to announce the initiation of the Minority Leadership Development Program. The various facets of the program have been designed to help reduce the anxieties related to the academic, personal and professional growth of minority students. During the upcoming year, 14 workshops will be held which will provide a career guidance, personal development, professional development and study skills program to prepare minority students for academic and professional leadership positions. A variety of computer software packages and video-tapes will also be utilized as part of this new program.

Specific features of the program include: Career development sessions emphasizing career planning and vocational maturation while guiding students toward realistic career choices; standardized testing to assess interests and chart vocational maturity: "Real world" experiences as part of the career and professional development process; personal counseling, supportive study skills development and an orientation to campus academic services to promote academic success; exploration and problem solving skills related to the social adjustment issues of minority students on a predominantly white campus.

For more information about the Minority Leadership Development Program, contact Terry Clay or Joe Andrade at 543-6070.

like that. It shows concern for the individual. It will point out opportunities. It will entice."

Rettew, who has taught at SSU for eight years, received her Master of Science in Nursing from The University of Pennsylvania and Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Columbia University where she did clinical study at famed Columbia Presbyterian Hospital.

A past faculty advisor to the SSU Outdoor Club and the Students Nurses Association, she has been voted the Outstanding Nursing Faculty Award by graduating seniors in nursing.

And for two summers she volunteered at a one-room village clinic in Guatemala, tending to rural Indian families in the mountains, about three hours by bus from the capital city.

"The Indians were a very wonderful, family oriented people," she said. One farmer, for example, walked three hours down a hillside carrying his child to clinic. Her experiences there gave her a respect for different cultures, just as her work with children in pediatrics—her speciality—has given her an appreciation for individuals at all stages of development. "I'd like to see college students recapture the enthusiasm and pleasure that children have toward knowledge—not as a means to an end, but as part of life—as something both enjoyable in itself and uniting us with others.

"Our culture is unique. We can't make every country into America. Nor should every student measure the profitability of his or her college years with only a dollar sign. Profitability can be measured in other ways."

Fall Teams Open Sports Seasons This Week

After months of planning and several weeks of preseason practices, the SSU athletic teams finally begin competition this week as four of the six fall sports squads open their seasons. Coach Joe Dailey's football team kicks things off as it travels to Long Island, NY this Saturday to play C.W. Post. The Gulls beat Post, 27-24, last year as Kevin White hit Jerry Short with an 8-yard scoring toss with 19 seconds left in the game. Salisbury went on to finish the '88 season with a 6-3 record.

Closer to home, the soccer team begins its season with a two-day, round-robin format tournament featuring Glassboro State, Mary Washington and Randolph-Macon. The Gulls meet Randolph-Macon in the second game on Saturday, at 4 p.m., then play Mary Washington in Sunday's finale, at 3 p.m.

In addition to cheering on the team at the games, SSU students can help support the Sea Gulls while they eat. Domino's Pizza has agreed to help sponsor the tournament by donating 25 cents per small pizza and 50 cents per large pizza for every order placed by an SSU student during "tournament week," from September 3 - 10. Students can show that they are "hungry for the Gulls."

Also on Saturday, Barry Shreve and Rhonda Warmsley debut as the new coaches of the women's volleyball team. The spikers host teams from Stockton State, Lincoln and Mary Washington in matches beginning at 2 p.m. in the Maggs Center. Later in the week, Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team travels to Washington, D.C. to play Catholic in the season opener. The Lady Gulls finished 16-3-3 last year, third in the nation.

The soccer team also returns to action on Wednesday, as it hosts St. Mary's College 4 p.m.

Why Get Wired When You've Got the Blues?

A short pop quiz on The Blues Brothers:

1. What model car do Jake and Elwood drive on their mission from God?
2. What color shirt does Henry Gibson wear?
3. How many times does Carrie Fisher try to kill John Belushi.
4. What character does Muppet master Frank Oz play?
5. Name 10 cameo roles.

Answers appear on screen this Saturday and Sunday evening as the SSPB presents the real John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd in The Blues Brothers.

Show times for The Blues Brothers are Saturday, September 9, and Sunday, September 10, at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Admission is free.

Other films for September are Outrageous Animation Festival and the cult classic King of Hearts.

October films include The Graduate with Dustin Hoffman and The Accused starring Jodie Foster and Kelly McGillis.

The SSPB film series will be screening films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first.

Dunn Begins Riall Lecture Series

Does your third-grader seem hyperactive? Does he fidget through a morning arithmetic class and hate to read alone, but thrives on putting together complicated puzzles with mom and dad? Does he drag to school in the morning and explode off the bus in the afternoon?

If so, he may be neither anti-school nor hyperactive; but simply normal for a boy his age. For example, only 28 percent of elementary school children are morning alert or "early birds," yet the majority of teachers are early morning, high energy people," according to Dr. Rita Dunn writing in the journal, Educational Leadership. Teaching in a manner in sync with the child's learning style can significantly improve his or her academic performance, studies show.

Dunn, a leader in the study of learning style whose books are used by educators across the country, is the next E. Pauline Riall lecturer. Her talk, "Teaching Students Through Their Individual Learning Styles," is on Thursday, September 28, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and the public is invited.

On Friday, September 29, from 8:30 a.m. - noon, she will conduct a workshop on both learning and teaching styles. "Public school teachers, university faculty, students and members of the community are encouraged to attend this informative event," said Dr. Maurice Bozman, Riall Professor of Education at Salisbury. "I promise that you won't be disappointed."

Dr. Rita Dunn

Dunn, who has lectured and performed workshops across the country, has had a distinguished career in education. In 1988 the National Association of Elementary School Principals named her "Educator of the Year"; the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development has named her "Outstanding Consultant of the Year"; and she has been the New York Association of Teachers of English's "College Teacher of the Year." She has received awards from both Hunter College and St. John's University where she is director of the Center for Study of Learning and Teaching Styles.

She also has written more than 175 published articles, research papers and pamphlets, and eight books including Learning Styles: Quiet Revolution in American Secondary Schools (1988); Teaching Children to Read Through Their Individual Learning Styles (1985); and How to Raise Independent and Professionally Successful Daughters.

Perhaps the ultimate compliment to a teacher: Of 13 doctoral dissertations which Dunn mentored between 1980 and 1987, two won international and three won national research awards, and eight won national research citations.

Sea Gull Sports Summary

The busy fall sports schedule is in full swing, with Friday's women's tennis match the final opener for the fall teams. The football team will try to even its record at 1-1 this Saturday when it hosts powerful Ferrum College in the home opener at Sea Gull Stadium, starting at 1:30.

The Gulls lost 20-0 at C.W. Post last Saturday in the season opener as they were unable to capitalize on several scoring opportunities.

Meanwhile, Ferrum, which features perhaps the best offensive backfield in Division III, defeated Bridgewater 28-0 Saturday.

Last week's blanking against C.W. Post was the first time SSU has been shutout since the last game of the 1982 season, when the Gulls lost 28-0 at Dayton. That covers a stretch of 65 games, including 57 regular season games and eight postseason playoff games.

Despite losing in the championship game of last weekend's SSU Soccer Invitational, sponsored by Domino's Pizza, the Gulls displayed good talent as they opened the season with a split. SSU defeated Randolph-Macon in Saturday's first round, 3-2, behind goals by Kevin Goode, Bryan Watson and Kevin Jackson. Mary Washington beat Salisbury 3-0 for the championship.

Barry Shreve and Rhonda Warmsley made a successful debut as the new coaches of the volleyball team as Salisbury swept three matches at home in round-robin play on Saturday. The

Gull's Nest Introduces New Services

Under the name of "The Gull Shops," the Gull's Nest is introducing a series of new services to SSU.

Initial offerings are to be as follows: snack locations set up in Devilbiss and Caruthers Halls from 6-8:30 p.m., Monday - Thursday evenings. Such items as coffee, sandwiches, pastries and fresh fruit will be available on a cash basis.

Beginning Monday, September 11, a Holloway Hall location will be open from 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., Monday - Friday. This location will offer sandwiches, soup and salads, with both a cash and employee charge payment option.

Later in September, Sammy's Express will begin delivering pizza and hot sandwiches. Sammy's hours will be 9 p.m. - 1:30 p.m., Sunday through Wednesday; and 9 p.m. - 2:30 a.m. on Thursdays. Initial offerings will be limited to pizza and hot sandwiches, but plans are in the works to eventually offer fried chicken, spaghetti and possibly subs.

Finally, the Gull Shops will begin offering a family-oriented Sunday brunch buffet on October 8. This brunch will be held in the Gull's Nest and will be open to the general public. In addition to a variety of breakfast and lunch offerings, featured items will include carved roast turkey and steamship round, a Belgian waffle bar and an omelet bar. The price will be $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children under 12. The brunch will be offered 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. every Sunday; only cash and employee charges will be accepted.

Van Glaman, the new assistant director of Dining Services, describes the Gull Shops as "...our attempt to bring our services to the campus community. We're interested in trying out a few new things this year. We hope that these ventures are a success, so that we can add additional dimensions in the future."

"The Gull Shops have a high commitment to maintaining quality, at the best price we can offer," added Glaman.

History Club Meeting

The History Club will hold a Pizza Night at the La Roma Restaurant Thursday, September 14, at 8:15 p.m. The La Roma Restaurant is located on Route 13, a block-and-a-half north of the campus.

All students are invited to attend. The cost is shared (usually about $5 dollars).

During the evening, students will have an opportunity to plan the year's activities and to elect officers.

Renaissance Festival Trip

The Salisbury State Program Board is offering a bus trip package to the Maryland Renaissance Festival on Saturday, September 23.

Tickets are on sale at the Information Desk in the University Center. The price is $6 for students and $8 for faculty, staff and non-students. Price includes admission to the festival and bus fare.

Crab Fest September 17

The Sea Gull Club is planning its fall season fund raiser, the second annual SSU Crab Fest, sponsored by Arby's Restaurant. The event will be on Sunday, September 17, from 2-7 p.m. at Canal Woods Swim & Tennis Club.

Tickets for the all-you-can-eat event are $15 and are available through the Athletic Department, 543-6340, the Alumni Association, 543-6042, the Foundation Office, 543-6175, and First Shore Federal Savings & Loan, 546-1101.

Drug Symposium

The Medical Technology Department, a program that teaches clinical laboratory science, will sponsor a symposium on issues surrounding drug abuse on Friday, September 22, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Faculty/Staff Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program will begin its fall session on Monday, September 18. The program will once again offer aerobic dance and Nautilus workouts as well as periodic fitness assessments. Program hours will be Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 5 - 6 p.m. If you have not previously registered for the program please pick up a registration packet from the Physical Education office.

Health/Fitness Internship Meetings

All Physical Education majors who are planning a Health/Fitness Internship (PE 479) for the spring 1990 semester should meet with Dr. Bob Cross before September 30.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SWAC Season Set

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council has announced its 1989-90 season of bus trips.

This season's trips begin with Alfres Uhry's 1988 Pulitzer Prize winning play, Driving Miss Daisey. The show stars Julie Harris. The show is at the Morris Mechanic Theatre in Baltimore on Saturday, November 11, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $61 ($56 for SWAC members). All reservations must be paid for by October 12.

On Sunday, January 21, SWAC travels to Petrucchi's Dinner Theatre in Baltimore to see Greater Tuna. The show is a 2 p.m. matinee and tickets are $44 ($39 for SWAC members). All reservations must be paid for not later than December 16.

Big band music is the setting for the third trip of the year, Stardust, on Saturday, February 24, at 2 p.m. This trip to the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. is $65 ($60 for SWAC members). All reservations must be paid for by January 22.

Stephen Sondheim's Tony Award-winning fairy tale musical, Into the Woods, at the Morris Mechanic Theatre in Baltimore can be seen on Saturday, April 14, at 2 p.m. and is $62 ($57 for SWAC members). All reservations must be paid for by March 21.

Shear Madness, a comedy whodunit, can be seen on Saturday, May 26, at 6 p.m. at the Kennedy Center and is $48 ($43 for SWAC members). All reservations must be in by April 26.

Nominated for seven Tony Awards, Starlight Express at the Kennedy Center is on Saturday, June 30, and is $66 ($61 for SWAC members). All reservations must be in by May 30.

Make all checks payable to SWAC and mail reservations to: SWAC, P.O. Box 884, Salisbury, MD 21801. For more information, contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

The Story of English

The English Department extends an invitation to a showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

"Mother Tongue" will be shown on Tuesday, September 19, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 105. This program "surveys the growth of English from its Anglo-Saxon origins, through the Norman Conquest, to the poetry of Chaucer."

There will be a discussion following the showing. For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.

Lide To Review Book

Dr. William E. Lide, chair of physical education and director of athletics and campus recreation, has agreed to be a book reviewer for the Sociology of Sport Journal.

Lide's initial review will be of Phillip M. Hoose's book, Necessities: Racial Barriers in American Sport. The completion date for this project is January 15.

Outdoor Club

Outdoor Club meetings will be at 9 p.m. on Mondays in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. At upcoming meetings, information will be provided about the semester's programs and trips, including backpacking on September 22-24, horsepacking on October 6-8, white water rafting on October 20-22, rock climbing on November 4 or 5, and ropes course on November 17-19.

Final sign-ups for backpacking at Delaware Water Gap on September 22-24 will be at the meeting at 9 p.m. on September 18. The hike will be easy-to-moderate, suitable for new backpackers. Cost is $5 for members and $8 for non-members. The meeting on September 25 will feature a presentation on horsepacking; this will be in preparation for the trip to Shenandoah National Park on October 6-8.

Contractual Secretarial Position

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business has an opening for a full time secretary in a fast-paced academic environment. Experience in Word Perfect and general office procedures is preferred. This is a contractual position paying $6.50 per hour, with no State benefits. Interested applicants should send a cover letter and resume, not later than September 12, to the Assistant Director of Personnel, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

SSU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Time to Stop Smoking

Is it time for you to finally quit smoking? For instruction and support, consider attending the upcoming seminar, offered by Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development. During the seminar, which lasts for three sessions, McBrien will present a systematic program of educational, behavioral and visualization experiences to guide participants to stop smoking and to maintain their non-smoker's status.

The seminar will begin on Tuesday, September 19, and will continue on September 26 and October 3. The sessions will be held from noon - 1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the University Center. To register to participate in this step-by-step approach to kicking the smoking habit, call the CPPD at 543-6070.

Three Present Research

Dr. Robert Graff, professor, Dr. George Whitehead, professor and chair, and Dr. Barry Shreve, assistant professor, all from the Salisbury State University Department of Psychology, recently presented research at the 97th annual American Psychological Association Convention in New Orleans.

The three co-authored two experiments. One of these, "Cognitive versus supportive-insight group treatment of divorced individuals," replicated earlier research by Graff and Whitehead. The study found that cognitive and supportive-insight therapy were equally effective in reducing the anxiety and depression of divorced men and women. A second study, "Effectiveness of an applied psychology course in reducing anxiety in teachers," found that a mental hygiene course temporarily lowered teachers' anxiety. The study was also co-authored by Charles Jones, a former graduate student in psychology who is now employed by the State of Delaware.

Shreve also co-authored three other papers. One study, "Effects of counseling perceptions of gender-related client roles," found that female clients were rated more positively than males, and "angry" clients were rated as more masculine than "hurt" clients.

A second paper, "The role of shame in adolescent suicide: a self-psychological perspective," discussed the role of shame in adolescent suicide from the psychoanalytic self-psychological perspective of Heinz Kohut. It also discussed the importance of peer group identification in normal adolescent adjustment and explored the results of a failure to develop appropriate peer relations.

The final paper, "Toward a morphological taxonomy of counseling psychology research," discussed the need for a systematic organization of counseling psychology research and proposed a framework for organizing research efforts. The trips received partial financial support from the SSU Foundation.

SSU in the USSR

Though it may be cold and snowy, the heart of Russia is warm and friendly. Come, find out for yourself when SSU goes to the Soviet Union January 12-22.

You'll have a chance to visit the capitals of the old and new Russia: Kiev, where it all began 1,000 years ago; Leningrad, Peter the Great's capital and the scene of the Bolshevik Revolution; and Moscow, the new center amidst ancient surroundings of a rapidly changing country.

The course is sponsored by the History Department and the cost is just $1,449. The instructor and group leader is Dr. Robert Berry, who teaches Russian history and has visited the Soviet Union several times in the past.

For more information, come to the open interest meeting on Wednesday, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center, or contact Berry at 543-6248.

Outrageous Animation Festival

On Saturday, September 16, and Sunday, September 17, the Program Board presents the first showing on the Eastern Shore of Outrageous Animation.

Saturday morning never prepared you for this collection of scandalous, shocking and hilarious animated shorts from all over the world.

Show times for Outrageous Animation are 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Due to the explicit nature of this film, no one under 17 will be admitted. Admission is free.

The classic cult film, King of Hearts, will be shown on Friday, September 29, and Monday, October 1.

October films include The Graduate with Dustin Hoffman and The Accused starring Jodie Foster and Kelly McGillis.

Club Showcase

The summer is over and you don't know what to do with all your extra time. The Program Board can help. Come to Red Square for Club Showcase Day to discover what organizations and activities SSU has to offer.

Campus student organizations will have tables set up along the Square to provide information on special interests. Join in the carnival atmosphere. A free antique photo session will be provided by the Program Board.

Tables will be set up between 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. on Monday, September 18. The rain date is September. 25.

Harpsichord Lessons Offered

Does the sound of Baroque music on WSCL set your toe tapping? Do you sometimes feel that western music went into a decline with the death of J. S. Bach from which it has never recovered? If so, a new opportunity this fall might be just the thing for you!

The SSU Music Department is the home of the University's year-old harpsichord, a single manual instrument by Virginia builder Peter Redstone. For the first time, private lessons are being offered on the instrument, which will also be available for practice during the week.

The harpsichord is the perfect instrument on which to play all music of the Baroque and pre-Baroque. If it interests you, and if you have some piano proficiency, contact Dr. Nancy Cooper in the Music Department, 543-6385.

Recent acquisitions in the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture reflect the wear and tear of years of use. Preserving, restoring and saving these valuable records is the topic of a free workshop to be held at the University on September 25.

Paper and Photo Conservation Workshop

Do you have old letters, documents, diaries, books or photographs that are in danger of deteriorating? The Delaware Records Advisory Board is sponsoring a workshop that will help you preserve treasured items.

The Paper and Photo Conservation Workshop will be held on Monday, September 25, from 1:30-3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center.

Techniques of preserving paper, books and photographs will be explained by workshop leaders Dr. Barbara Benson, library director of the Historical Society of Delaware, and Ms. Joanne Mattern, acting state archivist and records administrator of the State of Delaware. Participants are invited to bring objects for examination and advice.

Admission is free and open to the public. Space is limited, however, so please indicate your intention to attend by phoning the SSU Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at 543-6245 as soon as possible.

Fleming Attends Conference

Dr. Jessie Fleming, professor of music, attended the National Dance Critics Association Conference in San Francisco in June. One of the major topics was the relationship of music to choreography. Speakers were principal dancers of the New York City Ballet of past years and leading music and dance critics from newspapers and national periodicals.

A large repertoire of music of the later 19th and 20th centuries was written for ballet, modern dance and other dance styles, and was, therefore, dependent upon the relationship of the inherent motion in both music and physical motion.

Fleming also spent 10 days in Nova Scotia, during which time she heard a variety of folk music of that region. The Gaelic College on Cape Breton Island regularly performs authentic songs and dances of Scotland, along with music and dances indigenous to Cape Breton.

Native music and ceremonies of the Micmac Indians of Cape Breton was performed in various communities; and the folk songs of the Acadia, some of which are influenced by the French Canadians of the Gaspe Peninsula, were performed in several communities of that region.

These programs enhanced Dr. Fleming's acquaintance with and understanding of folk music of North America.

Bus Trip to Reading, PA Outlets

The Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, of Salisbury State, is sponsoring a bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, October 14, leaving Maggs at 7 a.m. and returning the same day around 9 p.m.

The price is $9.50 for MCEA members and $14.50 for non-members. Please give check or money to Elaine Bolden (Payroll Department, 543-6046) or Barbara Keene (Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center, 543-6309.)

First come, first served, this is a great way to get Christmas shopping done and to save money at outlet prices. Don't hesitate if you want to go; the trip fills up fast.

Lady Gulls opened with a 12-15, 15-13, 15-13 victory over Mary Washington. They then added sweeps over Stockton State, 15-10, 15-9 and Lincoln, 15-6, 15-3, to open the year with a 3-0 match record. SSU travels to the Gettysburg (PA) Invitational Tournament this weekend, then pays a return visit to Mary Washington next Saturday.

The cross country squads continue their meet action over the next two weeks after a successful opening weekend at the Essex Invitational Saturday. The Salisbury men defended their championship by capturing the five-field event, with top performances turned in by David Atlas (third overall), Tim Smith (seventh overall), and Steve Lambe (10th overall).

The Salisbury women placed second by one point, despite Stephanie Brown's first place finish in the women's competition. Laura Candido finished third overall and Debbie Walker placed eighth for the Gulls.

Playing its second road game at Lynchburg on Sunday after opening the season at Catholic on Wednesday, Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey squad opens its home season next weekend with the highly competitve Sunfest Tournament, sponsored by the Hampton Inn. Several top team's from along the East Coast, including Cortland State and Millersville, will be featured in the six-team field.

Research on learning styles has been conducted at more than 60 universities over the past decade. Only three comprehensive models have been developed, one of which is Dunn's.

From a "Survey of Research on Learning Styles" some interesting facts are noted:

*Much of a child's learning style is biological, such as a morning versus afternoon learner, need for mobility, sensory sensitivities and left versus right brain. These and other factors demonstrate remarkable resistance to change.

*Styles can change with age. By high school, nearly 40 percent of students are "early birds" although the majority still are not. And during the high school years, for the first time, 13 percent of students become evening learners or "night owls."

* Teachers have implemented innovative instructional techniques more often when they were taught during their preferred hours.

There is no charge for either the lecture or workshop. For more information contact the office of Public Relations at 543-6029.

Karna, Cockey Recital

A faculty recital sponsored by the Department of Music and featuring Dr. Duane R. Karna, voice, and Linda Cockey, piano accompanist, will be held Sunday, October 1, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The recital is free and open to the public. A reception will follow in the main lounge.

Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities, is also responsible for private voice and class voice instruction, as well as courses in conducting and fundamentals of music.

In 1986 Karna competed his Doctor of Musical Arts in choral conducting with a minor in vocal performance from the University of Arizona.

As a vocal/choral specialist, Karna has been a guest soloist for various choral organizations in Washington, Colorado, Texas and Arizona and has participated in many opera theater productions and opera workshops. Most recently Karna sang the role of Aeneas in the SSU Collegium performance of Henry Purcell's opera, Dido and Aeneas.

Cockey is a member of the music faculty, teaching piano and music theory. She holds a Bachelor of Arts from Lebanon Valley College and a Master of Music from Temple University.

She is presently completing work toward the Doctor of Musical Arts in piano performance and pedagogy at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

1989's edition of Keyboard Artist Teacher listed Cockey. She is a frequent performer in the Salisbury area, as soloist and accompanist.

MCEA Meeting

The Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, has its next quarterly meeting on Thursday, September 21, at 6 p.m., at Nick Idoni's (next to SSU).

A hot buffet dinner will be served first, but you must RSVP by Monday, September 18, to June Dysart, 543-6025, or Barbara Keene, 543-6309, in order to have a dinner.

There will be election of officers. Kathy Austin from the Department of Personnel will be explaining some new procedures on health benefits and Mary Gene Jenkins will be there to answer any questions on the University System.

Gallery Exhibits Photographs of American Indian Rock Art

"Terra Incognita," an exhibition of photographs of American Indian rock art by Salvatore Mancini, will be on display in the Salisbury State University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, September 9 - October 11.

The photographs document paintings and engravings made by American Indians on rock ledges and cliffs throughout the southwestern United States. Most of these works were made 500 to 1,500 years ago, though some examples, such as a painting of large, supernatural beings from a site in eastern Utah, may be nearly 4,000 years old. Among the most recent works is a Navajo painting of a Spanish cavalcade from the early 19th century.

Mancini, whose photographs of the architecture and sacred sites of ancient civilizations have received international recognition, traveled over 15,000 miles through Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado to photograph examples of the rock art of each of the four major southwestern prehistoric Indian groups—Anasazi, Fremont, Hohokam and Mogollon—as well as that of more recent Pueblo, Navajo and Hopi Indians.

The photographs include representations of human figures, supernatural beings, masks, animals, hand prints, geometric designs and other abstract symbols. According to Ursula Ehrhardt, director of the University Gallery, these images were generally made for religious, communal and ritual purposes. Some, for example mark sacred places where mythic events took place or where communication with supernatural beings may occur. Others were made by medicine men or shamans in ritual ceremonies, or by initiates undergoing rites of passage. Still others mark territorial boundaries.

"Mancini's photographs capture the mysterious power of these images," Ehrhardt said, "and also convey a sense of their relationship to the landscape, and of their function as a means of communication with nature and higher spiritual forces." Mancini, in fact, calls his photographs "tracings which continue to relate the history and cosmologies of the ancients."

He will give a lecture on his work on October 11 at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Rooms A and B of the University Center, to be followed by a reception in the University Gallery in Blackwell Library. Both events are free and open to the public.

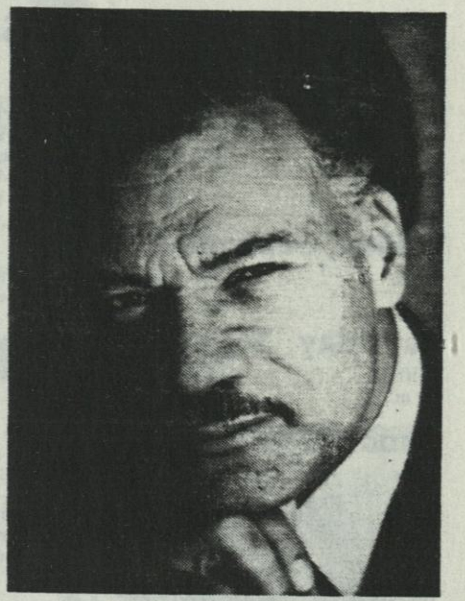
The University Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday from 5 to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Jeanne Heidler Presents Paper

Dr. Jeanne T. Heidler, assistant professor in the Department of History, delivered a paper titled, "The Regular Army in the First Seminole War, 1817-1818," at the annual meeting of the Society for Historians of the Early American Republic hosted this summer by the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

Heidler's paper demonstrated that General Andrew Jackson's preference for irregular troops over the trained forces at his disposal gave this short war a rather chaotic appearance that was completely unnecessary given the small numbers Jackson's soldiers faced.

As a result, Jackson's showing in Florida led to the increased reliance on regular forces by the United States military.



Dr. Ivan Van Sertima

Van Sertima To Lecture

Dr. Ivan Van Sertima literary critic, linguist and anthropologist, lectures on, "Blacks in Antiquity," on Tuesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center

As a literary critic, he is the author of Caribbean Writers, a collection of critical essays on the Caribbean novel. He is also the author of several major literary reviews published in Denmark, India, Britain and the United States.

He was honored for his work in this field by being asked by the Nobel Committee of the Swedish Academy to nominate candidates for the Nobel Prize in Literature from 1976-1980. He has also been honored, as an historian of world repute, by being appointed by UNESCO to the International Commission for Rewriting the Scientific and Cultural History of Mankind.

As a linguist, he has published essays on the dialect of the Sea Islands off the Georgia Coast. He is also the compiler of the Swahili Dictionary of Legal Terms, based on his field work in Tanzania, East Africa, in 1967.

He is the author of They Came Before Columbus: The African Presence in Ancient America, which was published by Random House in 1977 and is now in its 11th printing. It was published in French in 1981 and in the same year was awarded the Clarence L. Holte Prize, a prize awarded every two years "for a work of excellence in literature and the humanities relating to the cultural heritage of Africa and the African disapora."

Van Sertima, professor of African Studies at Rutgers University, is also visiting professor at Princeton University. He is the editor of the Journal of African Civilizations. Recent books he has edited include Blacks in Science: ancient and modern, Black Women in Antiquity, Egypt Revisted, Nile Valley Civilizations, African Presence in Early Asia, African Presence in Early Europe, African Presence in Early America, Great African Thinkers and Great Black Leaders: ancient and modern.

Van Sertima was born in Guyana, South America. He was educated at the Scool of Oriental and African Studies, London University and the Rutgers Graduate School and holds degrees in african studies, linguistic and anthropology.

Van Sertima has lectured to more than 100 universities in the United States and has also lectured in Canada, the Caribbean, South America and Europe. He appeared before Congress on July 7, 1987 to challenge the Columbus myth.

Sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6029.

Roberson Presents Paper

Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, presented a paper at the Transcultural Nursing Society's conference in Maastricht, The Netherlands in August.

The paper, titled "Emic and Etic Perspectives: White Ethnographer in an African-American World," was based on Roberson's research experience with Southern rural African-Americans in the U.S.

Close to 200 nurses from 14 countries participated in this three-day international conference.

SSU Maps Non-Tidal Wetlands for Maryland

Salisbury State University has signed a $400,000 contract with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources to produce by computer the maps mandated by the state's Non-tidal Wetlands Protection Act of 1989.

It is the latest in a series of grants to the campus to use newly emerging computer technology as a tool for identifying and mapping Maryland's most significant and most threatened natural resources.

Dr. K. Peter Lade, the principal investigator for these projects, estimates that over the past three years Salisbury State has received about $1 million worth of grants to support its development of a Map and Image Processing System. A substantial part of this effort has gone into the computer mapping of the state's tidal and non-tidal wetlands and aquatic grasses.

According to studies by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, about 80 percent of Maryland's non-tidal wetlands are on the Eastern Shore.

"Since most of the wetlands are in this region, it is appropriate that the University prepare the maps," Lade said.

"I never cease to be amazed at the complexity of natural forces," he added. "This University should play a major role in understanding how these forces work."

Under the terms of the new 18-month contract with the state, Lade and his collegues are committed to completing 258 non-tidal wetlands maps by December 31 of this year.

To identify the wetlands they will work from a national inventory prepared by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Using high resolution black and white images obtained from the French SPOT satellite and a system of overlays, they will be able to call up by computer a map identifying the wetlands in a specific area, update it and reproduce it on paper using an electro-static plotter.

One of the most significant things about the new contract with the state, Lade explained, is a provision for training selected students at the University and from elsewhere in the technology being developed here for the wetlands projects.

Later on, in the course of the project, he said, the University will be able to supply maps at minimal cost to communities, landowners and developers as a guide to the location of non-tidal wetlands to be protected under state law.

Wetlands, once regarded as wastelands to be drained and filled for more productive and lucrative purposes, have been recognized in

UNLOADING ASTRONOMY DOME

Master Sgt. Rob Harris, with the Salisbury National Guard 1229th Transport Company, directs the crane operator unloading one of two surplus astronomy domes donated to Salisbury State University by NASA. The domes are located at the Parsonsburg home of Chris Abramowicz, an SSU alumnus and an employee of NASA, who will refurbish the domes for use by University students and faculty.

WBOC Donates Camera Equipment

WBOC-TV recently donated a pair of television cameras to the Department of Communication Arts.

When WBOC decided to upgrade its studio cameras with new state of the art equipment, general manager Bill Kenton wondered how best to use the existing TK44s that had served the station well and were still in top condition. In a conversation with Mark Handley, director of the Communications Center, he realized that the University could make good use of the cameras in upgrading its facilities used in mass media classes.

Almost immediately the cameras were taken to SSU and installed in the television studio in Caruthers Hall in time for the start of fall semester.

President Bellavance acknowledged Kenton for his concern for quality education and his help in providing the equipment necessary to provide that education.

Kenton said, "it's only natural that WBOC should be interested in helping SSU train the best broadcasting professionals possible; after all, many of them eventually come to work at WBOC.

"I hope that this is only the beginning of a long relationship between WBOC and the Communications Center at Salisbury State," said Kenton.

The cameras donated to SSU were used to produce all local programmming at WBOC, including its news programs, up until late this summer. They are now in use at SSU by mass media classes.

Drug Symposium

The Medical Technology Department, a program that teaches clinical laboratory science, will sponsor a symposium on issues surrounding drug abuse on Friday, September 22, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Dunn Begins Riall Lecture Series

Dr. Rita Dunn, a leader in the study of learning style whose books are used by educators across the country, is the next E. Pauline Riall lecturer. Her talk, "Teaching Students Through Their Individual Learning Styles," is on Thursday, September 28, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and the public is invited.

On Friday, September 29, from 8:30 a.m. - noon, she will conduct a workshop on both learning and teaching styles. "Public school teachers, university faculty, students and members of the community are encouraged to attend this informative event," said Dr. Maurice Bozman, Riall Professor of Education at Salisbury. "I promise that you won't be disappointed."

Bus Trip to Reading, PA Outlets

The Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, of Salisbury State, is sponsoring a bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, October 14, leaving Maggs at 7 a.m. and returning the same day around 9 p.m.

The price is $9.50 for MCEA members and $14.50 for non-members. Please give check or money to Elaine Bolden (Payroll Department, 543-6046) or Barbara Keene (Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center, 543-6309.)

First come, first served, this is a great way to get Christmas shopping done and to save money at outlet prices. Don't hesitate if you want to go: the trip fills up fast.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

The University Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday from 5 to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

Van Sertima To Lecture

Dr. Ivan Van Sertima literary critic, linguist and anthropologist, lectures on, "Blacks in Antiquity," on Tuesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center

Sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6030.

On-Campus Alcoholics Anonymous

On Wednesday, September 27, from 11 a.m.-noon in the Manokin Room of the University Center, the first open meeting of an on-campus AA group will be hald. The meeting is the first of the series of weekly sessions to be held throughout the semester in an effort to provide more accessible and convenient support for students and the campus community. Any interested individual is invited to attend. Questions may be directed to Jennifer Berkman, Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, 543-6309.

Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD)

On Tuesday, September 26, from 6:30-7:30 p.m., SADD will hold its fall interest meeting. The meeting will be held in the first floor lounge of Manokin Hall (the traditional residence hall nearest to Library Lot).

SADD is open to any student who has an interest in becoming involved in prevention activities that encourage peers to make responsible choices about drinking as well as driving after alcohol or drug abuse.

Students who can not attend the meeting due to schedule conflicts are encouraged to contact Jennifer Berkman in the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center behind Maggs Gym or by calling 543-6309.

Alcohol And Drug Center Available for Use

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resources Center is a grant-funded program of Salisbury State University which provides prevention materials, programming and educational resources to the University community and the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The Center, which operates from 8:30 a.m.-noon, and 1-4:30 p.m., Monday - Friday, houses a library of materials available to students, faculty, staff and community members. Resources include over 175 videotapes and films, journals, articles, publications, and statistical data in the area of alcohol and drug abuse and related topics. The Center supports academic study by providing materials for students who may be writing papers or preparing a presentation or report. Faculty members or community volunteers and professionals may borrow films and videotapes that may support classroom activities.

The Center provides a referral service as well as programs and workshops upon request. For more information, contact Jennifer Berkman, Director, at 543-6309.

Outdoor Club: Horsepacking to White Water Rafting

Outdoor Club meetings will be at 9 p.m. on Mondays in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. At upcoming meetings, information will be provided about the semester's programs and trips, including horsepacking on October 6-8, white water rafting on October 20-22, rockclimbing on November 4 or 5, and ropes course on November 17-19.

A horsepacking information meeting will be held on September 25 at 9 p.m. A guest speaker will be available to answer any question on horsepacking and the trip in the Shenandoah National Park on October 6-8.

Also at the meeting on September 25 a five dollar membership fee will be collected from all interested in joining the Outdoor Club. All are welcome to the meeting and refreshments will be served.

London Course and Trip

During the Winter Term 1990, the English Department plans to offer a three-hour course in England, to be taught by Associate Professor Jim Welsh, who has taken SSU students to London on six previous course-trips. Students will leave Salisbury on January 2 and return from London on January 16, staying for two weeks at the Royal National Hotel in Bloomsbury (adjacent to the University of London and just three blocks north of the British Museum). Students will visit sites of cultural and historical interest (theatres, museums and galleries, for example) and will be expected to see London plays in production. As on previous trips, optional day-trips will also be available (to Oxford or Cambridge, for example, or Canterbury, Stratford-upon-Avon, Salisbury, Stonehenge, and/or Bath).

The cost of the trip (including a chartered bus from Salisbury to the airport of departure, the trans-Atlantic flight and the hotel) is $925. An orientation meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, September 27, at 5 p.m. in rooms 108-109 of Devilbiss Science Hall, which will detail the course requirements (including pre-trip classes, readings, and writing requirements). The meeting will also cover incidental expenses that might be expected and information concerning passports.

For the first-time visitor, the course is structured so that students may see as much of the country as possible in a two-week span. "On our last trip," Welsh said, "we covered most of the major cathedrals (Canterbury, York, Lincoln, Ely, Salisbury, St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey) in eight major cities, and some of us still managed to take in as many as eight plays, besides seeing the major sites of London. With careful planning, a lot of territory can be covered in a few weeks."

Any students interested in the course and trip are urged to attend the orientation meeting or call the English Department at 543-6446 or 543-6445.

Orientation for Non-Traditionally Aged Students

There will be an orientation and organizational meeting on Saturday, September 30, from 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. at the University Center, Nanticoke A, B and C rooms.

All non-traditionally aged students are invited. We welcome questions and concerns regarding advising, scheduling, financial aid, and whatever else you might want to ask. There will be members from the administration and faculty present to answer these questions and provide some guidance. Since non-traditionally aged students make up a large portion of the student population and have unique concerns and problems, we have decided to organize as an official SSU organization to make our needs known to the administration.

We will be holding an organizational meeting to elect officers. If you are interested in running for office, please let us know before the meeting so your name can be added to the slate. The following offices must be filled: president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and historian.

Please call one of us on September 20: Sonja Van Hoose 546-2815; Karen Brown 543-2158; Dee Realini 543-6509 or 896-3239, or send a letter to c/o Box 3074, SSU, Salisbury, MD 21801. If transportation or child care is a problem, please let us know. This will help us in scheduling future events.

Conference on Education September 23

A conference focusing on current and future issues affecting public education, "Together We Can Make A Difference: Now And In The Future," will be held Saturday morning, September 23, at the Salisbury State University Center.

Highlighted by a keynote address by Dr. John Rowley, president of Phi Delta Kappa, other speakers include Dr. Jack Frymier, senior research fellow at PDK, and Dr. Ron Frank, associate professor of education at Salisbury State.

Frymier will discuss "Demographics and the Future" while Frank will examine "Trends for the Future - Issues in Education."

The conference is sponsored by the Eastern Shore of Maryland Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa. Phi Delta Kappa is an international fraternity of professional educators dedicated to the goals of research, service and leadership.

Registration is in the University Center, south entrance, from 8-9:15 a.m. Admission is $7. The public is invited.

For additional information, contact Dr. John Bing, School of Education and Professional Studies at Salisbury State, at 543-6284.

A Gift of Motion: Wheels for the Handicapped

One morning Moriba Koulemou of West Africa awoke to discover that a misplaced injection administered to protect him from a childhood disease had paralyzed him from the waist down. Since that tragic day, Moriba literally drags himself around his hometown of N'zerekore, Guinea using only the strength of his arms and inner determination to push him through life. Despite his handicap, Moriba crawls several miles to school every day. He wears sandals on his hands to protect them from sharp stones and painful blisters. His dream is to become a qualified doctor in order to prevent others from suffering as he does. Thanks to Jill Edwards, a 1986 magna cum laude graduate of SSU who spent two years teaching in West Africa as a Peace Corps volunteer, and several of her friends, the Gift of Motion Project is trying to help Moriba fulfill his dreams. The Project has been organized in cooperation with members of the U.S. Peace Corps to raise money to buy wheelchairs for Moriba and 21 other handicapped citizens of the West African village of N'zerekore, Guinea. A total of $5,400 is needed to purchase the 22 wheelchairs. Half of the money has already been raised through corporate donations and other sources, but $2,700 is still needed to give these individuals the gift of motion. A local hospital supply company is ready to produce and transport the wheelchairs. No contribution is too small to make a difference in the lives of the handicapped people who journey many miles each day to receive an education. Those wishing to make a tax-deductible contribution can send a check or money order payable to: Peace Corps Partnership Program 9101 Saint Andrews Place College Park, MD 20740

Mei-Mei: A Daughter's Song

For the past decade, the works of such poets as Fay Chiang and Nellie Wong, and writers Maxine Hong Hingston and Amy Tan have been filling in the picture of Chinese-American women. Along with filmmakers like Chris Choy, these artists have given us portraits of women who don't fit the stereotypes of Asian women, sultry and exotic on one hand, beasts of burden on the other. Now, SOUNDPRINT, American Public Radio's award-winning documentary series, adds to this body of work D. Robert's "Mei-Mei: a Daughter's Song," the starkly honest story of the clash of cultures between a Taiwan-born mother and an American-bred daughter. "Mei-Mei: a Daughter's Song" will air on SOUNDPRINT on WSCL-FM 89.5 on the dial on Sunday, October 2, at 6 p.m.

Leisure Studies Internship

All Leisure Studies majors who are planning a Leisure Studies Internship (LEIS 450) for the Spring semester should meet with Grady Armstrong before September 26. His office is located in Caruthers Hall, room 149.

A Muse of Fire September 26

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English. "A Muse of Fire" will be shown on Tuesday, September 26, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105. This program surveys the 16th and 17th centuries, which "saw the full flowering of English in the works of William Shakespeare and the King James Bible."

There will be a discussion following the showing. For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.

President of Maryland Senate at SSU September 22

Senator Thomas V. Mike Miller, Jr. (Democrat, Prince George's County), president of the Maryland Senate, will speak on "Educational Issues Before the General Assembly" on Friday, September 22, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Sen. Miller's presentation is sponsored by the SSU Student National Education Association.

In 1970, Sen. Miller was elected to represent Prince George's County in the Maryland House of Delegates, and in 1974, he was elected to the Maryland State Senate. He has been re-elected to the State Senate in 1978, 1982 and 1986.

Sen. Miller was elected president of the Maryland Senate at the beginning of the 1987 Session of the General Assembly. As Senate president, Sen. Miller is only the fifth Prince Georgian to hold this position since colonial times. From 1983-1986, Sen. Miller served as chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, as deputy majority leader and as chairman of the Prince George's County Senate Delegation.

Sen. Miller is a native of Clinton, MD. He is a graduate of Surrattsville High School, the University of Maryland (B.S. 1964) and the University of Maryland School of Law (LL.B., J.D. 1967). Admitted to the Maryland Bar in 1967, Sen. Miller is a member of local, state and national bar associations.

Sen. Miller, the oldest of 10 children, is 46 years old and has practiced law in Clinton for the past 20 years. Miller's family is active in the local business community, and Sen. Miller is a participant in a broad range of civic activities.

Campus membership in SNEA numbers 50 to 75 students. They meet twice a month to hear professional educators address concerns and share new information. SNEA members also participate in campuswide and community events such as the Salisbury Festival. They are active recruiters for the School of Education and Professional Studies, hosting prospective students from regional high schools and community colleges.

"Membership in the Maryland State Teachers Association (MSTA) NEA Student Program helps students make the transition from student to professional educator," said Laurie Boyd, president of the SSU SNEA. "Members reach out to the public and Legislature to promote the importance of education. They help generate public support for schools and teachers."

A reception will immediately follow Sen. Miller's presentation.

Career Day Planned For November

Plans are underway for the Salisbury State Alumni Association's Second Annual Career Day, which will be held on November 2, at the University Center. The program will include seven panels, each consisting of five alumni. Panelists will discuss many aspects of their careers with students. After participating in these sessions, students should have a better understanding of various careers and career paths. An informal reception following the panels will provide students with an opportunity to network with guest speakers.

Alumni have been recruited to represent professions from the following major areas: business administration, education, liberal arts, health sciences, natural sciences and social sciences. Alumni contacted expressed delight and are excited about participating in Career Day.

Students, staff and faculty are encouraged to take part in the day's activities. Contact the Alumni Affairs Office in HH 136 or telephone 543-6042 for more information.

Job Fair Set

A job fair, sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, has been scheduled for Wednesday, October 11, from noon-4 p.m., in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Over 45 employers will be available to recruit students from the schools of liberal arts, business and science. Local employers who will be represented include Perdue, Second National Federal Savings Bank, Grumman Electronics and Delmarva Power and Light Company. Government employers, such as the IRS, FDIC and the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and national companies such as Electronic Data Systems, K-Mart and Toys R Us, will also be on hand.

All SSU students and alumni are invited to attend the Job Fair. People applying for positions should bring copies of their resumes. For more information, contact the CPPD at 543-6075.

Heher Results Published

Rosemary Heher of Salisbury has been notified that the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC) of the U.S. Office of Education will publish the results of research she conducted in its monthly publication, Resources in Education.

Under the direction of Dr. Donald C. Cathcart, acting dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, Heher's research was titled, "The Use of the Fennema-Sherman Mathematics Anxiety and Confidence Scales as Predictors of Success Among Business Calculus Students and Fundamental Concepts of Mathematics Students at the College Level."

Conducted at Salisbury State University, the research examined the intensity and effects of mathematics anxiety on 350 non-math majors required to study mathematics during the 1987 semester.

Heher, a mathematics teacher at Parkside High School in Salisbury, holds a bachelor's degree (magna cum laude) from the University of Maryland, College Park, and a master's degree from Salisbury State University. Her teaching experience includes schools in Guam, Mariana Islands, Prince George (MD) County, Wicomico County, and SSU's School of Education and Professional Studies, and the Henson School of Science and Technology.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Midway through the first month of the fall sports season, most of the teams are off to a successful start on their '89 campaigns. The only winless team heading into this weekend's games is the football squad, which is 0-2 after losses to C.W. Post and Ferrum. The Gulls will try to break into the win column against cross-state rival Frostburg this Saturday when the Bobcats prowl into Sea Gull Stadium. Kick off time is 1:30 p.m.

If history is any indication, Salisbury may be celebrating its first win by Saturday evening as the Gulls have won 13 of 16 games played between the two teams, including seven in a row and eight of the last 10. Frostburg comes into the game with a 2-0 record.

Field hockey fans can get their fill of action this weekend when Salisbury hosts five other, teams in the annual Sunfest Tournament, sponsored by The Hampton Inn. Six games are on schedule for Saturday, with play beginning at 8 a.m., and three games are slated on Sunday, starting at 8:30 a.m. The champion of the round-robin tournament will be determined by win-loss record, head-to-head competition, and goal differential.

The volleyball squad improved its record to 7-1 by capturing four of five matches en route to winning the championship of the Gettysburg Invitational Tournament last weekend. Co-captains Sandy Jankevicius and Michelle Hammond sparked the Gulls' championship run, as Jankevicius tallied 18 kills in the five matches while Hammond recorded 27 points on serve. Jankevicius was also named to the All-Tournament team.

Gerry DiBartolo's soccer team is off to a 3-1 start, with games this week at Johns Hopkins on Wednesday night and Shenandoah on Saturday. The Gulls got off to a good start in ESAC play as they whipped Spring Garden, 6-1, last Saturday. Joe Greco had a goal and two assists as six different Sea Gulls tickled the twine. Senior back Mike Gural capped the scoring for SSU with his first collegiate goal, on a penalty kick, late in the game. The booters will be back at home on Tuesday when they host Washington College.

Coming off two second places finishes at the Gallaudet University Invitational Meet last weekend, the men's and women's cross country squads will run in the Christopher Newport Invitational this Saturday.

National Educator Speaks on Minority Issues in Higher Education

The office of Minority Affairs is sponsoring a presentation on Minority Issues and Concerns in Higher Education on Thursday, September 28, at 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center.

The speaker will be Dr. Reginald Wilson, Senior Scholar of the American Council on Education.

He joined the Council as director of the Office of Minority Concerns in 1981. Prior to that appointment he was, for nearly 10 years, President of Wayne County Community College in Detroit. Other higher education career positions he has held have been dean, director of test development and research, director of black studies and director of Upward Bound. He was a psychologist in the Detroit Public Schools prior to that. Wilson has taught graduate courses in psychology and black studies at Wayne State University, the University of Detroit, Oakland University and the University of Michigan. He is the co-author of Human Development in the Urban Community, the editor of Race and Equity in Higher Education and the author of Civil Liberties and the U.S. He is on the editorial board of The American Journal of Education and The Urban Review. Dr. Wilson received his Ph.D in clinical and educational psychology from Wayne State University. He is licensed as a psychologist in Michigan and in Washington, D.C, and does volunteer work with the homeless. He was honored as a Distinguished Alumnus of Wayne State University in 1980 and is a recipient of the Anthony Wayne Award and the Distinguished Service Medal of the City of Detroit.

Entertainment at SSU

This Thursday, September 21, the Bermuda Triangle Band will be performing in the Gull's Nest at 8 p.m.

One of the college circuit's most fascinating and successful groups, Bermuda Triangle Band's high comedy, low volume rock is an irresistible mix of superb musical artistry and epidemic insanity.

On Sunday, September 24, join Dave Binder for an evening of good music and fun. Binder plays a wide variety of music from James Taylor, and Crosby, Stills and Nash to his own original tunes. Prepare to be thoroughly entertained. Show starts at 9 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Don't miss it!

Furnace Town Fall Festival

Furnace Town's 13th Annual Fall Festival is a weekend full of fun and entertainment for the whole family. The two-day event, to be held on September 30 and October 1, will highlight fiddle playing, bluegrass music, an auction, and living history all in the beautiful, serene setting amid the swaying pines of the Pocomoke Forest.

Furnace Town is located 16 miles south of Salisbury and 5 miles north of Snow Hill off Maryland Route 12. Admission to the grounds is $5 per family or $3 per person. For each paid admission there will be issued one sticker which may be used for a $3 credit toward live or silent auction purchases exceeding $15. Festival goers are encouraged to bring blankets or chairs for the musical entertainment.

recent years as a vital natural resource. Not only are they the habitat of threatened species of animals and plants, but hold the water which replenishes underground aquifers and provide flood protection and erosion control.

The Maryland Wetlands Act of 1970 established controls over the destruction of tidal wetlands along the state's ocean coast and around the Chesapeake Bay.

The Non-Tidal Wetlands Act passed by the legislature this year is an attempt to protect inland swamps, bogs and woods which are not washed by tides but are defined as wetlands because of poor drainage, periodic flooding and the type of vegetation they support.

Lade said that the mapping project now being undertaken at the University, is "extremely significant," because the state's non-tidal wetlands legislation hinges on maps which will properly identify areas worthy of protection.

Lade's interest in the future of Maryland's wetlands is that of an anthropologist. He describes his field as "cultural ecology." He is particularly interested in the effects of human activities on the natural landscape.

He first became involved with computers and from space about 10 years ago when he was trying to find an efficient way to identify archaeological sites on the lower Shore which might be threatened by erosion or development. Since then the computer techniques he and his students and other associates have developed have led to a series of contracts with natural resources agencies in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. "Salisbury State can take a lot of pride in doing something this important," Lade said. Dr. K. Nelson Butler, Vice President of Academic Affairs reinforced this view and added, "this is one of the many ways SSU provides a vital link among education, research and service for the State of Maryland." The computer may not be a turning point in human history of the same magnitude as the printing press, Lade noted but his tone indicated that maybe it is. "The possibilities seem endless," he said.

Alumni Activity

The Alumni Office is usually its busiest during the summer because of the planning required to support its upcoming fall and winter programs and fundraising efforts.

This summer was no exception. The following events took place during planning and meeting schedules. On June 10, class agent Edwina Heatwole and 15 classmates from the Class of '34 returned for their 55th reunion from the Maryland Normal School. They had a luncheon, tour of the campus, and tea with Dr. Bellavance.

Also on June 10, class agent Leta Chesbrough and 22 classmates from the Class of '44 returned for their 45th reunion from the then Maryland Normal School. They had high tea in the Social Room and dinner at the new University Center. Several of them spent the weekend on campus.

On June 17, approximately 60 people who participated in theatre during the 70's returned to Holloway Hall stage for a reunion. Coordinators were Gary Weber, Class of '78, and Janice Goldberg, both from the New York area, and Paul Pfeiffer, Class of '75.

In July, two chapters scheduled summer get-togethers of their members. The Washington, D.C. chapter, headed by president Grace Lang, Class of '87, held their dinner at the Sir Walter Raleigh Inn. Approximately 28 alumni attended. Joining the alumni from campus was Terry Clay who is helping the D.C. chapter spearhead a program where current students can use the expertise of the D.C. area alumni in job advising or as contacts when moving into the area.

Also in July, the Dover area chapter held a dinner meeting at the Blue Coat Inn in Dover. President Rick Givens, Class of '75, coordinated the event. M. P. Minton, Charlene Mills, Class of '78 and member of the Board of Director's of the Alumni Association also attended.

In August, 160 alumni Oriole fans attended a Friday evening Orioles vs. Texas Rangers game. President Bush and his wife sat directly across the stadium in good view of them all. The alums met before the game for a pregame tailgate party. Two "vans of fans" came from Salisbury; the rest of the alumni were from the greater D.C./Baltimore area. Ray Chin, Class of '84, coordinated the event. Plans are already afloat for the second annual next August.

The Annapolis Area and the D.C. Area Chapters scheduled receptions for incoming students and their families from their respective areas. Current students from the areas were also in attendance. Paul Zimmerman from the Admissions Department, Terry Clay from the Career Counseling Department, and Bill Allen, Class of '77 and member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, also attended these events.

Ms. Violet Boulais and Ms. Bernice Lawless traveled to Russia on a trip we made available to our alumni. There will be eight trips to choose from the next year including one to the Carribbean in February, which is usually popular for those alumni who live on the Shore.

Our newest graduates were sent letters of congratulation and welcome to the Alumni Association and miniature diplomas for their wallets. All other alumni were sent letters offering them a chance to order a new diploma which reflects the change of name to University of their Alma Mater.

The office coordinated the work of 10 class agents who have been writing a series of letters to their classes in preparation for Homecoming and class reunions scheduled for October. There is a class agent assigned from each graduating class. Besides reporting class information to the Alumni Office, the class agents coordinate their reunions each five years.

Maryland license tag program for the faculty and staff, but unfortunately the minimum number of 100 order for the program was not met, so the program did not go. Perhaps we will try again as a definite interest in providing specialized plates does exist. Programs scheduled for fall include co-sponsoring the September 17 athletic fundraiser Crab Fest at Canal Woods, the Third Annual Wallace Q. French Memorial Golf Tournament, and preparing to host the Homecoming weekend in October. Our second Career Day is slated for November 2. This fall, the staff is also occupied with preparing the next edition of the alumni news magazine Scene, the Honor Roll of Donors, our first ever benefit brochure and the kickoff of our new fundraising campaign. We will have a leadership training day for our volunteers who consist of our chapter presidents, our reunion year class agents, and our board. Each member of our board is active in committee work. Committees include Student Awareness, headed by Ellen Murdock, Class of '84, Career Day, headed by Paul Rendine, Class of '74, Scholarship, headed by Bob Evans, Class of '65, Fundraising, headed by John Charrier, Class of '74, and Nominations, headed by Debbie Panicucci, Class of '74.

National Teachers Examination

The School of Education requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. The tests used to satisfy the competency requirements are two sections from the Core Battery of the National Teachers Examination (N.T.E.). The two sections are the Test of Communication Skills and the Test of General Knowledge.

Students who wish to apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education program may secure the 1989 Bulletin of Information from the School of Education office, Caruthers Hall, room 148. The dates of the registrations are as follows:

CORE BATTERY TESTS: October 28 (regular registration September 25, late registration October 2); March 3 (regular registration January 19, late registration February 5); June 23 (regular registration May 21, late registration May 29).

SPECIALTY TESTS: November 11 (regular registration October 10, late registration October 16); March 24 (regular registration February 19; late registration February 26); July 24 (regular registration June 11, late regisration June 28).

To qualify for admission to the Professional Teacher Education program, students must achieve a score on these tests equal to or better than the qualifying score for Maryland certification requirements. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session.

Mercantile Bank Executive is Next Great Leader

H. Furlong Baldwin, chairman of the Mercantile Bankshares Corporation, addresses an audience of students, faculty and members of the area business community as the 1989-90 Great Leader Lecture Series continues on Wednesday, October 4, at 11:05 a.m. Sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, the presentation will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For the past 23 years, H. Furlong Baldwin, who graduated from Princeton University in 1954 and served two years in the U.S. Marine Corps, has worked in numerous capacities with Mercantile Bankshares Corporation.

In July 1956, he joined Mercantile-Safe Deposit & Trust Company in its management training program. He was elected executive vice president in 1966, director in 1968 and in 1970 he was elected president of both the Mercantile-Safe Deposit & Trust Company and Mercantile Bankshares Corporation.

Baldwin was elected chairman and chief executive officer of Mercantile-Safe Deposit & Trust Company, as well as chief executive officer of Mercantile Bankshares in 1976. In 1984 he was elected chairman of Mercantile Bankshares Corporation.

He is active in community affairs and serves as chairman of the board of trustees of Johns Hopkins Hospital and is on the boards of Baltimore Gas & Electric Company, Consolidated Rail Corporation, Constellation Holdings, Inc., Flow General, Inc., USF&G Corporation and Wills Group.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew Opens October 13

BY AMY HORNER

The University Theatre opens is 1989-90 season with William Shakespeare's hilarious battle of the sexes, The Taming of the Shrew, on Friday, October 13, for six performaces in Holloway Hall on stage.

The main action of the play centers on the madcap Petruchio and his wooing of Katherina, who is the perfect wife in every aspect but one—she is an intolerable shrew. From their first meeting, Petruchio subjects her to a series of verbal and physical indignities—all under the pretext of kindness. Despite her superb resistence, Katherina is finally ready to swear that the sun is the moon if Petruchio says so. And at the end, she defends marriage as hotly as she denounced it in the beginning.

The battles of these two unorthrodox lovers have always fascinated audiences. Franco Zeffirelli made a classic film adaptation in 1967 with Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor that stands in farcical contrast to his romantic. Romeo and Juliet.

Cole Porter also used the Shakespeare story as the basis for his backstage musical, Kiss Me, Kate.

For the SSU interpretation, guest artist Donna Larson, costume designer from Olympia Dukakis's company, The Whole Theatre of Montclair, NJ, will be designing period costumes.

Gerry Patt, of the Communication Arts faculty, is designing a set inspired by Shakespeare's Globe theatre. It will include a level stage, balcony and two spiral staircases. Audiences will sit on three sides.

Directing is T. Paul Pfeiffer, newly appointed director of Theatre. This is the first Shakespeare production at the University since Romeo and Juliet in 1983, and Pfeiffer thinks it's about time. "In terms of an educational experience, students should do a Shakespeare play at least once in their career."

"The biggest challenge for actors is expressing yourself using Elizabethan English so people can

Students Explore Bay Aboard Research Vessel

For H.L. Mencken, the Chesapeake Bay was "an immense protein factory" from which Baltimoreans ate "divinely." Today most Marylanders would add that it's a source of splendid beauty and recreation. For a score of Salisbury State students, however, the Bay is still more—a unique educator which transforms classroom study and scientific principles into events.

Each fall biology students explore the world's largest estuary on a 65-foot research vessel, the Aquarius, whose home port is the University of Maryland's Center for Environmental and Estuarine Studies (CEES) at Solomon's Island, MD. Their next trip is September 30.

For two weekends, students use this floating laboratory and its sophisticated equipment for testing at 15 sites up and down the Bay. At other times during the year, students regularly monitor the waters of the Wicomico River, a major Bay tributary only a few minutes from campus.

"The Aquarius trip, in particular, is an absolutely unique experience," said Dr. Thomas Jones, a Visiting Scientist at CEES and chair of the Department of Biological Sciences. "One hour on the Bay equals 15 to 20 hours in a classroom. It's the best lab experience they could have."

Jones, who has been researching the Chesapeake himself for some 15 years, has been leading the Bay trip for the last five. "Students

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Dunn Begins Riall Lecture Series

Dr. Rita Dunn, a leader in the study of learning style whose books are used by educators across the country, is the next E. Pauline Riall lecturer. Her talk, "Teaching Students Through Their Individual Learning Styles," is on Thursday, September 28, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and the public is invited.

On Friday, September 29, from 8:30 a.m. - noon, she will conduct a workshop on both learning and teaching styles. "Public school teachers, university faculty, students and members of the community are encouraged to attend this informative event," said Dr. Maurice Bozman, Riall Professor of Education at Salisbury. "I promise that you won't be disappointed."

Bus Trip to Reading, PA Outlets

The Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 72, of Salisbury State, is sponsoring a bus trip to the Reading, PA, outlets on Saturday, October 14, leaving Maggs at 7 a.m. and returning the same day around 9 p.m.

The price is $9.50 for MCEA members and $14.50 for non-members. Please give check or money to Elaine Bolden (Payroll Department, 543-6046) or Barbara Keene (Alcohol & Drug Prevention Resource Center, 543-6309.)

First come, first served, this is a great way to get Christmas shopping done and to save money at outlet prices. Don't hesitate if you want to go; the trip fills up fast.

Karna, Cockey Recital

A faculty recital sponsored by the Department of Music and featuring Dr. Duane R. Karna, voice, and Linda Cockey, piano accompanist, will be held Sunday, October 1, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The recital is free and open to the public. A reception will follow in the main lounge.

Alcohol And Drug Center Available for Use

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resources Center is a grant-funded program of Salisbury State University which provides prevention materials, programming and educational resources to the University community and the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The Center, which operates from 8:30 a.m.-noon, and 1-4:30 p.m., Monday - Friday, – houses a library of materials available to students, faculty, staff and community members. Resources include over 175 videotapes and films, journals, articles, publications, and statistical data in the area of alcohol and drug abuse and related topics. The Center supports academic study by providing materials for students who may be writing papers or preparing a presentation or report. Faculty members or community volunteers and professionals may borrow films and videotapes that may support classroom activities.

The Center provides a referral service as well as programs and workshops upon request. For more information, contact Jennifer Berkman, director, at 543-6309.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

National Teachers Examination

The School of Education and Professional Studies requires that students who apply for admission to the Professional Education Program must complete specific tests in reading, writing, mathematics and speech. The tests used to satisfy the competency requirements are two sections from the Core Battery of the National Teachers Examination (NTE). The two sections are the Test of Communication Skills and the Test of General Knowledge.

Students who wish to apply for admission to the Professional Teacher Education program may secure the 1989 Bulletin of Information from the School of Education office, Caruthers Hall, room 148. The dates of the registrations are as follows:

CORE BATTERY TESTS: October 28 (regular registration September 25, late registration October 2); March 3 1990 (regular registration January 19, 1990 late registration February 5, 1990); June 23, 1990 (regular registration May 21, 1990, late registration May 29, 1990).

SPECIALTY TESTS: November 11 (regular registration October 10, late registration October 16); March 24, 1990 (regular registration February 19, 1990; late registration February 26, 1990); July 24, 1990 (regular registration June 11, 1990, late regisration June 28, 1990).

To qualify for admission to the Professional Teacher Education program, students must achieve a score on these tests equal to or better than the qualifying score for Maryland certification requirements. Students who do not achieve a satisfactory score may retake one or both of the tests at the next testing session.

Van Sertima To Lecture

Dr. Ivan Van Sertima literary critic, linguist and anthropologist, lectures on, "Blacks in Antiquity," on Tuesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center

Sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call 543-6030.

Career Day Planned For November

Plans are underway for the Salisbury State Alumni Association's second annual Career Day, which will be held on Thursday, November 2, at the University Center. The program will include seven panels, each consisting of five alumni. Panelists will discuss many aspects of their careers with students. After participating in these sessions, students should have a better understanding of various careers and career paths. An informal reception following the panels will provide students with an opportunity to network with guest speakers.

Alumni have been recruited to represent professions from the following major areas: business administration, education, liberal arts, health sciences, natural sciences and social sciences. Alumni contacted expressed delight and are excited about participating in Career Day.

Students, staff and faculty are encouraged to take part in the day's activities. Contact the Alumni Affairs Office in HH 136 or telephone 543-6042 for more information.

National Educator Speaks on Minority Issues in Higher Education

The office of Minority Affairs is sponsoring a presentation on Minority Issues and Concerns in Higher Education on Thursday, September 28, at 3:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center.

The speaker will be Dr. Reginald Wilson, Senior Scholar of the American Council on Education.

He joined the Council as director of the Office of Minority Concerns in 1981. Prior to that appointment he was, for nearly 10 years, President of Wayne County Community College in Detroit. Other higher education career positions he has held have been dean, director of test development and research, director of black studies and director of Upward Bound. He was a psychologist in the Detroit Public Schools prior to that.

Wilson has taught graduate courses in psychology and black studies at Wayne State University, the University of Detroit, Oakland University and the University of Michigan. He is the co-author of Human Development in the Urban Community, the editor of Race and Equity in Higher Education and the author of Civil Liberties and the U.S. He is on the editorial board of The American Journal of Education and The Urban Review.

Wilson received his Ph.D in clinical and educational psychology from Wayne State University. He is licensed as a psychologist in Michigan and in Washington, D.C. and does volunteer work with the homeless. He was honored as a Distinguished Alumnus of Wayne State University in 1980 and is a recipient of the Anthony Wayne Award and the Distinguished Service Medal of the City of Detroit.

Margaret Walker

Author to Speak at SSU and UMES

Margaret Walker the author of 10 books including Jubilee, This is My Century and Richard Wright, Daemonic Genius, will speak at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and Salisbury State University on Monday, October 9, as part of a joint effort by departments from the two universities.

Walker's visits begin at UMES at 10 a.m. when she appears at an exhibit of her works in the Frederik Douglass Library. Following, in the library auditorium, she will lecture and sign books.

At Salisbury State, she will give a lecture in Nanticoke Rooms A and B at the University Center from 1:30-2:30 p.m., followed by refreshments and a book signing from 2:30-3:30 p.m. in the Book Rack, also in the University Center.

Admission to the lectures and book signings are free and the public is invited.

Those interested in more information about Walker's visits may contact Dr. Marva Banks at UMES, (301) 651-2200 or Terry Clay at SSU (301) 543-6070.

Miller Book Published

"We'd not heard of Miller (of Salisbury State University) before," wrote a reviewer for The Christian Century in response to Dr. Jerome Miller's recently published book, The Way of Suffering, "but intend henceforth to keep an eye on him and an ear out for him."

The Christian Century, a widely read and highly respected ecumenical journal, is not alone it its response to the talents of Miller, professor of philosophy at SSU. Miller also won a $5,000 first prize from an international essay contest sponsored by Washington and Jefferson College (Pittsburgh, PA) in 1986 for his essay, "The Way of Suffering: A Reasoning of the Heart."

His book, subtitled A Geography of Crisis, "ought not to be lost among the superficial self-help books that do not go deep, as Miller does," according to The Christian Century. "Dislocation, homelessness, abyss and vicissitudes are words from chapter titles. But he also speaks of open homes and doors, generosity of spirit toward the stranger and the possibility of religious conversion, resolution, wholeness."

Published by the Georgetown University Press, Miller's book is available at the Book Rack.

Five Greats Selected to Salisbury State Hall of Fame

The Salisbury State University Athletic Hall of Fame Committee recently announced the selection of its five newest members: David Cottle, David Perry, Betty Mae Carey Price, Ellen Parks Ruark and Murray Smith. The five will be officially inducted at the annual Hall of Fame dinner and induction ceremony on Friday, October 27.

Collectively, the inductees span 39 years of Salisbury State athletic history, beginning with David Perry, class of '39, to David Cottle, class of '78. They represent 10 different sports, from men's lacrosse to baseball, from women's basketball to field hockey. They have gone on to become teachers, educators and, business and community leaders.

Individually, each selectee represents the highest level of athletic achievement possible during their specific eras. They were the finest athletes in Salisbury State history, team leaders and most valuable players. They were the players that thier teammates looked up to, and the ones that their coaches could count on.

The first of this year's inductees is David Cottle, a four-year letterman in lacrosse. Cottle is arguably the best lacrosse player in Sea Gull history, earning All-America honors as both a junior and senior. His name dominates the SSU record book, including the high-water marks for goals in a game (11), goals in a season (59) and goals in a career (168). In addition to being the program's first All-America player, he was the first Salisbury State player to participate in the prestigious North-South Classic All-Star game, and finished as the nation's leading scorer in 1975.

The next of this year's inductees is David Perry, a four-sport athlete from the pre-WW II era. Perry played four years on the Salisbury varsity baseball and soccer teams, both of which he captained in his senior year. He also played one year of varsity basketball, and participated in the school's gymnastics program for four years. A talented all-around athlete, Perry was chosen Mr. Salisbury State in 1938.

The third member of the Hall's class of '89 is Betty Mae Carey Price, the school's best female athlete during the early '40s. Price played four years on the varsity basketball team, which she captained during her junior and senior years. She became the first woman at Salisbury State to be selected as Best Woman Athlete two years in a row, winning the honor in both 1941 and 1942. As evidence of her fine skills and leadership ability, she helped run the entire women's athletic program as an assistant to Benn Maggs for a brief period before her graduation in 1943.

The other female member of this year's induction class is Ellen Parks Ruark, a versatile athlete who played on every varsity team during her Salisbury career. She, like Price, was twice chosen as Best Woman Athlete, winning the award in both 1947 and 1948. She also served as president of the Women's Athletic Association during the 47-48 school year. Parks was a key member of the basketball, volleyball, field hockey and gymnastics teams in each of the seasons from 1945 - 1949, and compliments Price as the school's best female athlete during the latter hall of the '40s.

The last of this year's five inductees is Murray Smith, another multi-sport standout who earned four letters in both soccer and basketball from 1956-1960. Nicknamed "the Talented Toe" for his exploits on the soccer field, Smith was captain of the squad in both his junior and senior years. He also captained the basketball team in his senior year, and played one year on the varsity baseball team.

The addition of these five new members brings the Hall of Fame's membership to 26 inductees. Each member is commemorated with a plaque that will be enshrined into the permanent Salisbury State Hall of Fame, to be opened soon in the Maggs Center.

Tickets to this year's dinner and induction ceremony, to be held in the University Center, are available through Alumni Office. For tickets call 543-6042.

Open Enrollment

All faculty staff should be receiving a packet of information on benefits in the mail soon. Every full and part-time State employee is eligible for benefits.

Please read the booklet in your packet. Then do one of the following: if you have questions about a specific benefit, plan to attend the Benefits Fair on October 12 and 13 (more information on times and locations next week); if you have questions about the form itself, call the Personnel Office at 543-6035; or if you do not have questions, complete the Open Enrollment worksheet.

After completing the worksheet, if you have no further questions, complete the Open Enrollment form and return it to Personnel. All employees must complete the form and return it.

Watch the SSU News for more information regarding Open Enrollment.

Open Enrollment is October 2 - November 17.

The Grid Scots Tongue

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

The Grid Scots Tongue will be shown on Tuesday, October 3, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105. This program "traces the Scottish influence on English, from embattled Northern Ireland to American Appalachia."

There will be a discussion following the showing.

For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.

Smithsonian Institute Traveling Exhibit at Easton

A new traveling exhibition, "The Legacy Endures: Conserving Waterfowl and Wetlands," traces the national efforts to preserve and restore migratory waterfowl populations and the wetlands they inhabit.

The exhibition opens during the Waterfowl Festival, November 10, at the Historical Society of Talbot County and will be on view through mid-January.

Organized by the National Museum of American History, it will travel for two years under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES). The curator of the exhibition is James H. Bruns, curator of the National Philatelic Collection, National Museum of American History.

Funding was provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Salisbury State University chapter of Amnesty International will hold its initial meeting on Thursday, October 5, at 6:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. The short video The Colours of Hope narrated by Meryl Streep will be featured. Plans for the year also will be discussed.

Amnesty International is a non-profit organization concerned with human rights violations around the world. The SSU chapter was formed this year to increase awareness among the campus community of global human right's abuses.

Those interested in the group and its activities are invited to attend. For further information call 860-2053.

Halloween Fun Run

ROTC is sponsoring its annual "costume" Halloween fun run around town. There will be live TV coverage and lots of laughs. Come, be creative and join in on the fun. Run begins at 6:30 a.m. in front of Maggs.

See the USSR with SSU

As much as it is in the news, the Soviet Union still remains a mystery to most people. Glasnost and perestroika have shed much light on this fascinating country recently, but curiosity still abounds.

"Fortunately, there is a cure," said Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department. "Simply join SSU's Winter Term study-travel course to the Soviet Union this January." Sponsored by the History Department, at a cost of $1,449, the course will offer a concentrated study of the contemporary Soviet Union before departing to visit the heartland, the three capitals, Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow.

Departing on January 12, the first stop is Leningrad, the modern European city built by Peter the Great at his capital. Travelers will see the place where the Bolshevik Revolution took place, visit one of the world's greatest museums, the Hermitage, and see many other splendors of Imperial Russia.

Kiev, birthplace of the Russian state over 1,000 years ago, is the next stop, where ancient churches and monuments share space with the modern buildings and memorials of a city filled with vitality.

Finally, it's Moscow whose Kremlin with its churches and Armoury, site of the Supreme Soviet, fulfills the functions of both a historical masterpiece and administrative center of the world's largest country. See Red Square and St. Basil's Cathedral. Visit the vibrant capital of a rapidly changing country.

Before returning to Salisbury on January 22, there will be ample time to take in several cultural events, wander the streets of the cities and go shopping as well as meet the citizens of the Soviet Union.

The course and the tour are conducted by Berry, who has led several groups in the past to Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

For those who missed the earlier opportunity to get all the details about the course and the trip, an interest meeting will be held on Tuesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center, or contact Berry at 543-6248.

International Film at SSU

On Friday, September 29, and Sunday, October 1 SSPB Films presents Philippe de Broca's cult classic, King of Hearts.

A Scottish soldier is sent to disarm a bomb planted in a small French town during World War I. He finds the town deserted, except for the inmates of the local insane asylum who embrace him as their king.

The French film stars Alan Bates and Genevive Bujold. Dialogue is French with some German and English. It is shown with English subtitles. The showtimes are 7 and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium. There may be a short discussion between the first and second show.

Admission is free and open to the general public.

October films include The Graduate with Dustin Hoffman and The Accused starring Jodie Foster and Kelly McGillis.

The SSPB film series will be screening films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first.

For more information, contact David Todd in the SSPB office.

Folk Art Demonstration

The Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the bookstore, is hosting a demonstration and reception for Ted Nichols, carver, and Rebecca Nichols, painter. The two will be working in the gallery on Friday, September 29, from 1-3 p.m. The public is invited to visit and talk with the artists.

In addition to the American Folk Art Exhibit in the Atrium Gallery which will run until October 2, the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, is presently exhibiting "Terra Incognita: Photos of American Indian Rock Art." This exhibit will close October 11.

Questions about the exhibits can be answered by calling the University Gallery at 543-6271 or the Atrium Gallery at 543-6100.

Pemberton Colonial Fair

The Pemberton Colonial Fair, an exciting annual event, is scheduled for Saturday, September 30, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m., at the Pemberton Historical Park.

The fair will feature exhibits, demonstrations, workshops, entertainment and food which are representative of 18th century life in this region. A featured exhibit this year will be The Federalist, an identical reproduction of a sailing ship given to George Washington.

Visitors can also see the new Wicomico Heritage Centre, the museum of the Wicomico Historical Society, which will be displaying its first exhibit, titled "Our Heritage: the Land, the Rivers, the Home."

Pemberton Historical Park is located on the west side of Salisbury, on Pemberton Drive off Quantico Road (Route 349).

Special Events Department

The Communication Center has a new department this semester—special events that happen in the Holloway Hall Auditorium, Caruthers Hall Auditorium and the Wicomico Room of the new University Center.

Special events are normally events that are non-Theatre related, but happen in the auditoriums. The new department is also in charge of setting up and operating portable sound reinforcement equipment on campus. Heading the department is Tony Broadbent. He has been at the University for 10 years, first as a student and later to run various special events, help set up and design WSUR, and set up, build and operate Seagull Studios (the recording studio in WSCL).

"My goal is to make these events better and smoother running than in the past," said Broadbent. "In the past I realize that the biggest fears for administrators and others was would things work? I hope my crew and I can assuage those fears and try to encourage people to think of things to make their events better."

Broadbent and his crew of nine students will be responsible for sound, lighting and overall operation of the special events. The scheduling of the rooms is still done by the University Center Office, but the actual running of the event will be handled by Broadbent. All work orders should be sent to the Communication Center addressed to Broadbent. Work orders should be sent as early as possible and at least two weeks in advance. If you have questions about what to put on the work order or other questions, call 548-4597.

Council on Women's Issues

The Council on Women's Issues is conducting its fall membership campaign during the last part of September and through October 13.

The Council is involved in the identification of resources to address women's issues, promoting research and study of women's issues and encouraging productive communication about the concerns of women as they impact the University.

Any undergraduate or graduate students, faculty and staff interested in joining the Council should contact Natalie Hopson, program chairperson, at 543-6372.

October Job Fair

The first job fair of the year is scheduled for Wednesday, October 11, from noon - 4 p.m., in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, the job fair will feature over 45 employers, recruiting students from the Schools of Liberal Arts, Business and Science and Technology. Recruiters will be representing local, national and government companies and organizations, including the IRS, Perdue, K-Mart, Chesapeake Utilities, Natural Resources Police, Grumman Electronics and Electronic Data Systems. A complete listing of these recruiters can be picked up at the CPPD, second floor, University Center.

All SSU students and alumni are invited to attend the job fair. Those applying for positions should bring copies of their resumes. For more information contact the CPPD at 543-6070.

The Western Wind

Annapolis Brass Quintet, Western Wind Concert

The Annapolis Brass Quintet and The Western Wind, a vocal ensemble from New York City, will appear in concert on Saturday, October 14, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium at Parkside High School in Salisbury.

Sponsored by the Department of Music, the evening of brass and vocal music will culminate in the performance of a composition by William Billings which will utilize workshop vocalists.

"The Western Wind has achieved world renown for virtuoso A Capella singing and has helped rekindle the world's love for the art and literature of the vocal ensemble," said Dr. Duane Karna of the SSU Department of Music. "The ensemble's repertoire reveals its wide-ranging interests—from Renaissance motets to '50s doo-wop, medieval carols to a barbershop quartet, and from complex works by avant-garde composers to a simple folk melody."

For the past two decades, The Western Wind has been received at many of the world's finest halls such as La Fenice in Venice, the Kennedy Center, Washington, D.C., Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, Grant Park, Los Angeles' Mark Taper Forum and the cathedral of St. John in New York. The group has appeared on the Today Show and was selected by Philip Glass to sing his score to the film, Koyanisqatsi.

Critics have written such comments as: "In terms of intonation, balance, vocal virtuosity, and style, the Western Wind is in a class by itself." (The Buffalo News) "Their versatile art gripped the attention of an unsophisticated, largely first-time audience, clearly delighted by what they heard. So was I." (London Sunday Times) "As fresh and stimulating a concert as this listener has attended in quite some time. Long may the Western Wind blow; long may its sounds renew and challenge us." (New York Times)

"For nearly two decades the Annapolis Brass Quintet has combined elements of grace and elegance to create a new image for brass quintets worldwide," said Karna. "Their imaginative presentations and consummate artistry have dazzled audiences and critics alike, redefining brass music and placing the Annapolis Brass Quintet in a class by itself."

Founded in 1971 as America's first full-time performing brass ensemble, the ABQ has been acclaimed as one of the world's truly fine chamber music ensembles. Each season the Quintet performs in the cultural centers and at universities and colleges throughout the United States.

"These annual tours, their brass symposiums and workshops, and the commissioning of new works by American composers have been instrumental in fostering the tremendous interest in brass chamber music that is now evident in our country," said Karna.

The upcoming program includes music by Monteverdi, Schutz, Billings, English Madrigals and a new work by Maryland composer Elam Sprenkle, which was premiered in New York City this past February entitled "Sister Anne."

Tickets for the evening performance are available from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, 543-ARTS, the Department of Music at SSU, 543-6385, the SSU University Center Information Desk, 543-6006, and will be available at the door on the evening of the performance. Admission for adults is $8 and for students, with a school identification is $4.

Students and adults interested in brass and vocal/choral work should contact the Department of Music at SSU to make reservations for their participation in the ABQ-Western Wind Workshop which will be held at Parkside High School Saturday, October 14, from 1-3:30 p.m. The Saturday morning workshop is free and open to the public; however, reservations are necessary.

Music Memo

There is a change of time for the Western Wind vocal ensemble workshop to be held at Parkside High School on Saturday, October 14. It is now scheduled for 1-3:30 p.m.

Although free and open to the public, reservations are required. Contact the Department of Music at 543-6385 for more information.

Housing is needed for the Mädchenchor Hannover, a 50-voice young women's choir visiting from Hannover, Germany, and singing on its first United States east coast tour.

The choir will arrive in Salisbury on Monday, October 30, at 6 p.m. and housing is needed for two nights, October 30 and 31. The choir's performance is Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public. The choir departs SSU on Wednesday morning, November 1. Please contact Mrs. Karen Griffin, at 543-6385, or Dr. Duane R. Karna, at 543-6386, if interested.

National Archivist and Filmmaker to Speak

Most Americans probably do not realize that the National Archives in Washington, D.C., is in the business of film distribution, but its National Audio Visual Center holds 13,000 materials, including a number of documentary films.

Film archivist, William J. Blakefield, who heads up the Center's Office of Public Programs, will discuss the Center and its operations at Salisbury State on Wednesday, October 4, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium.

The presentation, sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee, will also include a screening of "Know Your Enemy—Japan," a war-time documentary made by Hollywood director Frank Capra in 1945. Blakefield established himself as an authority on this film when he published "A War Within: The Making of 'Know Your Enemy—Japan'" in the British film journal, Sight and Sound.

Blakefield is also the author of the National Archives "Documentary Film Classic" catalog. His compilation film "Army-Navy Screen Magazine Highlights" won the Gold Award for best historical documentary at the Houston International Film Festival in 1984. His current assignment at the National Archives is to organize touring film festivals that will mark the upcoming 50th anniversary of World War II.

Although originally from Kansas, Blakefield is no stranger to the Eastern Shore. He has spoken at SSU film conferences organized by Jim Welsh, professor of English, and, like many Washingtonians, he prefers to spend his weekends, whenever possible, on Chincoteague Island.

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information call 543-6446.

Residence Repairs

The Department of Housing and Residence Life, in conjunction with the Physical Plant Department, has instituted a new system to handle facility repairs within the residence halls.

Students will now be able to call a repair service number (546-2420) located in the physical plant and directly report a facility problem. When a call is received, the caller will be asked through a series of questions to obtain information about the nature of the problem. That information is entered into a computer which in turn generates a work order to initiate the needed repair. If the problem is critical, the operator will immediately dispatch a maintenance person by radio to address the problem.

The new service is designed to facilitate a 24-hour repair response time and to provide better communication between resident students and the staff of both housing and physical plant.

The repair service has the capability of handling up to three calls simultaneously from 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Calls after 4:30 p.m. will be reverted to the switchboard and should only address urgent situations.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The Sea Gulls improved their field hockey record to 4-0 as they swept three games to capture first place in last weekend's Sunfest Tournament, sponsored by The Hampton Inn. Salisbury blanked Millersville, 1-0, and Indiana (PA), 3-0, on Saturday, then slipped by Bentley, 3-2, on Sunday, to win the tournament. The Gulls face a busy week on the road, as they follow Wednesday's game at Wesley with weekend encounters against Plymouth State and Keene State.

Coach Joe Dailey's gridiron squad is still seeking its first win of the year. Salisbury hosts NAIA foe Shepherd on Saturday at Sea Gull Stadium. This week's game will mark the end of SSU's three week homestand, with four of the Gulls' last five games on the road.

After a 1-1 start in ESAC play, the next four games on the Salisbury soccer schedule could go a long way in determining the conference championship. Beginning on Saturday, the booters play Frostburg State, Wesley, Allentown and Lincoln in a span of 11 days.

The volleyball team will be hosting its own Gull Classic Tournament this Saturday and Sunday as teams from UMES, Coppin State, Notre Dame (MD) and Lincoln visit Maggs Center for the two-day event. Play begins on Friday at 4 p.m. with round-robin games, and continues with double elimination play on Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m. Salisbury boasts a 9-3 record through the first three weeks of the '89 season.

The women's tennis squad, under the tutelage of first-year coach Ray Still, played its twice-postponed season opener last Sunday, losing to Catholic, 9-0. The Gulls travel to Goucher on Thursday for a 3 p.m. match before returning home on Saturday to host Christopher Newport.

Following last weekend's third place finish by the men's cross country team at the Christopher Newport Invitational, both the men's and women's teams travel to UMBC for the Retriever Classic this Saturday.

Peninsula Bank, WSCL Support Non-profits

"WSCL-FM, Delmarva Public Radio and Peninsula Bank, a regional banking institution, have joined together for the third year in a project to promote area non-profit organizations in the lower Delmarva area," said John S. DiPietro, senior vice president of Peninsula Bank.

According to Mark Handley, WSCL general manager, WSCL and Peninsula Bank are both providing important services to the community. "Basically we are here to improve the quality of life on Delmarva," said Handley. "This is our third year of promoting non-profit groups operating on the Peninsula—only this year we have decided to promote 15 different organizations," he continued. In the past they only promoted five.

"This way every evening when 'All Things Considered' comes on we are able to give just a little more visibility to organizations that were set up to make life on Delmarva a little more enjoyable," said DiPietro.

Among the groups being promoted are the Salvation Army, the YMCA, Coastal Hospice, the Boy Scouts, the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, the Ward Foundation, the American Red Cross, Wor-Wic Tech Community College, the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore, Diakonia, Lower Shore Enterprises, the Food Bank, and the Wicomico Teen-Adult Center.

"This is just our way of saying thank you to the many organizations on the Eastern Shore."

Cooper in Faculty Recital

Dr. Nancy Joyce Cooper of the Department of Music will present a piano recital on Monday, October 16, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church. The program will include music by Buxtehude, Bach, Alain, Buck, Albright and Widor.

Cooper has been a member of the music faculty since 1986. She founded and directs the SSU Collegium, which is beginning its fourth year. She teaches piano, organ and harpsichord and is also the organist and choir director at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Salisbury, where she organizes the popular "Bach's Lunch" noon-time recital series.

Cooper received her Master of Music and Doctor of Musical Arts from the Eastman School of Music, where she was a student of Russell Saunders. While at Eastman she was awarded the Performer's Certificate and the Artist's Diploma, the latter being the highest award given by the Eastman Faculty for excellence in performance. The Artist's Diploma had not been awarded in 10 years prior to Cooper's receiving the honor in 1983.

Cooper is a frequent recitalist throughout the East Coast; since her move to Salisbury her performances have included recitals at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City and numerous performances at Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, PA. She has also been featured soloist with the Eastman Philharmonic Orchestra and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra. She has been involved in national competitions as well, having been a semifinalist in the Erwin Bodky Early Music Competition, sponsored by the internationally renowned Boston Early Music Festival; a finalist in the Chicago Club of Women Organists' Competition for Young Women; and a finalist in the New York/New Jersey AGO Open Organ Playing Competition.

Cooper is also involved in community cultural organizations. She is a member of the Eastern Shore Sympohony Society Board of Directors; she is the harpsichordist for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra; and she is the founder and dean of the newly established Salisbury chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

The recital is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Cultural Events Committee. For more information contact the Music Department at 543-6385. The performance is free and open to the public.

identify with the characters.... Fortunately we've an exciting group of new people this year and a good caliber of acting students in the show," Pfeiffer said.

Leading the cast are two SSU alumni, now married: Kevin Adams as Petruchio and Kristine Lococo Adams as Katherina. Adams played Stanley Kowalski in SSU's A Streetcar Named Desire and Billy Bippett in One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest. Lococo Adams was last seen as Fraulein Schneider in Cabaret and directed the children's theatre production of Hansel and Gretel.

Also appearing in the cast are Heather Campbell as Bianca, Tim Bowman as Lucentio, Jon Dietrich as Hortensio and Darryl Dillard as Tranio.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, October 13-14, and Thursday-Saturday, October 19-21, with a matinee on Sunday, October 15, at 2 p.m. Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For reservations call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

are different afterwards," he said. "They are more motivated. They start asking things they hadn't before. It increases their level of curiosity and gives them a new level of confidence. They no longer feel like outsiders."

Funded by the Salisbury State University Foundation and the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, the two-day voyage is not a pleasure jaunt. The last weekend trip began on Saturday at 5:45 a.m. at Devilbiss Science Hall on campus, where students and profs loaded sleeping bags, scientific equipment and themselves onto a campus mini-bus for the drive to the CEES dock at Horn Point near Cambridge. About an hour later the tightly packed bus load was transferred to the Aquarius and the vessel with its 19 passengers and crew of two was heading west for the nine-mile trek to the mouth of the Choptank.

By 7:30 a.m. breakfast was over and the first student k.p. detail cleaned up. "Don't use galley utensils for anything scientific," Jones instructed. He, with professors Harry Womack and Laura Murray, then began setting up equipment for the first series of tests at the confluence of Broad Creek and the Choptank, near the Bay.

From year to year the classes keep a running log of tests on both the Choptank and Wicomico. "Every class that goes out adds to the data base," said Jones. Much of Sunday will be spent testing the Wicomico, "our own back yard," he added.

Four experimental stations are set up on the 65-foot Aquarius, a practical boat originally constructed to carry Texas oil workers to their rigs some 200 miles out into the Gulf of Mexico. The bay tests are dredging and trawling for samples of animal life, then inventorying and evaluating them at a culling table, all in the boat's stern; testing algae and oxygen levels in the cabin, where a lab has been created behind the galley; and checking turbidity and water quality in the bow from equipment hanging near the gunnels or side walkways. Student teams of three rotate from one experimental station to another at each stop on the water.

By 8:05 a.m., the boat had slowed to a halt at Broad Creek. The slightly nervous teams began their work. Jones scooted from port to stern, making sure all was in order. "It's always hectic the first station," he said. Everyone's concentration was evident.

By late afternoon the concentration, the constant listing of the boat and the sheer repetition of the routine had taken their toll. During travel from one test location to another, some of the students stretched out on a bench or picnic table, while a few grabbed pieces of a football game on the ship's TV while waiting to arrive at the next stop.

Salt air affected appetite. Any food prepared by the mate, who did all the cooking in a well-stocked galley, was immediately devoured.

The bridge was also popular. There the captain answered questions and allowed some to steer.

On one trip a student was seasick the whole time. "It's an eye-opener for anyone who wants to be a marine biologist if he spends the whole trip being seasick," said Jones. This time, however, no one was ill. Quite the opposite.

Brad Hartman, a senior from Rockville, talked about entering a master's program in marine science after graduation. Son of a dentist and grandson of a doctor, he is breaking a family tradition to pursue his love of zoology and the outdoors.

Cheryl Overington, the mother of three, originally started college at Salisbury in 1976. She left to get married, but 10 years later returned to finish her degree. "I don't feel the age difference with a lot of the kids," she said, "and there are now more my age and older (at SSU). She lives near Preston and her family "goes out on the Choptank River a lot. This trip is something I wanted to do, to learn more about the Chesapeake Bay." She'll use what she's learned in teaching high school biology and chemistry, after graduation.

During Saturday and Sunday, testing sites ranged from the waters near the Calvert Cliffs nuclear power plant, which are several degrees warmer than the rest of the Bay, to the spot where the Salisbury sewage plant empties into the Wicomico River. Students tested the level of fecal material that is dumped there.

Overnight the boat docked at Solomon's Island in St. Mary's County where CEES treated the would-be biologists to a crab and oyster feast. The captain filleted a delicious mess of trout—a gift from the Bay to the young scientists, caught when they trawled an afternoon's sample. Afterwards, all but the captain head to an outdoor pub on Solomon's for blue grass music. That night they sleep ear to toe on the Aquarius deck and the CEES office floor.

Even for the seasoned scientist, it's impossible not to be taken with the beauty of the Bay. "That's why you keep going back, even when the routine is boring and the weather bad," said biology professor, Dr. Harry Womack. The talk of salinity or algae or toad fish—ugly, brown predators of oysters—does not take away from the Chesapeake's beauty or majesty. "The knowledge of complexity makes it more impressive," said Jones, "and knowing how little we know adds diginity to our effort to learn and to educate."

On Saturday afternoon, a large pleasure boat bounced by on the waves, passing the Aquarius. It then returned, this time more slowly, its slightly obese occupants checking out the research vessel. Even they did not trivialize the Bay. There was a purpose for them being there, too, like the toad fish.

Outdoor Club News

Outdoor Club meetings will be at 9 p.m. on Mondays in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. At upcoming meetings, information will be provided about the semester's programs and trips, including white water rafting on October 20-22, rock climbing on November 4 or 5, and a ropes course on November 17-19.

The final horsepacking meeting will be held on October 2 at 9 p.m. Only individuals going or interested in going on the horsepacking trip should attend this meeting. Gear will be distributed and last minute questions will be answered.

Everyone taking part in the horsepacking trip must attend this meeting.

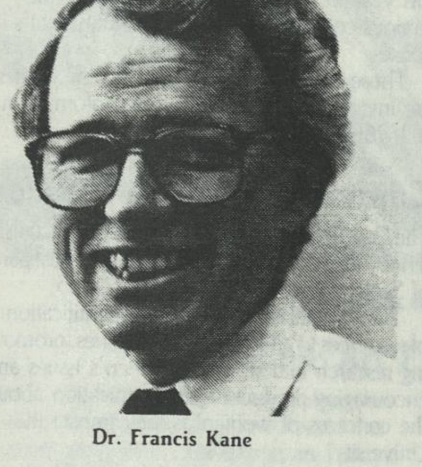
A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 5, 1989

VOL. XI NO. 6

Distinguished Faculty Awards Presented



Dr. Francis Kane

Dr. Andrew Pica

Disciplines as diverse as philosophy, social work and chemistry and physics were represented as three Salisbury State University faculty members were honored with 1988-89 Distinguished Faculty Awards by their University Forum colleagues.

Dr. Francis Kane of the Philosophy Department, Dr. Andrew Pica of the Chemistry and Physics Department and Dr. Marvin Tossey of the Social Work Department were recognized at an October 3 meeting of the Forum for their outstanding and exemplary performance and contributions in each of three areas: excellence in teaching, prominence in scholarly work and exceptional service to the University and to community at large.

Kane is often described by students, faculty and administrators as a gifted teacher. He is especially well-known for his ability to relate abstract aspects of philosophy to contemporary and concrete issues in numerous arenas of human endeavor. His participation in interdisciplinary courses has brought his skill to bear in topics as diverse as science, film, politics and medicine.

His success in teaching can be attributed in part to his classroom strategy. Kane demonstrates how philosophy is used and then, with thoughtful questions, challenges students to learn and practice this skill. As with all great teachers, Kane extends his association with students beyond the classroom. His major contributions as the long-standing advisor for the very active student Philosophical Society serve as outstanding examples.

Kane's scholarly productivity has a long history. He has authored numerous articles and reviews and is in especially high demand as a speaker. Most recently, he has had two book reviews published in the New York Times and has an article titled "The Strangeness of the Familiar: Reflections on Civil Discourse" in press for publication in Modern Age. He serves as a member of the Grant Review Board for the New Jersey Department of Higher Education and is a member of professional societies including the American Philosophical Association and the Washington Philosophy Club.

Kane, the chair of the Philosophy Department and perennial member of the Forum's curriculum committee, long range planning committee and human volunteers committee, has recently expanded his activities to include developing grant proposals for the support of the new Globar Seminar.

Christensen, New Dean of Education, Professional Studies

Doren E. Christensen, the new dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, was attracted to this campus because of the "evidence of vitality" he found on his first visit.

The "amazing" community support, the endowments "flowing in" and the beautification of the campus are "clear vitality factors which could not be overlooked," he said.

Christensen, a native of North Dakota, began his career in education as a teacher of music and mathematics in public schools in his home state and in neighboring Minnesota. For 20 years he taught, chaired departments of music and directed school orchestras and bands. His instrument is the violin.

He earned his master's degree in music at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley.

Then, some years later while working and living in Washington, D.C. as deputy director of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, he completed his Ph.D. in higher education at the University of Maryland, College Park.

He began work on his doctoral degree when he was past the age of 40 and is convinced that a person's capabilities as a student increase rather than diminish with age.

He was working at Tennessee Technological University as a chairperson in the College of Education when he applied for the position of dean at Salisbury State.

As an educator with a career-long involvement with music, Christensen said that another

Council on Women's Issues Lecture

The Council on Women's Issues initiates its fall Lecture - Workshop Series on Thursday, October 12, with guest speakers Jean S. Laws, J.D. and Debbie L. Mescon, J.D.

Laws, who will speak on "Sex Equity in the Workplace," is a partner in the Salisbury Law firm of Laws & Laws, P.A., and has taught courses on constitutional law and civil rights and liberties for the Political Science Department at Salisbury State since 1985.

Prior to becoming an instructor at Salisbury State, she taught business law at Wor Wic Tech Community College. An honors graduate of the University of Maryland, Laws received her Juris Doctorate with honors from the University of Maryland School of Law in 1978.

Mescon, who will speak on "Rights of Pregnant Women in the Workplace," is an assistant professor of business law in SSU's Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. She received her J.D. (cum laude) from the University of Miami. Mescon also holds an M.B.A. from Arizona State University and a B.A. in economics from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Bus Trip to Shakespeare Theater

The Cultural Events Committee and the University Center are sponsoring a bus trip on Thursday, October 26, to Shakespeare Theater at the Folger in Washington, D.C., to see the 8 p.m performance of Twelfth Night, a play by William Shakespeare.

The bus will leave the south entrance of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. and will return at approximately 1 a.m. The cost is $12 for full-time students and $16 for part-time students, faculty, alumni and guests. Ticket sales for full-time students begin on October 12 and for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests on Tuesday, October 17. Tickets may be purchased at the information desk at the University Center from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Seats are limited.

Special Thanks

The SSU News staff would like to thank Amy Horne for her work on publicizing The Taming of the Shrew.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU News Deadline

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

Medical Careers

Anatomic pathology, an illustrated case study, will be presented by Lonnie Nash, a pathologist's assistant at the Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center, on Thursday, October 12, at 4:15 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center.

The presentation sponsored by the Medical Careers Club is open to all interested students and staff.

Phi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 15, at 6 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate students to have completed at least 12 semester hours in the History courses and to have an overall average of B in at least two-thirds of the remainder of their work. In addition, they must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha theta, contact Dr. G. Ray Thompson or Miss Clara Small, of the History Department, by noon on October 9.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, will hold its fall initiation on Sunday, October 22, at 6 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social sciences (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations), and in some other social science courses such as social phychology, criminal justice and geography, with an average of B (85 percent).

In addition, eligible students should be in the top 35 percent of their classes (senior, junior, etc.).

For information about Pi Gamma Mu, contact Dr. G. Ray Thompson or Miss Clara Small, of the History Department, by noon on October 16.

Graduate Health Professions

Students who wish to support applications for admission to graduate professional school in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, etc. with a letter of recommendation from the Salisbury State University Medical Advisory Committee should contact Dr. Peter Kernaghan, Department of Biological Sciences, Devilbiss Hall, room 112.

Amnesty International

The Salisbury State University chapter of Amnesty International will hold its initial meeting on Thursday, October 5, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. The short video The Colours of Hope narrated by Meryl Streep will be featured. Plans for the year also will be discussed.

Amnesty International is a non-profit organization concerned with human rights violations around the world. The SSU chapter was formed this year to increase awareness among the campus community of global human right's abuses.

Those interested in the group and its activities are invited to attend. For further information call 860-2053.

Council on Women's Issues

The Council on Women's Issues is conducting its fall membership campaign during the last part of September and through October 13.

The Council is involved in the identification of resources to address women's issues, promoting research and study of women's issues and encouraging productive communication about the concerns of women as they impact the University.

Any undergraduate or graduate students, faculty and staff interested in joining the Council should contact Natalie Hopson, program chairperson, at 543-6372.

October Job Fair

The first job fair of the year is scheduled for Wednesday, October 11, from noon - 4 p.m., in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, the job fair will feature over 45 employers, recruiting students from the Schools of Liberal Arts, Business and Science and Technology. Recruiters will be representing local, national and government companies and organizations, including the IRS, Perdue, K-Mart, Chesapeake Utilities, Natural Resources Police, Grumman Electronics and Electronic Data Systems. A complete listing of these recruiters can be picked up at the CPPD, second floor, University Center.

All SSU students and alumni are invited to attend the job fair. Those applying for positions should bring copies of their resumes. For more information contact the CPPD at 543-6070.

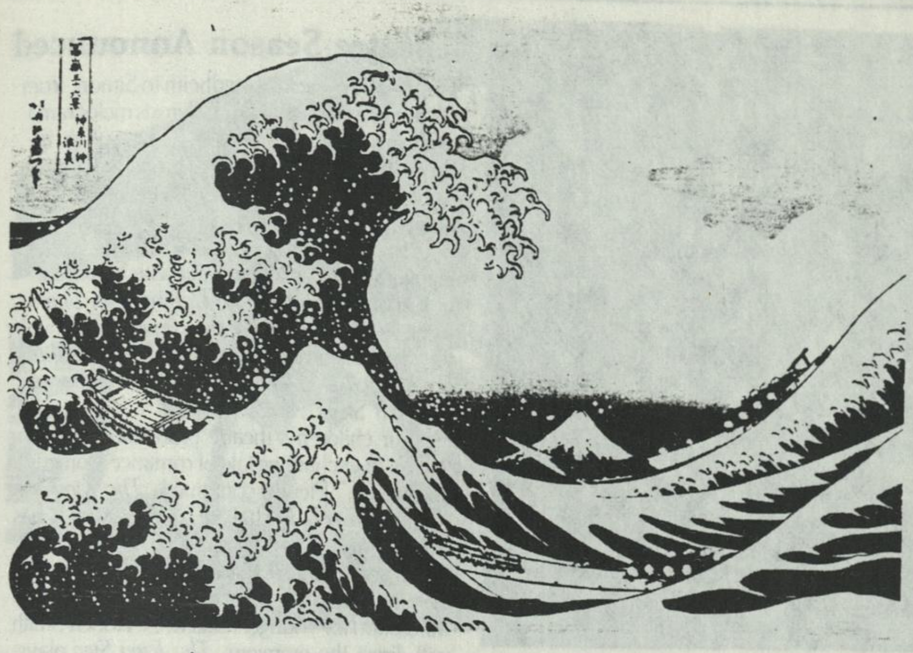
Music Memo

There is a change of time for the Western Wind vocal ensemble workshop to be held at Parkside High School on Saturday, October 14. It is now scheduled for 1-3:30 p.m.

Although free and open to the public, reservations are required. Contact the Department of Music at 543-6385 for more information.

Housing is needed for the Mädchenchor Hannover, a 50-voice young women's choir visiting from Hannover, Germany, and singing on its first United States east coast tour.

The choir will arrive in Salisbury on Monday, October 30, at 6 p.m. and housing is needed for two nights, October 30 and 31. The choir's performance is Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public. The choir departs SSU on Wednesday morning, November 1. Please contact Mrs. Karen Griffin, at 543-6385, or Dr. Duane R. Karna, at 543-6386, if interested.



An example of the graphic art for sale by Marson Galleries

Graphic Art Exhibit and Sale

A special exhibition and sale of original graphic art will be presented on October 13 and 14 at the University Center. Exhibit times are Friday, 11 a.m. - 8 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Marson Galleries Ltd. of Baltimore specializes in exhibiting for sale a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of some 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in the collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth and others. Also included is a fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts. There is a large group of works by such distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima and Saito. Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of Ukiyo-E prints are also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection and to answer questions about the work, the artists and the various graphic techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited. Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers.

For more information call 543-6100.

Walker to Speak at UMES and SSU

Margaret Walker, the author of Jubilee. This Is My Century, and eight other books, among them a recent biography of author Richard Wright, will speak at UMES and SSU on Monday, October 9, as part of a joint effort by departments from the two universities.

Walker's visits to the campuses will begin at 10 a.m. with an exhibit of her works in UMES' Frederick Douglass Library lobby. Following in the library auditorium will be a lecture by Walker as well as a book signing and selling session for one of her latest books, Richard Wright, Daemonic Genius: A Portrait of the Man, A Critical Look at His Work.

At Salisbury State, following lunch with invited students, faculty and staff, she will give a lecture in the Nanticoke Rooms A & B at the University Center from 1:30 - 2:30 p.m., followed by refreshments and a book signing from 2:30 - 3:30 p.m. in the Book Rack.

Admissions to the lectures and book signings are free and the public is invited. Those interested in more information about Walker's visits may contact Dr. Marva Banks at UMES, 651-2200 or Terry Clay at SSU 543-6070.

Walker, professor emeritus of English at Jackson State University, MS, and a former Ford Fellow at Yale University, has achieved world acclaim in arts and letters during a career spanning a half century. She won the Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship Award for Jubilee in 1966 and For My People, a book of poetry, in 1942.

Her biography of Wright, published last year by Warner and Amistad books, represents one of her most noticed contributions to literature. For the book, Walker, who worked with Wright in a Chicago Writer's Project during the 1930s, combined biography, criticism and memoirs to take a psychological approach to Wright's life and works.

Wright's upbringing of racial tension, poverty and violence that began in his native Mississippi led him to write such prominent works as Native Son and Black Boy. In the late 1940s he went to Paris searching for the social parity not afforded him in America. There he specialized in nonfiction writings about race and politics. He spent his last 14 years in Paris, dying mysteriously at age 52.

Richard Wright: Daemonic Genius contains 448 pages of narrative and 16 of photography that explore and mirror Wright's dealings with women, ambivalence toward America and political involvements.

Walker says of the novelist and essayist: "He was a daemonic genius, an intellectual giant of his times, a writer of strong sensibility, and the most highly sensitized person I have ever known. He was a writer of great passion but, nevertheless, a human being with the same weaknesses and flaws of all human beings."

A fellow Mississippian, Walker received a B.A. degree from Northwestern University and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa. She founded the Black Studies program at Jackson State in 1968 and served as its director until her retirement in 1979. She also started a humanities program there and taught such courses as "The Bible as Literature" and creative writing.

Rutt to Conduct Choir

The Madchenchor Hannover (Hannover Girl's Choir), which performs on Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium, has been conducted by Ludwig Rutt since its formation in 1952. The choir acquired an outstanding national and international reputation in concerts and recordings, radio and TV broadcasts, on concert tours throughout the whole of Europe, in Turkey, the USSR, Japan and South America.

"Its artistic work sets a standard in the sphere of youth choirs and especially women choirs," said Dr. Duane Karna of the Department of Music. Rutt, vocal trainer and singer Professor Gudrun Schrofel-Gatzman and music teacher Georg Schonwalder strive for a continual training of the whole choir and for the individual voice, which is carefully led from the preparatory classes into the concert choir. The available choral literature for equal voices is supplemented by commissions made by the choir to contemporary composers. "In addition to an enrichment of the literature available, this has the additional advantage of binding contemporary music into the work of the choir, which always intensifies the concert structures which have evolved, and which serves the cause of supporting the composers of our era," said Karna. Distinctions awarded Madchenchor Hannover, both in Germany and abroad, include first prizes at : The International Choral Competition of 1981 in Arezzo, Italy; the German Choral Competition of 1982 in Cologne; the BBC Choral Competition of 1983 in London, "Let the Peoples Sing!"; and the International Choral Competition of 1987 in Varna, Bulgaria. In 1982 the choir received the Bernhard Sprengel Prize for Music, and in 1986 the Medal of the City of Hannover. Rutt, born in 1921, was a lecturer for many years at the State College of Music and Theater in Hannover, where he got his training as a conductor as well as a piano and composition teacher. He is well-known far beyond the region of Hannover as a successful choir-master and pedagogue for music. Sir David Willcocks director of London's Royal College of Music, said of the choir "...with each musical rendering, the careful preparation of the individuals and the combined ensemble was evident. The choral sound, intonation and phrasing were wonderful." The concert is free and open to the public. For further information contact Karna at 543-6385.

Open Enrollment Update

To help state employees get the answers to their benefit questions, the Personnel Department has scheduled a Benefits Fair on Thursday and Friday, October 12 and 13.

Representatives will be on hand from several of the companies that provide benefits including Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Delmarva Health Plan and MD-IPA, an HMO that is relatively new to the Eastern Shore. Members of the Personnel Department will also be on hand to assist in completing the form.

The schedule of events is Thursday, October 12, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Friday, October 13, 8 a.m. - 2 p.m., representatives in Pocomoke Room (second floor) of University Center. Also brief presentations by the representatives every hour starting at 9 a.m. and continuing through noon will be in Nanticoke A of the University Center.

A reminder: Everyone must enroll, even if not making any changes or not taking any of the benefits. Anyone who has not received a packet by October 5, please contact the Personnel Department at 543-6035.

Annapolis Brass Quintet-Western Wind Workshop

The Annapolis Brass Quintet-Western Wind Workshop will be held at Parkside High School's Auditorium on Saturday, October 14, from 1-3:30 p.m. The workshop is free and open to the public, however, reservations are required. Students and adults interested in brass and vocal/choral work should contact the Department of Music at Salisbury State University 543-6385 to make reservations for participation.

Those attending the workshop will be able to participate in the concert that evening by the Quintet and Western Wind. The concert is at 8 p.m., also at Parkside Auditorium.

"The Western Wind vocal sextet has achieved world renown for virtuoso A Capaella singing and has helped rekindle the world's love for the art and literature of the vocal ensemble," said Dr. Duane Karna of the SSU Department of Music. For the past two decades, the Western Wind has been enthusiastically received at many of the world's finest concert halls and universities.

"Western Wind workshops are intense, joyous experiences in the performance of vocal chamber music," said Karna. "They address the needs of all types of musicians—professional and amateur, soloist and ensemble, conductors and music teachers—all those who want to expand their abilities and knowledge of vocal music.

"Through experiences guided by members of The Western Wind, singers will sharpen their skills in vocal production, rhythm, intonation, balance, diction, ensemble sensitivity and projection of text," said Karna. "They will also be able to learn about vocal styles, performance practices and ensemble techniques appropriate to music of many periods, but will be primarily focused upon the 17th century. Workshop participants will leave the morning workshop with many ideas and materials that they will be able to use throughout the school year."

Bach is Back!

"Bach's Lunch," a free noon-time recital series at St. Peter's Church in Salisbury, returns for its fifth season. The series of half-hour informal concerts begins on October 3 and continues for eight consecutive Tuesdays, ending November 21. Each recital will run from 12:15-12:45 p.m., enabling local listeners to attend during their lunch hour.

Several members of the SSU music faculty will be featured on the series: Dr. Duane Karna and Linda Cockey will perform highlights from their faculty recital for the opening recital on October; Katherine Turner Barlow will sing on October 24; and Taylor Harvey will play a special Halloween program on October 31.

The series is free and open to the public. St. Peter's is located on the Downtown Plaza in Salisbury. For more information call the church office at 742-5118.

Cooper in Faculty Recital

Dr. Nancy Joyce Cooper of the Department of Music will present a piano recital on Monday, October 16, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church. The program will include music by Buxtehude, Bach, Alain, Buck, Albright and Widor.

The recital is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Cultural Events Committee. For more information contact the Music Department at 543-6385. The performance is free and open to the public.

Theatre Season Announced

From Shakespeare to Sondheim to Simon, from a battle of the sexes and murderous melodrama to a warm, funny story about coming of age in Brooklyn, this year's Theatre program promises to be "one of our most exciting seasons," said newly appointed director, T. Paul Pfeiffer.

Pfeiffer, who has been on staff for nine years, inaugurates the academic year with his production of Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, to be performed in a setting designed to evoke the spirit of the Elizabethan playhouse. Shrew plays October 13-15 and 19-21 in Holloway Hall On Stage.

"Our children's theatre production this year will be an enchanting tale of romance, comedy and magic," Pfeiffer continued. The King Stag is an 18th century Italian comedy which has been published in English. Dr. Andrew Hepburn, new chair of the SSU Department of Communication Arts, has prepared an abridged translation for younger audiences. Robert Smith will direct the premiere. The King Stag plays November 15-20 in Holloway Hall On Stage.

In March Pfeiffer directs Stephen Sondheim's large-scale musical of mystery, murder and mayhem in Victorian London, Sweeney Todd, The Demon Barber of Fleet Street, to be performed in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Dr. Ray Ziegler of the SSU Department of Music is creating a computer program which will allow the score to be played through four synthesizers, and "which will give our audiences a sound bigger than a full orchestra, all played by one man at the computer," Pfeiffer said.

"This is the first time that this has every been done with Sweeney Todd," he added. Sondheim's Tony Award-winning opus plays March 9-11 and 15-17.

The delightfully American story of coming of age in Brooklyn, Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs, will be the Sophanes (the SSU student theatre club) production in spring. Directed by David Dull, this autobiographical comedy "will amuse theatre-goers of all ages," Pfeiffer noted. It plays April 27-29 and May 3-5.

Guest artists also will be contributing to the season. Donna Larsen, artist-in-residence, will design costumes for Shrew and King Stag. She is costume designer for The Whole Theatre in Montclair, NJ, under the artistic direction of noted actress Olympia Dukakis.

Guest performers include Tomi Casciero, "a not-so-silent mime, a not-so-certain clown and a not-so-sane comedian," according to Pfeiffer, along with storyteller Henry Strozier. Performance times for Casciero and Strozier are to be announced.

Season tickets for all productions range from $7 to $30, saving patrons 30 percent off the regular price. Season subscribers also receive preferred seating and invitations to opening night receptions where they meet the cast. For information on subscribing contact the Department of Communication Arts at 548-7026.

WSCL To Air Keillor Show

The live broadcasts of Garrison Keillor's American Radio Company of the Air can be heard on WSCL-FM 89.5 every Saturday from 6-8 p.m.

The series initially will air for four consecutive weeks, through December 16. After a January break, the show will resume live on February 3 and, with occasional breaks, will run for 16 additional weeks.

The format is that of a two-hour live variety show. Classic American music—including, but not limited to, theater music, popular songs, jazz, and folk—will comprise over an hour of the total broadcast time, with the remainder a blend of Keillor's humor, writings and interplay with his special guests and other Radio Company members.

BARR INTERNATIONAL

Golf Classic Scheduled For October 20

Preparations for the sixth annual SSU Foundation Golf Classic, which will be held on Friday, October 20, at the Green Hill Yacht and Country Club, have been progressing nicely, according to the Foundation's executive director, Bob Gearhart.

"The field will be limited to 144 golfers, divided into 36 foursomes, which is probably the maximum number of golfers that could be accommodated on the course in the one-day event," said Gearhart.

Interest in the event continues to be high and the field has been filling rapidly. Only sponsors may enter a team at a cost of $200 per sponsorship and $50 per golfer. A shotgun start will be in effect on the day of the tournament.

As a special feature prizes for a variety of contests on the par-3 holes will range from merchandise prizes to $200 for each category.

"This is really a fun day for non-golfers as they will have an opportunity to get out on the course and have a good time, regardless of their scores," said Gearhart. "Of course, there will be a number of competitive players out there, but that should not lessen the fun part of the day."

Dick Young and Roy Beauchamp are co-chairmen for the Classic and Dick and Stu Barr, of Barr International, are the prime sponsors of the event.

The sole purpose of the Foundation is to provide funding for SSU programs that are not covered by public funds.

The Classic is one of the most successful fund-raising projects at the University, going from $2,500 raised the first year, to $20,000 the past two years. The '89 Classic is expected to bring in more than that amount.

The Foundation sponsors a variety of scholarships valued at more than $100,000 a year, along with faculty grants amounting to $15,000 annually. The work of the Foundation is visible in the community as well. On example is the sponsorship of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU.

Ann Coates is in her second year as chairman of the Foundation, after having served on the board of directors since 1981, and is proud of the accomplishments of the organization.

"The board basically does the leg work in finding various ways to aid the University and the community in distributing the monies raised by the Foundation fund," said Coates.

"We allocate money to the president, Dr. Thomas Bellavance, for his discretionary fund in his budget. Our faculty grants go toward expenses incurred in presenting papers at various seminars, and some research costs," added Coates.

Funds are also set aside for the Alumni Association and community affairs and student help in research and field trips. It provides two trips a year on the Chesapeake Bay for biology and science projects. The bay trip costs are mainly for the rental of the University of Maryland ship, Aquarius, which is based at Horn Point.

"The success of the annual Golf Classic has been very gratifying," said Coates, adding, "projects such as this usually fade after a few years but this one increases in popularity and revenue each year."

Coates also said special projects such as the Golf Classic and annual Gala are nice ways to allow segments of the community and the University to know each other better.

Sports Psychology Seminar Planned

Athletes—need help in developing the inner, winning "mindset" asssociated with peak athletic performance? If so, plan to attend the upcoming three-session sports psychology seminar, offered by Dr. Robert McBrien of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

Designed to guide participants to develop the positive mental attitudes characteristic of peak athletic performance, the seminar will present specific relaxation, visualization and mental rehearsal skills training.

The seminar will be offered on three consecutive Tuesdays, beginning on October 17, from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the University Center. To sign up for this seminar, stop by the CPPD on the second floor of the University Center or call 543-6070.

Rock Art Slide Lecture

Salvatore Mancini, whose photographs of American Indian rock art are currently on display in the University Gallery, will give a slide lecture on his work on Wednesday, October 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Rooms A and B of the University Center, located on the south end of the campus. A reception in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, will follow the lecture. Both events are free and open to the public.

Mancini's photographs document the paintings and engravings of several prehistoric Indian tribes and more recent Pueblo, Navajo and Hopi Indians found on rock ledges and cliffs in the southwestern United States. These images, in a simple, almost schematic style, depict supernatural beings, animals, handprints, spirals, and other abstract patterns.

They were generally made for religious, communal and ritual pruposes, serving as a means of communication with nature and higher spiritual forces. Most of the works are 500 to 1500 years old, but a few examples are from the 19th century.

Mancini was born in Itri, Italy and came to the United States as a teenager. After attending high school in Rhode Island, he studied photography at the Rochester Institute of Technology in New York. He has received many grants and awards, including the prestigious Bolaffi Prize, Italy's highest national prize for photography, and his work is represented in the photographic collections of major American museums.

In addition to photographing the architecture and sacred sites of ancient civilizations, he has also undertaken extensive photographic studies of third world cultures and of the lives of patients in Rhode Island State Mental Health Institutions.

Mancini's photographs of rock art were made in 1987 as part of a larger project to create a photographic archive of Indian rock art for Brown University's Haffenreffer Museum of Anthropology, with funding provided, in part, by the Rhode Island Committee for the Humanities. Selections from this archive have since been exhibited at the Haffenreffer Museum and the Brooklyn Museum, and in several Italian cities, including Rome, Pompei and Rimini.

An illustrated catalogue of the Haffenreffer exhibition with an introduction by Mancini and an essay by Polly Schaafsma, an archeologist affiliated with the Museum of New Mexico and an authority on Indian rock art, is for sale at the University bookstore. In the catalogue Mancini discusses his desire to communicate with the Indians who made these rock images.

"In making the shadow of my hand correspond to an ancient hand cut into rock," he wrote, "I relive the experience of people trying to make sense of their world as I try to do with mine. I was aware that the Indians were showing yet another conception of the universe, another cosmology I hoped would join those of Egypt, Greece and Rome and survive into the future along with popular mythologies from the mass media in our technological age."

The University Gallery is open Monday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. - 8 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from 1 - 5 p.m. Regularly scheduled gallery talks by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. The exhibition closes October 11.

Pledge Campaign for Alcohol Awareness Week

October 15-21 has been designated as National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week.

In an effort to raise awareness of alcohol issues campuswide, a Campus Pledge Campaign is being initiated. The campaign asks faculty and administrative staff who feel it is appropriate to incorporate alcohol issues related to specific courses or areas of study, as well as departmental activities, into teaching and educational efforts during the week.

To pledge a discussion or activity, contact the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center as 543-6309 or stop by the Center to obtain a pledge form. The Center is located in the gray annex building directly behind Maggs Gym.

Alcohol Anonymous Meeting on Campus

Weekly meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.) are being held every Wednesday from 11 a.m. - noon in the Manokin Room of the University Center.

This on-campus group hasa been established in an effort to make A.A. meetings more accessible for students and the campus community and to provide support to young adults, particularly college students, whose issues, concerns and ways of relating to each other may differ from community groups.

The only prerequisite for joining the group is a desire to stop drinking or to maintain abstinence.

For further information contact Jennifer Berkman at 543-6309 or stop by the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, located behind Maggs Gym in the gray annex.

Murray Begins Series

Dr. Laura Murray, assistant professor of biology, makes the inauguaral presentation in the Henson School of Science and Technology's Faculty Seminar Series on Thursday, October 5, at 4 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 207.

Her topic, "The Effects of Nutrient Enrichment on Eelgrass," will feature a short introduction to submerged aquatic vegetation ecosystems, causes for decline and a discussion of ecological consequences of nutrient enrichment.

"Since the early 1970s the submerged aquatic vegetation (SAV) in the Cheaspeake Bay has exhibited drastic decline," said Murray. "Several reasons for the decline of the valuable habitats have been suggested, including over enrichment of nutrients into the Bay waters."

Murray received a B.S. in marine sciences and a Master of Science and Teaching (M.S.T.) from the University of West Florida and a Ph.D. in wetlands ecology from the Virginia Institute of Marine Sciences at the College of William and Mary.

There will be a reception following the lecture. For more information call 543-6425.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The Sea Gulls will be playing a rare Friday football game tomorrow night at Glassboro State as Salisbury looks to end its four-game losing streak. Despite improved play in several areas last week, the Gulls lost 14-3 to Shepherd at Sea Gull Stadium. Kicker Bill Schmidt accounted for SSU's points on a 44-yard field goal midway through the third quarter, pulling the Maroon and Gold to within four points, 7-3, at the time. Salisbury could get no closer, however, as the Gulls are off to their worst start since an 0-6 beginning in 1981.

On the positive side, Coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team was 7-0 heading into Tuesday's game at Johns Hopkins. The Gulls appear to be one of the top team's in the South Region once again this year, and could contend for the national championship for the fourth straight year. Salisbury will be severly tested over its next four games however, as the Sea Gulls face traditional powerhouses Cortland State, Ithaca, Trenton State and Bloomsburg. Cortland, Trenton and Bloomsburg each joined Salisbury in the NCAA Division III Final Four last season.

Another University team off to a good start and hoping to improve is the volleyball squad, carrying an 18-3 record into this weekend's Coca Cola Classic Tournament at Juniata College. Coaches Barry Shreve and Rhonda Warmsley should get a good reading on their team's post-season chances over the next two weekends as the Gulls follow this week's prestigious Coca Cola Classic with a visit to the formidable Gallaudet Tournament in Washington, D.C. next weekend.

Closer to home, the men's and women's cross country teams will run in their first home meet of the season this Saturday as they host the SSU Invitational. Joining the Gulls in the five-team field will be UMES, Delaware State, Widener and Gallaudet. Race time is 11 a.m. at City Park.

Coach Gerry DiBartolo's soccer team concludes a two-game homestand on Saturday with its game against Allentown. The booters then travel to Lincoln on Wednesday before returning home for a Parent's Day clash with Catholic.

After a 10-day break in the schedule, the women's tennis squad hopes to improve on its 1-2 record when it returns to action against Wesley on Monday. Action begins at 3 p.m. at the newly renovated SSU tennis complex.

Attention Full Time Contractual Employees

Attention Student Renters

A meeting of the Town-Student Coalition will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, October 10, in Nanticoke C of the University Center. The purpose of the Coalition is to improve communication, provide information and foster positive relationships between students, landlords and neighbors.

he agenda for the meeting includes a summary of last year's activities and discussion of the University's new policy to respond to certain forms of off-campus misconduct.

of the factors which attracted him to Salisbury was the existence of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra.

He said that Dr. Bellavance pointed to the orchestra as one of his greatest sources of pride among the Salisbury State's recent achievements, he knew he was in the right place. "The arts are alive and well in Salisbury," he said.

In his new position as dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, Christensen will oversee the departments of education, health and physical education, social work, leisure studies, military science and developmental studies. The last is a department in which students can improve basic skills such as mathematics or English, in which they have not reached their full potential.

His school has over 50 faculty members plus secretarial and other support staff members for whom he has a special respect.

He is a man whose ideas flow in conversation and who has found Salisbury to be a friendly and responsive community.

Christensen and his wife, Janice, live in a new development, Nevins Mill, on Johnson Road. They have four sons, all grown and living independently elsewhere.

'89 Campus Leaders—A development workshop for student organization leaders and their advisors was recently held by the Office of Student Activities and Organizations. Participants included Bottom Row One: Sandi Tortisel, Kappa Psi Kappa sorority; Claudine Chambers, Salisbury State Program Board (SSPB); Laurie Boyd, Student National Education Association (SNEA); Agata Liszkowska, Student Activities and Organizations; Mary Catherine Bloodsworth, Philosophical Society. Row Two: Carolyn Bowden, SNEA faculty advisor; Laura Foley, Kappa Delta Pi; Edward Faust, Fellowship of Christian Athletes; Joann McCarthy, The Flyer Newsmagazine; Troy Wiley, Phi Beta Lambda; Jason Gross, Campus Crusade for Christ; Tony Sifford, student organization representative. Row Three: George Atiako, Union of African-American Students; Amy Widemer, director of Student Activities; Christine Robinson, Students Against Violating the Earth (SAVE); Amy Crittenden, Martial Arts Club; Rhonda Williams, SSPB; and David Coontz II, Phi Beta Lambda.

'Story of English'

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

Black on White will be shown on Tuesday, October 10, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105.

The program "explores the richness of Black English from its origins in the slave trade to today's Black 'rap'." There will be a discussion following the showing.

For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.

Pica's success as a teacher stems from his ability to motivate students to want to learn science. Seemingly an impossible task for students who are not science majors, Pica does it easily. An often cited reason is the contagious nature of his thorough excitement and enjoyment in knowing about science.

That excitement and enjoyment is spread to the community via Pica's presentations through the SSU Speakers Bureau. Pica's teaching also spills into his advising of the Physical Science Club. He is also a main contributor to the development of the upcoming major in physics.

Pica has been conducting research on astronomy for several years. His work is in association with laboratories at the University of Florida which are supported by grants from the National Science Foundation. It has thus far resulted in two research publications in refereed journals.

Pica is also a co-author of the study guide which accompanies the text used in physics courses at SSU. He is an active member of several professional societies including the American Astronomical Society.

Pica has served as chair of the Forum's faculty development committee and was instrumental in organizing the 1989 Mid-Atlantic Conference on Teaching and Classroom Research. The conference, held at SSU, attracted participants from throughout the eastern U.S. Pica also serves as coordinator of the dual degree in engineering program and the physics advanced placement program.

Tossey's success as a teacher can be largely attributed to his basic approach. He first challenges his students to achieve high levels of performance which he knows to be possible but which they might easily think unattainable, thus producing in them what he terms "creative anxiety." This is followed by his continuous support and encouragement throughout the course until the students' work comes to fruition.

Tossey is well known for involving his students in his research projects and for incorporating his research into his course content. The result is that students appreciate and become personally involved in the creation and application of knowledge.

Tossey's professional activities outside of teaching are extensive. He was a main contributor to the multimillion dollar Robert Wood Johnson Foundation proposal and the development of a National Institutes of Mental Health grant as part of the Maryland Child and Adolescent Service System Program for mental health. He has been deeply involved in research on housing conditions on the Eastern Shore.

In the area of curriculum development, he help develop the University of Maryland Eastern Shore-SSU dual degree program in sociology and social work. All of these activities have demonstrated his skill in working with people and agencies with very diverse interests.

The chair of the Social Work Department, Tossey is the former chair of the Forum's faculty development committee. Under his guidance, the committee presented the first annual Mid-Atlantic Conference on Teaching and Classroom Research in 1988. His leadership also lead to major increases in financial support for the committee.

"Clearly, these three individuals have earned the honor of receiving the 1989 Distinguished Faculty Award," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of Academic Affairs at SSU, "inspiring models not only to other faculty but also to the entire Salisbury State University community. We are all indebted to them."

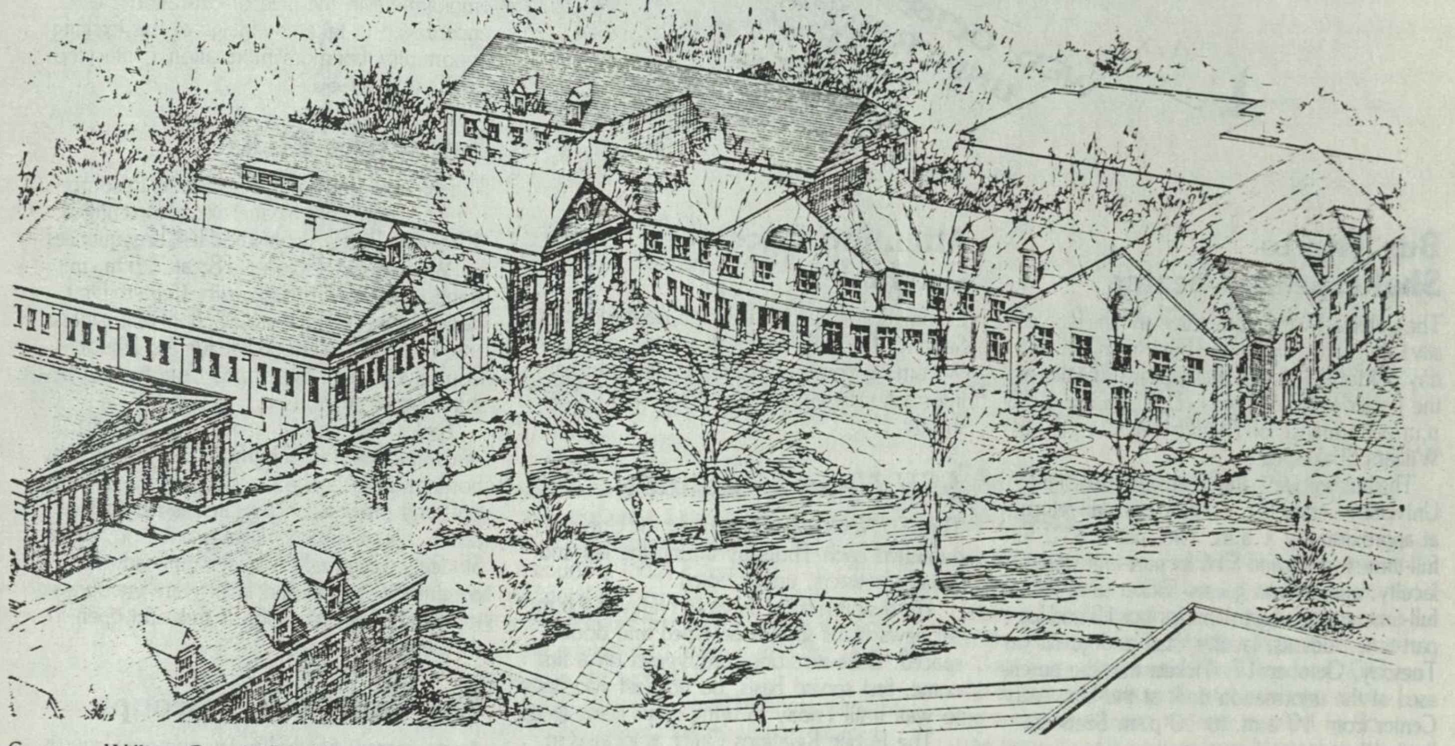
Governor Schaefer Announces Approval of $15.2 Million for Academic Building at SSU



Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced Board of Public Works approval of a $15,201,401 contract to construct a new academic building on the campus of Salisbury State University.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works also is comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Treasurer Lucille Maurer. The board is authorized by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions and other procurement actions.

"This project is another significant step in our plan for overall improvements in our higher education network. To reach this goal we must assure that students and faculty have the proper facilities," Governor Schaefer said.

The project is a 85,000 square foot academic facility on the north end of the SSU campus.

The building will house the departments of art, communication arts, music, computer science and military science as well as a center to service computer needs, both academic and administrative.

Designed by Gzesh & Schointuch, p.c. of Baltimore, the two-year construction project will be done by J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, of Salisbury, the lowest of three bidders.

SSU Hosts Maryland Dance Festival

The University hosts the 17th Annual Maryland Dance Festival Friday through Sunday, October 27-29, in a weekend which promises exciting dance classes and performances in everything from traditional ballet to synchronized swimming.

"This is the first time the University has hosted the state festival," said Kathryn Martin, director of the SSU Dance Company, "and I'm thrilled by the opportunity it presents to both our students and area dancers to take classes with the best master teachers in Maryland."

Martin expects more than 300 dance students from high schools, universities and professional companies in the state to congregate in Maggs Physical Activities Center for classes and performances.

"Some of the master teachers are known internationally," Martin continued. "I'm most happy that our campus will see how important

Mime/Actor Tomi Casciero at SSU October 22

Tomi Casciero, international mime-actor and storyteller, will be performing at SSU on Sunday, October 22, at 2 p.m., in the auditorium of Holloway Hall.

Casciero has also been the featured performer of both national and international festivals and shows. He was the regional showcase performer for the New York Festival of Clown Theatre, and the featured artist at both the Atlanta Mime Festival and The National Theatre in Washington, D.C. A major highlight of Casciero's professional career was his guest performance and role of interpreter for the International Festival of Clowning and Physical Theatre in Morelia, Mexico.

Casciero is a magna cum laude graduate of Towson State University. He has studied and completed master classes with well known mime artists Jacques Lecoq and Daniel Stein. His teaching highlights include instructor of introduction to mime with the Baltimore Ballet, body awareness through theatre at the Maryland School for the Blind, and the mime and creative drama and movement instructor for the Wolf Trap Foundation, naming only a few.

The actor's performance consists of a combination of mime, clowning and storytelling. "I had

The Cultural Events Committee and the University Center are sponsoring a bus trip on Thursday, October 26, to Shakespeare Theater at the Folger in Washington, D.C., to see the 8 p.m performance of Twelfth Night, a play by William Shakespeare.

The bus will leave the south entrance of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. and will return at approximately 1 a.m. The cost is $12 for full-time students and $16 for part-time students, faculty, alumni and guests. Ticket sales for full-time students begin on October 12 and for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests on Tuesday, October 17. Tickets may be purchased at the information desk at the University Center from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Seats are limited.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

Music Memo

There is a change of time for the Western Wind vocal ensemble workshop to be held at Parkside High School on Saturday, October 14. It is now scheduled for 1-3:30 p.m.

Although free and open to the public, reservations are required. Contact the Department of Music at 543-6385 for more information.

Housing is needed for the Mädchenchor Hannover, a 50-voice young women's choir visiting from Hannover, Germany, and singing on its first United States east coast tour.

The choir will arrive in Salisbury on Monday, October 30, at 6 p.m. and housing is needed for two nights, October 30 and 31. The choir's performance is Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public. The choir departs SSU on Wednesday morning, November 1. Please contact Mrs. Karen Griffin, at 543-6385, or Dr. Duane R. Karna, at 543-6386, if interested.

SADD Meeting

The next meeting of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) will be held on Tuesday, October 17, at 7 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the University Center. Current members as well as those interested in joining the group are welcome to attend.

School System Expo

A School System Expo, sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, is scheduled for Tuesday, October 24. The Expo will take place from 5-7 p.m. in rooms Nanticoke B and C in the University Center.

Representatives from Maryland counties Wicomico, Worcester and Montgomery, Fairfax County in Virginia and the Capital School District in Delaware will be on hand. Each district will give a presentation on what they have to offer future teachers. Following the presentations, students can talk informally with each of the representatives.

Students and alumni interested in future employment in the field of education are encouraged to take advantage of this exciting opportunity. For more information, contact the CPPD at 543-6075.

Know the Risks...

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center is sponsoring a panel discussion entitled, "Know the Risks: Alcohol and Its Consequences" on Wednesday, October 18, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. Dr. Robert Spery, of the Perdue School of Business, and Tom Brown, inspector for the Liquor Control Board in Wicomico County, will be sharing their insights.

Topics will include the use of altered I.D. cards and licenses, serving underage drinkers, hosting parties that become loud or out-of-control, and other alcohol-related issues that can cause college students legal or civil problems. Students, organization leaders and advisors, administrative staff and faculty are encouraged to attend. The discussion is free and open to the public.

On-Campus AA Group

An on-campus Alcoholics Anonymous Group is meeting each Wednesday from 11 a.m. - noon in the Manokin Room of the University Center. Anyone wishing to have additional information regarding the group may contact Jennifer Berkman, Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, at 543-6309.

National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week Is Oct. 15-21

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center has already received strong response to the Campus Pledge Campaign initiated for National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, October 15-21, said Jennifer Berkman, center director. Disciplines such as education, biology, business, nursing, art, psychology, medical technology, sociology, anthropology, physical education and athletics will be including discussions of alcohol and related issues in their classes.

"Sincere thanks to those faculty who have already made the week and the issue a priority," Berkman said. Anyone still interested in pledging an activity or program for National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week may do so by contacting the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

Harris Is Great Leader Lecturer

Wyman C. Harris, president and chief executive officer of Wyndham Baking Co., Inc., of Augusta, GA, makes the next presentation in this fall's Great Leader Lecture Series. Harris' lecture, sponsored by the Perdue School, is Monday, October 16 at noon in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

In July 1985 Harris participated in the formation of Wyndham Foods, Inc., involving the acquisition of eight operating companies with 1989 combined revenues in excess of $350 million. Subsidiary companies include Murray, Jack's, Bishop's and others. Today Wyndham Foods is the largest manufacturer of Girl Scout Cookies in the United States. Harris spends his time between operating headquarters in Augusta and corporate headquarters in San Francisco, California.

Two years after graduating from the United States Air Force Academy in 1963, Harris received a Master of Science in Industrial Engineering from Purdue University. Through 1969 Harris served as an officer in the U. S. Air Force in Ramstein, Germany and at the Pentagon.

From 1969 - 1985 Harris served in various capacities with General Foods Corporation. His responsibilities there ranged from operations planning manager for the Birds Eye Division to general manager of the Cheese Division and president of Otto Roth & Company. At Otto Roth, Harris developed and executed a strategy for entering the specialty cheese business, resulting in the creation of the largest importer and distributor of specialty cheeses in the United States.

A graduate of the Harvard Business School Program for Management Development, Harris has successfully made the transition from corporate manager to entrepreneur by building a most successful enterprise.

Subsequent speakers in the Great Leaders Series are: Gene James, president and chief executive officer of Southern States Cooperative, Inc., on Thursday, November 2, at 12:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall; and Robert N. Weller, president of Econo Lodges of America, Inc., on Wednesday, November 29, at 1:15 p.m. in the University Center.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Johnson to Speak

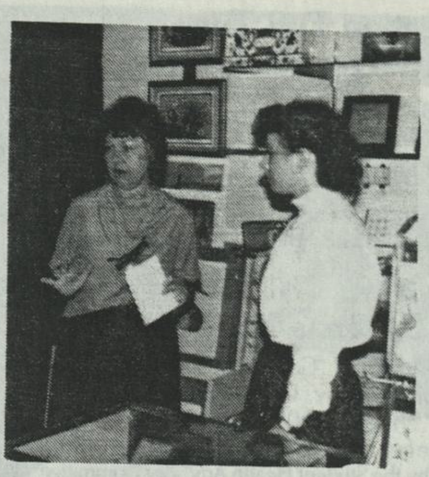
The Psychology Club and Psi Chi is sponsoring a talk by Dr. Blair Johnson on Monday, October 9, at 3:30 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

He will speak on "Getting the self back into persuasion research." Following this talk, he will discuss issues about graduate school with interested students.

Dr. Johnson is an assistant professor of psychology at Syracuse University. He earned his Ph.D. in social psychology from Purdue University and has recently coauthored a Psychological Bulletin article entitled "Effects of Involvement on Persuasion: A Meta-analysis."

Overstock Textbook Returns

Faculty should inform classes that the Book Rack is beginning overstock testbook returns this week. If anyone is in need of a textbook for this semester, it should be purchased it as soon as possible.



Natalie Palmer (left) a member of the SBI and Board of Directors of the Art Institute and Gallery is discussing management techniques with Perdue School student and SBI student consultant Lisa Sales.

Student Consultants Work with Small Businesses

"A brilliant idea has many hurdles to jump as it progresses from brainwave to the marketplace, and a sound business plan is the best way of ensuring that it attains its fullest potential on the local, national and even international market," said Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Perdue School Small Business Institute (SBI).

Eighty percent of businesses fail within the first year, but once a company has passed the million-dollar-turnover figure—a surprisingly low amount in today's economy—its chances of continued success rise to 90 percent. Our job is to make sure that the companies we work with are equipped to make it into the ranks of those who are successful."

Funded by the U.S. Small Business Administration the SBI was started at Salisbury State in 1987 and has, since then, worked with 20 companies which include cottage industries, technical companies, food suppliers and service organizations.

Before the start of each term, Palmer selects 10 companies which will be alloted a team of business school students as consultants through the term. Each student has already completed the entrepreneurship course and has demonstrated the skills needed by the client company.

Throughout the term the consultant students work closely with company management to develop a detailed business plan. Class presentations are made encouraging discussion with fellow students. At term's end the completed plan is presented to the client company's managements.

The plan may be for the company overall, or deal with one aspect of its functioning. SBI students now handle the management of Salisbury's Art Institute and Gallery gift shop, taking care of the buying and paperwork to streamline volunteers' responsibilities. One client needed help with going out of business! The SBI came up with a fair market price. Eligibility for grants, loans, planning and zoning ordinances are all familiar territory to SBI students.

The Department of Planning, Zoning and Community Development for the City of Salisbury and Wicomico County needed an inventory of retail floor space for Salisbury and the suburban area. "We were most impressed by the enthusiasm, knowledge and technical awareness of the SBI team alloted to us," said Director William C. Livingston. "They came up with a formula for cross sampling residents in the area and devised a questionnaire which told us that the retailing market had grown considerably more sophisticated over the years. The resultant report enabled us to define exactly what a developer needed to accomplish on a specific project. We look forward to working with the SBI in the future."

"Cash flow is the most common problem facing businesses," said Palmer. "Many companies are inventory rich and operating costs poor. Careful planning is essential and something which often falls by the wayside during the busy start-up days. "Since the savings and loan crash many lending institutions want to see a sound business plan before approving a loan. We can also assist in applying for an SBA guaranteed loan."

The Eastern Shore offers excellent start-up opportunities to small businesses. A good product or service benefits from the word-of-mouth tradition, and the influx of relocating personnel and vacationers exposes a company to broader tastes and requirements. As a microcosm of larger markets it provides across-the-board experience to students at the SBI. One client, for example—a seafood packer familiarizes students with fishing, packing, shipping, retailing and restaurant management—skills that can be applied to many fields.

Palmer clearly sees the relationship between the SBI and the Eastern Shore as symbiotic—each learning from and benefitting from the other. An aquaculture conference, held in June and co-sponsored with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, is an illustration of that symbiosis and the success of small businesses on the Eastern Shore is another.

SSPB Presents Pop Concert October 13

Singer-songwriter Ray Fogg will be appearing in concert on Friday, October 13 at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. The show is sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board.

Fogg is an entertainer from Cleveland, OH. who does most of his work on the college circuit. Past tours have taken his one man act to 25 states throughout the nation from Massachusetts to Arizona.

He has become known as an exciting and energetic performer. His show features his ever growing collection of songs in a musical style that combines pop, folk and rock. "A Ray Fogg concert is more than a concert though:" explains Fogg, "it is a total entertainment experience. I know that sounds a bit corny, but that is really what I am aiming for when I am on stage." He sings and tells a tale, plays the guitar delicately and with a beat, jokes around and then hits you with something serious from the piano. The show hits moods that range from rowdy to romantic and all points between.

Perhaps his strong point is the quality of his original material. Fogg's rare ability to identify with people in many everyday situations contributes to the wide variety of subjects and emotions expressed in his story songs. He will have you listening to a bum in the park, waiting with lovers for the weekend and cruising with a carload of teenagers. It is this unique style of relating to common experiences that makes Ray Fogg a performer with particular appeal to audiences everywhere.

Besides writing songs and traveling the country to give concerts, Fogg has also become active in humanitarian issues such as world hunger. His concern about world hunger caused him to travel to Somalia in 1981 to work as a volunteer consultant in refugee camps. In 1982 he was the recipient of the Cleveland Rotary Club's International Service Above Self Award. Also in 1982, Fogg produced his own concert in Cleveland, OH, to raise over $2,000 for hunger.

As tradition dictates, Ray plans to have a few surprises up his sleeve in order to make this show that total entertainment experience people have come to expect. As Ray says..."It WILL be exciting!"

Bach is Back!

"Bach's Lunch," a free noon-time recital series at St. Peter's Church in Salisbury, returns for its fifth season. The series of half-hour informal concerts begins on October 3 and continues for eight consecutive Tuesdays, ending November 21. Each recital will run from 12:15-12:45 p.m., enabling local listeners to attend during their lunch hour.

Several members of the SSU music faculty will be featured on the series: Dr. Duane Karna and Linda Cockey will perform highlights from their faculty recital for the opening recital on October; Katherine Turner Barlow will sing on October 24; and Taylor Harvey will play a special Halloween program on October 31.

The series is free and open to the public. St. Peter's is located on the Downtown Plaza in Salisbury. For more information call the church office at 742-5118.

Cooper in Faculty Recital

Dr. Nancy Joyce Cooper of the Department of Music will present an organ recital on Monday, October 16, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church. The program will include music by Buxtehude, Bach, Alain, Buck, Albright and Widor.

The recital is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Cultural Events Committee. For more information contact the Music Department at 543-6385. The performance is free and open to the public.

PALS Book Sale

On Saturday, October 14, from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m., a used book sale will be held at the home of Phil and Carol Bosserman, 300 Whitman Avenue in Salisbury. On sale will be books on a variety of topics, hard back and paper, records, and cassettes. Proceeds will go to the Peace Alliance of the Lower Shore.

Anyone who would like to donate books, records or cassettes to this sale is invited to do so. Please give Phil Bosserman a call at 543-6430 or 742-4945.

Sports Psychology Seminar Planned

Athletes—need help in developing the inner, winning "mindset" asssociated with peak athletic performance? If so, plan to attend the upcoming three-session sports psychology seminar, offered by Dr. Robert McBrien of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

Designed to guide participants to develop the positive mental attitudes characteristic of peak athletic performance, the seminar will present specific relaxation, visualization and mental rehearsal skills training.

The seminar will be offered on three consecutive Tuesdays, beginning on October 17, from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the University Center. To sign up for this seminar, stop by the CPPD on the second floor of the University Center or call 543-6070.

Go Bananas Night

The 5th annual "Go Bananas Night" is being held on Thursday, October 26, from 7 p.m. until...? The first 10 teams to register will receive free t-shirts and refreshments. Co-sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Committee (SHAC), Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) and Campus Recreation, the evening is one filled with crazy games and challenges for teams of 10 people. Prizes will be awarded to the top three teams. Any student organization, dorm floor, or group of 10 individuals may register to participate by picking up an entry form in Campus Recreation or the Health Center. Forms must be returned by Monday, October 23, however, the first 10 teams registered will participate, so get your forms in early! For more information, contact the Health Center at 543-6262 or the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center at 543-6309.

Spending Account Deductions

Dependent Care and Health Care Spending Account participants should note that during the month of December there will be no deduction from paychecks for these two programs. You will receive the actual paychecks on December 20 and January 3. To continue deductions for 1990, indicate your intentions on the open enrollment benefits form which was recently delivered to your home.

If you have any questions, please contact Shirley King at 548-4755, or stop by the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall.

Open Enrollment

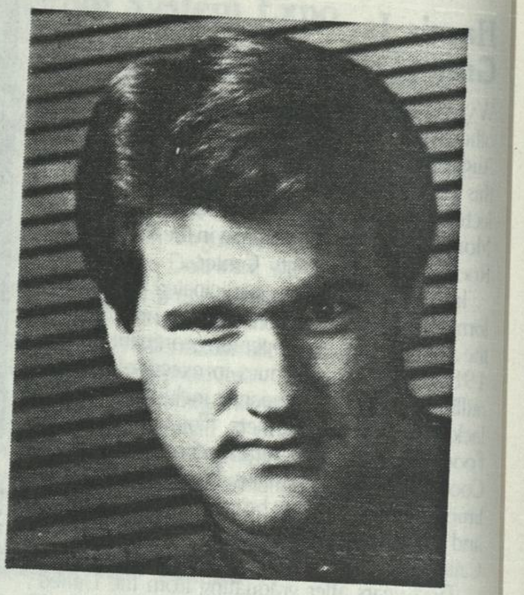
Attention all full time employees. The Health Benefits Fair continues through Friday, October 13, at 2 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Representatives from various plans will be on hand to answer questions.

REMINDER - open enrollment forms must be submitted to the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall, no later than November 17.

Outdoor Club Meeting

On Monday, October 16, the Outdoor Club will hold its white water rafting trip interest meeting. The meeting will be held at 9 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Discussion and plans will be made for the trip on October 27-29. All members and non-members are welcome to attend the meeting. Videos and speakers will be available to explain the excitement felt from the adventures of white water rafting.

Whether you want to go rafting or just want to learn about the "wettest sport" around, please feel free to join us in club meetings. Refreshments will be served during the videos.



Craig Karges

Karges' 'Magic of the Mind' October 14

Craig Karges will bring his "Magic of the Mind" show to Salisbury State on Saturday, October 14, at 2 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. Karges's show is a fantastic display of illusion and psychic happenings using total audience participation. The performance is presented over 150 times a year on college campuses, for corporations and for major conventions from coast to coast.

Tables "walk" onstage and then levitate into the air; three finger rings are borrowed from members of the audience and linked together in a chain; blindfolded Craig is able to call off the serial number on a dollar bill; minds are read and predictions are made and verified during a typical performance. In a special demonstration Karges risks his fee, the money being returned to the University if he fails.

In answer to the often asked question "How does he do it?" Karges says, "What I do is combine the skills of a psychologist, a psychic and a magician. I claim no supernatural powers and I don't try to convince my audiences to believe in anything. If my show goes beyond entertainment I hope that it may motivate people to explore their own minds. We only use 10or 20 percent of our brain. When you look at the potential that's there within each of us I think it's just incredible!"

While Karges admits that part of what he does is illusion he insists that he does not prearrange anything with his audiences. Skeptical? Well, he has a $10,000 offer, payable to charity, if you can prove he uses stooges or confederates to accomplish his demonstrations.

Don't miss this incredible show sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board.

'Story of English'

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

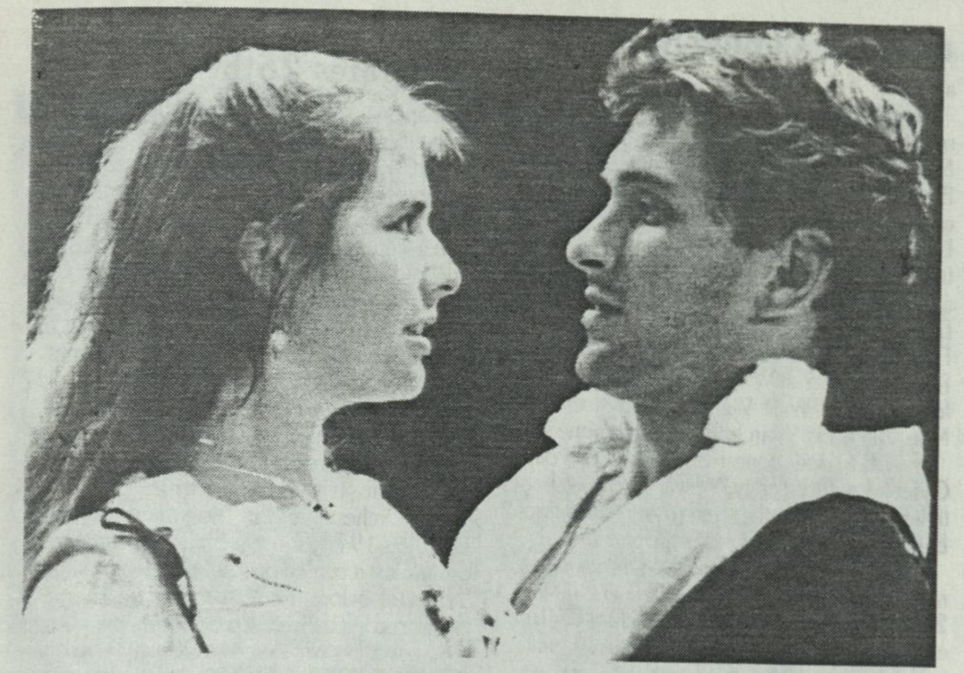
"Pioneers! O Pioneers!" will be shown on Tuesday, October 17, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105.

The program "traces the evolution of American English from the Revolutionary War through the 1920s." There will be a discussion following the showing.

For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.



Kristine Lococo Adams and Kevin Adams lead the cast as the shrewish Katherina and the madcap Petruchio in SSU's production of Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, which opens October 13 for six performances.

The Taming of the Shrew

"Understanding the text." "Getting the humor across in the way it was intended." "Being able to express yourself using Elizabethan English so people can identify with the characters."

These are just some of the responses cast members give when asked what is hardest about performing in Shakespeare's plays. Five area students will be acting in the SSU production of The Taming of the Shrew, William Shakespeare's farcical battle of the sexes.

Robert Forrester of Salisbury, a cast member, agrees. "It will be a big stretch for us. Most people have difficulty understanding Shakespeare, so we want to make it more accessible and fun for the audience."

In the Salisbury State production, which opens October 13 for six performances at Holloway Hall on stage, Kevin Adams of Salisbury will be appearing as the madcap Petruchio, a suitor to the shrewish Katharina, a role which is played by his wife, Kristine. The main action of the play centers on these two characters, roles played by Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor in Zeffirelli's movie, The Taming of the Shrew.

Kevin earned his B.A. in philosophy and communication arts from SSU in 1986 and has appeared as Billy Bippitt in One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and as Stanley Kowalski in A Streetcar Named Desire, both SSU productions.

Kristine Lococo Adams also graduated from SSU in 1986 with her B.A. in secondary education and English. She and her husband met while acting in college. They now have a one year old daughter, Alexandra. As an undergraduate, Lococo Adams directed the SSU Children's Theatre production of Hansel and Gretel, and has acted in numerous University productions including Cabaret, Equus, Antigone and A Streetcar Named Desire. The Adamses are now graduate students at SSU.

Like most Shakespeare plays, Shrew has a large cast. In the play are: Heather Campbell as Bianca, Kate's younger sister; Robert Forrester as Baptista, Kate and Bianca's father; Tim Bowman, Darryl Dillard, Jefferson Boyer and Jon Dietrich as suitors to Bianca; Michelle Ennis as the widow; and wearing a variety of hats, including comic servants, are Steve Collins, Ryan Deck, Tamara Purdue, Stephanie McMullin, David Layfield, Ray Barretto and Mike Neall. Theatre wenches include Gwen Fleming, Maria Hunt, Katherine Filson and Laura Schmidt.

Performances are at 8 p.m., Friday-Saturday, October 13-14, and Thursday-Saturday, October 19-21, with a matinee on Sunday, October 15, at 2 p.m. Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The Sea Gulls get a week off on the gridiron schedule as coach Joe Dailey tries to regroup his squad for the second half of the season. Salisbury is coming off of a 9-9 tie with Glassboro State last weekend, and will be trying to improve on its 0-4-1 record starting at Montclair State on October 14. Unfortunately, the Gulls will be without two members of their starting offensive backfield for the rest of the season as both QB Robert Butler and HB Paul Williams are out with injuries. The SSU field hockey squad continues to excell despite a demanding October schedule. The Sea Gulls, 9-1, played top-ranked and defending NCAA champion Trenton State on Tuesday, and host 1988 NCAA runnerup Bloomsburg on Saturday at 11 a.m. The game against Bloomsburg starts a stretch of four straight home games for the Gulls. After playing four consecutive conference games over the past two weeks, the soccer team gets a brief break from ESAC competition as it hosts Catholic in a Parents' Day showdown, starting at noon. The booters then travel to Eastern on Thursday before returning home to play Rutgers/Camden on Oct. 21. The volleyball team faces a big test again this weekend as it plays in the Gallaudet Tournament on Friday and Saturday. The Gulls, 20-6 on the year, had mixed results in last week's Coca Cola Classic in Huntington, PA, winning two of five matches in a very competitve field. Salisbury needs a strong showing in this weekend's tournament to keep alive its chances for an NCAA postseason invitation. The women's tennis squad plays at Cabrini this afternnon, then returns home for a Saturday match with Frostburg State, beginning at 11 a.m. Meanwhile, the cross country teams get a week off before returning to competition on October 21 when SSU hosts the Tidewater Invitational Meet. Also approaching quickly on the calender is Homecoming '89, which will feature a full slate of athletic activity. Make plans now to be part of the Hall of Fame dinner and ceremony, which will be held on Friday, October 27. SSU will be inducting five of its former athletic greats into the Hall, swelling its membership to 26 strong. Tickets to this year's Hall of Fame dinner are available through the alumni office, at 543-6042.

ROTC Ceremony October 14

Sophomore, junior and senior ROTC cadets at Salisbury State will participate in an awards ceremony on Parents/Spouse Day on Saturday, October 14, at 11 a.m. in Red Square.

The following awards will be presented: Superior Advanced Camp Ribbons, juniors in the top 15 percent of their advanced camp class this summer; Academic Wreaths, cadets in the top 10 percent of their ROTC class last semester; ROTC Academic Cadet Ribbons, cadets with ROTC cumulative grade point averages of 3.75 or higher; and The Military Proficiency Award, outstanding cadet in graded military events at advanced camp.

Certificates will be awarded to all cadets who achieved the maximum score in land navigation at advanced camp. RECONDO badges will go to cadets who completed each phase of the advanced camp obstacle course. Scholarship certificates will be presented to cadets receiving scholarships this fall. Also, participation ribbons for Rangers and Rifle Team members will be presented.

Welsh Represents SSU at Three Conferences

Jim Welsh, associate professor of English, has had a busy month during October. On October 7 he was in Jacksonville, FL, representing Salisbury State and chairing a seminar on Marjorie Kinnan Rawling's "Cross Creek, Memoir and Film" for the Popular Culture Association of the South's Annual Meetings at the Sea Turtle Inn, located in Atlantic Beach, just outside Jacksonville. Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, the Pulitzer Prize-winning author of The Yearling (1938), became a Florida celebrity as a result of her national success with The Yearling, still a sentimental favorite and children's classic. She moved to Florida in 1928. Cross Creek is a memoir describing life in the rough in rural Florida, where Rawlings lived until her death in 1953.

Welsh ran the seminar, led the discussion, and evaluated papers written by Professors Anne Rowe of Florida State University (on the autobiographical and environmental memoir) and Robert E. Snyder of the American Studies Department at the University of South Florida, Tampa, who wrote on the film Cross Creek, directed by Martin Ritt in 1983, starring Mary Steenburgen. Also present at this Florida seminar was Philip S. May, Jr., currently President of the Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings Society at the University of Florida, who taped the seminar preceedings for the Rawlings Society archives.

Welsh developed an interest in environmental writing as a result of the "Man and Nature" programs SSU mathematics Professor Ben Fusaro organized earlier this year on campus. Welsh also will travel to West Virginia University on October 14 to chair a seminar titled "People and Other Animals" and to read a paper titled "Man and Nature, Disney and the Environment, Mowat and Wolf: Memoirs into Film," as part of the 14th Annual Literature and Film Conference at WVA University. The theme for the 1989 West Virginia conference in Morgantown is "Man and the Environment."

Welsh's paper concerns Never Cry Wolf, Canadian writer Farley Mowat's popular book that was adapted to the screen by director Carrol Ballard, starring Charles Martin Smith.

Later in October Welsh is also scheduled to read a paper entitled "Educating Students for the 21st Century" at a National Curriculum Conference to be held at North Texas State University in Denton, TX, October 27 and 28. This paper will be presented as part of a seminar on "Visual Literacy" organized by Professor Carol Hall of Howard University. Small grants from the SSU Faculty Development Committee and the Salisbury State University Foundation helped to fund travel commitments for these three conferences.

Rubin Presentations

Sharon Rubin, dean of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts at Salisbury State University, made two presentations at the annual conference of the Mid-Atlantic Placement Association, held at the Homestead in Hot Springs, VA, recently.

An address, "Shaping the Changing Academic Environment: New Issues, New Participants," emphasized diverse perceptions by students, faculty and administration of what content needs to be taught and why, who needs to be included in student populations, what pedagogy is most effective, and what the role of values in education should be.

Her workshop, "Strategies for Creating and Strengthening Internship Programs of Quality," dealt with strategies for ensuring program quality, increasing faculty involvement and integrating experiential education into the curriculum.

Dillon Published

Tom Dillon, a member of the Computer Science Department in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, recently co-authored a paper published in the July 1989 issue of The Woman CPA.

Dillon's paper, "Spreadsheet Application Development Needs Control," presents a step-by-step procedure for the development of large spreadsheet applications and provides a methodology for a manager to better control the spreadsheet development process of subordinates. The procedure will maximize efficiency and integrity of spreadsheet template design.

Share The Graduate With Another Generation

SSPB Films invites you to enjoy Parents Weekend with one of the greatest critical successes of all time. The Graduate rocketed Dustin Hoffman (Rain Man, Tootsie, Midnight Cowboy) to stardom with his portrayal of the inexperienced college graduate who returns to his affluent, insensitive parents, has an affair with his parents' neurotic alcoholic neighbor and ends up falling in love with her daughter.

Director Mike Nichols (Working Girl) won an Oscar for his imaginative, brilliant direction of his commentary on American values, the generation gap and late '60's youth. Simon and Garfunkel's beautifully memorable score sprinkles the film's soundtrack with "The Sounds of Silence," "Scarborough Fair" and "Mrs. Robinson." Showtime is Saturday, October 14, and Sunday, October 15, at 7 p.m. and 9:20 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, Room 149. Please note: These dates are different from what appears in the Parents Weekend brochure. Admission is free and open to the general public. Plastics!

Also showing in October will be The Accused starring Jodie Foster and Kelly McGillis. The film will be screened on Friday and Saturday, October 20 and 21—less than a week before the bus trip to the Folger Theatre for a performance of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night starring McGillis. November offers a nuclear nightmare double feature, Atomic Cafe and Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb. Also playing in November will be the critically acclaimed French film Jean de Florette.

The SSPB film series will be screening films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first. For more information, contact David Todd at the SSPB office in the University Center at 543-6197.

Cleveland Orchestra Celebrates 25th

It was in September of 1965 that the Cleveland Orchestra Broadcast Service began recording concerts in Severance Hall for distribution to a fledgling type network of some 20 radio stations. Now with over 350 stations and in its sixth year of sponsorship by BP America, the series observes a quarter century of broadcasting with 13 historical concerts from the Orchestra's archives. Included are programs conducted by George Szell, Pierre Boulez, Louis Lane, James Levine, Michael Charry, Robert Shaw, Leopold Stokowski, Lorin Maazel and Christoph von Dohnanyi. The first historical concert, released nationally the week of October 1, 1989, was of a program given in Tokyo, in May of 1970, by the Orchestra and its Music Director from 1946 to 1970, George Szell. This broadcast was the last recorded concert given by the famed conductor before his death.

The second concert, to be released the week of October 8, will be one originally given in October of 1965. A Severance Hall program, it features George Szell conducting Mahler's Symphony No. 4 with the late soprano Judith Raskin as soloist. Other highlights included Robert Shaw conducting a concert performance of Handel's opera "Semele," the late cellist Jacqueline du Pre in her Cleveland debut, and a 1971 concert with Leopold Stokowski, who was 89 at the time of this, his last appearance with the Orchestra.

The Cleveland Orchestra broadcast series begins its 25th season with over 350 stations in the United States and Canada carrying the concerts via digital tape and satellite transmission. In addition, Cleveland Orchestra broadcasts are heard regularly in Japan, Great Britain and elsewhere overseas.

Host and producer for all 25 years of the Orchestra radio series has been Robert Conrad.

'Driving Miss Daisy' Bus Trip

Madchenchor Hannover Choir of Hannover, Germany

Madchenchor Hannover to Perform

The Madchenchor Hannover (of Hannover Germany), a 50 voice girl's choir, will perform on Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Free and open to the public, the concert is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Cultural Affairs Committee.

Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Salisbury and New York City are five of the cities included in the choir's East Coast itinerary. This will be the choir's first concert tour appearance in the United States.

Founded in 1952, the choir is comprised of 50 girls, ranging from 11 to 19 years of age. Under the disciplined direction of Ludwig Rutt and the perfectionism of pedagogical instructor, Gudrun Schrofel-Gatzman, the choir has earned a renowned position in the European musical community.

Since 1964 the choir has toured 22 foreign countries, winning first place in the following national and international choral competitions: International Choir Competition in Arezzo, Italy (1981); Cologne, First Choir Competition in the Federal Republic of Germany (1982); British Broadcasting Corporation International Choir Competition (1983); and the International Choir Competition in Varna, Bulgaria (1987).

The choir performs various choral works from contemporary composers, as well as traditional composers, such as Vivaldi, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Reger and Bartok.

Dr. Duane Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at Salisbury State, was one of the 22 choral directors chosen from the U.S. to represent the American Choral Directors Association on the 1988 German-American Choral Directors' Exchange Program. During the two-week trip, the American delegation studied, observed and visited with various choral organizations in the Federal Republic of Germany. Because of his participation, Karna was able to extend an invitation to the Madchenchor Hannover to perform at Salisbury State on its 1989 tour.

The tour will not only bring this highly acclaimed and respected choir to American audiences, but will promote an opportunity conducive to cultural exchange. Members of the choir will stay in private homes, providing them with an opportunity to learn about various American lifestyles as well as share aspects of their own culture with their American hosts.

Friendship Ambassadors, a not-for-profit organization and organizer of the choir's U.S. tour, has been promoting this type of cultural interaction for 18 years in the attempt to dissolve stereotypes and generate international understanding and exchange.

Helene English Exhibit in Atrium Gallery

A one-woman show opens Monday, October 16, in the Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the bookstore. The featured artist is Helene English who works in both oils and watercolor.

The exhibit will consist of large landscapes and rural scenes of the Eastern Shore. It will be open from 10 a.m.- 5 p.m., daily through November 8. A reception for the artist will be held on Friday, October 20, from 4:30-6:30 p.m. in the Atrium Gallery. It is free and the public is invited.

The English exhibit will provide an interesting contrast to the University Gallery Exhibit, Henry Rodman Kenyon, 1861-1926: American Impressionism, open from October 14-November 9. While both artists paint landscapes, often in oil, the locations, time and painting styles and techniques are quite different.

English was born in the Bronx, NY, and received her Bachelor of Fine Arts in painting from Syracuse University in 1974. Several years ago she moved to the Eastern Shore and now lives along the Wicomico River with her family. Influenced by Matisse, Cezanne and Milton Avery, she paints scenes she encounters in everyday life, such as cows in a pasture, flowers on the river bank and back country lanes. Her emphasis is on bright color and complex spatial relationships.

English has exhibited at the Rehobeth Art League, galleries in Connecticut and New York, as well as several locations in Wicomico County. She now sells paintings from her studio.

For more information concerning the English exhibit and reception call the University Center at 543-6100.

Lecture on 'Chaos' October 17

Can a butterfly beating its wings in Tokyo today contribute to a storm system that batters the Eastern Shore next month? Startling as it seems, the answer is yes.

The new scientific study of "Chaos," according to Salisbury State University professor of mathematics Ben Fusaro deals with such questions, "questions that force deterministic scientists to gulp and retreat to more modest claims for their models of nature."

Celso Grebogi, a leader in the new field of Chaos, will visit Salisbury State on Tuesday, October 17. He will lecture at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall room 230 as part of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology's 1989 Lecture Series.

His talk will introduce basic concepts of Chaos and present applications to various fields of science. After the talk there was a demonstration of computer software that Dr. Grebogi helped develop using these principals.

Grebogi has a bachelors's degree in chemical engineering from the Universidade Federal do Parana, Brazil, and master's and doctor's degrees in physics from the University of Maryland. He has been a featured speaker at over a dozen national and international organizations and has published more than 60 papers. "His stellar research activities are matched by an interest in disseminating the concepts of Chaos and Fractals to undergraduates and to faculty," Fusaro said.

Journalist James Gleick's book, Chaos: Making a New Science, makes these new and fascinating mathematical concepts as real as the kitchen sink, the SSU mathematics professor continued. Gleick's book, published by Viking-Penguin Press in 1987, was on The New York Times best seller list for over six months. The public interest in such a new study and its implications for our future shows mathematics is anything but stagnant.

Admission to the Grebogi talk is free and the public is invited. For more information contact Dean Donald Cathcart of the Henson School of Science and Technology at 543-6425.

Tomi Casciero, Mime/Actor

heard from many people that Tomi Casciero's performances were very, very exciting," said Dr. Andrew Hepburn, chair of the SSU Department of Communication Arts. "His is a family oriented show, aimed towards children from grades kindergarten on up. There is comedy and audience participation. The kids will love it!"

A definite favorite with young audiences is his act involving "der-ders"—the cardboard tubes that are left over when all of the paper towels have been used. As Casciero told The Washington Post, "I get my ideas from my childhood and from watching kids. I also want to show kids...that an adult can engage in childlike behavior. I'm saying to them, when you get to be an adult, you don't have to lose that."

Reservations are unnecessary for this Sunday afternoon show. Admission is on a first come first served basis, and $1 for both adults and children. Casciero's appearance is sponsored by Salisbury State Children's Theatre and is made possible by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. For more information contact Dr. Andrew Hepburn at 548-7026.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

DATE	EMPLOYER/POSITION(S)/MAJORS
Thurs., Oct. 12	FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORP. - Interviewing business administration, finance, economics and accounting majors for bank examiner positions. A group meeting will be held the evening before for interested students. Sign-ups are required. Interviewing December 1989 graduates.
Thurs., Oct. 12	ELECTRONIC DATA SYSTEMS - Information Processing Firm - Interviewing all majors, but prefer computer science, math, MIS, data processing and business for systems engineer positions. A 3.0 GPA and willingness to relocate is a must.
	DEFENSE CONTRACT AUDIT AGENCY - Holding a group meeting for all interested accounting majors from 10 a.m.-noon. Sign-ups are required.
Fri., Oct. 13	SECOND NATIONAL FEDERAL SAVINGS BANK - Interviewing finance and business/accounting majors for bank tellers, mortgage and accounting clerks. Interviewing only December 1989 graduates.
Tues., Oct. 17	FAW, CASSON & COMPANY - Accounting Firm - Interviewing all accounting majors for full-time, internships, summer and part-time employment.
	DELAWARE DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS - nterviewing criminal justice, sociology majors or all interested majors for correctional officer positions. Interviewing only December 1989 graduates.
	DELUXE CORPORATION - Supplier of checks and magnetic ink encoded transaction forms. Interviewing all majors for sales trainee positions. Interviewing only December 1989 graduates.
Wed., Oct. 18	FAW, CASSON & COMPANY - Accounting Firm - Interviewing all accounting majors for full-time, internships, summer and part-time employment.
	SUZIE'S CASUALS - Retail store. Interviewing all majors for assistant manager trainee positions.
Thurs., Oct. 19	U.S. NAVY - Interviewing math, physics, chemistry, engineering or other technical areas with one year calculus and one year physics for mid-level management positions for nuclear propulsion systems. Interviewing students graduating in December '89, May and December '90, May and December '91 and May and December '92.
	NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE - Interviewing all majors for financial sales positions.

Currently enrolled students and alumni may make appointments immediately. All recruiting requires sign-ups unless noted. Contact Placement Services, University Center, Room 263, or call 543-6075.

On-Campus Recruiting

SPECIAL NOTE

Anyone wishing to participate in on-campus interviewing must first attend an Interview and Placement Briefing. The next briefings are:
Tuesday, October 17, from 3:30-4:30 p.m.
Wednesday, October 25, from 2-3 p.m.
Contact Placement Office for sign-ups.

SENIOR RESUME BOOK

Requests are often received from employers who want to review resumes of Salisbury State seniors so they can contact seniors about job openings. To participate, bring a resume to Career Placement. It will be filed according to major and made available to interested employers.

WORKSHOPS

RESUME WRITING - This one-session workshop is designed to help develop one of the job campaign's basic tools. A discussion of such topics as various formats, uses of resume, printing, cover letters and sections of the resume is featured. Handouts are provided. Bring your draft resume if you have one.

Monday, October 23, from 3:30-5 p.m.

INTERVIEW SKILLS

A must for every senior! This one-session workshop is designed to assist you in preparing for the professional job interview. A review of such topics as nonverbal behavior, dress, questions, interview phases, and preparation is featured. Handouts are provided. Prior attendance at a Senior Interview and Placement Briefing is suggested.

Monday, October 16, from 2:30-4 p.m.
Tuesday, October 31, from 4-5:30 p.m.

All workshops require sign-ups. Contact Placement Services, University Center, Room 263, or call 543-6075.

dance is in the state and how our company is a part of what is happening in dance.

"This is an opportunity particularly for men to study different dance techniques. There also will be performances throughout the weekend, so dance fans will have a marvelous chance to see some exciting dancing."

David Howard and Jurgen Pagels will be featured guest instructors. Howard will teach ballet classes on various levels as well as pointe, variations, and men's ballet. In addition to ballet technique, Pagels will teach partnering, men's ballet and character.

Sponsored by the Maryland Council for Dance, the festival offers a total of 47 technique classes for children and adults in ballet, tap, jazz modern and ethnic dance forms and workshops in clogging, musicality, improvisation, stretching, synchronized swimming, and dance injury prevention and rehabilitation.

A showcase performance by Maryland dance companies, a concert performance by the Penn State University Internationale Dancers, and a lecture-performance on Appalachian clogging will round out the weekend.

Annual scholarship auditions are open to the public and information is available from festival chairperson Constance Horney at (301) 228-4645, 217 Linthicum Drive, Cambridge, MD 21619.

The Maryland council for Dance is a non-profit organization supported by memberships and by grants from Ballet Makers Foundation, Inc. and the Maryland State Arts Council.

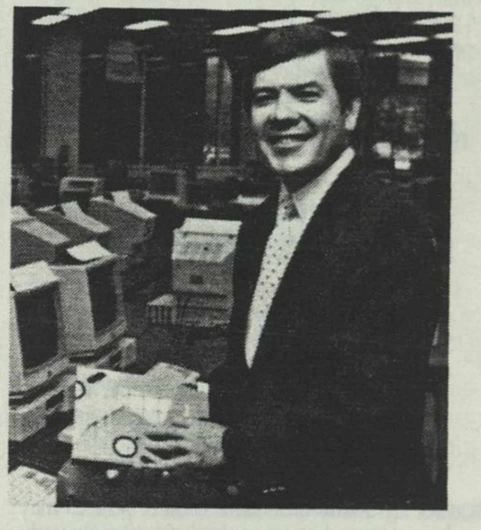
President-Elect of International Society for Technology in Education Speaks October 25 at SSU

Using new technology, especially computers to enhance the teaching of mathematics and other subjects in the nation's classrooms, will be the subject of the next talk in the E. Pauline Riall Lecture Series.

Dr. Gary G. Bitter, nationally known computer science and mathematics educator, will speak on Wednesday, October 25, at 8 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room. His lecture will be titled, "Technology and the Computer in the Classroom."

Teachers, student teachers and the general public are invited to hear Bitter tell how new technology can be used to help give students the high-level skills they need to cope with a changing world.

Chairman of the deparment of media and computers at Arizona State University, Bitter is widely known as the author and co-author of many books and articles on the role of new technology in education, including a McGraw-Hill elementary mathematics series. He also has served as a consultant at schools, colleges and businesses across the nation.



Dr. Gary G. Bitter

A book he co-authored, Mathematics Methods for the Elementary and Middle School, is now used at SSU as a textbook in mathematics methods course for future teachers.

Bitter has just completed a term as editor of School Science and Mathematics, the official journal of the School Science and Mathematics Association.

In an editorial in that publication, he wrote that educators who refuse to change their teaching techniques to accommodate the new technology face "functional obsolecence." In addition to computers, the new technology includes such educational aides as films, film strips, audio and videotapes, and disks.

In his talk Bitter is expected to point up some of the advantages and limitations of using computers as a learning tool. Among the limitations are the high cost of the equipment and the need for thorough teacher training not only in its use but in selecting the proper equipment and software to achieve the educational goals being sought.

Helping to reduce the cost of equipment, he has said, is a new development called CD-ROM (Compact Disk Read Only Memory) which can store on one small disk the same information now contained on 1200 to 1500 floppy disks. This allows storing more information at lower cost.

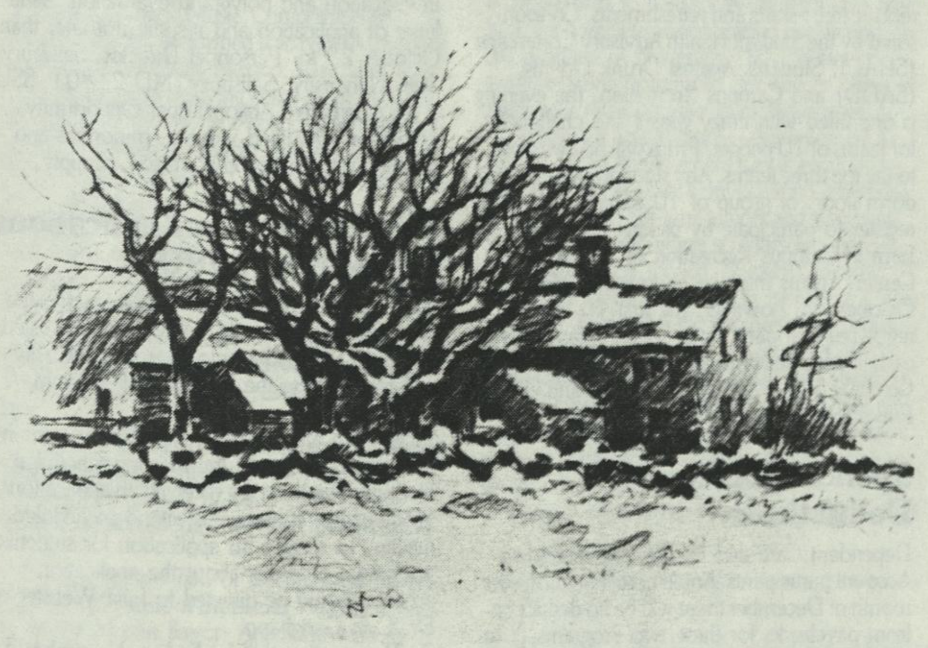
American Impressionist Paintings to Be Exhibited at Salisbury State



Paintings and drawings by Henry Rodman Kenyon (1861-1926), a recently re-discovered American artist who worked in a late Impressionist style, will be on display at the Salisbury State University Gallery from October 14 - November 9.

The exhibition, which surveys Kenyon's entire artistic career, consists of about forty small oil paintings and a number of framed drawings taken from the artist's sketchbooks. Most of the works are landscapes or scenes of rural life, in a painterly, turn-of-the-century style which combines influences from the earlier "Barbizon School" of French landscape painting with Impressionism and even Post-Impressionism, as evident in the bright colors and vigorous brushstrokes of some of Kenyon's late oils.

In Memoriam
Craig Piepenbring

The Salisbury State University community is grieved at the loss of Craig Piepenbring, who died in an automobile accident on Sunday, October 15.

From Phoenix, MD, Criag was a 21-year-old senior majoring in business administration.

Funeral services are 10 a.m. Thursday, October 19, at the Lassahn Funeral Home at 11750 Belair Rd. in Kingsville.

The family requests, in lieu of flowers, that any donations in his memory be made to the Craig N. Piepenbring Memorial Fund, in care of the Salisbury State University Foundation

Bus Trip to Shakespeare Theater

The Cultural Events Committee and the University Center are sponsoring a bus trip on Thursday, October 26, to Shakespeare Theater at the Folger in Washington, D.C., to see the 8 p.m performance of Twelfth Night, a play by William Shakespeare.

The bus will leave the south entrance of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. and will return at approximately 1 a.m. The cost is $12 for full-time students and $16 for part-time students, faculty, alumni and guests. Ticket sales for full-time students begin on October 12 and for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests on Tuesday, October 17. Tickets may be purchased at the information desk at the University Center from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Seats are limited.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.

David Burgess

Classical Guitarist Performs

Classical guitarist David Burgess, selected in 1984 as the first recipient of the Andres Segovia Fellowship, performs a musical history illustrating the fusion of Spanish and Latin American music on Tuesday, November 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Beginning with music from the Spanish Renaissance at the time of Columbus, the first half of the program presents Classical and Romantic works of Iberian composers including Albeniz and Granados, as well as exploring Flamenco music of the Andalucian gypsies.

Regarded as one of the country's finest young guitarists, Burgess has won top honors in many international competitions including the Ponce International Competition in Mexico City, The Guitar '81 Competition in Toronto and the 31st International Music Competition in Munich. He has performed solo recitals throughout the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Spain and Italy.

Burgess began studying guitar at the Instituto de Arte Guitarristico in Mexico City with the eminent Argentine guitarist, Manuel Lopez Ramos. He later earned a Diploma di Merito at the Accademia Musicale Chigiana in Siena, Italy. After being awarded the Andres Segovia Fellowship in 1984, he periodically received classes from Maestro Segovia until the Maestro's death in 1987.

Burgess has performed in Town Hall and Carnegie Recital Hall and has recorded for CBS Masterworks. He currently resides in New York City.

"Though Spanish music has been a major influence throughout Latin America," said Burgess, "the impact of other cultures has resulted in each country developing a distinctive style."

For the second half of the program Burgess performs the music of Brazil and Venezuela with its heavy African flavor; Argentina with its songful Italian sytle; and melodies of the Incas from Peru and Bolivia.

Burgess includes short informative introductions to all of the pieces, narrating the development and synthesis of Spanish and Latin American music. The program will end with colorful works by a number of Latin American guitar virtuosos whose use of the instrument is uniquely effective.

For more information call 543-6030.

Honors Convocation Speaker Nominations

The 1989 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State University. The Committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: 1. Must have graduated at least five or more years ago from Salisbury State University in an approved program of study. 2. Must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of Salisbury State University. 3. Should be active in community activities. 4. Should have been active in campus events as a student at Salisbury State University. 5. Should possess skills in public speaking. 6. Should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

Letters of nominations may be sent to Honors Convocation Committee, c/o Dr. Carolyn Bowden or to the Dean of Students office. Deadline for nominations is November 15.

Nominations For Honors Convocation Awards

The Honors Convocation Committee is requesting nominations for all of the three awards listed below. Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a recommendation in his/her behalf (the form to be used is in the application packet to be sent to qualified nominees).

Please be sure to nominate early so that there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 10. Names of students being nominated are due in Dean of Students Office no later than November 1.

Criteria for nominations—Achievement Key Award—The Achievement Key is awarded by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive this award a total of two times. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, a recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award.

Campus Life Award—the Campus Life award is granted to full-time undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Students are eligible to receive this award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges—Nominees for this award are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, service to the university, and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Detach and return this form to: Honors Convocation Committee Dean of Students Office, UC RM 212. Please type or print in black ink. Feel free to duplicate this form if necessary.

Note: The Honors Convocation Committee considers each nominee for all of the following awards: Who's Who, Achievement Key, Campus Life.

The New Decade of Awareness

AWARENESS WEEK

and Beyond!

October 13 began two weeks of activities to heighten awareness about alcohol issues on the University campus. "Although the national week is observed from the 15th to the 21st, we have extended our involvement into the following week, which is National Red Ribbon Week, because of the many activities being sponsored campuswide," said Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center.

Activities include a discussion titled, "Alcohol: Liability Issues for College Students" on October 18 at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center, presented by Dr. Robert Sperry, of the Perdue School of Business, and Inspector Tom Brown of the Wicomico County Liquor Control Board.

On Thursday, October 19, from 10:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. in the University Center, a designated driver campaign will be held. The campaign asks students to pledge to become a designated driver for their peer group. Buttons reading, "Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk" and other literature will be available. Over 40 faculty pledged to discuss alcohol issues as a part of their classroom activities during the week. "I am extremely pleased about the number of faculty who became involved in the pledge campaign. Thanks to everyone who has been so helpful and supportive of the effort," said Berkman.

Week two of the observance will be comprised of a campus red ribbon campaign. Ribbons promoting a drug-free lifestyle will be distributed. The week will culminate with the 5th annual "Go Bananas Night" on Thursday, October 26. Resident assistants, student groups and various departments will be sponsoring activities throughout the two-week period. All of these activities will help to raise awareness levels campuswide.

Inn-O-Vation

Nationally Recognized Inn-O-Vation To Play at Homecoming

The band that appeared in the film, "Everybody's All American" starring Dennis Quaid and Jessica Lange, will play for the Salisbury State University 1989 Homecoming Mardi-Gras Dance.

The band, "Inn-O-Vation" will play Saturday, October 28, from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m., in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Dress is semi-formal. Cost is $3 single and $5 couple. Tickets are available at the door.

R & B Records of New Orleans has signed Inn-O-Vation to a multi-album contract, and its first album, "Inn-O-Vation: There is No 'S'" was released in June.

Inn-O-Vation's current fall college tour is taking them across country from New York to New Mexico, and Florida to Ohio.

Inn-O-Vation, a seven piece urban pop group from Baton Rouge, LA, has its origins in the Southern University Music school, where the members first met. The original band of 16 members eventually became the seven man act, that today tours throughout the country performing at colleges, nightclubs, conventions, amusement parks, debutante parties and high schools.

To date the group's credits are remarkable including a featured appearance in last fall's hit film, "Everybody's All American", starring Dennis Quaid.

Additionally, on their premier album, the group chose to cover another legend's, Otis Redding, classic rocking soul hit, "Try A Little Tenderness," with the group's own unique interpretation.

Since most of the members compose, the selection of the other six album songs was done by majority opinion. Included are two pop-rock numbers, "Passionate Judi" and party anthem, "Because We Like To Party." Two club dance songs "Rock This Party" and "Intimidation" round out this very diverse premier album.

Nominated three years running for the National Association for Campus Activities' Contemporary Artist of the Year, Inn-O-Vation has built a tremendously loyal and vocal following. The group pioneered the concept of audience participation by getting fans involved in the show at every performance.

Homecoming Treasure Hunt

As part of the Homecoming Week Activities, the SSPB offers a campuswide Treasure Hunt. Students should look for daily clues posted in the Dining Hall, at the Information Desk in the University Center, and on the MAX channel. The Contest will run from Monday, October 23, to Thursday, October 26. First, second and third prizes will be awarded to the first three people to discover the location and identity of the treasure. Winners will be announced at halftime on Saturday.

Homecoming Chicken Eating Contest

The SSPB invites you to come and watch a spicy chicken wing eating contest on the front steps of Ruth Powell Dining Hall on Friday, October 27, at 3 p.m. Representatives from 12 student organizations compete for prizes by seeing who can eat the most chicken within a three minute time limit. Tyson's Chicken (surprise!) will be providing the chicken. Professional help will be available for chicken-chokers.

Homecoming Banner Decorating Contest

The Interfraternity Council and SSPB will be co-sponsoring a banner decorating contest during Homecoming Week. Look for more details from your IFC representative.

Homecoming Announcements

All campus groups and organizations are reminded that public address announcements to be made at the Homecoming football game must be submitted to sports information director Paul Ohanian, Room 267, Holloway Hall, by Monday, October 23. All announcements should be typed and kept as brief as possible. While time limitations during the football game and halftime can not guarantee that your announcement will be read, all efforts will be made to accommodate every group.

Campus Community Invited To Hall of Fame Press Conference

Salisbury State University invites all faculty and staff to attend a press conference on Friday, October 27, at 4 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Social Room on campus. The gathering is intended to introduce the five 1989 inductees to the SSU Athletic Hall of Fame: David Perry, Betty Mae Carey Price, Ellen Parks Ruark, Murray Smith and David Cottle.

The agenda will include a formal introduction of each inductee, brief comments from SSU president, Dr. Thomas Bellavance, and a question and answer session.

The press conference begins a busy day for the Hall's newest inductees, who then go to a private reception for Hall of Fame members from 5-6 p.m., a public reception from 6-7 p.m. and the official Awards Dinner and Induction Ceremony from 7-9 p.m.

Tickets to the dinner and induction ceremony, priced at $25, are available to the public and may be purchased through the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Coming off an open date in the football schedule last Saturday, the Gulls visit Montclair State for an 8-p.m. encounter Saturday night. This week's game, Salisbury's first on Astroturf this season, marks the second straight "under-the-lights" clash for the Sea Gulls (0-4-1), who are coming off a 9-9 tie at Glassboro State two weeks ago. Montclair is 5-1 on the year, and 3-0 at home. Salisbury returns to Sea Gull Stadium next Saturday as it hosts Hampden-Sydney for Homecoming.

The volleyball team continues to work towards a post-season invitation as the Gulls captured second place at the competitive Gallaudet Tournament last weekend. Salisbury, 24-8 overall, won four of six matches in the tournament, with both losses coming at the hands of nationally-ranked Western Maryland, which won the tournament championship. Salisbury plays conference-foe Shenandoah on Friday night, then takes part in the Cabrini Tournament on Saturday.

Also in contention for post-season play is the field hockey squad, currently 9-3 on the season after playing three of the top five teams in the nation in a period of eight days. The Gulls continue a four-game home stretch against Shippensburg today and Kutztown on Saturday.

Gerry DiBartolo's soccer team will be looking for its third straight win when it visits Eastern on Thursday. Salisbury, 6-6, is coming off two shutout victories in the past week, as the Gulls blanked Lincoln, 3-0, last Wednesday before beating Catholic, 4-0, last Saturday on Parents' Day. Senior Bryan Watson tallied a goal in each game, and leads the team with five goals on the year.

The women's tennis team closes out the fall portion of its season by hosting the ESAC Championships this Saturday. SSU is 2-4 overall, 1-2 in the ESAC under first-year coach Ray Still.

After a week off from race competition, the men's and women's cross country teams return to action in the SSU Tidewater Invitational this Saturday, to be run at City Park in Salisbury, beginning at 11 a.m. The SSU men, 20-9 on the year, are coming off a dual meet victory against UMES two weeks ago, while the SSU women, 6-3, finished second to UMES in the same meet.

WSCL Broadcasts Met Opera Marathon

The "Met Marathon" on Saturday, December 2, at 1:30 p.m., kicks off the year-long celebration of the 50th anniversary of Texaco's sponsorship of the Saturday afternoon opera broadcasts from the Metropolitan Opera which are broadcast by WSCL-FM 89.5 Delmarva Public Radio. An unprecedented example of enduring partnership between art and business, as well as a notable example of longstanding corporate sponsorship of the arts, the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Saturday afternoon broadcasts have brought opera into the homes and lives of millions of Americans for half a century.

This year's "Met Marathon," the annual prelude to the 20 live Texaco-Metropolitan broadcasts, features rarely heard historical excerpts from the first Texaco sponsored broadcast season (1940-41), as well as preview highlights for the upcoming season and interviews with Metropolitan Opera stars. As a special part of this 50th Anniversary celebration, two live intermission features will be part of the "Marathon," including "A Singers Roundtable" with artists who took part in the first Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Broadcast season.

Listeners to the Matathon will be able to order a free broadcast guide to the 1989-90 season by calling the following toll-free number: 1-800-MET-1989 or writing to Met Broadcast Guide, Box 50, New York, NY 10023.

Further information on the Marathon will be sent in November.

Bicycle Safety Tips From Public Safety

1. Wear a helmet with a hard shell.
2. Ride a proper size bike. It should have a bell or horn, reflectors and a headlight for night riding.
3. Obey all signs and signals.
4. Don't carry passengers on your bike.
5. Drive with the traffic and in single file.
6. Signal other roadway uses.
7. Be bright at night. Wear bright clothes and make sure you have lights and reflectors on your bike.

Peter Turchi

Peter Turchi Reading

Novelist Peter Turchi was last in Salisbury in June of 1989 when he read a paper at the SSU Conference on Literature & Film. The paper was on The Natural, Baltimore director Barry Levinson's movie adapted from Bernard Malamud's baseball novel. When he was interviewed on the WSCL radio talk show "Delmarva Artscape," he spoke about his enthusiasm for baseball and explained that he named the characters in his then forthcoming novel The Girls Next Door after the starting lineup of the 1927 Yankees baseball team.

The Girls Next Door was published in August by New American Library and received enthusiastic reviews in The Chicago Tribune, The Chicago Sun-Times and The Baltimore Sun. On Tuesday, October 24, Turchi will return to Salisbury a published novelist and offer a reading from his Baltimore-based novel in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 7:30 p.m. Copies of the book will also be available for sale and for authographing by the author.

Turchi currently teaches creative writing at Northwestern University in Evanston, IL. He holds an M.F.A. in creative writing from the University of Arizona. Turchi once claimed Baltimore as his hometown, however, and earned his undergraduate degree from Washington College, where he won the prestigious Sophie Kerr Writing Prize in 1982 for the manuscript that was eventually to become the The Girls Next Door.

The "girls" of the title are prostitutes who rent the house next door to George Willus and his wife Donna, in a conservative Baltimore working-class neighborhood. Although happily married, George is smitten by one of the "girls," named Dusty, who constantly flirts with him and threatens to disrupt his cozy marriage. Writing for The Sun, Susanne Trowbridge praised Turchi's "stunning first novel" for being "entertaining, uplifting, and wonderfully wise." The Washington Times called it "a whimsical and winning tale" and the Chicago Tribune also recommended this "wise, witty and unusual first novel." The Chicago Sun-Times noted that Turchi's "lightly humorous touch" belies his "serious exploration of the meanings of love, commitment and coming to terms with the past."

The October reading is free and open to the public. Residents of the lower Shore are encouraged to meet this "wonderfully wise" up-and-coming Maryland writer in person.

'The Accused' This Weekend

On Friday and Saturday, October 20 and 21, SSPB Films will be showing The Accused, starring Jodie Foster and Kelly McGillis. Foster won the Oscar for Best Actress for her performance as the victim of a brutal barroom gang rape that is witnessed by a roomful of patrons and employees. McGillis is the district attorney who attempts to bring to trial the people who are as guilty as the attackers—the bystanders who let it happen.

McGillis fans take note: She is currently engaged in a production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night at the Folger Theatre in Washington, D.C. A bus trip is scheduled for October 26. Prior to filming The Accused, McGillis starred in the Folger's production of Merchant of Venice. Sharp-eyed viewers may catch a glimpse of a poster from a Shakespeare play hanging in McGillis' office in the film. Showtimes are 7 and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Admission is free and open to the general public.

Blood Bank

The Blood Bank of the Eastern Shore, Inc., is a non-profit plan that assures its group members of unlimited blood replacement at any hospital in the United States. The only requirement is that you provide one pint of blood every two years or pay the $25 fee in lieu of blood. The cost of group membership is only $4. Anyone interested in joining the group should contact Debbie Merryweather at 543-6050.

Small at Afro-American Conference in Ohio

Clara L. Small, instructor of history, recently attended the 74th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History. The conference was held from October 4-8, at the Marriott Hotel, Dayton, OH.

The membership of the association consists of persons interested in the study of Afro-American, African, Caribbean, and Latin American life and history. The association prepares kits for and leads in the celebration of Black History Month; organizes tours of Africa and Latin America; and works closely with local branches in promoting the study, teaching, researching, writing, collecting of manuscripts, preserving of historic sites, and instituting other programs related to black life and history.

While at the conference Small also attended luncheons and executive meetings for two other organizations that she is affiliated with, the Association of Black Women Historians, and the Black American Heritage Foundation, Inc.

Rupert Published

Dr. Terry Rupert of the Department of Physical Education and Athletics at SSU has recently published an article in the October 1989 Journal of Teaching Physical Education.

Rupert's article, "Teaching and Coaching: A Comparison of Instructional Behaviors," was co-authored with Dr. Craig Buschner of the University of California at Chico.

Cleary Works in Baltimore

John R. Cleary, professor of art, was one of five artists to display his work in a recent exhibit titled "Contemporary Images" at the Knight Gomez Gallery in Baltimore.

At the Knight Gomez Gallery, according to a reviewer for The Alternative, a Baltimore monthly, "You will find top quality work as well as high level installation...This gallery, unlike some in Baltimore, is not afraid to show good contemporary as well as good abstract work."

He described the exhibit as the "best bet in Baltimore...This lively exhibit by five Maryland artists has a variety of colorful works. It includes painting, sculpture, photography, mixed media and monoprints."

Cleary, who earned his Master of Fine Arts from Washington University's College of Fine Arts in St. Louis, MO, majoring in painting and minoring in graphic communications, exhibited one large oil painting and two smaller works in acrylic and oil pastel.

The Alternative described his oil painting, Untitled, as a "deft handling of the counter-colors which give the work an alive quality. In all of Cleary's work there is a carefully controlled spatial tension in the colors as well as the lines which recalls the color-field painters (Rothko and Hofmann) as well as Motherwell."

The work that Cleary exhibited as well as the work available at Knight Gomez marks a continuation of some of his concerns in the areas of color, shape, measure and order. Where his new work ('88-'89) differs, Cleary said, is with an additional concern for the wider use and characteristics of the strokes used and the placement of those strokes.

Tax Planning Presentation

Paying too much in income taxes? By planning now and acting before the end of the year, you may be able to reduce your tax bill next April.

Dr. Robert F. Dombrowski, associate professor of accounting in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, will give a 30-minute presentation on "Year-End Tax Planning Tips" to area civic and community organizations. There is no charge for the presentation.

Dombrowski is one of the newest members of the SSU Speakers Bureau which features some 45 faculty and staff members who share their expertise on an array of topics with organizations throughout the Eastern Shore. He received advanced business degrees from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania and from Louisiana Tech University.

To schedule a presentation of "Year-End Tax Planning Tips" call 543-6030.

Elwell Accreditation Visit On October 2 and 3

Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, associate professor in the Social Work Department at SSU, chaired the accreditation visit at Albright College, Reading, PA, for the Council on Social Work Education.

The Council accredits social work education at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Salisbury State's social work program is accredited as meeting national standards for undergraduate social work education.

Flag Football

The Intramural Recreation Department has begun its flag football season once again. This year has been the biggest turnout ever, with 28 teams entered in the league. Games are played on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 6-10 p.m., under the lights at the intramural complex, across from Seagull Stadium. Each week the supervisors of the Campus Recreation Office will choose the top five teams from the league. To qualify, a team has to possess two qualifications: good sportsmanship and outstanding athletic play on the field. This week, these are the top five teams:

1. Boogie Down Production (last year's
2. Bozo's
3. The Rehabs
4. Miller's Harmones
5. Lax Thang (only women's team in the

The Office of Minority Affairs and the Center for Personal and Professional Development are presenting: "A Social and Academic Adjustment Workshop for Minorities in a College Environment." The event will take place in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Saturday, November 4, from 8:30 a.m. - 3 p.m., with a continental breakfast and a lunch served . The guest speaker is Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, industrial psychologist, and recently retired executive of the National Institutes of Mental Health. Please RSVP no later than October 27 by calling the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080. Space is limited. For more information, contact either the Dean of Students Office or the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6070.

Wilson Lecture

Dr. Reginald Wilson, senior scholar of the American Council on Education, lectured on "Minority Issues in Higher Education" at SSU recently.

The presentation was sponsored by the Office for Minority Affairs.

IABC Forms SSU Chapter

A student chapter of The International Association of Business Communicators has formed at SSU. The organization, formed in late September 1989, seeks to educate students interested in aspects of organizational communications.

IABC/SSU is sponsored by IABC/Delaware and welcomes students who are interested in careers such as public relations, community relations and communication consulting. The organization hosts speakers who have been successful in communications professions and boasts of an externship program which arranges for students to spend a day on the job with a professional.

Founding officers, elected for one year terms, include President Shelley Christian, Vice President Brenda Boyle, Secretary Becky Kramer, Treasurer Greg Thornbury, PR Director Terry Ayers, and Externship Director Karen Godlewski. Advising the group is Communication Arts Department instructor Peggy Klein.

Speakers for IABC/SSU include Donna Richardson, director of development and community relations for PGHMC. Richardson speaks on Thursday, October 26, at 5:30 p.m., in room Nanticoke B of the University Center. On Thursday, November 2, Pam Nichols, director of communication for the Delaware State Education Association, will speak at 5:30 p.m., in room Nanticoke B of the University Center. Both presentations are open to the campus community.

Also on this date, the formal induction of IABC/SSU officers will occur.

A student can become a member of IABC/SSU by contacting an officer or the Communication Arts Department at 548-7026.

Calling all Rafters and Rockers

On Monday, October 23, the Outdoor Club will hold its final white water rafting trip meeting. The meeting will be held at 9 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Discussion and planning will be completed and gear distributed. All persons going white water rafting on October 27-29 must attend this meeting. Discussion also will be held for the rock climbing trip either November 3 or 4. Anyone who is interested in rock climing or learning how to climb are welcome.

'The Muvver Tongue' October 24

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

"The Muvver Tongue" will be shown on Tuesday, October 24, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105. This program surveys the 19th century, during which "the English language spread throughout the British Empire. Today it can be found in such diverse areas as New Zealand, South Africa and the Falkland Islands."

There will be a discussion following the showing. For further information, call Dr. Stewart at 543-6371.

Born in 1861 in Rhode Island, Kenyon, like many artists of his generation, studied in Paris and traveled extensively in Europe before settling in Ipswich, Massachusetts, in the late 1890s. He exhibited his works primarily at the beginning and end of his career, and most consistently during the ten-year period beginning in 1913, when he exhibited six times at the National Academy of Design in New York, as well as in Boston and elsewhere in New England.

He died in 1926. The majority of his work remains in the possession of descendants of his wife's family, and the exhibition was primarily drawn from this source.

The exhibition was organized and is being circulated nationally by the Ball State University Art Gallery with the assistance of the Indiana Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. It was Curated by Dr. Eldon N. Van Liere, Professor of Art History at Michigan State University, who also wrote the exhibition catalogue, on sale at the Salisbury State University Bookstore.

The University Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open Monday-Thursday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition are given each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator. Mrs. Mitchell also gives tours of the exhibition to small groups, which may be scheduled by calling the Gallery at 543-6271 at least one week in advance of the desired tour date.

Position as Seamstress

The Dance Company is looking for an individual to assemble and sew costuming for the Winter Dance Concert. Expertise at fitting and sewing is essential—this season will require primarily dresses and jumpers. To apply please send a copy of resume before October 27 to Kathryn Martin, director of Dance, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

A member of many professional organizations, Bitter is now president-elect of the International Society for Technology in Education. The society also picked him for its outstanding educator award in 1989.

Bitter was invited to speak here on the recommendation of Dr. Don C. Cathcart, interim dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, who got acquainted with Bitter while spending a semester exploring the latest in educational technology at Arizona State. Impressed by the ASU professor's grasp of his field, Cathcart urges local teachers, parents, student teachers and members of the community to hear what Bitter has to say about new directions in education.

The Riall Lecture Series, sponsored by the School of Education and Professional Studies, brings top-flight educators here to share their expertise with the University community and the public at large.

The lectures are financed by an endowment provided by the late E. Pauline Riall, teacher and principal for 40 years at the former demonstration school on the University campus. Dr. Maurice Bozman, professor of education, is coordinator of the program.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

OCTOBER 26, 1989 VOL. XI NO. 9

Career Day Is November 2

Paul Rendine, chair of the Career Day Committee and Judy Pielemeier, director of Alumni Relations.

"Informal contacts" account for almost 75 percent of all successful job searches, according to Mark Granovetter, a Harvard sociologist as reported in Forbes magazine. Networking is making informal contacts; the process of recruiting people to help you examine the job market.

SSU's second annual Career Day, sponsored by the Alumni Association, and held Thursday afternoon, November 2, in the University Center, will put students in touch with many of those informal contacts.

Based on a proposal by Judy Pielemeier, director of Alumni Relations, Career Day was developed from advice canvassed from other universities with career days already in place.

"We were looking for a way SSU alumni could help current students," said Pielemeier, "and decided the alumni's most valuable resource was the experience they had gained since embarking on their own careers. When I graduated in the mid '60s very little information was available about the options open to graduates, or the mechanics of pursuing a chosen career. We tended to prepare for existing careers, relying on the advice of friends and relatives already in them.

"Since then," said Pielemeier, "the job market has broadened to such an extent that there now exist careers which weren't even heard of then. We want our graduates to be fully prepared for every option open to them and are working with the Placement Services Office at the University to make sure that happens."

Paul Rendine, senior vice president of Wheat, First Securities, Inc., is chair of the Career Day Committee which consists of SSU

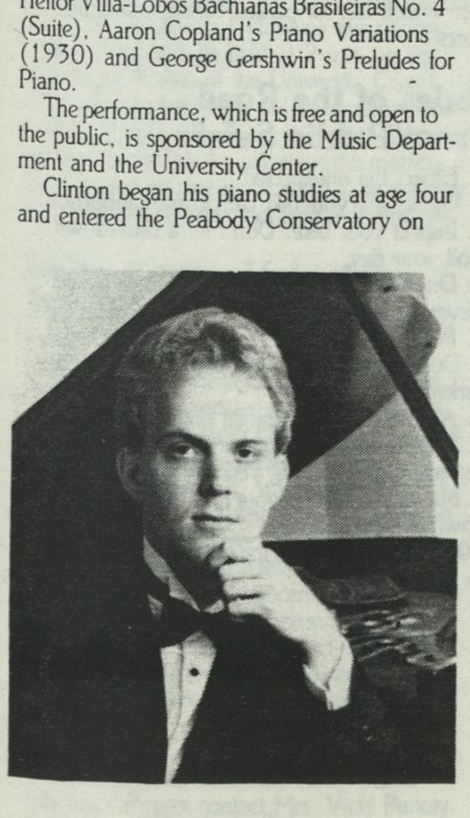
Clinton Piano Performance

Nationally acclaimed pianist Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton, artist-in-residence at SSU, gives a recital on Sunday, November 19, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. His performance will feature Beethoven's Sonata in F-sharp major, Opus 78, Robert Schumann's Fantasie in C major, Opus 17, Heitor Villa-Lobos Bachianas Brasileiras No. 4 (Suite), Aaron Copland's Piano Variations (1930) and George Gershwin's Preludes for Piano.

The performance, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Music Department and the University Center.

Clinton began his piano studies at age four and entered the Peabody Conservatory on scholarship at the age of eight. There he studied for eight years with Julian Martin before continuing his studies with the world-renowned pianist Leon Fleisher.



Dr. Mark K. Clinton

Clinton received both his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees from the Peabody. In May, he received the Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University, where he studied under the direction of master-teacher John Perry. He has also studied with Carlo Zecchi and Tatiana Nikolayeva at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria.

Clinton has given recitals from coast to coast, receiving much critical acclaim. Critics have hailed his "...polished style and commanding stage presence." One critic said that Clinton's "interpretations was exhilharating and delightful, so bright and clean that the audience shook with applause for almost 10 minutes afterward."

Along with numerous solo recitals, Clinton has made guest appearances with several orchestras, among them the Baltimore Symphony, the Merrimack Valley Philharmonic (MA), the Prince George's Philharmonic (MD) and the National Symphony.

Among the concertos he has performed are Beethoven's Piano Concerto in G major (Opus 58), Chopin's Concerto in E minor, Mendelssohn's Capriccio Brillant, Weber's Konzertstuck, Mozart's Concerto in A Major, K. 488 and Concerto in C Major, K. 467 and the Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto.

His numerous prizes and awards have included: first prizes in the 1975 and 1978 Baltimore Symphony Concerto Competition;

Homecoming Is Here!

Special events and activities abound for students, alumni and friends when Homecoming is celebrated on Friday and Saturday.

During the week leading up to Homecoming, students will participate in the annual banner contest (the winners announced at halftime of Saturday's football game) and a Treasure Hunt sponsored by the Salisbury State Program Board. Students will respond to clues offered by student-run radio station WSUR as they try to be the first to find the hidden treasure.

Sponsored by Dining Services and Tyson Foods, students will compete in a fun-filled "Buffalo Wings Eating Contest" on Friday at 3 p.m. at the dining hall. That night, the cheerleaders will lead a pep rally at Maggs Gym.

The big spotlight Friday evening, however, will be on the five newest members of the Athletic Hall of Fame as the new inductees will

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

SSU Hosts Maryland Dance Festival

The University hosts the 17th Annual Maryland Dance Festival Friday through Sunday, October 27-29, in a weekend which promises exciting dance classes and performances in everything from traditional ballet to synchronized swimming.

Madchenchor Hannover to Perform

The Madchenchor Hannover (of Hannover Germany), a 50 voice girl's choir, will perform on Tuesday, October 31, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Free and open to the public, the concert is sponsored by the Department of Music and the Cultural Affairs Committee.

For more information, call 543-6030.

Student Teacher Applications For Spring 1990

Students who are eligible to student teach in the spring semester, should follow the steps listed:
1. Contact their advisor to determine eligibility and to complete the Professional Program Application.
2. Receive an application for student teaching in methods or attend the meeting scheduled. Students who have not received an application in one of their courses must attend a scheduled meeting to receive an application for student teaching. Questions about the application process should be directed to Julia Webster or Dr. L. J. Garigliano.
3. The meeting will be Friday, November 3, at 11 a.m., in Caruthers Hall Room 128.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

Attention Full-Time Contractual Employees

During open enrollment, certain benefits may be purchased at non-subsidized rates through the state of Maryland.

For more information, contacct Shirley King in the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or stop by HH room 222. The deadline for enrollment is November 11.

Spending Account Deductions

Dependent Care and Health Care Spending Account participants should note that during the month of December there will be no deduction from paychecks for these two programs. You will receive the actual paychecks on December 20 and January 3. To continue deductions for 1990, indicate your intentions on the open enrollment benefits form which was recently delivered to your home.

If you have any questions, please contact Shirley King at 548-4755, or stop by the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall.

Overstock Textbook Returns

Faculty should inform classes that the Book Rack is beginning overstock textbook returns this week. If anyone is in need of a textbook for this semester, it should be purchased it as soon as possible.

Changes to Bateman Street Crosswalk

The following modifications will be made to the crosswalk at Rt. 13 and Bateman St. in the near future.

The walk buttons and signs will be relocated on the pole so that they are more visible and accessible to pedestrians.

Right turns on red, by vehicles exiting campus will be prohibited.

Right turns on red, by vehicles driving on Rt. 13 onto Bateman Street will be prohibited.

A sign will be erected on Bateman Street to warn drivers turning left to use caution because of pedestrians in the crosswalk.

The traffic lights facing the campus exit and Bateman Street will remain "red" for part of the time that the "walk" light is on.

Use the Button

Students, faculty and staff are reminded to use the button to activate the "walk" light at the crosswalk at Rt. 13 and Bateman St.

When the button is pushed, the "walk" light will be activated when the Rt. 13 lights are red. The "walk" light will tell you to begin crossing the intersection. When the "don't walk" light begins flashing it means to not start to cross the intersection, but if you are already half way across the intersection you may continue. When the "don't walk" light is on steady you must be out of the intersection.

It is hoped that with the modifications to the crosswalk controls and if all "use the button," pedestrian crossings of Rt. 13 will be enhanced.

Flu Vaccine

A limited supply of flu vaccine is available for faculty, staff and students at a cost of $5. As a routine, vaccine should not be given to persons who have an allergic response to eggs. Persons who are currently ill, with fever, should not be vaccinated until symptoms are improved.

Please call the Health Center at 543-6262 to arrange a vaccination.

Final Rock Climbing Meeting

On Monday, October 30, the Outdoor Club will hold its final rock climbing trip meeting. The meeting will be held at 9 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Discussion and planning will be completed and gear distributed. All persons going rock climbing on November 3 or 4 must attend this meeting. Demonstrations and instruction will be available on rope handling and other aspects of climbing.

Holly Center Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to be advocates for disabled or disadvantaged individuals at the Holly Center, Inc. located on Snow Hill Road.

The residents of Holly Center need advocates to support them, to represent them and to be interested in their needs. Anyone over 21 who can meet the following responsibilities is eligible to participate in the project: make contact with a Holly Center resident at least once a month; participate in meetings concerning the resident (i.e. annual reviews, educational program planning, etc.); establish contact with outside agencies serving the resident to see that the resident's needs are being served; and report to Advocacy Board concerns you may have about the resident.

To learn more about the Holly Center Advocacy Project contact Mrs. Vicki Purkey, P.O. Box 1954, Salisbury, MD 21801, or phone 749-7156.

The C & P Telephone Company of Maryland has established scholarships for Salisbury State students who have a demonstrated financial need. Salute to Toll Set in November

The University of Maryland System Board of Regents and The University of Maryland Foundation are hosting "A Salute to John Toll," a dinner celebration to honor the University System's Chancellor Emeritus. The celebration will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday, November 16, at Martin's Crosswinds, 7400 Greenway Center Drive in Greenbelt.

Toll ended 10 years of leading the University of Maryland and one year of leading the University of Maryland System on September 4.

Dinner reservations are $75 each ($700 for a table of 10). Contributions are also being sought to support the John S. Toll Endowed Professorship in the Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University of Maryland College Park.

To make reservations for the dinner, send your check and number of reservations to: The University of Maryland Foundation, A Salute to John Toll, 3300 Metzerott Road, Adelphi, MD 20783. For more information about the dinner and the Toll Professorship, call (301) 853-3715 at the System Administration Office in Adelphi.

Higher Education Appropriations

Maryland leads the nation in the percentage increase of state funds appropriated for higher education during the last biennial period, fiscal years 1988-90. According to the annual survey by the Center for Higher Education at Illinois State University, Maryland's appropriation increased more than 34 percent over the past two years, ranking it first nationwide.

"Our number one standing shows that we are serious about higher education in Maryland," said Governor William Donald Schaefer. "That's why we created the University of Maryland System and promised to provide the support needed to move it into the ranks of the nation's best public universities.

"We are keeping that promise and we expect the University System to use the increased resources wisely to serve our students and our citizens."

Maryland legislators approved a fiscal year 1990 appropriation of $823,348,000 for higher education, public and private, up from $614,605,000 for fiscal year 1988. This 34 percent increase is well above the 15 percent average increase of all the states nationwide.

The University of Maryland System enjoyed a comparable increase in state funding during the past two years. Its total operating budget for FY 1990 totals $1.3 billion, including more thatn $608.7 million in state funds. The combined fiscal year 1988 budget for the institutions comprising the System totaled $1.05 billion, including an appropriation of nearly $449.7 million in state funds. This represents a 35 percent increase in state funding for the University of Maryland System for the last biennial period.

The survey by the center for Higher Education also shows that Maryland ranks 15th nationwide in per capita appropriation ($176.49) for fiscal year 1990. Though Maryland has a way to go before reaching the top states in this category, the ranking of 15th compares favorably to its fiscal year 1989 ranking of 22nd per capita ($153.31).

"Governor Schaefer and the General Assembly have given a tremendous vote of confidence in our system of higher education," said Dr. James (Dolph) Norton, interim chancellor of the University of Maryland System. "At a time of tight funding for higher education at the federal level, the growth in state support is essential to our efforts to enhance the University System's educational quality and opportunity, to attract and to retain the very best faculty and students, to secure increased private support, and to respond to the growing needs of the state.

"We are going to do our best to deserve continuing increases so we can meet all the goals that have been set forth in our systemwide plan."

State legislation created the University of Maryland System on July 1, 1988. Eleven degree-granting institutions comprise the System: Bowie State University, Coppin State College (Baltimore), Frostburg State University, Salisbury State University, Towson State University, University of Baltimore, the University of Maryland at Baltimore, University of Maryland Baltimore County (Catonsville), University of Maryland College Park, University of Maryland Eastern Shore (Princess Anne) and the University of Maryland University College (headquartered in College Park).

The System also includes four major research and service institutions: Agricultural Experiment Station, Center for Environmental and Estuarine Studies, Cooperative Extension Service and the Maryland Biotechnology Institute.

Health Insurance Open Enrollment Update

Now is the time for full-time State employees to turn in Open Enrollment Forms. Don't wait until the last minute.

Employees need to complete one form, and it is in the packet received at home. There are approximately 400 employees who have not turned in their forms yet. All must turn in a form (even if not making any changes).

Employees who are not purchasing any insurance still must submit the form indicating how they want the benefit credits applied. Don't delay. Act today. Anyone with questions or in need of assistance, call Personnel at 543-6035 or come by Holloway Hall 222.

Attention Pre-Nursing and Nursing Students

Gene A. James

James Next Great Leader

Gene A. James, president and chief executive officer of Southern States Cooperative, Inc., is the next speaker in this fall's Great Leader Lecture Series.

James will make his presentation on Thursday, November 2, at 12:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The series is sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business.

A native of Elk Creek, VA, James is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

He was employed by Southern States Cooperative in June 1953 as a manager trainee at Bedford, VA. In September 1953, he was made assistant manager at Southern States Cumberland Cooperative, Cumberland, MD. In November of that year he served as acting manager of the cooperative before leaving for two years in the U.S. Air Force. In February 1956 he was named assistant manager for farm supplies at the Seed and Farm Supply branch warehouse at Roanoke, VA. He held that post until June 1960 when he was made manager of the Seed and Farm Supply branch warehouse at Clarksburg, WV.

In April 1966 he was named the first manager of the cooperative's catalog service headquartered in Richmond. He held that position until 1969 when he was made regional manager of Region 3 with headquarters in Winchester, VA. On October 1, 1972 he was named director of planning on the central office staff; in July 1975 he was named senior vice president - operations; and in March 1980 he became president and chief executive officer.

He is chairman of the board of CF Industries, Inc.; immediate past chairman of the board and member of the executive committee of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives; vice chairman of the board of Texas City Refining, Inc.; and serves on the board of trustees of the Graduate Institute of Cooperative Leadership, University of Missouri, and has served as its chairman. He is a director of the boards of Crestar Financial Corporation and the Metro Richmond YMCA and has served as vice chairman of the Richmond Metro Chamber of Commerce. He serves on the Governor's Virginia Agricultural Credit Committee and the Executive Advisory Council on the E. Claiborne Robins School of Business at the University of Richmond.

James is a member of the Downtown Richmond Kiwanis Club, the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, the Commonwealth Club, the Downtown Club of Richmond, The Country Club of Virginia and the Forum Club.

He was selected 1986-87 Executive of the Year by the Old Dominion Chapter of Professional Secretaries International.

The next Great Leader is Robert Weller, president of Econo Lodges of America, Inc., who will lecture on Wednesday, November 29, at 1:15 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For more information call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Minority Affairs Workshop

On Saturday, November 4, the Office of Minority Affairs and the Center for Personal and Professional Development are presenting "A Social and Academic Adjustment Workshop for Minorities in the College Environment."

The workshop will take place from 8:30 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. A continental breakfast and lunch will be served. The featured speaker for this workshop is Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, industrial psychologist and recently retired executive of the National Institutes of Mental Health.

Anyone who would like to attend the workshop, please notify the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080, no later than Friday, October 27. Space is limited.

For addtional information, contact the Dean of Students Office or the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6070.

Minority Leadership Program Continues

Sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, the program is a career development and academic skills building program, designed specfically to meet the needs of minority students. Issues included in this ongoing series of programs include: test-taking skills, the influence of family and community on career development, introduction to SIGI PLUS, minorities on a predominatly white campus, self-esteem, etc.

For more information on the new program, contact the CPPD at 543-6070.

Whitford Published

Dr. Ellen V. Whitford, assistant professor in the School of Education and Professional Studies, published an article titled "Skill Workshops Can Be Successes" in the September 1989 issue of The School Administrator, the journal of the American Association of School Administrators.

The article focuses on the role of the school district superintendent in effecting successful administrative staff development programs. The findings reported are based upon research in staff development program for the training of supervisors and school administrators in the writing of supervisory reports.

She also recently co-authored and presented a paper at the National Conference of the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education held in Atlantic City, NJ.

The paper, co-authored with Dr. Ronald T. Hyman of Rutgers University, was titled "Teaching Noncareer Prospective Teachers How to Teach." Their presentation described and modeled a training program designed to teach basic teaching skills to adults through group cooperation in learning.

Schultz Holds Workshop

Dr. Barbara A. Schultz, an associate professor of education, conducted a workshop for the in-service training of teachers in Wicomico County which was held at Pemberton School recently.

The subject of the workshop was "Using Children's Literature to Enhance the Writing Curriculum." She showed books which can be used to motivate children to write letters and stories and what kinds of stories can be used for writing style imitation.

Schultz, who has taught at SSU for 16 years, received her degrees from Ball State University and is currently listed in Who's Who in American Education.

Director, Center for Business and Economic Research

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business invites applications and nominations for the position of director of the newly-created Center for Business and Economic Research serving the Mid-Atlantic region, with special emphasis on the Delmarva Peninsula. The director reports to the dean of the Perdue School and has responsibility for all Center activities, including the development of a monthly business conditions survey, regional consumer price index, quarterly Center publications and sponsored research.

This is a 12-month tenure track appointment. Rank is open, AACSB competitive salary. Interested individuals should send letter of application, resume and three letters of reference to: Chair, CBER Search Committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted until a suitable candidate is found. Salisbury State is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Economics Position

Applications are invited for a tenure track position in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at the assistant, associate or full professor level beginning August 1990.

Qualifications include a commitment to high quality teaching and the demonstrated potential for research. The preferred fields are History of Thought, Comparative Economic Systems and Labor Economics, although the overall quality of the candidate is as important as the fields of specialization. Potential exists to teach in both the evening and Saturday (Executive) M.B.A. programs. Ph.D. should be completed by the time of appointment. A.B.D.'s with very high probability of completion during first year will be considered for the assistant professor rank. Candidates for upper ranks should have an established research record. Salary is competitive with AACSB institutions.

Interested individuals should send letter of application, resume and three letters of reference to: Chair, Economics Search Committee, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted until a suitable candidate is found. Salisbury State is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

MIS Positions

The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business is seeking to fill as many as three positions in the following priority: (1) an experienced professor of structured program design and advanced file access techniques in COBOL; (2) a professor with experience in systems analysis and design and software engineering; and (3) an MIS generalist who can teach courses related to managerial and organizational issues related to information systems. Any one of these positions may involve a department chairmanship.

Qualified candidates should possess a Ph.D. or D.B.A. in MIS (or be near completion of such a degree) and demonstrate a strong commitment both to quality instruction and research in refereed publications. Interested individuals should contact Dr. Benjamin B. Greene, Jr., Associate Professor, The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Salisbury State is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

McGrew to Speak

The Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology 1989-90 Faculty Seminar Series will continue on Thursday, October 26, at 4 p.m. in room 207 of Devilbiss Science Hall.

Dr. Chapman McGrew, associate professor of geography and regional planning, will speak on "Using an Exploratory Approach to Statistical Problem Solving in the Sciences." McGrew earned his B.S. in geography from San Diego State University and received his M.S. and Ph.D. in geography from Pennsylvania State University.

Statistical methods are important in the conduct of meaningful research in all scientific disciplines. For statistical methods to be productive, the goals and objectives of the particular research problem must be considered. The most effective use of statistical methods (descriptive or inferential) will vary as a function of the research context in which the statistics are applied. The talk will focus on ways researchers might use a flexible, exploratory approach to attack some problems.

This will be an informal presentation intended to promote lively discussion. Refreshments will follow the presentation.

Honors Convocation Speaker Nominations

The 1989 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State University. The Committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: 1. Must have graduated at least five or more years ago from Salisbury State University in an approved program of study. 2. Must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of Salisbury State University. 3. Should be active in community activities. 4. Should have been active in campus events as a student at Salisbury State University. 5. Should possess skills in public speaking. 6. Should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

Letters of nominations may be sent to Honors Convocation Committee, c/o Dr. Carolyn Bowden or to the Dean of Students office. Deadline for nominations is November 15.

Nominations For Honors Convocation Awards

The Honors Convocation Committee is requesting nominations for all of the three awards listed below. Faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his/her own name for consideration. In either case, students must contact one faculty/staff member who will agree to write a recommendation in his/her behalf (the form to be used is in the application packet to be sent to qualified nominees).

Please be sure to nominate early so that there is ample time to contact the student and have him/her complete an application packet prior to the deadline of November 10. Names of students being nominated are due in Dean of Students Office no later than November 1.

Criteria for nominations—Achievement Key Award—The Achievement Key is awarded by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nominations upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters. Full-time undergraduate students may receive this award a total of two times. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, a recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life award.

Campus Life Award—the Campus Life award is granted to full-time undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nomination on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards; however, any recipient of the Achievement Key may not simultaneously receive the Campus Life Award. Students are eligible to receive this award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges—Nominees for this award are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, service to the university, and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is limited to full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive this award more than once.

Detach and return this form to: Honors Convocation Committee Dean of Students Office, UC RM 212. Please type or print in black ink. Feel free to duplicate this form if necessary.

Note: The Honors Convocation Committee considers each nominee for all of the following awards: Who's Who, Achievement Key, Campus Life.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The Gulls host Hampden-Sydney Saturday for Homecoming '89 at Sea Gull Stadium. SSU, 0-5-1, hopes to register its first victory of the year in what is also the last home game of the '89 season. Salisbury has won both of the previous meetings between the two teams, winning back to back games in 1979 and 1980. Donald Washington's 108 yards rushing and two touchdowns were not enough to carry Salisbury past Montclair last week as the Gulls fell, 47-20. The Sea Gulls close out the season with games at Western Connecticut and Davidson following this Saturday's home finale.

Thursday's game at Mary Washington ends the regular season for the fifth-ranked SSU field hockey team, which will then await word on its probable selection for the NCAA Division III national tournament. Dawn Chamberlin's team is the top-ranked team in the South Region, and is hoping to host the regional playoffs on November 3 and 4. If selected, this will be Salisbury's sixth consecutive visit to the national championship tournament. The Gulls won the national championship in 1986 and have finished third in each of the last two seasons.

Also hoping to qualify for the national tournament is the volleyball team, which sports a record of 29-10 through last weekend. The Gulls play in the ESAC tournament at Marywood this weekend before awaiting word on the bids for the national tournament, which come out on November 5. SSU is the two-time defending conference champ, seeking an unprecedented third straight conference title this weekend.

The soccer team plays its season finale this Saturday in a 2 p.m. Homecoming clash with Cabrini. The Gulls were 7-6 after beating Rutgers-Camden, 4-1, last Saturday, and played Virginia Wesleyan on Tuesday. Willie Ibarra and Kevin Jackson led the scoring barrage against Rutgers-Camden as each recorded a goal and an assist.

The men's and women's cross country squads run in the Mason-Dixon Conference Meet at UMBC this Saturday. The SSU women beat Essex and Gallaudet to win the SSU/Tidewater Invitational Meet last weekend, while the SSU men finished second to Essex in the same race. Salisbury carries a 21-10 men's record and 8-3 women's record into this weekend's competition.

The first of the fall sports team's to finish its season was the women's tennis squad, which placed third in last weekend's season-ending conference tournament. Millie Baer and Christina DeSanto were SSU's top individual performers, each winning second place in their respective singles flights.

Athletic Position

The women's basketball coach is looking for an individual interested in an assistant basketball coaching position for the 1989-90 basketball season. The applicant must possess either coaching and/or playing experience. Deep interest and knowledge of the sport are prerequisites.

The position is contractual with no State benefits. The stipend will be $1,200.

Please submit a letter of application and resume to: Rhonda Warmsley, Women's Basketball Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Screening will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled.

SSU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Dolores Powell

Powell Watercolors on View at Public Library

The Wicomico County Free Library sponsors the fifth annual watercolor exhibit by Dolores Powell during the month of November. On Saturday, November 18, the library will feature a "Meet the Artist" afternoon from noon-5 p.m. Powell will be in the lobby and will demonstrate her painting.

Powell has been commissioned this year by the president of the Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia Elks Association to paint a map of the Maryland, Delaware, and Washington, D.C. area as its yearly project. This map, which includes the Chesapeake Bay, is printed with all 44 lodges of this area, in addition to miniature paintings of a covered bridge, a barn, lighthouses and historic scenes, as well as a skipjack and Canada geese. The prints of this painting have been successfully shown to and purchased by the lodges and Elk members throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

Although originally from Pennsylvania, Powell considers herself an Eastern Shore artist. "I love the charm of the Eastern Shore," said Powell, who often visits and paints such areas as Jenkins Creek, Deal Island, Nanticoke, Smith Island, Hoopers Island and the beach. She also recently captured scenes from the Outer Banks of North Carolina, as well as barns of Pennsylvania, and lighthouses of the northeast, and white sands of Pensacola, FL.

Having studied art at Salisbury State, Powell discovered a hidden talent for capturing a place and mood in the medium of watercolor. Her paintings are fresh and uniquely light-filled. She is constantly studying art and refining her technique and whenever possible enrolling in workshops and learning from professional artists.

This exhibit of landscapes and waterfowl paintings will be on display at the Wicomico County Free Library in Salisbury, November 1 - November 30. Hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 1-5 p.m. Telephone: 749-5171 or Powell at 543-6543. Works in this exhibit are for sale. Powell works in the Office of the Vice President of Research and Development.

Saturday activities kick off with the annual Alumni Business Meeting at noon in the reading lounge, University Center. At 1 p.m. the classes of '29 and '39 will celebrate their 60th and 50th anniversaries, also at the University Center.

Two of the Gulls sports teams are in action that afternoon: the football squad takes on Hampden-Sydney at 1:30 p.m. at Sea Gull Stadium and the soccer team meets Cabrini at 2 p.m. on the soccer field. Halftime of the football game will feature a performance by the cheerleaders and the crowning of the king and queen and their court.

The Annual Tea will be held at 2:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall's Social Room.

Following the games, at about 4:30 p.m., the Alumni Association will host a "Postgame Gull Buster Bull Roast" at the Sheraton Inn featuring a buffet cash bar. Several classes will celebrate their reunions years: '49, '54, '59, '64, '69, '74, '79 and '84.

Meanwhile, on campus students will have their annual dance with music by In-O-Vation. Dress is semiformal.

graduates living in the area. Together they have contacted alumni working in the areas of business administration, education, liberal arts, health care, natural sciences, social sciences and a group whose subsequent careers differ from their graduating major ("secret information for undeclared majors").

"Graduates of Salisbury State University enter the career market with an education that is top of the line, nationwide," said Rendine, "and we want to give them the opportunity to meet with alumni who have been very successful very quickly. The response has been tremendous."

Career day consists of two one-hour panel sessions from 1:15 - 2:15 p.m. and from 2:30 - 3:30 p.m., during which five to seven professionals from each of the seven career areas will give overviews of their field, followed by question and answer sessions involving students, giving undergraduates an in-depth look at possible career directions.

"The Alumni Association has always been very supportive of our efforts," said Linda Benson, Placement Services coordinator, "and we look forward to Career Day and future Career Days providing an arena where students can make informed choices from informed graduates of Salisbury State University. At last year's event alumni exchanged insider information (and business cards) with students, and students made valuable contacts for both internships and jobs."

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

NOVEMBER 2, 1989 VOL. XI NO. 10

'The King Stag' Opens November 15

Salisbury State Theatre presents, as its final offering of the fall season, for the young and young at heart, The King Stag.

Delightfully comic, The King Stag is a romantic fairytale of wizardry and intrigue about a king who, with the aid of a magic statue, interviews 20,000 women in an effort to find true and honest love. After discovering his true love and announcing a royal wedding, the King is tricked by his most trusted Prime Minister and transformed into a stag. With the King removed, the Prime Minister attempts a political coup.

Written by Carlo Gozzi, a leading 18th century Italian playwright, the play is an example of Commedia dell'Arte, a comic Italian form that dates to the Renaissance. Largely improvisational in style and structured around comic action or gags, Commedia has influenced the style and structure of many modern comedians and comic forms, from the Marx Brothers to Second City.

A pre-Thanksgiving treat, the play opens on Wednesday, November 15 and runs through Monday, November 20, featuring a matinee on Sunday, November 19, and will be performed on stage in Holloway Hall. To accommodate the needs of young audiences during the week, performances of the play will begin at 7:30 p.m. Lasting approximately one hour, The King Stag is a charming bedtime story for all ages - and brief enough to be home in bed by 9 p.m.

With costumes and masks designed by Donna Larsen, SSU Theatre's Artist in Residence, and inspired by images from the circus, Matisse and Medieval gargoyles, The King Stag promises to be a colorful, silly and slightly satirical evenings entertainment.

For tickets call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

Textile Conservation Workshop to Be Held

Do you have a wedding gown, tablecloth, family quilt or other woven object that you'd like to preserve and protect? The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture is sponsoring a workshop that will help you preserve treasured items.

The Textile Conservation Workshop will be held on Saturday, November 11, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center.

Simple but effective methods on caring for and preserving old clothing and textile items will be explained and demonstrated to both amateurs and professionals. Barbara Finch, consultant on historic costumes and textiles, will be conducting the workshop. She was trained at the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and has served as a consultant for the Historical Society of Delaware.

Participants are encouraged to bring objects for advice and consultation and are invited to a special tour of the exhibit, "Clothing and Costume on Delmarva, 1850-1950," which is on display in the SSU Gallery located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The exhibit is also sponsored by the Research Center.

Admission is open to the public. There is a $25 fee to cover the cost of the workshop plus lunch. Space is limited to the first 25 applicants, so please indicate your intention to attend by phoning the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at 543-6245 as soon as possible.

United Charities Campaign Begins November 8

Pledge cards will be included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1989 SSU United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, November 8. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, will be mailed to all faculty/staff. This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies.

This year as an incentive for employees to support the important campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a CD player which employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. For anyone who wishes to see the CD, it is located in Holloway Hall, room 202. The campaign ends Friday, December 1. The drawing for the CD takes place on Monday, December 4. The winner will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether to contribute, please consider that the agencies which receive funds from United Charities depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said campaign co-coordinator Gains Hawkins, director of Public Relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

Career Day Is November 2

"Informal contacts" account for almost 75 percent of all successful job searches, according to Mark Granovetter, a Harvard sociologist as reported in Forbes magazine. Networking is making informal contacts; the process of recruiting people to help you examine the job market.

SSU's second annual Career Day, sponsored by the Alumni Association, and held Thursday afternoon, November 2, in the University Center, will put students in touch with many of those informal contacts.

Career day consists of two one-hour panel sessions from 1:15 - 2:15 p.m. and from 2:30 - 3:30 p.m., during which five to seven professionals from each of the seven career areas will give overviews of their field, followed by question and answer sessions involving students, giving undergraduates an in-depth look at possible career directions.

Clinton Piano Performance

Nationally acclaimed pianist Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton, artist-in-residence at SSU, gives a recital on Sunday, November 19, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. His performance will feature Beethoven's Sonata in F-sharp major, Opus 78, Robert Schumann's Fantasie in C major, Opus 17, Heitor Villa-Lobos Bachianas Brasileiras No. 4 (Suite), Aaron Copland's Piano Variations (1930) and George Gershwin's Preludes for Piano.

The performance, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Music Department and the University Center.

Clinton will give a piano recital preview and discussion on Wednesday, November 15, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room. It is also free and open to the public. For more information call 543-6030.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

Attention Full-Time Contractual Employees

During open enrollment, certain benefits may be purchased at non-subsidized rates through the state of Maryland.

For more information, contacct Shirley King in the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or stop by HH room 222. The deadline for enrollment is November 11.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Classical Guitarist Performs

Classical guitarist David Burgess, selected in 1984 as the first recipient of the Andres Segovia Fellowship, performs a musical history illustrating the fusion of Spanish and Latin American music on Tuesday, November 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For more information call 543-6030.

Lide Presents Paper

Dr. William E. Lide, chairman of the Department of Physical Athletics and director of Athletics, has been selected to present a paper, "Sports and Economics: A Perfect Marriage?," at the annual North American Society for the Sociology of Sport (NASSS).

The conference will be held in Washington, D.C. from November 9-11.

He will also chair a session at the conference.

Minority Affairs Workshop

On Saturday, November 4, the Office of Minority Affairs and the Center for Personal and Professional Development are presenting "A Social and Academic Adjustment Workshop for Minorities in the College Environment."

The workshop will take place from 8:30 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. A continental breakfast and lunch will be served. The featured speaker for this workshop is Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, industrial psychologist and recently retired executive of the National Institutes of Mental Health.

Anyone who would like to attend the workshop, please notify the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080, no later than Friday, October 27. Space is limited.

For addtional information, contact the Dean of Students Office or the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6070.

Bicycle Safety Tips From Public Safety

1. Wear a helmet with a hard shell.
2. Ride a proper size bike. It should have a bell or horn, reflectors and a headlight for night riding.
3. Obey all signs and signals.
4. Don't carry passengers on your bike.
5. Drive with the traffic and in single file.
6. Signal other roadway uses.
7. Be bright at night. Wear bright clothes and make sure you have lights and reflectors on your bike.
8. Watch out for storm drains.
9. Watch out for wet pavement, wet leaves and loose gravel.
10. Watch out for cars leaving driveways.
11. Watch out for dogs and other animals.
12. Watch out for parked cars opening their doors.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

Flu Vaccine

A limited supply of flu vaccine is available for faculty, staff and students at a cost of $5. As a routine, vaccine should not be given to persons who have an allergic response to eggs. Persons who are currently ill, with fever, should not be vaccinated until symptoms are improved.

Please call the Health Center at 543-6262 to arrange a vaccination.

Award-winning Novelist to Read Here November 15

David Bradley, author of the award-winning novel, The Chaneysville Incident, will read from this and other of his works at 8 p.m. on Thursday, November 16. The reading will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Bradley is one of a series of nationally recognized literary figures to appear here as part of a program called Writers on the Shore.

His reading is sponsored by the English Department and the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

Dr. John Wenke, associate professor in the Department of English, describes Bradley as "one of the major young novelists working today."

He is a "voice in Black American literature" and writes about race in America, Wenke continued. But his distinction is first of all as "a writer."

Bradley, a native of the agricultural and resort community of Bedford, PA, wrote his first novel when he was an undergraduate in the University of Pennsylvania.

Today, at the age of 39, he has a list of literary and academic achievements which could fill several lifetimes.

The Chaneysville Incident, published in 1981 by Harper & Row, was a Book-of-the-Month Club and Playboy Book Club choice, had several foreign printings and was a nominee for the American Book Award.

His essays have been featured in numerous anthologies and published in The Village Voice, Esquire, New York Times Magazine and The Nation.

He lists as major works in progress a non-fiction book titled, The Bondage Hypothesis: Meditations on Race in America, a screenplay and a novel.

His full-time post is at Temple University in Philadelphia where he is a professor in the Department of English. However, he is currently on a Guggenheim Fellowship teaching at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) in Cambridge, MA.

Lecturer to Discuss Human Evolution

Dr. Andrew Bard Schmookler, author of Parable of the Tribes (University of California Press, 1986) and Out of Weakness: Healing the Wounds that Drive Us to War (Bantam Books, 1989), will be on the campus November 15 and 16.

He will address the University and Salisbury community on Wednesday, November 15, 7:30 p.m., in the Social Room in Holloway Hall on The Parable of the Tribes.

His theme centers on the way in which human beings have evolved from hunting and gathering groups to settled peoples who have developed city-based civilizations. In so doing they "discovered" power, and in wielding it, some could aggrandize and subdue others who were weaker. This element of power changed forever the way human beings related. Where does that leave us in the present? What can we do to confront this evolutionary reality within? His presentation will address these questions.

He will have just returned from Montana where he was lecturing at several university campuses.

Schmookler received his undergraduate degree from Harvard University, graduating summa cum laude, and was awarded a Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley.

While on the campus he will be available for guest appearances in classes. Please contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, sociology and anthropology, 543-6430, if faculty members would like to schedule him for one of their classes.

Halloween Dance Fundraiser

Salisbury State students and campus organizations collaborated with Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury to sponsor a Halloween Costume Dance to benefit the New Born/Pediatrics Fund of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center.

"Our goal was to raise $1,000," said Ian Moores, a resident assistant and a co-coordinator of the event. "I love kids and would love to see them receive better care, toys and equipment. Students and area businesses were very supportive of the program."

Sponsors in addition to Pepsi included the Salisbury State Program Board, the Office of Residence Life, University Dining and WSUR, the student-run campus radio station. Prizes were awarded in a variety of categories to those in costume.

Assisting Moores in organizing the dance was Randy Whaples, also a resident assistant.

Gospel Choir Performs This Week

The Salisbury State Gospel Choir in conjunction with the Union of African American Students and various youth Christian organizations of the community will be hosting gospel artist Minister Timothy Wright at the University on Thursday and Friday, November 2-3.

Wright will be giving a workshop to the Gospel Choir and other youth from various churches and organizations in the community. The workshop is November 2 at 6 p.m. The rehearsal will be held in the Power Professional Building. There is a registration fee of $2 for choir members. On November 3, the workshop choir will perform in Caruthers Hall Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Admission is free for all SSU students and $3 for non-SSU students.

The theme of the event is "Youth on Fire for Christ," in hopes of uniting the youth on campus and in the community. The event is open to everyone who wishes to participate.

Call Cheryl Allen, 860-5273, for more information.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Several of the fall sports teams have concluded their regular seasons as the calender flips over into November now, with a couple of other teams near conclusion or awaiting word on post-season play.

The football team continues to seek its first win as the Gulls, 0-6-1, travel to Danbury, CT to meet Western Connecticut this Saturday. The conditions were near perfect for Homecoming at Sea Gull Stadium last Saturday as Salisbury just missed breaking into the win column, falling to Hampden-Sydney, 31-27.

Senior Donald Washington, playing his final home game, was outstanding in a losing effort, gaining 126 yards on 25 carries and scoring three touchdowns to lead the Sea Gulls. Washington's performance earned him selection to the ECAC Weekly Honor Roll.

Following Saturday's contest at Western Connecticut, Coach Joe Dailey's team closes the '89 season at Davidson next weekend.

Conference championships were the prize for two of Salisbury's women's teams last weekend as the field hockey squad captured its second straight ESAC championship while the volleyball team won its third consecutive ESAC title. The Gulls whipped Marywood, 4-0, and Wesley, 5-0, to win the conference field hockey championship at home. Forward Cheryl Ish netted three goals and assisted on a fourth to lead the rout of Wesley in the championship game.

Meanwhile, Salisbury claimed the conference's volleyball championship for the third straight year, beating Allentown, three games to one, and host Marywood, three games to none, to take the title.

The field hockey team, 13-3-1, begins play in the NCAA Division III championship this weekend, seeking its fourth straight visit to the Final Four, while the volleyball squad, 33-10, must await word on its possible NCAA tournament selection until Sunday.

The Gulls also closed out their best soccer season since 1985 with a 4-1 Homecoming victory over Cabrini last Saturday. SSU ended the season with a five-game winning streak to finish with a 9-6 overall record and 4-3 mark in the ESAC.

Keith Goode led the scoring barrage against Cabrini with two goals, while Joe Greco and Bryan Watson each added a goal and an assist.

The men's and women's cross country teams end their seasons this weekend at the ESAC Championship Meet in Philadelphia. Both squads are coming off the Mason-Dixon Championship Meet at UMBC last weekend, where Tim Smith recorded the men's top finish and Stephanie Brown and Laura Candido led the women's team.

Appetizer Night on Wednesday, November 8

University Dining Services will hold its annual Appetizer Night from 4:45-6:30 p.m. in the Powell Dining Hall. The menu for this mouth-watering festival of foods will include such favorites as clams casino, steamed shrimp, king crab legs and other delicacies all are sure to enjoy. Prices are $6.50 for guests, $3.25 for children.

'The Story of English'

The campus community is invited to attend the English Department's showing of the acclaimed PBS series, The Story of English.

"Next Year's Words: A Look Into the Future" will be shown on Tuesday, November 7, at 5 p.m. in Caruthers Hall 105. The program investigates the question, "What does the future hold for today's most influential global language?"

There will be a discussion following the showing. For further information, call Dr. Polly Stewart at 543-6371.

Piepenbring Memorial Service

A memorial service will be held for Craig Piepenbring on Sunday, November 5, at 2 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall.

Mr. Piepenbring died in an automobile accident in Salisbury on October 15.

For more information call the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080.

NYC Bus Trip

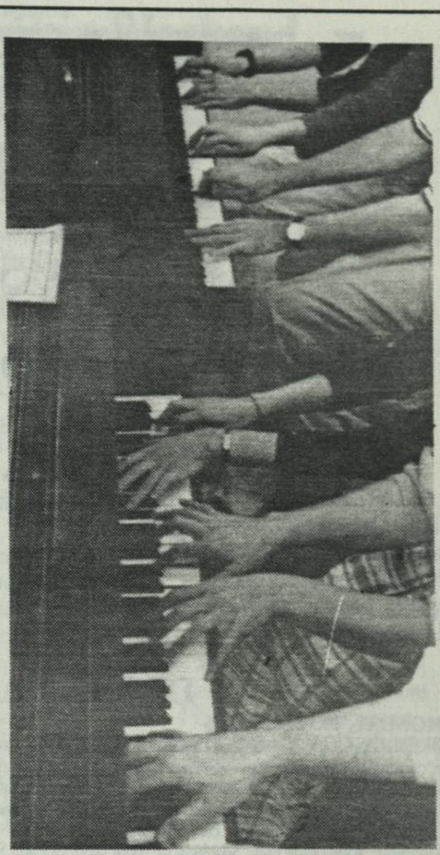
The University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to New York City on Friday, December 1.

Full-time students may begin signing up at the University Center Information Desk on Monday, November 13; the cost is $12. Part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests may begin to sign up on Thursday, November 16; their cost is $15. Seats are limited. Museum admission is not included.

The bus will leave the Dogwood entrance of the University Center promptly at 6 a.m. and return to the same location at approximately 1 a.m. There will be a brief breakfast and dinner stop. The bus will make drops at the Whitney Museum and the Metropolitan Museum with only one pickup at the Metropolitan Museum at 5 p.m. for the return trip home.

Exhibits currently at the Whitney Museum include Thomas Hart Benton: An American Original. This is a major retrospective of the work of one of America's foremost regionalist artists and presents 90 paintings and three full mural cycles. College students with I.D. are admitted free to the Whitney Museum. This museum is located at 75th Street and Madison Avenue.

The Metropolitan Museum is located at Fifth Avenue and 82nd Street. It is featuring, among other things, Diego Velazquez Exhibit. Admission for students with I.D. is $2.50.



Piano Concerto, Duo Recital

The Music Department announces a piano concerto and duo recital performed by its piano students.

The concert, performed on two Steinway grands in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, will be on Friday, November 10, at 8 p.m., with a reception immediately following.

Works performed will include the first movements of two Mozart concertos performed by Joan Dirska and Scot Hawkins, students of Linda Cockey. Wayne Cooper, also a student of Cockey, will perform the first movement of a Shostakovitch concerto (no. 1 in c minor).

The remainder of the program will be duo music (music for two pianos) and will consist of a Poulenc sonata and a Khatchaturian waltz. Bryan Hurley and Annie Larsen will perform the Khatchaturian Waltz; they study with Dr. Nancy Cooper.

According to Cockey, the music faculty, "is very excited at the prospect of the University's first student piano concerto recital."

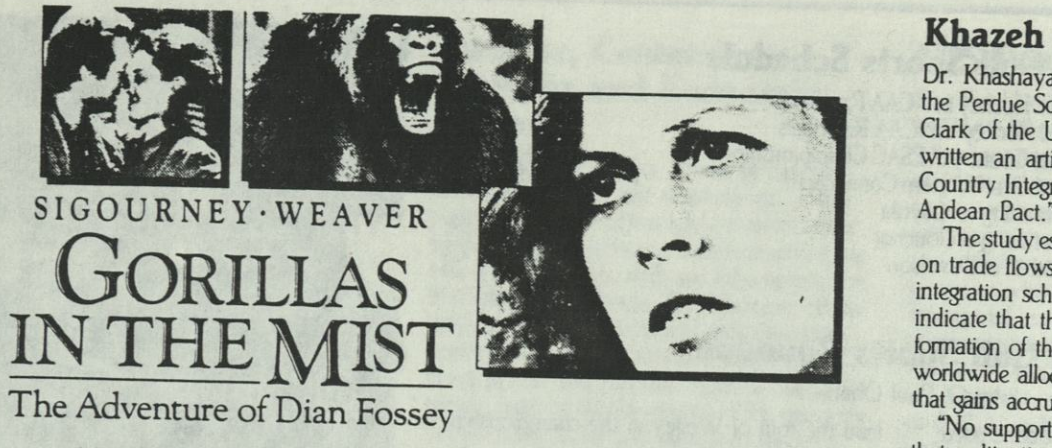
Boyd Assistant to Chancellor

Dr. James (Dolph) Norton, interim chancellor of the University of Maryland System, recently announced the appointment of Dr. Laslo Boyd as assistant to the chancellor. The appointment is effective November 6.

Boyd has served as executive assistant for education to Governor William Donald Schaefer since the beginning of the governor's term, with responsibility for higher education as well as secondary and elementary education issues.

Since July, Boyd has been on loan from the Office of the Governor to assist the Committee on Educational Policy of the University of Maryland System Board of Regents. He worked with the committee and with System Administration in the development of the Systemwide Plan, required by the legislation that created the University of Maryland System on July 1, 1988. The document, submitted to the Maryland Higher Education Commission earlier this month, outlines initiatives for the future development of the University of Maryland System.

In addition Boyd served as acting secretary for the Maryland Higher Education Commission from July 1988 to March 1989.



'Gorillas in the Mist' Shown November 6

The Outdoor Club urges all of its members to attend the showing of Gorillas in the Mist on Monday, November 6, at 7 p.m. The movie will be held in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

The screening of Gorillas in the Mist is co-sponsored by the Outdoor Club and the Wilderness Orientation program. Refreshments will be available during the film. A brief meeting will be held directly after the movie.

Khazeh to Be Published

Dr. Khashayar Khazeh, assistant professor in the Perdue School of Business, and Dr. Don Clark of the University of Tennessee have written an article titled, "Effects of Developing Country Integration on Trade Flows: The Andean Pact."

The study estimates static effects of integration on trade flows for one developing country integration scheme: the Andean Pact. Results indicate that the static effects associated with formation of the Andean Pact were favorable to worldwide allocative efficiency, and also imply that gains accrued to the members as a group.

"No support is provided for the contention that multinationals are the primary beneficiaries in developing country integration efforts," said Khazeh. "These findings suggest developing countries can expect to gain from undertaking a carefully executed integration effort."

The article is based on Khazeh's dissertation, titled, "Direct Investment and Welfare: An Empirical Investigation of Economic Integration in less Developed Countries when Foreign Firms are Present (Andean case)."

The article has been accepted for publication and will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Journal of Latin American Studies published by Cambridge University Press in London.

Contractual Faculty School of Education

The School of Education at Salisbury State seeks a full-time instructor to serve as contractual faculty during spring semester 1989-90. This position would involve teaching developmental math courses and participation in the professional education program of the school as supervisor of student teaching and/or instructor in foundations/methods courses. The position would be contractual for the period January 15 - June 15 with no State benefits. The teaching load would be 12 hours per semester, plus approximately eight hours per week in the Learning Center in the role of advisor, tutor or diagnostician.

A master's degree or its equivalent in professional education and experience is required. Graduate students nearing the completion of the master's degree will be considered, providing they have ample background and experience in their field. The positions require an academic specialty in math and the ability to work in innovative course arrangements which involve extensive individualized and computer-assisted instruction.

Please send a current vita and letter of application to Geraldine Rossi, Literacy Task Force, School of Education, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Deadline is November 20 or until position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Science School Dean Search

Salisbury State invites nominations and applications for the position of Dean, Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. The school was endowed by Richard A. Henson, founder of Henson Aviation.

The position is available July 1. The deadline for applications is December 15. Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

For more information write: Dr. C. Richard McKenzie, Chair, Dean Search Committee, Department of Chemistry and Physics, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Films for the Nuclear Age to Be Shown This Weekend

On Saturday, November 4, and Sunday, November 5, SSPB Films presents a Nuclear Nightmare Double Feature, Atomic Cafe and Dr. Strangelove.

Atomic Cafe (1982) serves up the dark side of Cold War America in all its paranoia and conformism. It is as hysterically funny as it is horrifying. Artfully culled from newsreel footage and government archives, the film is a mind-boggling compendium of government misinformation aimed at selling nuclear war to the American public like a new brand of laundry detergent, and of the atomic-themed pop cultural artifacts that sprang up like crazy mushrooms in the shadow of the Bomb; atomic jukebox songs, atomic cocktails, atomic fashions, atomic bad-taste jokes.

Called a nuclear Reefer Madness and a non-fiction, Dr. Strangelove, highpoints include Nikita Khrushchev's hilarious putdowns of Richard Nixon; singing Polynesians being evacuated from Bikini Atoll ("The natives are pleased the Yanks are going to add a little variety to their lives"); an unforgettable "Duck and Cover" air-raid drill featuring Burt the Turtle; the Nagasaki pilot's deadpan description of his mission ("...perfectly routine..."); public officials' devil-may-care attitudes toward the dangers of radioactive fallout; and a bizarre panoply of bomb-shelters, survival kits, anti-nuclear costumes and other "protective" devices.

Director Stanley Kubrick's (Clockwork Orange, 2001: A Space Odessy) early masterpiece, Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (1964), is a satire about a nuclear holocaust that features Peter Sellers in a multiple role.

Strangelove concerns a psychotic right-wing general who believes that Communists are poisoning America through floridation of the water. In his madness, he orders a nuclear attack on the Soviet Union, and American bombers take off at once. All are recalled by a frantic U.S. president, except for one damaged bomber that doesn't receive the message.

The plane keeps heading relentlessly toward Russia, staffed by a flight crew that could have come straight out of a 1940s Hollywood war film, including a Negro bombardier, a whooping, hollering Texan and a Jewish radio operator. Once they release their bomb, the Russian's Doomsday Machine is automatically activated, spreading a blanket of atomic fallout over the earth.

Showtimes for Atomic Cafe are at 7 p.m. with Dr. Strangelove following at 9:15 p.m. Refreshments will be available for the early shows.

Anyone interested in atomic films may want to visit the National Archives November and December film series. That schedule is as follows: November 3, Decision to Drop the Bomb (1965); November 16, Beginning or the End (1947) and Atomic Power (1946); November 17, The Atom Strikes (1947) and Hiroshima and Nagasaki 1945 (1970); November 24, Radio Bikini (1984); December 1, Day After Trinity (1980); December 7, Five (1951); December 15, Them (1954); and December 22, Atomic Attack (1954).

For more information about the National Archives film series call (202) 523-3099.

Also in November, on the 18th and 19th, the SSPB will be screening Jean de Florette (1987), a critically acclaimed tale of greed and intolerance. A hunchback inherits a valuable piece of land but is thwarted by his villainous neighbor. It is French with English subtitles. The sequel, Manon of the Spring, will be shown in April.

The SSPB film series will be screening films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first. For further information contact David Todd at the SSPB office in the University Center, 543-6197.

Soviets Visit Campus

The University recently hosted a group of 30 Soviet Union academicians, ranging from elementary teachers to university professors.

The Soviets had many questions about the American school system, and particularly about Salisbury State. They expressed great interest in the University, and exchanged pins and catalogs from Soviet schools with faculty and staff of Salisbury State, who expressed considerable interest in Soviet culture.

The Soviet group came to Salisbury through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Norse of Ocean Pines. The couple spent many years in various countries, and now work with international groups from different countries, giving them tours of the United States.

The guests visited many of the University's facilities, such as the library, St. Martin and Chesapeake residence halls and the University Center. They also enjoyed a short break with coffee and donuts at the Dining Hall.

Before coming to Salisbury, the Soviets traveled up and down the East Coast, visiting many cities and points of interest. Just before arriving on the Eastern Shore, they visited New Jersey and Princeton University.

During their tour of the University Center, the group met briefly with Dean of Students Carol Williamson and associate deans Barry King and John Fields. Upon leaving the building each person received a small gift from the Book Rack, the campus book store.

Agata Liszkowska, coordinator of Student Activities and Organizations, acknowledged the following for making the Soviets' visit a successful one: Kathryn Carson and Terry Daenzer of Blackwell Library; Carmen DiSylvestro of University Dining; Rick Dillon of the Housing Office; Stan Shedacker and Nancy Watson of the Book Rack; and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Berry of the History Department.

Salisbury State is organizing a trip to the Soviet Union this coming January 12-20. Please contact Dr. Berry at 543-6248 for more information.

Global Seminars News

Members of the first faculty seminar on global issues will travel to Washington, D.C. on Friday, November 3, to meet with officials of both the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

The group will spend the morning in conversations with Bank officials and visit with Fund officials in the afternoon. The trip is intended to familiarize SSU faculty with the institutional structures and programmatic orientations and activities of these two increasingly important actors in the international political economy.

"The trip promises to be intellectually stimulating and would add another, perhaps practical, dimension to the efforts of the group to seek an enhanced understanding of global development issues," said Dr. Cyril K. Daddieh, assistant professor of political science and one of the seminar group members. Others in the group are Jean Hanebury, Dr. Karin Johnson, Dr. Grady Meehan, Dr. Ed Steffes, Dr. George Whitehead, Dr. Art Wilby and Dr. Harry Womack.

Health Careers Information Table in UC

Interested in health career possibilities? (Some are quite good. For example today the starting salaries for many nursing positions are higher than for most new lawyers and engineers!)

For more information about a full range of health professions, faculty will staff information table near the University Center Post Office Monday through Wednesday, November 6-8, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., and November 13-15, from 12:30-3:30 p.m., where they will answer questions about health professions.

Students seeking information in preparation for program planning may find this service particularly useful. Community members also are welcome. Sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, call 543-6401 for further information.

Annapolis Brass Holiday Concert

Combining the old and the new with the sounds of advent, the Annapolis Brass Quintet's "Spirit of Holidays Brassed" seasonal concert will be on Sunday, November 26, at 6:30 p.m. in the Sheraton. The concert is sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council.

The Sheraton offers a 20 percent discount on the buffet menu in Harper's Restaurant for any concert attender. The offer is good either before or after the concert depending on one's preference. Reservations are strongly recommended and can be made by calling 546-4400.

Concert tickets are $12 per person or $10 for SWAC members. A limited number of student rush tickets can be purchased at the door on the night of the concert for $6. Tickets may be purchased at any Peninsula Bank location or the two John Hanson Savings Banks in Salisbury. For more information call 543-ARTS.

Grants Available for Arts Activities

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council has announced a November 17 deadline for grant applications for arts programs.

Any arts activity taking place between January 1 - June 30, 1990 is eligible for funding consideration.

To be considered for a grant an organization must show that the activity is in the field of the arts, is of community benefit, is fiscally sound and has the potential for self-support in the future. The applicant organization must be a not-for-profit organization.

In the last grants cycle, nine grants were awarded by the Arts Council totaling $8,250. Two grants were awarded to promote arts programs in the schools. Among the organizations that received grants in the last grant cycle were the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and the Salisbury Symphony Youth Orchestra for their 1989-90 performance season, the Art Institute & Gallery for its on-going exhibits and the Wicomico Historical Society for the opening exhibit of the Wicomico Heritage Center.

A packet of information including application forms is available now at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, located in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, or by calling 543-ARTS.

'60s Rock Multimedia Presentation and Concert

The decade of the 60's was one of the most interesting periods in American history. Through all of the good and bad times, it was the music that brought people together and sometimes tore them apart. The political turmoil, the social upheaval, the Hippie Movement, the Vietnam War and the Generation Gap were all reflected in the popular music of the day.

The Beatles, Bob Dylan, Jimi Hendrix, The Supremes, The Beach Boys, Simon & Garfunkel, The Rolling Stones, Otis Redding and yes even the Monkees, were the sounds filling the airwaves throughout those turbulent years.

"60's Rock - When The Music Mattered," a multi-media presentation by Barry Drake, will celebrate, examine, clarify and put into perspective one of the most exciting 10 years of American music history.

Barry Drake has often been called a walking encyclopedia of music. A graduate of Manhattan College, he has been totally involved in the world of music since buying his first Rock 'N' Roll record in 1954. Growing up in the New York City area, he went wherever music was to be heard. He saw everyone from Buddy Holly and Chuck Berry at The Brooklyn Paramount in 1957, to Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin at The Fillmore East in 1967. When San Francisco exploded with the "Summer of Love" in 1967, Drake was there hanging out on the streets with The Grateful Dead and Jefferson Airplane.

In the middle 60's Drake became a performer and songwriter, and was soon signed to Capitol Records. Since then, he has recorded three albums of his own music and has toured the United States and Europe for the past 20 years.

Not content to be just a performer, Drake successfully started his own record company, booking agency and management firm. He is also a respected collector and dealer of rare records. Most recently he has been called upon to share his knowledge of music and enthusiasm for Rock 'N' Roll at colleges and music business conventions across the country.

Drake will give a 60's rock lecture/presentation at 8 p.m., Wednesday, November 8, in

SSU Concert Choir Fundraiser Set for November 27

The fundraiser "Sounds of Broadway," will be presented on Monday, November 27, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the the University Center.

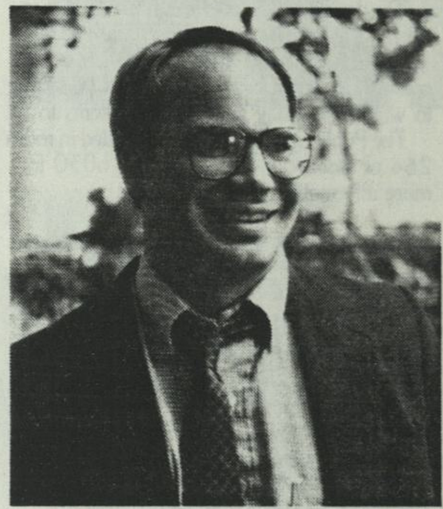
Members of of the Salisbury State Concert Choir will be presenting an evening of entertainment featuring the work of Leonard Bernstein, Andrew Lloyd Webber, Stephen Sondheim, and Rogers and Hammerstein. All funds raised will help defray expenses of the choir members traveling to southern Germany, as part of an exchange with the Augsburg University Choir, in January, 1990.

Selected singers will perform Broadway selections and there will be special guest appearances by Phyllis Oldham, Katherine Turner-Barlow, Paul and Martha Pfeiffer, Kathleen Jacobi-Karna, and the director of the SSU Choir and trip coordinator, Dr. Duane R. Karna.

While in Germany, the ensemble will perform at St. Michael's Church in Altenstadt, St. Martins Church in Marktoberdorf, and at Augsburg University with the Augsburg University Choir. The ensemble has also been invited for a two week residency in Marktoberdorf, at the Bavarian Music Academy where SSU students will rehearse and study. The suggested minimum donation is $5 for adults and $3 for students which will be collected at the door.

A classic Italian comedy, "The King Stag," a one hour piece for children of all ages, opens Wednesday, November 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall on stage. Cast members include (front row) Jodie Pelcman, Robert Faust and Christine Albertson, and (back row) Jim Waltz, George Skala, Suzanne Bickford, Cyrus Teter and John Steffy. Call the theatre box office at 543-6228 for information and reservations.

'Business, Ethics and the Environment' Lecture November 15



Wilke Nelson

Wilke Nelson, assistant director of the Maryland Field Office of the Nature Conservancy, discusses "Business, Ethics and the Environment" on Wednesday, November 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center's Nanticoke Room.

The Nature Conservancy is a non-profit organization which owns the largest system of private nature sanctuaries in the world. Its 530,000 members strive to safeguard and preserve beaches, forests, prairies, mountains, deserts, marshes, islands and the life they shelter.

The Conservancy has purchased and protects 1,100 preserves, 25 of those in Maryland, covering 25,000 acres. Among those 25 are three on the Eastern Shore: Third Haven Woods, Nassawango Creek and Cypress Forest, and Blackwater.

Third Haven Woods encompasses 393 acres of mature upland forest dominated by beech and loblolly pine, and offers critical refuge for the endangered Delmarva fox squirrel. The preserve was created through gifts of land by local Marylanders.

Dark, slow-moving Nassawango Creek traces a channel among ancient trees—a remnant of the great bald cypress wilderness that once prospered on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

'The King Stag' Opens November 15

Salisbury State Theatre presents, as its final offering of the fall season, for the young and young at heart, The King Stag.

A pre-Thanksgiving treat, the play opens on Wednesday, November 15 and runs through Monday, November 20, featuring a matinee on Sunday, November 19, and will be performed on stage in Holloway Hall. To accommodate the needs of young audiences during the week, performances of the play will begin at 7:30 p.m. Lasting approximately one hour, The King Stag is a charming bedtime story for all ages - and brief enough to be home in bed by 9 p.m.

Delightfully comic, The King Stag is a romantic fairytale of wizardry and intrigue. With costumes and masks designed by Donna Larsen, SSU Theatre's Artist in Residence, and inspired by images from the circus, Matisse and Medieval gargoyles, The King Stag promises to be a colorful, silly and slightly satirical evenings entertainment.

For tickets call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

Textile Conservation Workshop to Be Held

Do you have a wedding gown, tablecloth, family quilt or other woven object that you'd like to preserve and protect? The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture is sponsoring a workshop that will help you preserve treasured items.

The Textile Conservation Workshop will be held on Saturday, November 11, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Nanticoke A room of the University Center.

Simple but effective methods on caring for and preserving old clothing and textile items will be explained and demonstrated to both amateurs and professionals.

Participants are encouraged to bring objects for advice and consultation and are invited to a special tour of the exhibit, "Clothing and Costume on Delmarva, 1850-1950," which is on display in the SSU Gallery located on the second floor of Blackwell Library. The exhibit is also sponsored by the Research Center.

Admission is open to the public. There is a $25 fee to cover the cost of the workshop plus lunch. Space is limited to the first 25 applicants, so please indicate your intention to attend by phoning the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at 543-6245 as soon as possible.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Classical Guitarist Performs

Classical guitarist David Burgess, selected in 1984 as the first recipient of the Andres Segovia Fellowship, performs a musical history illustrating the fusion of Spanish and Latin American music on Tuesday, November 14, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

For more information call 543-6030.

NYC Bus Trip

The University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to New York City on Friday, December 1.

Full-time students may begin signing up at the University Center Information Desk on Monday, November 13; the cost is $12. Part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests may begin to sign up on Thursday, November 16; their cost is $15. Seats are limited. Museum admission is not included.

The bus will leave the Dogwood entrance of the University Center promptly at 6 a.m. and return to the same location at approximately 1 a.m. There will be a brief breakfast and dinner stop. The bus will make drops at the Whitney Museum and the Metropolitan Museum with only one pickup at the Metropolitan Museum at 5 p.m. for the return trip home.

Exhibits currently at the Whitney Museum include Thomas Hart Benton: An American Original. This is a major retrospective of the work of one of America's foremost regionalist artists and presents 90 paintings and three full mural cycles. College students with I.D. are admitted free to the Whitney Museum. This museum is located at 75th Street and Madison Avenue.

The Metropolitan Museum is located at Fifth Avenue and 82nd Street. It is featuring, among other things, Diego Velazquez Exhibit. Admission for students with I.D. is $2.50.

Bicycle Safety Tips From Public Safety

1. Wear a helmet with a hard shell.
2. Ride a proper size bike. It should have a bell or horn, reflectors and a headlight for night riding.
3. Obey all signs and signals.
4. Don't carry passengers on your bike.
5. Drive with the traffic and in single file.
6. Signal other roadway uses.
7. Be bright at night. Wear bright clothes and make sure you have lights and reflectors on your bike.
8. Watch out for storm drains.
9. Watch out for wet pavement, wet leaves and loose gravel.
10. Watch out for cars leaving driveways.
11. Watch out for dogs and other animals.
12. Watch out for parked cars opening their doors.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

Award-winning Novelist to Read Here November 15

David Bradley, author of the award-winning novel, The Chaneysville Incident, will read from this and other of his works at 8 p.m. on Thursday, November 16. The reading will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

The Chaneysville Incident, published in 1981 by Harper & Row, was a Book-of-the-Month Club and Playboy Book Club choice, had several foreign printings and was a nominee for the American Book Award.

His essays have been featured in numerous anthologies and published in The Village Voice, Esquire, New York Times Magazine and The Nation.

He lists as major works in progress a non-fiction book titled, The Bondage Hypothesis: Meditations on Race in America, a screenplay and a novel.

His full-time post is at Temple University in Philadelphia where he is a professor in the Department of English. However, he is currently on a Guggenheim Fellowship teaching at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) in Cambridge, MA.

For more information, call 543-6030.

Secretary Opening

University Dining Services has an immediate opening for a part-time secretary (20 hours per week).

Experience with data entry is a must. Salary is $6 per hour. This is a contractual position (no State benefits). Send resume not later than November 1 to Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Historic Fashion Exhibit

An exhibit of "Dress and Fashion on Delmarva, 1850-1950," opening in Salisbury State's University Gallery on Saturday, November 11, is the first effort by the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture and the History Department's Material Culture studies program to portray the relationship between social and economic history and art. Here the course of United States history is presented visually in three-dimensional form rather than the usual textbook-lecture presentation of major political trends, and examines the lifestyles of ordinary people touched by national events.

Visitors will travel through a century of changing styles in men's, women's, and children's fashions—changes which reflected the diverse influences of war, the impact of the dress-pattern industry, technology and inventions such as the sewing maching, the rebellion of a generation of "flappers," and the Great Depression. All clothing and accessories have been loaned by residents of the lower Delmarva Peninsula and most items have been treasured family heirlooms for several generations. Some of the more endearing pieces are the children's clothers, but styles run the gamut from woolen bathing dresses to riding ensembles to uniforms both both the First and Second World Wars.

The exhibit coincides with a textile conservation workshop to be held on the University campus on Saturday, November 11, and a slide lecture presentation titled, "Changing Roles in Changing Times: 100 Years of Women's Clothing" by professor Paul Pfeiffer on Wednesday, November 15, at 7 p.m. The clothing exhibit will be free and open to the public from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday - Thursday, 5 -8 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday evenings, and 1 - 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Guided Gallery talks about the exhibit will be given on Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. The exhibit will run from November 11 - 15. Further information may be obtained about the exhibit, workshop or lecture by calling (301) 543-6245.

Ruth Garbisch Manchester

Lecture on Historical Embroideries

Ruth Garbisch Manchester, an art historian, will present a slide presentation and talk on Monday, November 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center. Manchester will speak on "Art From the Academies: Schoolgirl Embroideries from the Late 18th and 19th Centuries."

The talk, sponsored jointly by the University Center and the SSU Department of Art, will be in conjunction with the November meeting of the Emroiderers' Guild of America, Chesapeake Chapter. The Guild, in celebration of its 10th anniversary, is currently exhibiting its work in the Atrium Gallery in the University Center. The exhibit is open daily from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. through December.

Manchester received her M.A. in art history from the University of Maryland College Park in 1986. She has worked as research assistant in the National Portrait Gallery, Washington, D.C., interned at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and currently teaches art history at Montgomery College. Her presentation is open to the public and those interested in needlework and its history are encouraged to attend.

For more information call 543-6100.

Bello Published

Dr. Zakri Bello, assistant professor in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, recently had three papers accepted for publication.

"Bidder Characteristics and Returns to Target Firms in Corporate Acquisitions," co-authored with Dr. Arthur Keown of the Finance Department at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will be presented at the 1989 Decision Sciences Institute's annual meeting in New Orleans from November 20-22.

The Akron Business and Economic Review will be publishing "Small Firm and Earnings Yield Effects: Further Evidence," co-authored with Dr. Dana Johnson of the Finance Department at VPI.

Bello's paper, "Stock Price Behavior in an Undeveloped Capital Market: Nigeria in Contrast to the U.S.," has been accepted by the Journal of Applied Business Research.

Additionally, Bello recently participated in the annual meeting of the Fiancial Management Association held in Boston.

United Charities Campaign Begins November 8

Pledge cards will be included with full-time faculty/staff payroll checks for a voluntary contribution to the 1989 SSU United Charities Campaign on Wednesday, November 8. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, will be mailed to all faculty/staff. This agency listing is helpful if you wish to designate a specific agency to receive your contribution or if you require the services of one of the agencies.

This year as an incentive for employees to support the important campaign, the SSU Foundation has donated a CD player which employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. For anyone who wishes to see the CD, it is located in Holloway Hall, room 202. The campaign ends Friday, December 1. The drawing for the CD takes place on Monday, December 4. The winner will be contacted immediately.

While considering whether to contribute, please consider that the agencies which receive funds from United Charities depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said campaign co-coordinator Gains Hawkins, director of Public Relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather (543-6050) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them if you have any questions.

Piano Concerto, Duo Recital

The Music Department announces a piano concerto and duo recital performed by its piano students.

The concert, performed on two Steinway grands in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, will be on Friday, November 10, at 8 p.m., with a reception immediately following.

Works performed will include the first movements of two Mozart concertos performed by Joan Dirska and Scot Hawkins, students of Linda Cockey. Wayne Cooper, also a student of Cockey, will perform the first movement of a Shostakovitch concerto (no. 1 in c minor).

The remainder of the program will be duo music (music for two pianos) and will consist of a Poulenc sonata and a Khatchaturian waltz. Bryan Hurley and Annie Larsen will perform the Khatchaturian Waltz; they study with Dr. Nancy Cooper.

According to Cockey, the music faculty, "is very excited at the prospect of the University's first student piano concerto recital."

Health Careers Information Table in UC

Interested in health career possibilities? (Some are quite good. For example today the starting salaries for many nursing positions are higher than for most new lawyers and engineers!)

For more information about a full range of health professions, faculty will staff information table near the University Center Post Office Monday through Wednesday, November 6-8, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., and November 13-15, from 12:30-3:30 p.m., where they will answer questions about health professions.

Students seeking information in preparation for program planning may find this service particularly useful. Community members also are welcome. Sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, call 543-6401 for further information.

Contractual Faculty School of Education

The School of Education at Salisbury State seeks a full-time instructor to serve as contractual faculty during spring semester 1989-90. This position would involve teaching developmental math courses and participation in the professional education program of the school as supervisor of student teaching and/or instructor in foundations/methods courses. The position would be contractual for the period January 15 - June 15 with no State benefits. The teaching load would be 12 hours per semester, plus approximately eight hours per week in the Learning Center in the role of advisor, tutor or diagnostician.

A master's degree or its equivalent in professional education and experience is required. Graduate students nearing the completion of the master's degree will be considered, providing they have ample background and experience in their field. Embroidery Exhibit in Atrium Gallery

Forty members of the Chesapeake Chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America will combine their efforts in an exhibit opening Saturday, November 11, in the Atrium Gallery of the University Center. The Gallery hours for the exhibit, which runs through December 6, are from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily; the public is invited.

The exhibit of over 150 items ranging from elegant needlepoint and crewel pillows, smocked clothing and cross stitched bellpulls to bargello footstools celebrates the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Chesapeake Chapter.

The purpose of the Guild is to share educational opportunities for those interested in needlework. The Guild holds a monthly meeting which frequently features a teacher who demonstrates special techniques of needlework.

One such program demonstrated the effect of dramatic shading and was taught by Doris Tomlinson of Lancaster, PA. Tomlinson teaches extensively and has been featured in national magazines. In addition to demonstrations, the Guild participates in correspondence courses sponsored by the national office. The exhibit will contain items executed from techniques learned from both sources.

In conjunction with the exhibit, the Salisbury State Art Department and the University Center will jointly sponsor a speaker, Ruth Manchester, who will give a slide presentation and talk at the Guild's monthly meeting. The talk will be on Monday, November 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center and it is open to the public. Manchester will speak on 18th and 19th century schoolgirl embroideries.

The Atrium Gallery Exhibit in the Univeristy Center will run concurrently with the SSU Gallery exhibits, "Fashion and Dress on Delmarva, 1850-1950," November 11-16, and the "Art Department Faculty Exhibit," November 18 - December 14.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100 or the SSU Gallery at 543-6271.

Open House November 18

The University invites all prospective students and their families to an Open House on Saturday, November 18, from 9:30 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Starting at the University Center, in the Wicomico Room, the Open Houses include an informal coffee hour featuring presentations by faculty members and administrators about various aspects of the University, and a walking tour of the campus and its facilities hosted by an SSU student.

The University urges all students to visit Salisbury State as part of the college selection process.

For more information on either Salisbury Sate or the Open House, call the Admissions Office at 543-6160 locally or toll free (800) 492-1175.

'Gone With The Wind' Blows Into Town

To honor the 50th anniversary and lasting popularity of "Gone With The Wind", the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council has arranged for an exclusive one-time showing of the restored film version on Sunday, December 10, at 2 p.m.

"Gone With The Wind" has gone through deletions, changes, and alterations over the past half century. Now, however, it has been completely restored to its original glory, at a cost of over $250,000. This newly released version is being shown at the Fox Theater's Mall Cinemas, and will be followed by a grand party in the "Ballroom Tara" in the east wing of the Salisbury Mall.

Tickets for this event may be purchased at any location of Peninsula Bank or the two John Hanson Savings Banks in Salisbury. They may also be purchased at the Arts Council office located in the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center. The movie and party ticket is $30 per person ($10 tax-deductible) and a limited number of "movie-only" tickets can be purchased for $15 per person. For more information call 543-ARTS.

Tax Tips

Paying too much in income taxes? By planning now and acting before the end of the year, you may be able to reduce your tax bill next April.

Dr. Robert F. Dombrowski, associate professor of accounting, will give a 30-minute presentation on "Year-End Tax Planning Tips" on Tuesday, November 14, at 7:30 p.m. The presentation will take place in Pocomoke Room C of the University Center.

Dombrowski is one of of the newest members of the SSU Speakers Bureau which features some 45 faculty and staff members who share their expertise on a broad array of topics with organizations throughout the Eastern Shore. He received advanced business degrees from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania and from Louisiana Tech University.

The presentation is free and open to the public.

Philosophy Positions

The Philosophy Department of Salisbury State University is now accepting applications for two full-time, tenure-track faculty positions at the assistant professor level, beginning in the fall, 1990. One definite position and one possible. The position involves teaching four (4) undergraduate courses each semester.

A love for undergraduate teaching and a profound commitment to liberal education are the primary pre-requisites. AOS: open but not political philosophy or philosophy of religion. AOC: We are looking for a generalist with a strong background in the history of philosophy. It would be helpful if areas of competence included some of the following: applied ethics, aesthetics, metaphysics, theory of knowledge, critical thinking, acquaintance with both analytic and phenomenological traditions, Eastern philosophies and feminism.

An important part of non-teaching duties, beside normal committee work, will be working with other faculty and students on projects generated by the student Philosophical Society.

We prefer applicants who have the doctorate in hand; an applicant who has not completed the dissertation would enter at the instructor level. Salary is competitive. While we realize it is difficult for candidates to respond individually to different job descriptions, it would greatly assist us if you would send us first, something that will give us an idea of your philosophical approach; and second, syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and for the upper level course you would most enjoy teaching. These materials and a dossier should be sent to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Candidates will be interviewed at the Eastern meeting of the American Philosophical Association. To be selected for a pre-arranged interview, candidates must complete their application by December 5. No new applications will be considered after the Eastern meeting.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, monorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Last weekend brought a mix of both good news and bad news to the SSU athletic teams. Starting with the good, Coach Joe Dailey's football squad exploded for 46 points in notching its first win of the season, 46-28 at Western Connecticut on Saturday. Senior Donald Washington rushed for 189 yards and four touchdowns to lead a Sea Gull offense that accumulated a season-high 523 total yards, including 401 yards rushing. John Cooksey added 126 yards on the ground for the Gulls, including a 47-yard touchdown run, and fullback Steve Robb finished with 83 yards. Salisbury, 1-6-1, closes out the season this Saturday at Davidson College, which is in the first year of a transition from Division I-AA to Division III football.

On the bad news side, Coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team came one game short of its fourth straight trip to the Final Four, as the Gulls were eliminated from the NCAA playoffs with a 3-0 loss to defending champion Trenton State. SSU, hosting one of the four regional playoffs, beat Millersville, 4-0, in Friday's opening round before succumbing to Trenton in the regional final. Debe Clarke, Michele Ghezzi, Cheryl Ish and Vicki Miller each netted goals in Salisbury's win over Millersville. The Gulls end the '89 season with a record of 15-4-1.

No news turned out to be bad news for the volleyball team, which failed to get an invitation to the NCAA playoffs. SSU was the second-ranked team in the South Region and boasted a record of 33-10, but was nevertheless overlooked in the selection of the 24-team playoff field.

The men's and women's cross country teams cap their season this weekend in the Mideast Regionals in Allentown, PA. The top two teams in both the men's and women's divisions will qualify for the NCAA Finals next weekend. Even if the Gulls should fail to capture one of the top two team finishes, they could still qualify individuals for the national meet with strong showings.

Coach Rosie Barretta's swim team faces Goucher in the second meet of the season this Saturday. Salisbury features a predominately young squad, made up of mostly first and second-year members, as it tries to better last year's 2-4 record.

Also primed to begin the season are the men's and women's basketball teams, which continue to practice hard in anticipation of next week's openers. Coach Ward Lambert's men's team opens the season on Friday, November 17 in the W & L Tournament, while women's team Coach Rhonda Warmsley makes her debut at Virginia Wesleyan on November 21.

Seven Named to Board of UM Foundation

The University of Maryland Foundation recently elected seven business and community leaders to its board of directors. The foundation is the independent philanthropic affiliate of the University of Maryland System.

The new directors are: Michael Barnes, of Kensington; Lance Billingsley, of Adelphi; Emanuel Fthenakis, of Potomac; Norma Lee Funger, of Potomac; Phillip Merrill, of Arnold; Jay Nussbaum, of Great Falls, VA; and John Paterakis, of Baltimore.

The Foundation was established 11 years ago to increase the level of private support of the then five-campus University of Maryland. During this period, annual philanthropic support for has grown from $3.5 million to $20 million.

The University of Maryland System, comprised of 11 degree-granting and four major research and service institutions, last year launched the Campaign for Maryland to raise $200 million in private support. Foundation directors are working with the Campaign Leadership Committee to ensure the success of this first, major fund-raising effort ever undertaken by the University System. To date, the campaign has attracted $110.6 million in gifts and pledges.

Faculty/Student Forum

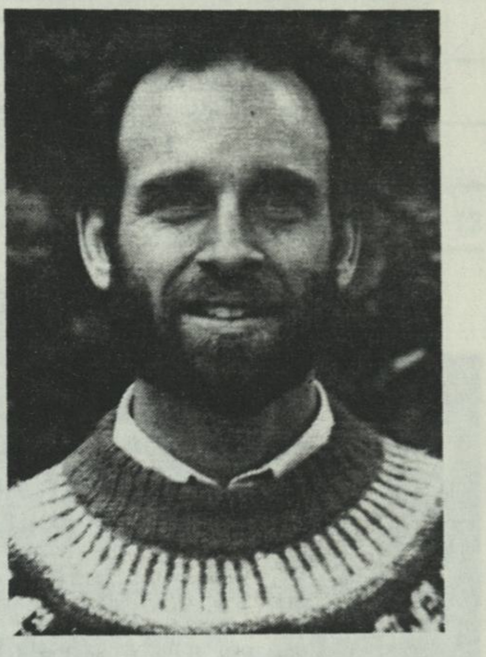
(a) Phone System (b) Parking (c) Safety on Rt. 13 going to and returning from the Power Building (d) Implementation of a different meal plan (e) Registration (f) Residence concerns about tape on walls If you have any other concerns please come and express your views. For more information contact the Student Senate office at 548-4757 or Lynn at 546-3789.

SSU Greeks at AU

The American University Panhellenic Association was host to the Northeast Panhellenic Conference on Saturday, October 28. Representing SSU were Tina Cannon, president of SSU Panhellenic Association, Gerri Butler, delegate, and Carol Bloodsworth, advisor.

The conference dealt with "Human Dignity" issues and suggestions for "Building Unity in the Greek System."

Other institutions represented were Georgetown University, University of Delaware, UMBC, Towson State University and Western Maryland College.



Dr. Andrew B. Schmookler, author of the prize-winning "The Parable of the Tribes," will visit the Salisbury State University campus on Wednesday, November 15, where he will lecture at 7:30 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall. A summa cum laude graduate of Harvard College, Dr. Schmookler went on to earn his doctorate at Berkeley in a program specially created to accommodate his comprehensive perspective on cultural evolution. His commentaries on social and political issues have appeared in such journals as "The Christian Science Monitor" and have been heard on National Public Radio. In 1985 Schmookler was selected by "Esquire Magazine" as one of the "men and women under 40 who are changing the nation." Schmookler's talk is free and the public is invited.

While on campus he will be available for guest appearances in classes. Please contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, sociology and anthropology, at 543-6430, if faculty members would like to schedule him for one of their classes.

the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

On Thursday, November 9, he will be in concert in the Wicomico Room. The starting time is 8 p.m. Besides his own original material, sprinkled throughout will be songs by Bob Dylan, the Beatles, Bruce Springsteen, Paul Simon, Bo Diddley, Dire Straits, James Taylor, and Elvis Costello. Barry has released 3 albums to date, "Happylanding," "Roadsongs" and "Solo Survivor," and has appeared in concert with Jim Croce, Emmylou Harris, Van Morrison, Livingston Taylor, Michael Johnson, Loudon Wainwright, David Bramberg, and many others.

Newsweek Magazine has recently named Drake one of the nation's top college acts and he has been nominated for Campus Entertainer Of The Year by the National Association of Campus Activities.

He is currently living in New York's Catskill Mountains but spends the greater part of the year on the road doing what he does best, performing on college campuses from coast to coast.

For more information on the concert or presentation, contact Amy Wiedener, SSU Student Activities Director at 543-6209.

The Conservancy's 3,000-acre preserve here shelters river otters, 15 orchid species, pileated woodpeckers, 18 different warblers and the state's last large stand of Atlantic white cedar.

In cooperation with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, the Conservancy has added more that 2,600 acres of tidal marshland and old-growth loblolly pine forest to the existing Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge. Blackwater boasts a high density of nesting bald eagles and is a major overwintering area for Canada geese along the Atlantic Flyway, a rest stop for peregrine falcons and one of the most productive muskrat habitats in the U.S.

Nelson was formerly manager of finance and information in the Conservancy's Tradelands Department. He received his B.A. from Hampshire College and his Master's in Public Administration at George Washington University.

He says that since childhood his first love has been the out-of-doors and has always wanted to work in the conservation area. Favorite pursuits are camping, backpacking and fishing, and to explore natural areas "anywhere I can."

His presentation is jointly sponsored by the Man and Nature group and The Franklin P. Perdue Shool of Business.

Ground Broken on $15.2 Million Fulton Hall

Architect Jacob Gzesh, far right, shows a scale model of Fulton Hall to J. Roland Dashiell, building contractor; Martha and Charles Fulton, major contributors; and Dr. Thomas Bellavance

Before a festive audience of friends of the University and members of the campus community, Salisbury State broke ground on Thursday, November 9, for its first new classroom building in more than a decade, the $15.2 million Fulton Hall.

This is the first new state-supported structure on campus since Maggs gymnasium, which opened in 1977. New construction since then, mostly dorms and a University Center, has been paid for with non-tax dollars.

"A positive result of the new University of Maryland System governance structure," said Dr. Bellavance, "is that construction for this new complex is starting now. Under the old system the building wouldn't be coming up for funding for another two to three years.

"I also offer kudos to the state Department of General Services and its secretary, Earl Seboda, for their tremendous cooperation," Bellavance continued, "and to Vice President of Administration Joseph Gilbert, who has worked for two years to get the kind of building we can be proud of."

The most expensive construction project in SSU history, the structure is an 85,000 square foot complex which covers approximately the same amount of land as Holloway Hall, the campus administration building, and provides some 12,000 square feet more space than the new University Center, which opened in 1988.

The new structure will be on the site of Tawes Hall (a one-time gymnasium that was unfeasible to renovate), an annex building to Holloway and a temporary parking lot. Occupancy is expected during the spring semester of 1992.

A sister structure to Holloway whose soaring classical columns and weathered copper cupola have become emblematic of the University, Fulton Hall also will be Georgian in style with Flemish bond brickwork, a high peaked slate roof, a two-story columned entrance, and ornamental bricking and roof dormers. Curving pathways, small brick plazas and a gently arced one-story portico add to its friendliness.

Like Holloway, Fulton Hall appears to be less a massive structure than a series of wings, each with its own personality and function. The new complex will house a variety of academic disciplines, and bring together under one roof for the first time in the history of the University, performing and fine arts programs in the School

Holiday Art Sale Coming in December

The Art Department of Salisbury State University will hold its sixth annual Holiday Art Sale to raise money for scholarships beginning Friday, December 8, in the Atrium Gallery of the University Center.

This eagerly awaited event has become an annual tradition, drawing hundereds of shoppers from throughout the area, and developing a mailing list of over a 1,000, said Marie Tator Quillen, associate professor of art and prime mover for the fund-raiser.

From gifts of holiday ornaments, ceramics and jewelry by University art students (priced as low as $1) to major pieces by artists with regional and international exhibition exposure, this collection of original works has traditionally appealed to all levels of taste, sophistication and pocketbooks.

Starting out as a one afternoon exhibit by faculty and students in 1984 to a what is now a four-day sale, it includes artists beyond the campus as far away as Baltimore, New Jersey and Philadelphia. Times are Friday and Saturday, December 8 and 9, from 9 a.m.- 4 p.m., and Monday and Tuesday, December 11 and 12, from 9 a.m.- 8 p.m.

"The sale will be filled with appealing works appropriate for holiday gift-giving," Quillen said. For purchase are a combination of realistic and abstract paintings, pastel drawings and intaglio prints, pottery and photography. "An added delight will be handcrafted jewelry and hair ornaments," Quillen continued, "and fitting the season, tree and home decorations."

Contributing this year are painters John Cleary, Paula Hepburn, Alice Jackson and Mary Gerlock, all of Salisbury; Vesna Dovis from Exmore, VA; Beckey Law of Crisfield; Sharon Gribbin-Lindemon of Baltimore; and Robert Tolley of Cambridge. Other artists are Dot Truitt of Salisbury and Nancy Spiser of Easton.

Photographers include Jean Anderton of Salisbury and Rick Maloof of White Haven.

Potters represented are Jose Dovis of Exmore, VA, who was featured this past April in Colonial Homes Magazine and exhibited internationally; Beth Fusaro, Jan Hills and Ann Colonna of Salisbury; and Kay Ross of Berlin.

Craftspeople include Susan Womack of Salisbury and Jill Olsen of Philadelphia and New Jersey.

Students presenting works this year are Karl Connolly, Seth Gomoljak, Thora Westry and others.

An on-going tradition of awarding door prizes makes the event even more fun for patrons. Over 20 items will be given away. For every $10 worth of purchases, a ticket will be placed

Winter Dance Concert December 7-9

From the beauty of Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" and "Hymn to the Virgin" to energized interpretations of youthful popular music—all promise a Winter Dance Concert this year that is both "playful and uplifting—a celebration," in the words of one of its choreographers.

To be held Thursday and Friday, December 7 and 8, at 8 p.m., and Saturday, December 9, at 2 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium, this is the first concert in two years by Dance Company director, Kathryn Martin, who has been on a leave of absence while studying at the University of Colorado (CU).

Martin, whose CU production of W.B. Yeat's dance play, "At the Hawk's Well," has been honored by inclusion in the National Opera Conference in Albuquerque, NM, this month, brings a theatrical background to her work.

SSU Concert Choir Fundraiser Set for November 27

The fundraiser "Sounds of Broadway," will be presented on Monday, November 27, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the the University Center.

Members of of the Salisbury State Concert Choir will be presenting an evening of entertainment featuring the work of Leonard Bernstein, Andrew Lloyd Webber, Stephen Sondheim, and Rogers and Hammerstein. All funds raised will help defray expenses of the choir members traveling to southern Germany, as part of an exchange with the Augsburg University Choir, in January 1990.

Selected singers will perform Broadway selections and there will be special guest appearances by Phyllis Oldham, Katherine Turner-Barlow, Paul and Martha Pfeiffer, Kathleen Jacobi-Karna, and the director of the SSU Choir and trip coordinator, Dr. Duane R. Karna.

While in Germany, the ensemble will perform at St. Michael's Church in Altenstadt, St. Martins Church in Marktoberdorf, and at Augsburg University with the Augsburg University Choir. The ensemble has also been invited for a two week residency in Marktoberdorf, at the Bavarian Music Academy where SSU students will rehearse and study. The suggested minimum donation is $5 for adults and $3 for students which will be collected at the door.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement Exercises will be held on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

SSU News Deadlines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the University published each Thursday during the fall and spring semesters, unless noted.

The deadline is the previous Friday at 4 p.m. All news items should be typed and double spaced. Because stories are typeset on a first come, first served basis, do not feel you have to wait until Friday to bring news items to us.

The Public Relations Office is located in room 264 of Holloway Hall. Call 543-6030 for more information.

'The King Stag' Opens November 15

Salisbury State Theatre presents, as its final offering of the fall season, for the young and young at heart, The King Stag.

A pre-Thanksgiving treat, the play openes on Wednesday, November 15 and runs through Monday, November 20, featuring a matinee on Sunday, November 19, and will be performed on stage in Holloway Hall. To accommodate the needs of young audiences during the week, performances of the play will begin at 7:30 p.m. Lasting approximately one hour, The King Stag is a charming bedtime story for all ages - and brief enough to be home in bed by 9 p.m.

Delightfully comic, The King Stag is a romantic fairytale of wizardry and intrigue. With costumes and masks designed by Donna Larsen, SSU Theatre's Artist in Residence, and inspired by images from the circus, Matisse and Medieval gargoyles, The King Stag promises to be a colorful, silly and slightly satirical evenings entertainment.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Award-winning Novelist to Read Here November 16

David Bradley, author of the award-winning novel, The Chaneysville Incident, will read from this and other of his works at 8 p.m. on Thursday, November 16. The reading will be in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

The Chaneysville Incident, published in 1981 by Harper & Row, was a Book-of-the-Month Club and Playboy Book Club choice, had several foreign printings and was a nominee for the American Book Award.

His essays have been featured in numerous anthologies and published in The Village Voice, Esquire, New York Times Magazine and The Nation.

He lists as major works in progress a non-fiction book titled, The Bondage Hypothesis: Meditations on Race in America, a screenplay and a novel.

His full-time post is at Temple University in Philadelphia where he is a professor in the Department of English. However, he is currently on a Guggenheim Fellowship teaching at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) in Cambridge, MA.

For more information, call 543-6030.

History Club Dinner

The History Club will hold its annual Christmas Dinner this year at the Snow Hill Inn, a beautiful, eighteenth-century country tavern. Come and enjoy a cheerful atmosphere and a delicious dinner Friday night, December 8, from 7-10 p.m. All students and faculty of the University are welcome to join us in celebrating the Christmas season. Cost for the dinner including dessert will be $12.50 per person. Please pay Dr. Timothy Miller or Mrs. Ellen Fykes in the History Department Office (Holloway Hall 380) before 4 p.m., Friday, November 17. If you have any questions, call Dr. Tim Miller or Mrs. Fykes at either 543-6245 or 543-6243.

Bicycle Safety Tips From Public Safety

1. Wear a helmet with a hard shell.
2. Ride a proper size bike. It should have a bell or horn, reflectors and a headlight for night riding.
3. Obey all signs and signals.
4. Don't carry passengers on your bike.
5. Drive with the traffic and in single file.
6. Signal other roadway uses.
7. Be bright at night. Wear bright clothes and make sure you have lights and reflectors on your bike.
8. Watch out for storm drains.
9. Watch out for wet pavement, wet leaves and loose gravel.
10. Watch out for cars leaving driveways.
11. Watch out for dogs and other animals.
12. Watch out for parked cars opening their doors.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

Human Volunteers Committee

The Human Volunteers Committee will meet on Friday, November 17, and Friday, December 15 to consider research protocals involving human subjects. Please try to get your protocal to the committee as early as possible. If you have any questions, please call Fran Kane at 543-6429 or Karen Johnson at 543-4616.

Lecture on Historical Embroideries

Ruth Garbisch Manchester, an art historian, will present a slide presentation and talk on Monday, November 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center. Manchester will speak on "Art From the Academies: Schoolgirl Embroideries from the Late 18th and 19th Centuries."

The talk, sponsored jointly by the University Center and the SSU Department of Art, will be in conjunction with the November meeting of the Embroiderers' Guild of America, Chesapeake Chapter. The Guild, in celebration of its 10th anniversary, is currently exhibiting its work in the Atrium Gallery in the University Center. The exhibit is open daily from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. through December.

Brown Bag Luncheon

The Perdue School will feature Dr. Vahan Janjigian, (Ph.D., V.P.I.) assistant professor of finance, University of Delaware, at a Brown Bag Luncheon to be held Friday, November 10, in the President's Conference Room of Holloway Hall, beginning at noon. Dr. Janjigian will make his presentation on "The Tax Reform Act of 1986: Effects and Implications." Interested faculty and staff of the University are invited to attend this presentation.

Cookie Colloquium

The Philosophical Society's first cookie colloquium of the year will be held Thursday, November 16, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers 118.

The guest speaker will be Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, and she will discuss "'You'll Never Be The Man Your Mother Was': Issues in Language and Gender." Rubin will discuss the underlying intellectual issues that relate to language and gender.

Three panelists, Mary Spies of the Philosophical Society, Dr. Ed Steffes of Sociology and Carolyn Stegman of Psychology, will respond to Rubin's remarks.

All are welcome and invited to participate. Refreshments will be served.

German Society Scholarships Available

The German Society of Maryland will give tuition scholarship aid to students of German ancestry residing in Maryland. Students must be enrolled at a Maryland four-year college or university.

The committee would welcome applications from students with a 3.0 GPA who must prove financial need. Application blanks can be obtained from The German Society of Maryland, P.O. Box 22585, Baltimore, MD 21203. The Princeton Financial Statement, obtainable from Financial Aid Officer, is required.

Applications postmarked after April 15, and incomplete applications will be judged ineligible and returned.

Book Fair

Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society, in coordination with the Student National Education Association are sponsoring a Great American Book Fair.

The fair will feature reasonably priced books, posters and videotapes for the primary grades through middle school. One can choose from hundreds of titles for the young reader including mysteries, classics, biographies, sports, adventures, popular fiction, workbooks, humor and how-to books.

The book fair represents an opportunity to get reasonably priced, yet educational Christmas presents. Also, it provides an excellent opportunity for education majors to build a personal library for the classroom.

Lists of the books that will be offered at the fair are available in the Education Office.

The dates of the book fair are: Saturday, December 2, 10 a.m. - 3 p.m., University Center; Monday, December 4, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Caruthers lobby; Tuesday, December 5, 9 a.m. - 7 p.m., Caruthers lobby; and Thursday, December 7, 3 p.m. - 7 p.m., Caruthers lobby. For more information contact Laura Foley, 641-6184.

Long-Term Disability Benefit Plan Reviewed

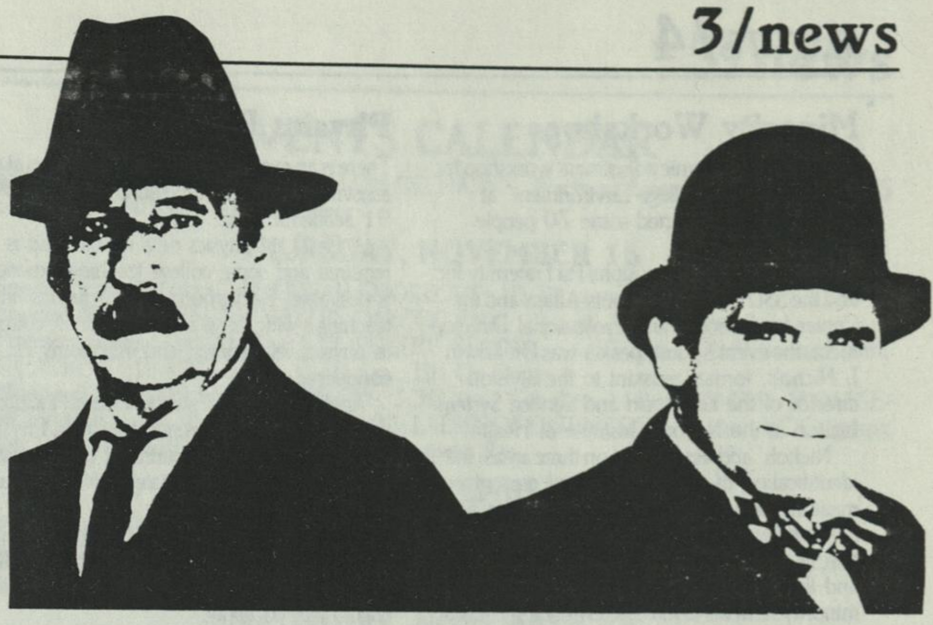
Presentations will be given at 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. each day, with opportunities in between for questions. On November 21, a representative from Commercial Life, Dennis New, will be on hand to make the presentations and answer questions.



JEAN de FLORETTE

'Jean de Florette' At SSU This Weekend

On Saturday and Sunday, November 18 and 19, SSPB Films presents "Jean de Florette" (1987), a critically acclaimed tale of greed and intolerance.

Director and co-screenwriter Claude Berri provides an exquisite adaptation of Marcel Pagnol's beloved novel about shattered dreams among Provencal peasant farmers in the 1920s. Gerard Depardieu ("The Return of Martin Gerre") is Jean, an optimistic hunchback city-slicker who inherits a valuable piece of land but is thwarted by his villainous neighbor. It features French dialogue with English subtitles.

The sequel, "Manon of the Spring," filmed at the same time as "Jean de Florette," focuses on Jean's daughter's attempt to revenge her father. It will be shown on campus in April.

Show times are at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Admission is free and open to the general public.

December SSPB films include Baltimore director John Waters' infamous "Pink Flamingos" followed by a double feature of psychedelia—the Beatles "Yellow Submarine" with Pink Floyd's "The Wall."

The SSPB series presents films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first. For further information contact David Todd at the SSPB Office in the University Center, 543-6197 or 543-6125.

25+ Student Union News

The 25+ Student Union, non-traditionally aged students of Salisbury State University, conducted another successful meeting on November 4.

The group discussed many subjects pertaining to students of non-traditional ages such as a day care center, scheduling of classes and future activities. Before the meeting, members of the Executive Council had a chance to be interviewed by representatives of WMDT-TV, channel 47.

The group's next meeting will be a brown bag lunch on Friday, November 17, at noon. It will be held in Nanticoke Room A of the University Center. The guest speaker, Terry Clay from the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will talk about stress management while juggling a full-time job, family and school. Everyone is welcome to attend. For those students wishing to express their needs and/or suggestions about non-traditionally aged students' issues, there are surveys available in the Student Activities and Organizations Office, second floor, University Center. For more information, please call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6209 or write to 25+ Student Union, P.O. Box 3074, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

IRP Member Olympics Winner

Mrs. Sara Lee Poore, 78, of Nanticoke brought home three gold medals from the Maryland Senior Olympics held October 12-14, at Towson State University.

Mrs. Poore, who is a member of the Institute for Retired Persons at Salisbury State, won golds in the 50-yard free-style and 50-yard back stroke events and the 100-yard free style. In the 50-yard back stroke she broke the record that she set in the 1987 Olympics.

Both Poore and her husband, Oscar, are active in IRP. For further information about the Senior Olympics contact Mrs. Agnes Taylor, Maryland Office on Aging, Baltimore, MD, (301) 225-1094.

For information on Poore contact her at Box 52, Main Street, Nanticoke, MD 21840, 873-2115.

Minority Workshop

A social and academic adjustment workshop for "Minorities in a College Environment" at Salisbury State attracted some 70 people recently.

Sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Inc. and the SSU Office of Minority Affairs and the Center for Personal and Professional Development, the event's guest speaker was Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, former assistant to the division director of the Education and Service System Liaison at the National Institute of Health.

Nichols' address focused on three areas: the identification of the historical and current meaning of being a minority student on a predominantly white campus; the expectations that its institution has for its minority students; and the social and academic adjustments that minority students to make to ensure a successful college career.

Health Careers Day and Job Fair

The annual Health Careers Day and Job Fair, sponsored by the School of Nursing and Health Sciences and the Center for Personal and Professional Development, is scheduled for Friday, November 17.

The event will take place from 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m. at Peninsula General Hospital's Educational Center. Representatives from over 35 employers will be available to provide information to students and alumni interested in health careers.

Hospitals to be represented are from Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and Washington, D.C. State and federal agengies, such as the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Veterans Administration, Army and Navy, will also be on hand.

For more information on this career placement opportunity, contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6075.

Cultural Considerations Course To Be Offered

A course is being offered in "Cultural Considerations in Nursing and Health Care" this spring. The two-credit course, which will meet on Mondays from 6 - 8 p.m., is open to any interested student seeking undergraduate or graduate credit as well as qualified non-degree students.

The course will focus on the influence of culture on human response to health and illness and on health care delivery. Students will explore sociocultural beliefs and values relevant to health seeking behaviors and examine alternative health care practices. Fieldwork experiences will be a part of student learning. Strategies for working with people from other cultures will be discussed.

The course will be taught by Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor of nursing. Roberson has a doctorate in transcultural nursing and a master's in community health nursing. She has been conducting research on Southern rural African American health culture for the past nine years and has presented papers and published articles nationally and internationally on cultural concerns in health care.

For more information contact Roberson at 543-6420 or 543-6409.

Econo Lodge President Next Great Leader

Robert Weller, president of Econo Lodges of America, Inc., concludes this fall's Great Leader Lecture Series with a presentation on Wednesday, November 29, at 1:15 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The lecture, sponsored by the Perdue School of Business, is free and open to the public.

Weller returned as president of Econo Lodges (formerly Econo-Travel Motor Hotel Corp.) on June 23, 1986. On July 21, 1986 he was also elected a director of the company.

Weller had served with the chain from its formative years, beginning with the company in 1973. From that time, Econo Lodges of America grew from 32 motels in eight states to present operations of over 550 properties in 45 states and Canada, representing more than 42,000 rooms.

During Weller's tenure as president and a director of the company from 1976 - 1984, the company experienced dramatic gains in earnings and growth. Econo Lodge is now the largest franchisor of motor hotel properties in the economy lodging industry.

The company is currently realizing a 20 percent annual growth rate on Delmarva. Econo Lodges has locations in Ocean City, Easton, Cambridge, Dover, Rehoboth Beach and Princess Anne.

While serving as chief executive officer, Weller was instrumental in developing most of the management and operating systems for Econo Lodges. Through the implementation of an innovative sales plan in 1980, Econo Lodges began a period of dynamic growth which has continued since that time. Weller was also a key figure in the company's acquisitions, the continual redesign of its franchise agreements and the formation in 1974 of its Franchisee Association.

Previous background of Weller includes work in market analysis and feasibility in restaurants and investment real estate. Prior positions with Econo-Travel Motor Hotel Corp. included operations manager, assistant to the president, and director of franchise sales.

In the two years prior to his resuming the post of president, Weller was involved in franchise development and hotel development both in the United States and United Kingdom. Weller holds a Bachelor of Science from Cornell University and prior to beginning college served three years in the U.S. Marine Corps. He is a member of the Presidents Association, The Chief Executive Officers' division of the American Management Association, serves on the Industry Advisory Council of the American Hotel & Motel Association and is listed in Who's Who in America.

Upcoming speakers in this spring's continuation of the Great Leader Series include: Leslie Charm, president of Docktor Pet Centers, Inc., on Thursday, March 1 at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center; and R.V. Haysbert, Sr., president and CEO of Parks Sausage Company, on Wednesday, April 11, at 11 a.m. also in the Wicomico Room. For information on Weller's presentation or other aspects of the series contact the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Hymnal Celebration

The churches of the Salisbury United Methodist Cluster present "A Celebration of the Gospel in Hymns," on Sunday, November 26, at 7 p.m. at Bethesda United Methodist Church, 406 N. Division Street.

All are welcome to this informal service of praise and hymn-singing for the new United Methodist Hymnal, led by the Rev. Dr. Laurence Stookey of Wesley Seminary. A time of fellowship and refreshments will follow the service.

Philosophy Positions

The Philosophy Department of Salisbury State University is now accepting applications for two full-time, tenure-track faculty positions at the assistant professor level, beginning in fall, 1990. One definite position and one possible. The position involves teaching four (4) undergraduate courses each semester.

A love for undergraduate teaching and a profound commitment to liberal education are the primary pre-requisites. AOS: open but not political philosophy or philosophy of religion. AOC: The department is looking for a generalist with a strong background in the history of philosophy. It would be helpful if areas of competence included some of the following: applied ethics, aesthetics, metaphysics, theory of knowledge, critical thinking, acquaintance with both analytic and phenomenological traditions, Eastern philosophies and feminism.

An important part of non-teaching duties, beside normal committee work will be working with other faculty and students on projects generated by the student Philosophical Society.

The department prefers applicants who have the doctorate in hand; an applicant who has not completed the dissertation would enter at the instructor level. Salary is competitive. While wthe department realizes it is difficult for candidates to respond individually to different job descriptions, it would greatly assist the deparatment if candidates would send first, something that will give the department an idea of one's philosophical approach; and second, syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and for the upper level course one would most enjoy teaching. These materials and a dossier should be sent to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Candidates will be interviewed at the Eastern meeting of the American Philosophical Association. To be selected for a pre-arranged interview, candidates must complete their application by December 5. No new applications will be considered after the Eastern meeting.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, monorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Basketball PA Announcer Needed

Individuals interested in serving as the public address "Voice of the Sea Gulls" should contact Paul Ohanian, SSU sports information director, room 267, Holloway Hall, 543-6016. Qualified candidates should know basketball, have a clear speaking voice and be enthusiastic. Dependability and schedule flexibility are a must. Position does include a small per game stipend.

Mescon Speaker

Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at Salisbury State University, spoke at a recent management conference for C & P Telephone at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City.

The theme of the conference was "Entering the '90s." Conferees were given information on technological issues including fiber optics and packet switching, legislative issues, labor and personnel issues and the Quality Improvement Process (QIP) which C & P Telephone will be implementing in 1990.

Following the presentation, there was a demonstration on fiber optics and laser technology.

Business Plan Competition

Is the American Dream still alive and well? Is anyone just a better mousetrap away from financial security and independence?

Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, fervently believes in the importance of the entrepreneurial spirit to the international economy; and he's doing something about it.

Innovative, risk-oriented plans from business students around the world are currently being received for the fourth annual International Business Plan Competition, sponsored by Salisbury State University's Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and Georgia State University.

"America was built on entrepreneurship—and still pays it lip service. Yet there are very few public sector incentives for start-up operations," said Meson. "In today's world of mergers and conglomerates business successes are increasingly measured by paper transactions far removed from the traditional marketplace.

"We've become less risk oriented and more skeptical about providing seed money for smaller, innovative ventures," said Mescon. "Countries like Canada are investing hundreds of millions of dollars into new businesses because they realize how essential such enterprises are to a healthy, viable economy. We've developed this competition to galvanize young entrepreneurs and give them the chance to follow a business plan forward, making the connection between theory and practical application."

Developed from an idea by Mescon and Florida entrepreneur Lee Ruwitch (whose own Horatio Alger story has taken him from a modest post-war position at a Miami television station to a fortune in publishing), the International Business Plan Competition is expected to attract hundreds of entries by the closing date on January 19.

Each plan must be developed in an undergraduate or graduate course under the supervision of a faculty member. It must cover the whole business concept from start-up to implementation. Faculty members from around the world will review the plans and assess them in 25 categories to determine feasibility and attractiveness to investors.

Universities such as San Diego State, Notre Dame and the University of Virginia are hosting regional competitions in connection with the contest. Five overall finalists will be invited to make presentations to a panel of academics, entrepreneurs and venture capitalists in Atlanta, GA during March 1990 to coincide with the national meeting of the Association of College Entrepreneurs (better known—not surprisingly—as ACE). The winner will be presented with the $7,500 prize at a dinner attended by over 1,000 bankers, venture capitalists attorneys, students and faculty. A scholarship of $2,500 will go to the school attended by the winner.

Previous years have elicited plans for an aquaculture farm in Saskatchewan, a helicopter rescue service in San Diego and a junk yard in Phoenix. A board game based on the books of James Michener was produced, in time for the Christmas market, and has already been featured in Newsweek magazine, USA Today and other national media.

Previous years' finalists have been flown in from as far afield as France and Jamaica. The winner in 1989, Michael Y. Graham of Libertyville, IL, came up with an ingenious plan to open a Roaring '20s Museum in Chicago, complete with gangsters' cars, machine guns and fashions of the time.

"Beyond sound business planning and hard work, there's no substitute for good timing," said Mescon. "We all remember the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, when sail boarding and roller skating were in the running to become Olympic demonstration sports. Sail boarding won out, and people who had their investments in sail boards were pretty pleased with themselves, whereas anyone who'd invested in roller skates had to take a night job. Just examples of good and bad timing."

According to Mescon, "The Horatio Alger spirit is alive and well and the fourth annual International Business Plan Competition is designed to encourage and foster innovation and creativity among students at all levels."

of Liberal Arts.

Off the main entrance will be a 3,000 square foot art gallery, some three times larger than the current one. The present University Gallery is "basically a corner of Blackwell Library," noted Gilbert.

Increased gallery size "will make the University eligible for traveling shows that are much more extensive than what we can now accommodate," said dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Sharon Rubin.

East of the gallery will be a raked mini-auditorium for lectures and slide/film presentations. Immediately west off the lobby is a black box theatre with flexible audience seating accommodating up to 200. "For the first time," said vice president of Academic Affairs, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, "we will have a theatre designed as a theatre and an art gallery designed as an art gallery."

Beyond the lecture hall, the complex houses new music facilities. Highlights include an electronic studio and a modern music library. Currently the Music Department is being housed in a one-time restaurant off Rt. 13.

Neighboring the Music Department will be military science and art. Art will have not only various studios, but an outdoor ceramics and sculpture garden for students working with larger pieces and welding work, and new photographic darkrooms including one for color film.

"Nationally and internationally there is more and more collaboration in the arts today," Dean Rubin added. "For example 'performance art' may incorporate theatre, music and the visual arts. By having all of our fine arts together we can encourage the kind of cutting edge collaboration and exploration which is so exciting, particularly in a university setting."

The south wing which faces the main campus plaza is entirely devoted to academic and administrative computer services. It will provide 24-hour access to computer students. Throughout the structure are classrooms, faculty offices and student spaces.

Designed by Gzesh & Associates in joint venture with Bohlin, Powell, Larkin and Cywinski of Pittsburgh and Baltimore, the two-story building with its extensive southern exposure and many windows appears light and airy. According to Jacob J. Gzesh, principal of the firm, the new complex "reflects the human scale found in Holloway Hall...." It's meant to be a building where students, faculty and visitors can interact and feel comfortable, he added.

The name Fulton Hall was chosen to honor Charles and Martha Fulton of Snow Hill, who this year donated $2.5 million to endow the School of Liberal Arts.

Contractor is J. Roland Dashiell and Sons of Salisbury.

University officials agree that by moving programs and departments that are being housed in temporary facilites to Fulton Hall, all will have new opportunities for continued growth in depth and excellence.

Said Dean Rubin, "I anticipate a 'synergy' taking place.. .with exciting things happening we can't even guess about yet."

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The fall sports season finally came to an end last weekend as the football team and cross country squads closed out their schedules. The Gulls concluded the gridiron season with a 14-13 victory over Davidson College, giving Salisbury two straight wins to close out the year and a 2-6-1 record for the season.

Fullback Steve Robb rushed for 96 yards and both Sea Gull touchdowns against the Wildcats, but it was Davidson's failed two-point conversion pass with 1:19 to go that sealed the SSU win. Senior Donald Washington added 59 yards rushing to finish the season with 777 yards on the ground, tops on the team. The Sea Gull defense collected a season-high seven sacks, led by senior Mike Voorhees (2.5 sacks), who also finished with nine tackles in the game. Salisbury finished the year with 17 touchdowns scored, all on the ground.

Meanwhile, the men's and women's cross country squads closed out their first season under head coach Jerry Thomas by running in the Mideast Regionals in Allentown, PA. The Gulls failed to qualify any individuals for the nationals, but closed out what Thomas termed a "good season" by running well against top Division III competition.

With little break between overlapping seasons, the men's and women's basketball teams both open their '89-90 seasons this week. Coach Ward Lambert begins his 20th season on Saturday as his men's team plays in the W & L Tournament. The Gulls, 12-14 last year, open against Methodist College on Saturday, then meet host school Washington & Lee on Sunday in the round-robin format. Senior forward Joe McCahon is Lambert's top returning scorer, with a 15.1 ppg average last season. Junior guard David Byer (12.6 ppg) and senior forward Tim DeMar (9.8 ppg) are also expected to help carry the scoring load.

Coach Rhonda Warmsley and the women's team will get a few days of additional practice as it begin its season on Tuesday night at Virginia Wesleyan. The biggest challenge facing the first-year coach will be finding a replacement for departed forward Dawn Webb, last year's top scorer and rebounder with 22.1 ppg and 17.7 rpg. Warmsley does have eight returnees from last season's 16-11 team, including senior Sandy Jankevicius (12.6 ppg, 7.0 rpg) and junior Christie Ivison (10.9 ppg, 5.8 rpg).

The women's swim team continues its season this Saturday with a meet at Notre Dame College of Maryland. The team closes out its season folowing the Thanksgiving break with home meets against Hood and Marymount on Saturday, December 2, and Gallaudet on Tuesday, December 5.

IABC Students Attend Communicate '89

Nineteen members of the SSU Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators attended "Communicate '89," on November 16. "Communicate '89," at the University of Delaware in Newark, was a day-long forum for professionals and students who discussed the need for effective communication in a changing world.

The students had the choice of attending one of three workshops: "Future Trends in Advertising"; "Humor in the Workplace"; or "Color Imaging and Cycolor Technologies." Afterward Ron Martin, vice president of American Express, delivered the keynote speech.

The Salisbury State chapter of IABC is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in excellence in organizational communication. For membership information contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060.

Theatricality is also visible in the pieces by Holly Boda, assistant Dance Company director, who is a CU graduate.

Together the two have choreographed and will perform a duet to a collage of 1860s music by American composers and a text by Dr. John Wenke of the SSU English Department. "Men of the antebellum era refined their women…(much like) personal property," Boda said, "and spoke of women and horses very similarly.

"The title of the piece is 'Sapphire Women,' like a cool man-cut stone," she added.

Boda is also presenting the area premiere of her work "Waterless Handicap," originally done for her Master of Fine Arts degree in Colorado. In 1987 she was as an assistant to the "Up With People" organization where she worked with two performers in the company who were physically handicapped. Because they could not perform the original choreography, her goal was to explore their individual movement flow and use that to achieve the intent of the original movement.

From her work came a fresh way to look at handicapped motion. In "Waterless Handicap," five dancers, four wearing swim flippers and one without, perform the same dance. Because of the flippers the question arises, "Who's handicapped, the four who look the same, or the one who looks different?" Boda asked.

Ironically, in water, flippers are very graceful, and the person swimming without them would have to struggle," she noted.

Boda also is choreographing a piece to original music by Colorado-based composer, Michael Harris Kaump, titled "742-3578" which examines the telephone system and how technology affects communicating. A large piece with 17 dancers, it was inspired by "problems in talking with people on the phone." It includes a chorus of "fiber optics" and much like a play, has three musical acts or movements.

Besides her duet with Boda, Martin is choreographing a piece with African movement, and in sharp contrast, a holiday suite, to Britten's music. "Inspired by medieval liturgy and art," Martin said, "it attempts to capture the wonder of and pay hommage to the virgin birth."

Rounding out the concert are two works by student choreographers: a high energy dance interpretation of Paula Abdul's "Cold Hearted" choreographed by Chrissy Donohue and Katy Kilman, the latter a Dance Company apprentice from Bennett High School; and a second popular song, "Glamorous Life," sung by Sheila E., and choreographed in precision movement by Christina Macabenta, president of the SSU Dance Company.

"This will be a fast-paced concert," said Boda, "and a family-oriented one that everyone can relate to."

The company, which has about 35 members is made up of University students and alumni, two apprentices from local high schools, and SSU athletes including a football player and two wrestlers. "The wrestlers joined us because they wanted to increase their flexibility and it looked like fun," Boda said. "It is."

Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff and available at the door.

in the drawing box making customers eligible for one or more prizes. They range from a dinner for two at Basil's Restaurant, to gifts donated by local merchants including City Florist of the City Center; Art Express in the Allenwood Shopping Center; Legends Restaurant on the Downtown Plaza; the University Book Rack; the Gallery at Court Plaza; the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council; Johnny and Sammy's and English's Restuarants on Rt. 13; Baskin Robbins Ice Cream in the Claremont Shopping Center; Dunkin Donuts of Salisbury; and pizzas from Domino's, Lombardi's, and Tony's. Martin's Printing Company of Main St. is donating posters.

The drawing for prizes is Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the sale's closing.

"Our goal," said Quillen, "is to increase the amount of scholarships available for future fall freshmen and transfer art students. I'm particularly pleased by the way current students not only contribute art pieces but give of themselves by hanging and working the exhibit, and even continue to donate art works for holiday sales after they've graduated. This is our department's major scholarship drive for new students and I'm gratified by the efforts of art majors to help their department, their career field and their future colleagues." For more information contact the Art Department office at 543-6270 or Quillen at 543-6273.

Library Hours for Thanksgiving

Blackwell Library hours during Thanksgiving break are as follows: Tuesday, November 21, 8 a.m. - 6 p.m.; Wednesday, November 22, 8 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Thursday, Friday, Saturday, November 23-25, closed; Sunday, November 26, 6 p.m. - midnight.

Chemistry Article Published

The August issue of the "Journal of Chemical Education" includes an article authored by three chemists from Salisbury State's Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology.

Dr. David Rieck, Dr. Frederick Kundell and Paul Clements describe a variation of a classical physical chemistry experiment in their article titled "The Generation of Heteronuclear Diatomic Gases for Determination of Rotational Spectra."

According to Dr. Don Cathcart, interim dean of the Henson School, "What Rieck, Kundell and Clements have done is really significant to us. They have found a way to involve students in their research activity. This particular exercise allows their students to see the interdependence of different branches of chemistry."

Twenty-nine professors with degrees from 52 different colleges and universities have joined the University faculty this fall.

"We have been fortunate indeed to be able to gain new positions for the University and more importantly fill those slots with some outstanding individuals," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of Academic Affairs. "The array of expertise of our new faculty is simply remarkable," he added.

Eight join The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and bring a wealth of experience to their classrooms. A national marketing consultant for the Office of the Prime Minister of the Republic of Turkey, Memo Diriker earned his Doctorate of Business Administration from Memphis State University. Robert Dombrowski, who has a D.B.A. from Louisiana Tech University, was the director of a budget in excess of $1.5 billion for the U.S. Air Force in Europe.

With a Ph.D. in business administration from Georgia State University, Nancy Green Hall holds consultations and seminars for business firms in the U.S. and Europe and taught at Mercer University, GA. Her husband, T.P. Hall, earned his Master of Science from Georgia Institute of Technology. A certified public accountant, he was professor of accounting at Georgia State University for 27 years.

H. Lee Meadow, who has a Ph.D. in business administration from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, has taught marketing for the past 12 years and served as a consultant, researcher and faculty intern. Pamela G. Giltman earned her Juris Doctorate from the University of Miami School of Law, was an associate attorney for a Florida law firm and was the assistant public defender for Palm Beach County, FL.

A certified public accountant with experience in real estate development and a former senior partner of C.W. Amos & Co. in Salisbury, Joseph Quinn earned his B.S. in business administration from the University of Maryland University College.

A 1989 M.B.A. graduate of the Perdue School at SSU, Debra A. Goodman has worked as a marketing research assistant for Draper Communications WBOC-TV 16 in Salisbury.

The School of Education and Professional Studies welcomes six new faculty members. Amy Stephens Meekins earned her Doctorate in Education from the University of Maryland in 1987 and has worked as an elementary school teacher and art specialist since 1977.

With an Ed.D. from Lehigh University, PA, James R. Replogle has served as a teacher, principal, superintendent and director of research in the Pennsylvania school system over the past 35 years.

Two new faculty members join the Physical Education Department. A former high school teacher who coaches basketball and volleyball, Rhonda Warmsley received her M.Ed. from SSU and her M.S. from Pennsylvania State University. Leslie Bartoshesky, a physical therapy/sports care aide, earned her Master of Sport Science from the U.S. Sports Academy in Daphne, AL. Assistant athletic trainer, she was the interim coordinator of the Health/Fitness program at Salisbury State during the 1987-88 academic year.

Ellen V. Whitford, an adjunct professor, English teacher and reading specialist from Doylestown, PA, graduated from Rutgers University with her Doctorate of Education last May. With a Ph.D. in philosophy from Duquesne University, PA, and a B.S. in mathematics from SSU, Richard S. Dubsky has taught mathematics and philosophy over the past 13 years.

The Henson School of Science has three new additions to its staff; two of them will be joining the mathematics faculty. Christopher J. Lewis, who earned his M.A. in mathematics from George Washington University, has taught mathematics since 1975. Kathleen M. Shannon earned her Ph.D. in applied mathematics from Brown University, RI, and was a visiting scholar at Cambridge University.

A Doctor of Veterinary Medicine graduate of Cornell University, NY, Barbara B. Wygal operated her own pet clinic in Walland, TN, and was a practitioner in several animal hospitals prior to that time.

Ten faculty members join the School of Liberal Arts this fall. Four of them will be going to the Communication Arts Department.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Bicycle Safety Tips From Public Safety

1. Wear a helmet with a hard shell.
2. Ride a proper size bike. It should have a bell or horn, reflectors and a headlight for night riding.
3. Obey all signs and signals.
4. Don't carry passengers on your bike.
5. Drive with the traffic and in single file.
6. Signal other roadway uses.
7. Be bright at night. Wear bright clothes and make sure you have lights and reflectors on your bike.
8. Watch out for storm drains.
9. Watch out for wet pavement, wet leaves and loose gravel.
10. Watch out for cars leaving driveways.
11. Watch out for dogs and other animals.
12. Watch out for parked cars opening their doors.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

Cultural Considerations Course To Be Offered

A course is being offered in "Cultural Considerations in Nursing and Health Care" this spring. The two-credit course, which will meet on Mondays from 6 - 8 p.m., is open to any interested student seeking undergraduate or graduate credit as well as qualified non-degree students.

The course will focus on the influence of culture on human response to health and illness and on health care delivery. Students will explore sociocultural beliefs and values relevant to health seeking behaviors and examine alternative health care practices. Fieldwork experiences will be a part of student learning. Strategies for working with people from other cultures will be discussed.

The course will be taught by Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor of nursing. Roberson has a doctorate in transcultural nursing and a master's in community health nursing. She has been conducting research on Southern rural African American health culture for the past nine years and has presented papers and published articles nationally and internationally on cultural concerns in health care.

For more information contact Roberson at 543-6420 or 543-6409.

German Society Scholarships Available

The German Society of Maryland will give tuition scholarship aid to students of German ancestry residing in Maryland. Students must be enrolled at a Maryland four-year college or university.

The committee would welcome applications from students with a 3.0 GPA who must prove financial need. Application blanks can be obtained from The German Society of Maryland, P.O. Box 22585, Baltimore, MD 21203. The Princeton Financial Statement, obtainable from Financial Aid Officer, is required.

Applications postmarked after April 15, and incomplete applications will be judged ineligible and returned.

Holiday Hours

The Book Rack will close for the Christmas break on Friday, December 22, at 5 p.m. and reopen for Winter Term on Tuesday, January 2.

Book Fair

Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society, in coordination with the Student National Education Association are sponsoring a Great American Book Fair.

The fair will feature reasonably priced books, posters and videotapes for the primary grades through middle school. One can choose from hundreds of titles for the young reader including mysteries, classics, biographies, sports, adventures, popular fiction, workbooks, humor and how-to books.

The book fair represents an opportunity to get reasonably priced, yet educational Christmas presents. Also, it provides an excellent opportunity for education majors to build a personal library for the classroom.

Lists of the books that will be offered at the fair are available in the Education Office.

The dates of the book fair are: Saturday, December 2, 10 a.m. - 3 p.m., University Center; Monday, December 4, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Caruthers lobby; Tuesday, December 5, 9 a.m. - 7 p.m., Caruthers lobby; and Thursday, December 7, 3 p.m. - 7 p.m., Caruthers lobby. For more information contact Laura Foley, 641-6184.

Soroptimist Scholarship

Applications for the Soroptimist International of Salisbury training awards are available in the Financial Aid Office. The award is made to a mature woman completing undergraduate studies so that she may enter or re-enter the labor market. The intent is to promote upward mobility.

Recipients are chosen on the basis of a statement of clear career goals as well as financial need, and should be heads of their households. Applicants must be residents of Wicomico County. Deadline for applications is December 15.

For more information call Kathy Brinsfield during the day at 742-8526 or Linda Jones evenings at 742-7387.

Teacher Education Grants

Awards are available under the Sharon Christa McAuliffe Memorial Teacher Education Tuition Assistance Program in the following certification fields: mathematics, chemistry, physics, earth science, secondary general science, special education, and trades and industry.

Applications for scholarships beginning in the 1990-91 academic year are available as follows: - Undergraduates who will have 60 credit hours and a 3.0 cumulative grade point average by September 1990 should contact the Financial Aid Office.

Persons with a bachelor's or higher degree, but who are not certified teachers, and have a 3.0 cumulative grade point average should contact the State Scholarship Administration.

Current public school teachers who are not certified in an area of critical teacher shortage, but would like to be, should contact the central office of the school system by which they are employed—usually the personnel of staff development offices.

Applications will be accepted until January 2 for grants beginning the following academic year. Financial need is not a requirement. A 3.0 grade point average must be maintained. The maximum grant is about $6,500 per year, but awards can be for less. A mandatory public school teaching obligation is required in a Maryland school.

For more information contact the Maryland State Scholarship Administration, The Jeffrey Building, 16 Francis Street, Suite 219, Annapolis, MD 21401, or call (301) 974-5370.

CONCERT

Winter Dance Concert December 7-9

From the beauty of Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" and "Hymn to the Virgin" to energized interpretations of youthful popular music—all promise a Winter Dance Concert this year that is both "playful and uplifting—a celebration," in the words of one of its choreographers.

To be held Thursday and Friday, December 7 and 8, at 8 p.m., and Saturday, December 9, at 2 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium, this is the first concert in two years by Dance Company director, Kathryn Martin, who has been on a leave of absence while studying at the University of Colorado (CU).

"This will be a fast-paced concert," said assistant director Holly Boda, "and a family-oriented one that everyone can relate to."

The company, which has about 35 members is made up of University students and alumni, two apprentices from local high schools, and SSU athletes including a football player and two wrestlers. "The wrestlers joined us because they wanted to increase their flexibility and it looked like fun," Boda said. "It is."

Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff and available at the door.

Jazz December 2!

The University Jazz Band presents a concert on Saturday, December 2, at 2 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium. Sponsored by the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and Department of Music, the concert is free and open to the public.

The 18-member ensemble is made up of people from the University as well as throughout the Eastern Shore.

The ensemble has received acclaim throughout the Delmarva area for its performances including the Salisbury Arts Festival last spring at the Downtown Plaza.

The Jazz Band is in its second year under the direction of Richard L. Johnson. The repertoire selected for rehearsal and performance range in style from "Big Band" literature to contemporary pop and experimental forms.

Players interested in participating in the jazz ensemble during the spring semester should contact Johnson in room 192 of the Power Professional Building or call 543-6387.

For further information regarding the concert or future SSU music events, call the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Salisbury Symphony Performs Dec. 15 and 16

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State will perform on Friday, December 15, and Saturday, December 16, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium marking the expansion of its regular programming.

"The addition of a second performance assures our loyal patrons and audience members a choice," said Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, music director of the SSO. "So often, in the past, we've heard from friends and supporters that our concert fell on an inopportune date. This is such a busy time of the year for everyone." The Orchestra will perform the same program both nights.

The program will include the "Carmen Suite" by Bizet, "Three Dances" from the "Bartered Bride" by Smetana and the "Adagio for Strings" by Barber. Featured soloist will be Laura Murray, performing the Kabalevsky Violin Concerto, Opus No. 48. Murray, a native of Salisbury, graduated from James M. Bennett Senior High School and received her Bachelor of Music from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

She is a member of the International Orchestra in residence at the United States International University in San Diego, CA and is pursuing a Master of Fine Arts in orchestral performance. The concert marks her debut solo performance.

The Salisbury Symphony was created in 1986 in response to a number of amateur performers and civic leaders in Salisbury who felt very strongly about the need for legitimate orchestral music in their community. The mission of the SSO continues to provide an ensemble for amateur, semiprofessional and professional musicians performing quality, live performances of standard orchestral literature for the people of the Eastern Shore.

Tickets for the concert are $6 for adults and $4 for students and are available at all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) outlets, the SWAC office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and at the door on the nights of the concerts.

For more information about the SSO concerts or about becoming a patron, call 543-6385 or 749-2787.

'89 Grad Receives Army's Fellowship Award

Second Lieutenant Michael Dykes of Laurel, DE, has been selected for the Army ROTC top five percent Fellowship Award.

A 1989 liberal studies grauate of Salisbury State University, Dykes was commissioned as a Regular Army aviation officer in May. Because of his exceptional performance in ROTC and academics, and on the grauate record examination, he was one of the 109 lieutenants out of over 2,200 Regular Army lieutenants selected to receive 18 months of fully funded graduate schooling from the Army.

Dykes can begin his full time schooling anytime between his fourth and 10th year of service. He will earn his full pay and allowance while in student status.

Dykes is currently stationed at Fort Rucker, AL, attending the Army Flight School.

Philosophy Positions

The Philosophy Department of Salisbury State University is now accepting applications for two full-time, tenure-track faculty positions at the assistant professor level, beginning in fall, 1990. One definite position and one possible. The position involves teaching four (4) undergraduate courses each semester.

A love for undergraduate teaching and a profound commitment to liberal education are the primary pre-requisites. AOS: open but not political philosophy or philosophy of religion. AOC: The department is looking for a generalist with a strong background in the history of philosophy. It would be helpful if areas of competence included some of the following: applied ethics, aesthetics, metaphysics, theory of knowledge, critical thinking, acquaintance with both analytic and phenomenological traditions, Eastern philosophies and feminism.

An important part of non-teaching duties, beside normal committee work will be working with other faculty and students on projects generated by the student Philosophical Society.

The department prefers applicants who have the doctorate in hand; an applicant who has not completed the dissertation would enter at the instructor level. Salary is competitive. While wthe department realizes it is difficult for candidates to respond individually to different job descriptions, it would greatly assist the deparatment if candidates would send first, something that will give the department an idea of one's philosophical approach; and second, syllabi for an Introduction to Philosophy course and for the upper level course one would most enjoy teaching. These materials and a dossier should be sent to Dr. Jerry Miller, Department of Philosophy, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Candidates will be interviewed at the Eastern meeting of the American Philosophical Association. To be selected for a pre-arranged interview, candidates must complete their application by December 5. No new applications will be considered after the Eastern meeting.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, monorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

English Opening

Applications are now being accepted for an assistant professor, tenure-track position in English to begin in fall 1990.

Doctorate with teaching experience is required. Specialties should include Applied Linguistics and TESOL. Undergraduate and master's level teaching responsibilities will include freshman composition, second language methodology and introduction to modern grammars. Applicants should expect to teach a four-course load, advise students and participate in departmental activities. Salary is competitive.

The original deadline has been extended until December 10. Send letter, vita, three recommendations, and evidence of teaching effectiveness to Dr. Wavie Gibson, Chair, Search Committee, English Department, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be acknowledged by letter.

Salisbury State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Physics Position

Expected tenure-track position at the assistant professor level beginning in the 1990-91 academic year. A Ph.D. in physics or a related field is required and some college teaching experience is desirable. Background and/or interest in teaching a wide range of undergraduate courses in physics, electronics and astronomy is considered a plus. Applicants should send a resume including the names of three references to: Chair, Physics Search Committee, Department of Chemistry & Physics, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply. Closing date is March 15.

Biology Positions

Applications for two 10-month, tenure track appointments as assistant professor of biology with beginning dates of August 15 are now being accepted. A Ph.D. in the biological sciences is required for each position. One position (anticipated vacancy) requires a demonstrated expertise in invertebrate zoology; the other (confirmed vacancy) requires a demonstrated expertise in the biology of fish. Successful candidates must be able to participate in the instruction of introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors and upper division experiences for majors. Although teaching at the undergraduate level is the prime focus, it is expected that the successful candidate will actively pursue scholarly research. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience.

A complete application must contain a current curriculum vitae, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work and three letters of recommendation. Deadline for receipt of application materials is February 1. Address correspondence to: Dr. Harry Womack, chair, Invertebrate Zoologist Search Committee, or Dr. Laura Murray, chair, Fish Biologist Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization Service authority to accept employment in this country. Demonstrated ability to communicate effectively in English, both oral and written, is essential.

SSU is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Newsletter Semester Deadlines

The last issue of the SSU Newsletter for 1989 is Thursday, December 14. The deadline for that issue is Friday, December 8.

The first issue of 1990 will be published on Thursday, February 1. The deadline for that issue is Friday, January 26.

For all who have so cordially worked with the Publications and Public Relations staff during the semester, our sincere thanks and best wishes for a happy holiday season.

Combined SSU/UMES Bands To Give Holiday Performance

The SSU Wind Sinfonia and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore Wind Ensemble will combine for ensemble performances at both campuses during December.

The performance at UMES will be on Thursday, December 7, at 8 p.m. in the Ella Fitzgerald Center for the Performing Arts. The performance is sponsored by the UMES Department of Fine Arts.

On Sunday, December 10, at 8 p.m., the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music will present the SSU performance in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission for both performances is free and the public is invited.

The 70-member combined ensemble will present a selection of holiday music as well as standard literature for band and brass choir. Personnel for both ensembles are comprised of university students and faculty as well as community performers from throughout the Eastern Shore. The performances also features select members of the UMES Concert Choir.

Concert selections for the performances include "Canzon Quarti Toni" (1597) for triple brass choir by Giovanni Gabrieli; "Symphonic Prelude on Adeste Fidelis" (1983) by Claude T. Smith; "March of the Toys" (1971) by Victor Herbert, arranged by Nestico; "A Gala Christmas" (1954) arranged by Warren Barker; "Huldigungsmarsch" (1864) by Richard Wagner; "Chant and Variants" (1980) by Elliot Del Borgo; "Ukranian Folk Songs" (1981) by Halsey Steven, arranged by Schaefer; "Sussex Mummers' Christmas Carol" (1911) by Percy Aldridge Grainger; "Pageant" (1954) by Vincent Persichetti; and the "Hallelujah" from "The Messiah" (1767) by G.F. Handel.

Conductors for the holiday performances are Richard L. Johnson, director of wind activities at Salisbury State, and John R. Lamkin II, director of bands at UMES. The UMES Concert Choir is under the auspices of Dr. Gerry Johnson, chairman for the Department of Fine Arts.

Faculty, students and community players interested in membership to the Salisbury State Wind Sinfonia for spring semester should contact Johnson in room 190 of the Power Professional Building or call 543-6387.

For further information regarding future SSU music activities at Salisbury State contact the Department of Music or call 543-6385.

Holiday Book Sale for Children December 2-7

Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society, in coordination with the Student National Education Association, are sponsoring a Great American Book Fair December 2, 4, 5 and 7.

At the fair will be reasonably priced books, posters and video tapes for the primary grades through middle school. Shoppers may choose from hundreds of titles for the young reader including mysteries, classics, biographies, sports adventures, popular fiction, workbooks, humor and how-to books.

"This book fair will be an excellent opportunity to get very reasonably priced, yet educational holiday presents. Also, it provides an excellent opportunity for education majors to build a personal library for the classroom," said Laura Foley, student organizer.

Lists of the books that will be offered at the fair are available in the Education Department Office.

The dates of the fair are Saturday, December 2, from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. in the University Center; and Monday, December 4, from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Tuesday, December 5, from 9 a.m. - 7 p.m., and Thursday, December 7, from 3-7 p.m., all in Caruthers Hall lobby.

For further information, contact Foley at 641-6184.

Holiday Choir Performance

The University Concert Choir will present its annual holiday concert on Tuesday, December 12, at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Auditorium. The choral concert is free and the public is invited.

The program will feature choral compositions by American and British composers and will include selections from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," Christmas choral works by John Rutter and Ralph Vaughan Williams, two unique choral works by American composer Charles Ives and seven familiar carols arranged by Norman Dello Joio for choir and four-hand piano accompaniment. Accompanists for the evening concert are Scot Hawkins, a graduate of Wicomico High School, and Wynel Cooper a graduate of Snow Hill High School.

The University's Concert Choir is directed by Dr. Duane R. Kama, assistant professor of music and director of Choral Acitivities. He is responsible for both private voice and class voice instruction, fundamentals of music and conducting.

Kama was one of the choral adjudicators at the All-Shore High School Choral Festival held last March at Easton High School as well as the Tri-County High School Choral Festival held at Leonardtown High School last spring. He is a member of American Choral Directors Association, the National Association of Teachers of Singing, the College Music Society and two music honoraries, Mu Phi Epsilon and Pi Kappa Lambda.

For more information call 543-6385.

Meet the Winners

by Deborah S. Reithmuller

"Changing to meet your needs . . ." A new slogan, a different Book Rack. As a result of this new feeling, there have been several contests sponsored by the Book Rack.

During book rush week, to make things a little more enjoyable for those who so heroically endured the lines at the cash registers, a Word Search contest was held. The contest consisted of finding many different items which are carried in the Book Rack. Since, as one knows, there is more to the Book Rack than just books, the staff decided that a word search with many different items would be just the thing to get students familiar with the other items offered. Students searched high and low but one student was successful! John McNally was declared the winner for finding the most words. He received a $25 gift certificate.

In October, and in conjunction with our House of Horrors, the Book Rack sponsored a Stephen King Trivia Contest. For the true Stephen King buffs this was an easy one. For those of you who dōn't read the books but wait for the movie, it was a bit harder. There were 56 quotes from King's books. A listing of all of his works was given along with the quotes. The object was to match the given quote with the correct book. First prize for this contest was a hardbound copy of King's latest but still unreleased book, "The Dark Half." Second prize was a copy of another best seller by King, "The Dark Tower, The Gunslinger." The winner of first prize for this contest was Terea Wood. Mr. Chris Tidmore won second prize.

Keep coming into the store. There is always something exciting going on. And, who knows . . . maybe you'll be the next winner!

Antic Hay Concert Dec. 1

Antic Hay, named "America's Best Unsigned Band" by critics nationwide, will be performing in concert at SSU on Saturday, December 2, at 9 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room. Admission is $2.

The four member band (vocals, guitar, bass, and drums), who took their name from the Aldous Huxley novel, are at the fore-front of the newly developing music scene in Norfolk, VA. "Their music is unique and original, and their live performances would be similar to that if U2, the Doors, and the Who could be meshed into one band," said Benn Ray of the Salisbury State Program Board, which is sponsoring the concert.

Antic Hay, who have opened shows for Living Colour, the Pixies, Echo and the Bunnymen, Fetchin Bones, Throwing Muses, and many others, have been playing together for five years. They have recently played several successful shows at CBGB's in New York (the same bar that launched the musical careers of Talking Heads, the Ramones and Blondie).

SSPB Looking for Public Relations Chair

The Salisbury State Program Board is now taking applications for the new position of public relations chairperson.

The responsibilities of the public relations chairperson include promoting the SSPB and its activities; working with all other chairpeople in promotion of events; functioning as a liaison between SSPB and the University Public Relations Office, the Flyer, WSUR radio and other departments on campus. This person will also work with local radio and television stations as needed; create promotional devices such as buttons, stickers, t-shirts, etc.; and develop the SSPB calendar. The position includes duties required of all chairs such as office hours and attending various SSPB meetings.

Applications are available at the Student Activities Office, second floor, University Center. They are due by Tuesday, December 5.

Ference at Slavic Convention In Chicago

Dr. Gregory C. Ference of the Department of History recently attended the 21st annual convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies, the foremost organization for the research of Russian and East European studies in North America and perhaps the world.

The conference was held in Chicago with the participants numbering in the thousands. Those in attendance were from the U.S., Canada, Asia and Western and Eastern Europe.

Ference organized a conference panel titled, "Aspects of Slovak Nationalism," and presented a paper, "The Slovak Memorandum of 1914." His essay discussed the political role of the immigrant Slovaks in the U.S. in attempting to advance the civil rights of their compatriots back in their homeland of Austria-Hungary on the eve of World War I.

At the meeting Ference also took part in the initial discussions entailing the cataloging and compilations of bibliographies of small Slovak libraries and archives scattered throughout the U.S. This proposal will be given to the U.S.-Czechoslovak Bilateral Commission on Education so that the materials, some of which are the only copies in the world, in these depositories would be able to be accessed by scholars not only here but abroad.

North and South Rise Again At "Gone With the Wind" Celebration

The North and South will rise again as the Second Maryland Infantry Regiment, C.S.A. (a re-enactment unit) and the 1st Delaware Volunteer Infantry, U.S. Army (a black powder troop) join the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in celebrating the 50th Anniversary of "Gone With The Wind." An exclusive, one-time showing of the restored 1939 classic that won eight Academy Awards will be highlighted by the presence of these confederate and union troops in the audience and at the party.

This fundraising event sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council will take place on Sunday, December 10, at 2 p.m. in the Fox Theatre Mall Cinemas. A celebration party will follow in the "Ballroom Tara" of the Salisbury Mall.

Call 543-ARTS for tickets and information.

A Steinway Grand Piano valued at over $30,000 has been anonymously donated to the Salisbury State University Foundation for use by the Department of Music. Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the Music Department, and Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton, nationally acclaimed artist-in-residence at SSU, are shown with the latest addition.

"We've been campaigning for three years now to get a concert grand of this caliber," said Elliot, "so without a doubt, we're very excited. This is a 'Retired Artist Piano' which means that it has been not only broken in, but babied and nurtured by Steinway approved artists. Our other 9 Foot D Steinway has been repeatedly used for other purposes and consequently, it doesn't have an even balance. An artist really knows the difference and the word is starting to spread. We've already had a letter from an artist offering to come here to play."

Mescon and Father: Showing Up for the Awards

Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, and his father, Dr. Michael H. Mescon of Atlanta, GA have been named jointly, Georgia Author of the Year in Business by the Council of Authors and Journalists, Inc.

The father-son team won the recent reward for their co-authored book, "Showing Up for Work and Other Keys to Business Success."

is a book of essays designed for the business community focusing on quality customer service, Timothy Mescon explained.

The two Mescons include along with their own essays, the essays of guest chief executive officers drawn from throughout the business world, including, among others: John L. Clendenin, chairman, Bell South; Darryl Harley-Leonard, CEO, Hyatt Hotels; James W. McLamore, founder, Burger King; and Frank Perdue, chairman of Perdue Farms Inc.

Perdue is described in the book as a man who started in the chicken business with his father and one other employee in 1939 and is now in charge of an operation which employs 12,000 people and has sales in excess of $1 billion annually.

He has also made a major gift to Salisbury State to endow the Perdue School of Business.

Perdue wrote in his essay, "I think my management style is one that needs some change." He explained that because he started out small his has always been a hands on style of management. He has learned through the years, he wrote, that "you have to delegate" and that in some cases, "some can do it better than you."

The key is to "get outstanding people," Perdue advised. He also stressed that a business should not be run like an army with communication down a chain of command, but that there should be flexibility and overlap with direct communication between all levels.

A review of the Mescon book suggests that, "in this father-son team's collaborative body of work is evidenced the truly effective communication they advocate."

The authors are described as "two respected business educators, both in demand as lecturers and public speakers."

The two Mescons have also collaborated for the past six years on a column for "Sky," the inflight magazine of Delta Airlines. The column which deals with management issues and has appeared in the airline magazine every other month will, beginning this February, appear monthly, attracting an annual readership of 60 million.

Timothy Mescon said that the award-winning book was an 18-month project. It has had excellent reviews in the professional business press, he said.

In addition to this book, Timothy Mescon is co-author of a textbook for business students called, "Cases in Strategic Management; An Industry Approach," written with George S. Vojikis, a professor of management at Memphis State University, and published by Harper and Row.

Timothy Mescon received his Ph.D. from the University of Georgia and taught business at Arizona State and the University of Miami before coming to Salisbury State as the inaugural dean of the Perdue School.

His wife, Debbie, holds an M.B.A. from Arizona State University and a J.D. from the University of Miami and is an assistant professor of business law at Salisbury State.

Michael H. Mescon, the elder of the writing team, is formerly dean of the College of Business Administration at Georgia State University. He is currently Regents' Professor of Human Relations at that institution and has held the Ramsey Chair of Private Enterprise since its inception in 1963.

"Showing Up for Work and Other Keys to Business Success" is published by Peachtree Publishers in Atlanta. It is on display at Blackwell Library and the University bookstore.

Seldomridge a Panelist at National Conference

Lisa Seldomridge, a faculty member in the Nursing Department, recently was a panelist at the American Association of Colleges of Nursing Recruiters Conference in Washington, D.C.

The conference brought together nursing faculty and recruiters from 24 states to discuss market research techniques, recruitment and retention strategies, media relationships and updates on financial aid packages for nursing education.

Seldomridge served on a panel discussing recruitment and retention with representatives from the University of Illinois, the University of Iowa and Arizona State University. She chairs the Recruitment Committee of the Nursing Department.

SSU Music Students Head for Germany

Last spring members of the Augsburg (Germany) University Chamber Choir performed at Salisbury. This January the SSU Concert Choir returns the favor when it tours Germany during a two-week Winter Term trip.

About 33 of the 53-member University Choir will perform in Altenstadt, Marktoberdorf and Munich in addition to Augsburg. The choir will be staying in Marktoberdorf at the Bayerische Musikakademie (Bavarian Music Academy) during the trip. The academy is a renovated and completely modernized castle funded by the German government solely to provide a fully-equipped retreat facility for musicians to rehearse and study, according to Dr. Duane R. Karna, conductor of the choir and trip coordinator.

Karna will accompany the students along with Klaudia Thompson, instructor of German at SSU, who will translate on the trip as well as teach students traveler's German.

The choir will present a program of choral music entirely composed by American composers representing Samuel Barber, Randall Thompson, Rene Clausen, Lloyd Pfautsch and Charles Ives. Dr. Nancy J. Cooper, adjunct faculty member at SSU, will accompany the choir on organ and will be a featured part of the choir's choral concerts. She too will perform organ compositions by American composers.

The January concerts will feature legitimate American choral music, not just traditional folk songs and spirituals. The choir will perform a "Homecoming Concert" at Asbury United Methodist Church upon its return to Salisbury on Sunday, February 11, at 4 p.m.

The students will be representing the University abroad with choral performances and will have the opportunity to work under four highly-respected German music educators: Kurt Suttner, professor of music education at Augsburg University; Gerald Kegelmann, professor of music at the Hochschule fur Musik in Heidelberg and at Heidelberg University; Arthur Gross, director of the Carl Orff Choir in Marktoberdorf; and Geoffrey Cheeseman, assistant director of the Music Academy in Marktoberdorf. The students will also visit many of the historical churches, museums and castles in southern Bavaria as well as in Munich.

Prior to leaving on the trip the choir will perform its annual holiday concert on Tuesday, December 12, at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Auditorium. The choral concert is free and open to the public.

For more information call the Music Department at 543-6385.

Peoples To Speak On Empowerment

Dr. Joyce Peoples, assistant vice president of Academic Affairs at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, is the featured speaker for the fall meeting of the Council on Women's Issues.

On Thursday, November 30, at 3:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, Peoples will speak on "empowerment" and ways of developing specific aptitudes, strengths and abilities useful for exercising leadership and contributing to the University.

The meeting is open to the public and all are welcome.

Peoples came to UMES in 1987 from Southern University in Shreveport, LA, where she served as vice chancellor of Academic Affairs. She has worked in educational services and academic planning at the national level and also has a background in English, and speech and drama.

Currently Peoples is also serving on international project research teams in education including the Human Institutional Resource Development Project which took her to Africa last year and the National Assault on Illiteracy Project for which she will travel to Cairo, Egypt, this December.

Army Field Band Concert To Benefit Food Bank

The U.S. Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus, considered by many to be among the best touring musical ensembles in the country today, is joining the Salisbury Branch of the Maryland Food Bank to raise money and food for those in need on the lower Eastern Shore.

On Monday, December 11, at 8 p.m., the band and chorus will perform a holiday concert in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Patrons are asked to bring a contribution of non-perishable food which will be collected in the lobby prior to the performance. Donors also are invited to contribute toward the construction of a new facility for the Salisbury food bank on Owens Branch Rd., which will allow the distribution of more food to those in need on the lower Shore.

Admission to the concert is free and the public is cordially invited. The Field Band, which is popular with area audiences, usually attracts near capacity audiences, according to David Ganoe, director of the Salisbury State University Center. "The Salisbury Branch of the Maryland Food Bank is one of the great unsung heroes of this community," he continued. "Field Band support of this worthwhile program will, I hope, give it the attention it deserves."

The Drs. Taylor Published

Dr. Ann Taylor, assistant professor of education, and Dr. Brennen Taylor, assistant professor of social work, recently had an article published in the September issue of Social Work: Journal of the National Association of Social Workers.

The article, "Social Casework and Environmental Cognition: Mobility Training for Community Mental Health Services," explores the implications of community mobility skills training with psychiatric and non-psychiatric populations.

The implications from the research in the article include the fact that social casework can effectively use the knowledge base of environmental cognition to promote the client's use of mental health services. Also, the theory and practice of crisis intervention needs to be advanced as well as the fact that community mobility skills training is not restricted to psychiatric clients who need to access community health services. Many handicapped and non-handicapped groups can benefit from community mobility skills training resulting in expanded social horizons.

Brennen Taylor and Ann Taylor are husband and wife.

Burroughs at Conference

Associate director of athletics and head men's tennis coach Dean Burroughs attended the annual Maryland Tennis Association meeting on November 11. The conference was held at the University of Maryland College Park. Burroughs was involved in organizing the panel of coaches for the college tennis clinic held at the afternoon session. The clinic was designed to expose college programs to area high school students.

Burroughs also presented a speech, "College Tennis-Opportunities and Obstacles," to the more than 100 tennis players and parents in attendance.

Abuse Prevention Workshop

On Monday, December 4, at 6 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center, a training session will be held for interested volunteers in a Sexual Abuse Prevention Program.

The program will start in the spring semester by showing a "Good Touch—Bad Touch" movie to school children. Social work, nursing, education and other related helping majors who are interested are encouraged to attend.

For more information, contact Christina Baum at 546-0462.

Elizabeth Bellavance Heads Panel at Convention

"The Presidential Spouse as Community Activist" was the topic explored by a panel led by Elizabeth Bellavance at the 29th annual meeting of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, held in Novemnber in San Francisco.

Also on the panel were the spouses of presidents or chancellors at the State University College of Technology at Utica/Rome; Coastal Carolina College of the University of South Carolina; and Ball State University.

Theme of the convention was "Shaping the Future of Higher Education: Where Do We Find Our Leaders?"

CWI To Research Child-Care

As its first major research project, the newly formed Council on Women's Issues (CWI) is beginning a study of child-care services available to University personnel in the Salisbury area.

Both university and community members are invited to participate. "We expect to be distributing a survey at the beginning of the spring semester," said Dr. Debbie Mescon, a lawyer and professor in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, "and we will be explaining the project in detail at the fall meeting of the council." That meeting is scheduled for Thursday, November 30, at 3:30 p.m. in the University Center Wicomico Room. "We are anxious for anyone interested in the project to come to that meeting to give us additional ideas."

"The availability of child care is of major concern here on campus and in the community as well," said Dr. Natalie Hopson, a psychology professor in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts who is coordinating the survey with Mescon. "We are convinced that by providing information about the full range of child care options, we will be helping in an area that is critical to many people."

"Salisbury State University's long tradition of university-community cooperation is well served by this study," added Mrs. Elizabeth Bellavance, a community leader and wife of the president. "CWI is taking the initiative locally to assess a national problem—the availability of quality daycare in a nation where two-thirds of the working mothers are single parents and almost 70 percent of mothers with pre-school children work outside the home." Mrs. Bellavance is serving as community liason on the project.

The study will not only catalogue child care services, but evaluate and make recommendations which will be forwarded to the University administration.

Members of the community as well as faculty, students, administrators and classified staff are invited to attend the November 30 meeting to learn more about the project. For more information contact Dr. Florence Pritchard in the office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs at 543-6020.

Employee Survey

Employees will be receiving a survey questionnaire during the week of December 4. The purpose of the survey will be to get the thoughts of unclassified administrators and classified employees about the work environment on campus and in particular their views on the salary structure. Participation is voluntary and all responses will be anonymous.

The administration and analysis of the survey will be handled by Mercer Meidinger Hansen, the consulting firm engaged to assist us in the salary study. The questionnaire should be mailed by December 11 to Mercer in the postage paid envelope which will be provided.

The Salisbury food bank, with both corporate and individual sponsors, supplies Delmarva citizens with an incredible 500 tons of food yearly, according to statistics.

Children are its number one recipients of food. A startling one out of every five children on the Eastern Shore goes to bed hungry each night, according to Willard Roberts, manager of the Salisbury Branch. Another large group that receives help is the elderly, many of whom begin scrimping on food as their Social Security dwindles after the 15th of each month, Roberts said.

According to state statistics, the food bank is enormously efficient. For every dollar it spends, $18 worth of food is distributed in Wicomico, Worcester, Somerset and Sussex counties.

Roberts estimates the Salisbury food bank reaches an estimated 10,000 people monthly.

Currently the food bank, which works out of a warehouse on Truitt St., has reached its maximum capacity for storage and service. According to Bob White and David Rodgers, who are co-chairing a drive to build a larger warehouse with proper refrigeration and docking, the food bank needs to raise some $152,000 to match state monies. Wicomico County has already donated a site near the Lower Shore Sheltered Workshop. A new building would allow the food bank to double the amount of food distributed and lower its per pound expense which is paid for by local non-profit groups.

The Holiday Food Bank Concert is co-sponsored by the University and The Daily Times. Helping to usher the night of the performance will be the SSU ROTC unit. The Gay/Lesbian Student Alliance will assist in the collection of food.

Unique among military bands, the U.S. Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

The Field Band has a distinguished history. It has performed at Royal Festival Hall in London, Luxembourg Gardens in Paris, the Olympia Stadium in Berlin, the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., the Hollywood Bowl and New York's Carnegie Hall, where it was the first military band to present a full-dress concert.

Traveling thousands of miles every year, band members have a reputation as being among the best touring musicians in the country, according to an Army spokesman, and they have earned the nickname of "Musical Ambassadors."

Tickets to the concert are available from the University Center information desk, The Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Office at the Twilley Shopping Center. For more information about the concert or food bank donations, contact the SSU Public Relations Office at (301) 5433-6030.

SSU Grapplers Looking for Successful Season

by G. Paul Ohanian

With agood mix of experienced veterans and talented newcomers vying for spots on this year's squad, coach Ron Otto is optimistic about Salisbury State's chances of moving to the next phase in the rebuilding of the Sea Gull wrestling program. "We have the numbers and the experience to be a competitive Division III wrestling program," said Otto. "It will be up to this year's wrestlers to determine how much further we will go."

Leading the returning veterans are Karl Crock (158 lb weight class), Marty Lewis (167) and Mike White (190). All three posted solid showings last year as SSU finished with a 5-4 dual meet record. Otto also has high expectations for two other returning starters, Neil Benz (126) and George Bethard (HWT), although both will need a chance to make the transition from their fall sports, soccer and football, respectively. Other returnees with enough talent and experience to break into the starting lineup include Will Sandidge (126 or 134), Andy Ryan (167) and Corey Wilkerson (HWT).

Several transfers have demonstrated good skill in the early going and could contend for starting slots, including Ron Miles (134 or 142), George Scala (118 or 126), Ron Rossi (190) and Bob Schiffer (158). Also returning to competition after a year off are juniors Seong Kim (134) and Jack Verdirame (167), as well as sophomore Jeff Hake (167).

In addition to the returnees, Otto feels that the key to this year's success could be the development of a very good recruiting class. Maryland high school state champs Todd Martinek (118) and Joe Perrin (142) are leading contenders for starting positions, with strong support from Mike Melletz, Tom King, Pete Jacques and Todd Custer.

Joining Otto as assistant coaches this year are two former SSU standouts, former All-American Jim O'Halloran and last year's MVP Jim Nestor. Scott Hopson, a member of the Sea Gull training staff, will also provide assistance.

Despite good overall talent and depth, the Gull grapplers will face a season of stiff challenge with an extremely ambitious schedule, starting with the York College Tournament on December 2. The schedule also features tough competition in the Hunter Metropolitan Tournament and SSU's own Gull Classic, as well as meets with Division III power Trenton State and Division I foe American University.

Frances Lillian Kendall earned her Ph.D. in communications from the University of Missouri-Columbia where she was also a teaching assistant.

Donald L. Singleton was acting dean for the College of Communication at the University of Arkansas and chair of its Radio Television Film Department. His Ph.D. in mass communication is from the University of Oklahoma. With her M.A. in communications from Bowling Green State University, OH, Furahaa Saba has taught speech and communications for over 19 years.

Having earned his Master of Fine Arts from the California Institute of the Arts where he directed several plays, Robert Smith served as assistant director under Yuri Belov for the SSU Theatre production, "The Cherry Orchard."

Three new professors join the Department of English. With a Doctor of Arts in English from Carnegie Mellon University, PA, Elizabeth H. Curtin brings 18 years of teaching experience to the department. With several publications to his credit, Johh D. Kalb earned his Ph.D. from Michigan State University where he also taught. Sandra Christian earned her B.A. in English from SSU and her Master's in English language and literature from Ohio University, where she earned outstanding teaching awards from both students and faculty there.

James Craig Clarke joins the Psychology Department. With a Doctor of Philosophy in experimental psychology from Lehigh University, he has taught psychology for the past 11 years.

The Philosophy Department is pleased to have Dennis E. Boyle join its staff. He earned his B.A. in English literature from the University of Notre Dame and expects to receive his Ph.D. in philosophy from Georgetown University this fall.

New to the Music Department is Mark K. Clinton, who earned his Doctor of Musical Arts from Rice University Shepherd School of Music where he also taught. An accomplished pianist, he has numerous solo and orchestral performances to his credit.

Dane S. Harden, with an M.S. from SSU, joins the School of Nursing and Health Sciences. He has worked as a respiratory therapist and a psychiatric technician.

And finally Edna Mae Stilwell joins the nursing faculty. With her Ph.D. in health education and gerontology from the University of Maryland College Park, she has been a teacher and administrator at UMCP and Johns Hopkins University.

SSPB Presents 'Pink Flamingos,' 'Yellow Submarine' And 'The Wall'

On Saturday, December 2, and Sunday, December 3, the Salisbury State Program Board (SSPB) presents "Pink Flamingos," an early cult film from Baltimore director John Waters, whose more recent attempts include "Polyester" and "Hairspray."

Made in Baltimore in 1972 for $12,000, "Pink Flamingos" has grossed several million on the midnight film circuit. In his book "Cult Movies" film critic Danny Peary writes "Sometime back John Waters—an NYU film school dropout who lives in Baltimore—must have gotten the notion that he'd like to make films that are so disgusting and sexually perverse that critics couldn't write about them without seeming like absolute perverts to the readers for having sat through them. And he accomplished just that."

In the film, Divine, a 300 pound transvestite, plays Babs Johnson, a prostitute and murderer who must defend her title as "the filthiest person alive." Edith Massey is a revolting Mama Edie, who has an egg fixation and marries the eggman after he promises to feed her one hundred eggs a day.

Waters has called "Pink Flamingos" "a trip through decadence . . . the most disgusting picture of all time."

His last several films have been attempts to reach a mainstream audience. "Hairspray" (1988) will be shown on campus in the spring.

Showtimes are 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Admission is free and open to the public.

To close out the semester SSPB offers a double dose of psychedelia from the bright 60's and the dark 80's. The Beatles' "Yellow Submarine" and Pink Floyd's "The Wall" will be shown on December 8 and 9.

The SSPB Film Series presents films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first. For further information contact David Todd at the SSPB office in the University Center at 543-6197 or 543-6125.

SSU Campus Wins State Award

Salisbury State University recently received a Maintenance Excellence Award from Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer at the first annual Maintenance Achievement Awards ceremony.

One of only 14 recipients of the award, those awards are part of Operation Upkeep, Gov. Schaefer's program that was launched last spring to improve facilities owned and leased by the state government.

"The citizens of Maryland have a right to expect a clean, safe and professional environment when they receive services or go to work at a state facility," said Gov. Schaefer.

"We have made the maintenance and improvement of Maryland state facilities a top priority of this administration. I congratulate the winners for their dedication in making their facilities the best that they can be."

In addition to the 14 Maintenance Excellence Awards presented, there were also 97 Maintenance Acheivement Awards, the state's second highest honor, distributed. The total of 111 awards presented represented about 18 percent of the eligible facilities that are owned or leased by the state.

The honors are presented based on the results of annual inspections by the Department of General Services. Agency personnel and private landlords of leased office space were judged on their performance in such areas as equipment and building systems maintenance, cleanliness and appearance, space use and maintenance management.

Lyons Commencement Address: 'Preparing for the Future'

Dr. James E. Lyons, president of Bowie State University, will address Salisbury State University's 65th year graduating class on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. at the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. The topic of his address will be "Preparing for the Future."

Lyons, seventh president of Bowie State, assumed office in September 1983. Before his selection as president, he served as vice president and dean of Academic Affairs at Delaware State College.

Dr. James E. Lyons

A native of New Haven, CN, Lyons holds the Bachelor of Arts in Spanish from the University of Connecticut. His graduate degrees include the Master of Arts in student personnel and the Ph.D. in professional higher education administration also from the University of Connecticut. Lyons has completed post-doctoral study at the Harvard University Institute for Educational Management.

His academic and administrative experience has been extensive. He has served as a Peace Corps volunteer in Equador, a teacher in the Philadelphia public schools and a faculty member at Centeral Connecticut State College, Kentucky State University, Barber-Scotia College (Concord, NC) and Delaware State College. Administrative posts he has filled include Assistant Dean of Students and director of the Afro-American Cultural Center at the University of Connecticut, administrative assistant to the vice president for Academic Affairs and Director of Institutional Research at Kentucky State University, assistant to the vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and director of Summer School at Fayetteville (NC) State University and vice president for Academic Affairs at both Barber-Scotia College and Delaware State College.

Frank To Direct New Research Office

Dr. Roland G. "Ron" Frank, associate professor of education, has been appointed acting director of Grants and Sponsored Research by Dr. Bellavance. The appointment to this newly created position begins January 2 and runs through June 30, 1991.

"I am delighted that after having long wanted a director of Grants and Sponsored Research, Dr. Frank has agreed to fill that role here," said Dr. Gary Lee Pielemeier, vice president of Research and Development.

"Last year Salisbury State University did very well in securing grants and research money, but with Dr. Frank's appointment we expect to boost those figures dramatically," said Pielemeier. "He brings his doctoral training and

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

Holiday Hours

The Book Rack will close for the Christmas break on Friday, December 22, at 5 p.m. and reopen for Winter Term on Tuesday, January 2.

January Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program starts January 3, 5-6 p.m., Monday - Thursday.

Winter Dance Concert December 7-9

From the beauty of Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols" and "Hymn to the Virgin" to energized interpretations of youthful popular music—all promise a Winter Dance Concert this year that is both "playful and uplifting—a celebration," in the words of one of its choreographers.

To be held Thursday and Friday, December 7 and 8, at 8 p.m., and Saturday, December 9, at 2 p.m., in Holloway Hall Auditorium, this is the first concert in two years by Dance Company director, Kathryn Martin, who has been on a leave of absence while studying at the University of Colorado (CU).

Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff and available at the door.

Salisbury Symphony Performs Dec. 15 and 16

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State will perform on Friday, December 15, and Saturday, December 16, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium marking the expansion of its regular programming.

Tickets for the concert are $6 for adults and $4 for students and are available at all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) outlets, the SWAC office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and at the door on the nights of the concerts.

For more information about the SSO concerts or about becoming a patron, call 543-6385 or 749-2787.

English Opening

Applications are now being accepted for an assistant professor, tenure-track position in English to begin in fall 1990.

Doctorate with teaching experience is required. Specialties should include Applied Linguistics and TESOL. Undergraduate and master's level teaching responsibilities will include freshman composition, second language methodology and introduction to modern grammars. Applicants should expect to teach a four-course load, advise students and participate in departmental activities. Salary is competitive.

The original deadline has been extended until December 10. Send letter, vita, three recommendations, and evidence of teaching effectiveness to Dr. Wavie Gibson, Chair, Search Committee, English Department, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be acknowledged by letter.

Salisbury State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

A winner! A tree with handmade porcelain ornaments by Salisbury State University students brought the highest price of any tree in its category at the recent Festival of Trees benefitting the March of Dimes and Peninsula General Hospital. Purchased by Salisbury attorney Don E. Richardson, the tree was displayed at the Salisbury Mall for a week and now may be seen in Richardson's offices at 130 E. Main St. Marie Tator Quillen's ceramics I class both created the ornaments and decorated the evergreen which sold for $1,000.

12 Days of Christmas Arrives at Book Rack

The Twelve Days of Christmas sale has arrived at the Book Rack. From December 1-18 there will be a different item on sale each day in the store.

In conjunction with the sale, the store is also holding a contest based on the song, "Twelve Days of Christmas." This contest will run through the end of the sale. In this contest, patrons must correctly choose the current market value of each of the 12 items mentioned in the song. The contestant who has the most correct answers will win a special prize from the staff of the Book Rack.

Stop in and see the different holiday gift ideas as well as the collection of Hallmark holiday cards.

Book Rack Gift Possibilities

A new shipment of general reading books has arrived in the Book Rack. These sale-priced books are suitable for holiday gift-giving. Children's books such as "Velveteen Rabbit," stories of Beatrix Potter, the Walt Disney classics "Sleeping Beauty," "Lady and the Tramp," "Snow White" and "Winnie the Pooh" can make excellent gifts for that hard-to-buy-for youngster. Other classics include hardbound copies of Jane Austin, Jack London, Mark Twain, Charles Dickens and Herman Melville.

Also included in this selection of gift ideas are books on "how-to-do" projects, history, art and collectibles.

Senior Photos

Class of 1990 Senior Portraits will be taken on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 11-14, in Nanticoke B of the University Center. Sign up the week of December 4 at the Information Desk of the University Center.

MAHE Achievement Awards

The Maryland Association for Higher Education (MAHE) is continuing its annual program of awards recognizing educator achievement. These recognitions are made in three areas of professional performance.

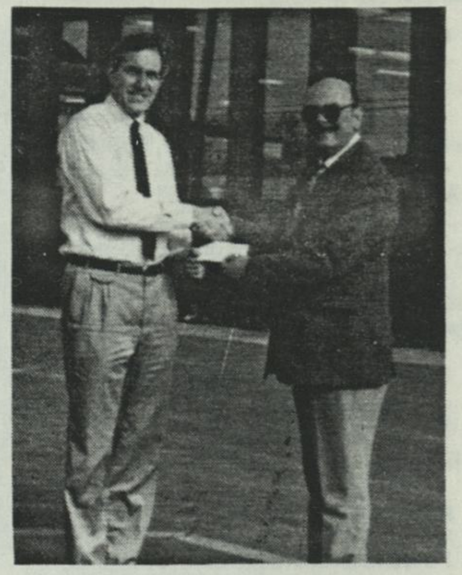
"Administrator of the Year" is a professional who may develop, direct and/or evaluate academic programs. The administrator may supervise a staff and manage an office, but also may be responsible for the development and implementation of policies and procedures that affect the student-faculty condition and enhance the educational process in the state.

"Faculty Person of the Year" is a professional who serves as a full-time member of a recognized department within a Maryland post-secondary institution and whose primary responsibility is teaching.

"Advisor/Mentor of the Year" is a professional who serves as an advisor/mentor and whose primary responsibilities have positive impact on the lives and attitudes of faculty and students.

All nominations must be made to Dr. Bellavance and completed application materials must carry his signature.

All applications must be submitted by January 18 to Stan Rich, Chair, MAHE Outstanding Educator Awards, 410 Truth House, Morgan State University, Cold Spring Lane and Hillen Road, Baltimore, MD 21239.



Robert Redding (left), vice president of E.S. Adkins, Co., is shown presenting a $2,000 check to Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, conductor of the Salisbury Symphyony Orchestra at Salisbury State University. The donation will help underwrite the costs of the Orchestra's December 15 and 16 concerts which will be held at 8 p.m. both nights in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for students and are available at all Salisbury Wicomico County Arts Council outlets or at the door the night of the concert.

Combined SSU/UMES Bands To Give Holiday Performance

The SSU Wind Sinfonia and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore Wind Ensemble will combine for ensemble performances at both campuses during December.

The performance at UMES will be on Thursday, December 7, at 8 p.m. in the Ella Fitzgerald Center for the Performing Arts. The performance is sponsored by the UMES Department of Fine Arts.

On Sunday, December 10, at 8 p.m., the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music will present the SSU performance in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Admission for both performances is free and the public is invited.

The 70-member combined ensemble will present a selection of holiday music as well as standard literature for band and brass choir. Personnel for both ensembles are comprised of university students and faculty as well as community performers from throughout the Eastern Shore. The performances also features select members of the UMES Concert Choir.

Holiday Choir Performance

The University Concert Choir will present its annual holiday concert on Tuesday, December 12, at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Auditorium. The choral concert is free and the public is invited.

The program will feature choral compositions by American and British composers and will include selections from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," Christmas choral works by John Rutter and Ralph Vaughan Williams, two unique choral works by American composer Charles Ives and seven familiar carols arranged by Norman Dello Joio for choir and four-hand piano accompaniment. Accompanists for the evening concert are Scot Hawkins, a graduate of Wicomico High School, and Wynel Cooper a graduate of Snow Hill High School.

For more information call 543-6385.

Army Field Band Concert Benefits Food Bank

The U.S. Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus, considered by many to be among the best touring musical ensembles in the country today, is joining the Salisbury Branch of the Maryland Food Bank to raise money and food for those in need on the lower Eastern Shore.

On Monday, December 11, at 8 p.m., the band and chorus will perform a holiday concert in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Patrons are asked to bring a contribution of non-perishable food which will be collected in the lobby prior to the performance. Donors also are invited to contribute toward the construction of a new facility for the Salisbury food bank on Owens Branch Rd., which will allow the distribution of more food to those in need on the lower Shore.

Admission to the concert is free and the public is cordially invited.

Tickets to the concert are available from the University Center information desk, The Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Office at the Twilley Shopping Center. For more information about the concert or food bank donations, contact the SSU Public Relations Office at (301) 5433-6030.

Christmas Party

The Commuter Club and the University Center are sponsoring a Christmas Open House on Tuesday, December 12, at 7 p.m. in the University Center Lounge. Everyone is welcome.

"Playful and uplifting—a celebration," is how one of the choreographers describes the upcoming Winter Dance Concert here. The concert is Thursday and Friday, December 7 and 8, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, December 9, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Pictured (left to right) are Chrissy Donohue, Katie Kilmon and Kim Reisinger. Call the SSU Dance Company at 543-6353 for more information.

Melville Discussion

Dr. Milton R. Stern, an internationally recognized scholar and humanist known for his lively and engaging examination of American writers and their worlds, will discuss "Herman Melville and Society" on Thursday, December 7, at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Social Room.

"Norman Mailer has described Stern as one of the most brilliant lecturers he's ever heard," said Dr. John Wenke, professor in the English Department. "Dr. Stern is accessible, entertaining and his insights into American society are meaningful to us all."

Part of the English Department's Writers-on-the-Shore Series, Stern's talk will be followed by a reception to which the public is cordially invited.

Melville, who wrote "Moby Dick" and "Billy Budd," is considered by many to be America's finest novelist. Stern will discuss the 19th century author's views of an America vastly different from that envisioned by the founding fathers.

Stern has had a notable career in teaching and scholarship. The first Distinguished Alumni Professor at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, where he teaches, he is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the American Council of Learned Societies. He has served as a National Humanities Institute fellow, was Fulbright-Hayes Professor at the University of Warsaw, Poland, and also taught at Smith College and Harvard University.

Stern has received several teaching awards including the "Celebrated Teacher" Award from the Modern Language Association.

He has served as a consultant for numerous distinguished scholarly presses including the Johns Hopkins University Press, Princeton University Press, Cornell University Press, Fordham University Press, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Guggenheim Foundation.

Extensively published, he has written 68 papers on various aspects of American literature from "Melville and God" and "American Transcendentalism" to "The Media and Literature." He also has published 70 articles, reviews, monographs, essays, chapters in books as well as books themselves on literature and the humanities.

His book, "The Fine Hammered Steel of Herman Melville," is considered by many critics to be "the best book ever written on Melville," said Wenke. Stern's books on "Billy Budd," Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The House of the Seven Gables" and "The Novels of F. Scott Fitzgerald" are also widely quoted.

Admission to the "Writers-on-the-Shore Series" is free. For additional information on the Stern appearance or the writers series contact Wenke, who is co-chair of the program committee, at 543-6445.

Tie One On for the Holidays

The Salisbury State University chapter of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), the Department of Public Safety and the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center are working together this holiday season to promote safe driving, free from alcohol and other drugs. Red ribbons distributed on campus are donated by MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) and are supplied through Wicomico County Prevention Coordinator Cindy Shiffler.

This is the fourth year that MADD has participated in the Red Ribbon Program. The goal is to have every vehicle in the state displaying a red ribbon.

Publications Guidelines

The Salisbury State University Publications Department, in conjunction with the Public Relations Office, exists to service the campus departments and its organizations. All publications should come through the Publications Office.

Publications' goal is to provide all departments with the best possible product, whether it be a flyer or a newsletter, in a timely and cost efficient manner.

Publications serves some 100 departments and areas which last year generated approximately 1,000 work requests. In order for Publications to successfully produce those requests on deadline, the planning and scheduling stage in the design process is critical.

The process for completing a publication is:

PLANNING To provide the best product it is important that one's planning include adequate time for Publications to schedule a job into production (planning, editing, design, typesetting, paste-up and printing).

The production schedule is prepared on the 15th of the preceeding month. Therefore, to schedule a job into production Publications needs at least a month-and-a-half advance notice.

Jobs received after the monthly production schedule has been prepared will be acccepted, but the design and production will be bid to off-campus sources. When planning be advised that off-campus sources are considerably more expensive.

As soon as a department determines it requires a publication (even if dates, content, budget, etc., are incomplete), contact Publications.

EDITING Editing can simply involve a spelling correction or be as complex as a total rewrite. Each publication is examined independently. However, to make the editing job as efficient as possible, please submit all copy typed and double-spaced. DO NOT submit copy laid out in the design you would like the publication to reflect. Each publication dummy should contain placement directions only (eg., Copy A here, Copy B here, etc).

Publications use the Associated Press Style Book, with a few modifications, for all publications.

DESIGN Design is the plan behind the final product. It is the creation of order and beauty out of a chaos of pictures, copy, headlines and white space. In this process the graphic designers make a series of decisions as to size, medium, typography and art based on the information provided.

This is why it is critical to the design that all the elements be provided when the job is submitted.

TYPESETTING Typesetting of all copy is done on the Merganthaler CRTronic 200. The CRTronic has the capability of setting type from 4 to 128 points, bold or italicized.

There are a variety of typefaces and sizes which should be discussed during the design stage to save time and money. After typesetting but before paste-up the requesting department will be contacted to proof its copy.

PASTE-UP Paste-up is when the graphic designer puts together all the final elements to produce a camera-ready board. This board is exactly what will show up in the final printing of a job.

Paste-up is exacting and tedious so major alterations in text (rewrites) or design should not be made.

PRINTING Printing is done internally in Duplication Services or externally at independent print shops. Design factors and budget determine whether a job is Xeroxed in Duplication Services or offset at the printers.

Time factors vary according to print location. Duplication Services usually takes five working days for completion. Print shops request at least 10 working days.

All external jobs must go through the bid process. This process can take from two days to three weeks depending on the cost of the job. This time is in addition to printing time. Planning, designing and paste–up also represent additional time.

In the event job requests exceed Publications ability to complete requests in a timely and creative manner, despite meeting submission deadlines, some jobs will be referred off campus for printing. Priority is given to student recruitment pieces.

Social Work Club Fall 1989

During the fall, the University's Social Work Club continues to be involved in making a meaningful contribution to people in the Delmarva community. An outline of its past and future activities follows.

The Halloween Spook-o-gram Fundraiser was very successful with $100 raised. The YMCA, Shore Up Head Start and the Salvation Army Latch Key programs were recipients of surplus candy donations for the children.

Fifteen people from SSU participated in Habitat for Humanity in November to assist in building houses for low income families. The service will be repeated on Saturday, December 9, and interested participants are welcome. For further information contact Julia Parks at 548-2161.

The bake sale made a profit of $50 and will be repeated next semester.

In December the profit of $150 realized to date will be used to provide food, clothing and toys for needy families. The Social Work Club will be adopting the family through the Salvation Army. Donations are being accepted to further the cause.

On Sunday, December 4, Karey Knopp, assistant director of Somerset DSS, Christina Baum and Lisa Williams presented the Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Program in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Social work students and friends will have a Christmas party on Thursday, December 14. Interested participants may call the Social Work Club officers at 548-2161. Officers are Julia Parks, president; Christina Baum, vice president; Christine Schroder, treasurer; Paula Hollis, secretary; and Brennen Taylor, advisor.

Double Dose of Psychedelia

Double Dose Of Psychedelia On Friday and Saturday, December 8 and 9, SSPB Films offers a trip back into rock and roll psychedelia with The Beatles in "Yellow Submarine" (1968) and Pink Floyd in "The Wall" (1982).

"Yellow Submarine" takes the animated foursome through a sea of holes where they encounter the Nowhere Man, Flying Glove, Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band and Blue Meanies. The idealism of the '60s is sharply contrasted with the dark pessimism of the '70s and '80s in "The Wall." Bob Geldoff stars as Pink, a burned out rock star going out of control. Director Alan Parker ("Birdy," "Angel Heart," "Mississippi Burning") described the film as an hour-and-a-half-long scream. Geldoff later went on to become St. Bob of Live Aid fame.

Due to the musical nature of the program, an enhanced sound system will be used in place of the auditorium's normal sound system.

The show begins at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss 149 with "Yellow Submarine," followed by a collection of animated short films. "The Wall" will begin at approximately 9:15 p.m. There will be continuous sound and visuals. Admission is free and open to the general public.

For more information contact David Todd at the SSPB Office in the University Center, 543-6197 or 543-6125.

Fulton Hall Progress Report

The construction site between the former Tawes Hall and the rear of Holloway Hall that has been fenced in will be closed to pedestrian traffic so that the construction may proceed with the installation of a major duct bank connecting Holloway Hall and Fulton Hall.

As a result of this action, the rear entrance to Holloway Hall has been closed and will remain closed, probably until September 1990. Pedestrian traffic will still have access to the southeastern rear stairwell to the second and third floors of Holloway Hall. Other pedestrian traffic will be rerouted to the front entrance of Holloway Hall.

The new entrance to the rear of Holloway Hall which will include an access ramp for handicapped students, staff and visitors is scheduled to be constructed beginning May 28, with the tentative completion date the end of September 1990.

There will be new sidewalks and new landscaping in this general construction area which will provide convenient pedestrian access and which will be aesthetic as well.

Long-Term Disability Insurance

The deadline for the special open enrollment period for long-term disability insurance is fast approaching.

If state employees would like more information as to how this benefit works, or whether it's right for them, call Keith Ferschweiler at 543-6037. But act now, as Personnel would like to receive enrollment cards by Friday, December 15.

Psi Chi Initiation

The initiation ceremony for new members of Psi Chi, the national honor society of psychology, will take place Tuesday, December 12, at 3:30 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room in the University Center.

Dr. J. Craig Clarke will be speaking on "Experimental Aesthetics." A reception will follow. Faculty, family and friends are encouraged to attend.

Research Facility Dedicated

University System and government officials recently dedicated the new laboratory facilities of the Center for Advanced Research in Biotechnology (CARB). One of the first biotechnology research establishments of its kind in the country, CARB is located at the Shady Grove Life Sciences Center in Montgomery County, and is part of the Maryland Biotechnology Institute of the University of Maryland System.

CARB was established in 1984 as a cooperative venture of the Commerce Department's National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), the University of Maryland and Montgomery County. It was one of the first biotechnology research efforts involving federal, state and local governments in cooperation with a major university.

The new $7.6 million facility provides a world-class research center for multidisciplinary studies in protein structure, function and design. Through close interaction with the industry, research at CARB is expected to narrow the gap between laboratory discoveries and industry needs.

Reading by Writers

The Eastern Shore Writers' Association and the Globe Theatre will present a Wednesday, December 13, reading of 10 area writers.

Two seatings are planned, the first at 7 p.m., the second at 8:30 p.m. A small reception will follow each reading. Due to the intimate, 47-seat theatre, reservations are recommended. There is no charge but donations will be accepted. Information can be obtained by calling Kate Patton at 641-0784.

The ESWA is a 150-member group of writers, journalists, poets, essayists, photographers, artists, novelists, dancers, playwrights and thinkers. Meetings are monthly, September through June. For more information on ESWA call its president Nan Hayes at 543-9019.

Scheduled writers for the reading include Gwen Freeman, Mary Holmberg, Hayes, Polk Miles, Sue Megargee, John Putre and Elaine Wallingford.

The Globe Theatre which jointly sponsors the event is located at 12 Broad Street in Berlin. This 1910 theatre has been restored to reflect a new concept, the merging of culture and retail.

African-American Course Offered Spring Semester

An interdisciplinary committee of faculty, administrators and students has organized a one-credit course on African-American Families for the spring semester.

The course will be sponsored by the departments of education, psychology, sociology and social work. Students may enroll in one of these departments under a special topics course designation.

The course will be organized around several evening lectures by visiting scholars and an all-day workshop on Saturday, March 17. The events will begin in late February with 15 hours of class sessions plus public events scheduled to end by spring break in late March.

Watch for additional information about the course and procedures for enrollment in the final University course schedule. For further details, contact Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell of the Social Work Department.

Minority Development Course Being Offered

Beginning in the spring, the Minority Leadership Development Program, sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will be offered as a two-credit course.

The course is designed to provide career guidance, personal and professional development, and a study skills program to assist minority students in achieving higher academic standards and to enhance leadership capabilities.

The course is not included in the spring course listings. Students interested in enrolling in the course should use the course number GENL-150-151, Selected Topics in Developmental Education: Selected Topics in Minority Development.

The course has been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, 6-8 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Anyone needing assistance in registering for the course should contact Joe Andrade or Terry Clay in the CPPD at 543-6070.

A full-time tenure track respiratory therapy faculty/clinical coordinator position is available August 15. Salisbury State is an AMA (CAHEA) accredited baccalaureate degree program.

Qualifications include a baccalaureate degree in respiratory care and a master's degree in a related field; a doctoral degree is preferred. A reliable professional with clinical teaching experience in respiratory care is sought who has strong organizational, leadership and communication skills.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Send letter of application and vitae to Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, Dean, School of Nursing and Health Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

December 1989 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

General Information and Directions

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 17, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be Dr. James Earl Lyons, Sr., president, Bowie State University.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning Monday, December 1. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore beginning November 15, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, December 15, from 8:30 a.m.- 5 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 5 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by Dr. Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 11. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 16, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

12. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter K (Laurel Kelly) will report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Theresa Kelly through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart.

13. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park) and will report to Drs. St. Martin and White. You will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building) You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

14. B.A.S.W. candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors, on the side nearest the park). You will report to Drs. St. Martin and White and line up alphabetically behind the B.A. candidates. You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

15. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (not the entrance leading to the main arena), and report to Drs. Hedeen and Lewis in the corridor near the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. M.Ed. candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

16. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.

2. Dress hose.

3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.

3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.

4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.

5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.

7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.

2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice President of Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

17. Graduation Decorum

Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

his experience as a faculty member and with foundations to this cricital office in the University administration.

"I would also like to thank Dr. Bellavance for encouraging this whole process of filling this position," added Pielemeier.

Frank said his first order of business will be to "open the office—get it started." Once that is done, he says the office will have three major functions during his 18-month tenure.

"First of all," said Frank, "I want to work with the faculty in assisting them in identifying funding resources and do some basic educational seminars about how to do proposals.

"I also want to contact potential funding sources, in both the public and private sectors, and develop those contacts on behalf of the University," said Frank.

"Additionally, I will be working with the administration on promoting external funding as a possible resource in achieving the mission of Salisbury State University."

Frank characterized external funding as those monies not generated through the state budget or tuition and fees.

He cited as an example special discounts for computer labs offered to colleges and universities by IBM.

He added, however, that most ideas for programs to be funded will come through the faculty members themselves.

"The office of Grants and Sponsored Research won't write proposals," said Frank, "but rather will assist in writing them and get them through the funding maze."

Since coming to the University in 1987, Frank has enlarged the Education Department's educational administrative curriculum, a program designed to provide preparation to future school principals and superintendents.

His qualifications for his position with the office of Grants and Sponsored Research include working at the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation, developing grants for the Prince George's County School System and reading for a variety of federal funding sources.

In the next 18 months he hopes that his office will be viewed by the faculty and administration as "an important part of the funding operation for the University."

Communication Arts Faculty Give Papers

Several members of the communication arts faculty presented papers at the 75th annual Speech Communication Association Conference in San Francisco, November 17-28.

Dr. Frances Kendall co-authored a paper with Dr. Terry J. Meier of Baylor University titled, "Recombining the Western and Drama: Lovesome Dove' as a Character Drama."

Dr. Ken Wilkerson participated in a seminar on social movement criticism and presented a paper titled, "Is Christian Identity a Millenarian Movement?"

Dr. Donald Singleton presented a paper on broadcast regulations titled, "Broadcasting and the Fairness Doctrine: First Ammendment Rights vs the Rights of Public Access."

The Speech Communication Association is comprised of scholars and practitioners in communication.

Communications Careers Presentation Dec. 7

Frank Gilmore, public affairs specialist for Du Pont, is speaking to the University Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators on Thursday, December 7, at 7 p.m.

Gilmore's speech, in Nanticoke A of the University Center, will detail his role as a communications practioner. He will also talk about possible careers in communications fields.

At present Gilmore counsels Du Pont plants in the northeast and midwest on local public relations, media relations and community relations. He has also worked as a newspaper reporter and editor and has held numerous PR positions.

The speech is free and open to students, faculty and interested persons. Refreshments will be served afterward.

IBAC/SSU is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in organizational communication. For membership information contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060 or Terry Ayers at 860-2731.

Decker Published

Dr. Wayne H. Decker, associate professor of management at the Perdue School of Business, has written an article titled, "Managing Impressions of Individual and Group Achievement Through Self-Presentation."

The work will appear in an early 1990 issue of the Journal of Social Behavior and Personality. The research suggested that a manager desiring to make a good impression in a work environment should be very generous in sharing credit for good performance, even when the manager clearly has made the major contribution to the accomplishments.

Decker also recently made a presentation in Boston at the annual conference of the Association of Human Resources Management and Organizational Behavior. His paper, "An Attributional Analysis of Ethical and Unethical Decision Making Under Risk," reported research which concerned how graduate business students perceived a businesspersons's paying a bribe to a government official.

The study indicated the unethical behavior was seen as induced by the situation and not necessarily reflective of the businessperson's personality. Refusing to pay a solicited bribe, however, was viewed as a strong indicant of one's own character.

Head Injury Group To Meet

There are 140,000 deaths a year from head injuries in the U.S. Head trauma alone kills more Americans under the age of 34 than all other causes combined. Fifty to 70,000 survive the initial injuries but are left with impairments that preclude their return to "normal" life.

If you are a victim or if a family member has had a severe accident to the head or was in a coma for any length of time, help is available on the lower Shore to help cope.

The Eastern Shore Chapter of the Maryland Head Injury Support Group will hold its second meeting and holiday celebration on Monday, December 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Educational Center of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center. Refreshments will be served.

If you have any questions, please call Cindy Morgan at 543-2782.

Found

A gray and black striped, long hair tabby, female kitten was found outside of the front door of the Musical Arts Center building on Wednesday, November 29. Please contact the Music Department secretary, Karen Griffin, at 543-6385 if this is your kitten.

Cartographer/Geographer Position Available

A tenure track assistant professor/instructor position for a cartographer/geographer is available for fall 1990. Ph.D. is preferred, ABD with dissertation in final stages considered.

The cartographer, with a strong background in manual and computer-assisted cartography, must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, including the ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing. Primary teaching responsibilities are in introductory, advanced and computer cartography. Secondary teaching responsibility is open, but preference is given to specialties that complement those of the existing faculty.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Search will remain open until the position is filled.

Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of recommendation to Calvin Thomas, Chair, Department of Geography and Regional Planning, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Authorization to accept U.S. employment.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Montreal Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club trip over Winter Term will go to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country and downhill skiing. The trip will run from January 21 - February 2.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails maintained by the McGill University Outing Club. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauveur, Mont Ste. Anne and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience is strongly recommended for downhill skiers, but is not necessary for cross-country skiers. The trip includes a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec, with opportunities for both sightseeing and skiing.

The trip this year will feature 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 21 and return on February 2. Cost including lodging, transportation and breakfast and dinner while in Canada will be $220. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canada per day at the McGill house), rental fees for downhill skis, or lift tickets (about $25 Canada per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

A place on the trip may be guaranteed by giving a non-refundable deposit of $50 to the club treasurer, Liz Thomas, at the meetings on December 4 or 11. Club meetings are held at 9 p.m. on Mondays in Nanticoke A of the University Center. The balance will be due by January 6.

Accounting Board Holds Recent Meeting

The Accounting Advisory Board of Salisbury State University recently held a meeting at the University Center. The Advisory Board was developed in 1988 to assist the Perdue School of Business in the quest for excellence.

The Board consists of nationally recognized members from public accounting, industry and education and provides a valuable input from the accounting community.

Basketball Teams to Host Gull Classic This Weekend

by G. Paul Ohanian

Salisbury State's men's and women's basketball teams both make their 1989-90 home debuts Friday in the opening round of the Gull Classic Tournament in the Maggs Center. The two-day tournament will feature four games each day, with an alternating women-men-women-men game setup each day. The SSU women play in Friday's third game, hosting ESAC foe Shenandoah in a 7 p.m. game. Marymount meets N.C. Wesleyan in the earlier women's game, beginning at 3 p.m.

Coach Ward Lambert's men's team plays in Friday's nightcap, hosting Wilmington at 9 p.m. Upsala and N.C. Wesleyan meet in the other men's game at 5 p.m. Saturday's action begins at 2 p.m., starting with the women's consolation game, followed by the men's consolation at 4 p.m., the women's championship game at 6 p.m. and the men's championship at 8 p.m. The awards and trophy presentations will follow the championship games.

Lambert's team (2-4 overall) is living up to its preseason promise of up-tempo basketball through the early going, as the Gulls are averaging 100.5 points per game through their first six contests. The offense features a well-balanced attack, with five players averaging in double-figures, including three players — David Byer, Jamie Gosweiler and Joe McCahon — each with identical 13.3 averages. Freshman forward Joe Zdrojewski has been a pleasant early-season surprise, averaging 12.0 ppg in four games, and guard Vince Ross is chipping in with 10.0 ppg. The Gulls posted their most impressive showing of the young season in last week's 133-86 rout of conference rival Wesley, with 12 players finding the scoring column and six players registering double-digits in points.

Meanwhile, under the guidance of first-year head coach Rhonda Warmsley, the SSU women are off to a respectable 2-2 start while still adjusting to a new system and searching for some very important team chemistry. Senior co-captain Sandy Jankevicius has shouldered much of the team's scoring responsibility, averaging a team-high 19.0 points per game. Senior forward Lisa Jones is adding 11.0 ppg and junior Christie Ivison is averaging 8.5 ppg. Coach Warmsley recorded her first collegiate victory last week against Wesley as the Gulls came-from-behind to beat the Wolverines, 57-50. Jones led Salisbury in that game with 18 points while Jankevicius added 16 points and dished out seven assists.

Prescription Coverage

State employees' prescription card coverage for dependents age 19 or older, who are full-time students, must be recertified periodically.

Call 1-800-225-0131 and request a student certification questionnaire. Fill it out and return it to the Blue Cross/Blue Shield offices and one's dependent prescription bills will be honored for the remainder of the school year. This regulation was implemented in February 1989. Anyone with questions should contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035.

MIT Professor Gives Talk Dec. 11

Heraclitus wrote that a hidden connection is stronger than a visible one. In a similar vein, many field biologists believe that the organisms we do not see might be more important than the larger, impressive ones.

Dr. Shirley Chisolm of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Division of Water Resources and Environmental Engineering will address this idea on Monday, December 11, when she visits the University. She will lecture on "Marine Picoplankton - Very Small - Very Abundant, Very Important" at 3:30 p.m. in room 225 of Devilbiss Science Hall.

Chisolm has a bachelor's degree from Skidmore College and a doctoral degree from the State University of New York. She is an author of over 50 research papers on topics that range from cells to ocean ecology. She has visiting positions at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute and Horn Point Environmental Labs on the Eastern Shore.

Admission to the talk if free and the public is invited. For more information call Dr. Donald Cathcart, interim dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, at 543-6425.

Lyons is also extensively involved in professional, civic and community affairs. He is chairman of the Prince George's County Community Advisory Council (Committee of 100) which advises the Board of Education on desegregation efforts in the County. In February 1988, the Board of Education of the Prince George's County Schools presented Lyons with a Certificate of Recognition in appreciation for contributions and leadership in improvement of public education.

He serves as state representative for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Sciences and a member of the Board of Directors of Jiffy Lube, International, for whom he chairs the minority Entrepreneurship Commission. From 1985-87 Lyons served as a member of the Segmental Advisory Committee to the State Board for Higher Education, appointed by the Governor. He is also on the Board of Directors of the Prince George's County Chamber of Commerce and in April 1988, he began a one-year term as president of the Greater Bowie Chamber of Commerce.

Lyons has authored a number of articles, the latest being "Magnetic Attractions: Desegregating a Minority School District" in the Educational Record and "The Application of the Constitution of the United States: A Limited Vision" in the Howard Law Journal.

Among the honors and awards which Lyons has received are selection as 1987 Employer of the Year by the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women. He has also been honored by the American Council on Education for his service from 1984-86 as a member of the ACE Commission on Leadership, and by his fraternity, Omega Psi Phi, and his church, Gethsemane United Methodist Church, for service. In February 1988 the Prince George's County Fire Department, Senior Management Institute, recognized Lyons as "an Innovative and Exceptional Partner."

Lyons is married to the former Jocelyn Massie of New Haven, CN, and is the father of three sons, James, 19, Jamal, 16, and Jack, 8.

Commencement Sunday

At Salisbury State University's fall Commencement 269 bachelor's degree and 57 master's degree candidates will be recognized for their academic achievements at the University's 65th year graduation ceremonies on Sunday, December 17, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center.

The class of 1989 includes 165 receiving Bachelor of Science degrees, 98 receiving Bachelor of Art degrees and six receiving Bachelor of Arts in Social Work. In addition, 57 students will receive master's degrees: 34 the Master of Education, seven the Master of Arts, four the Master of Science and 12 the Master of Business Administration.

On Saturday, December 16, at 7 p.m., a pinning ceremony will honor the University's nursing graduates in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Dr. James E. Lyons, president of Bowie State University, will deliver the Sunday Commencement address on "Preparing for the Future."

Lyons is extensively involved in professional, civic and community affairs. He is chairman of the Prince George's County Community Advisory Council (Committee of 100) which advises the Board of Education on desegregation efforts in the county. In February 1988, the Board of Education of the Prince George's County Schools presented Lyons with a Certificate of Recognition in appreciation for contributions and leadership in improvement of public education.

He serves as state representative for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, a member of the board of trustees of the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Sciences and a member of the board of directors of Jiffy Lube, International, for whom he chairs the minority Entrepreneurship Commission. From 1985-87 Lyons served as a member of the Segmental Advisory Committee to the State Board for Higher Education, appointed by the Governor. He is also on the board of directors of the Prince George's County Chamber of Commerce and in April 1988 he began a one-year term as president of the Greater Bowie Chamber of Commerce.

He holds the Bachelor of Arts in Spanish from the University of Connecticut. His graduate degrees include the Master of Arts in student personnel and the Ph.D. in professional higher education administration also from the University of Connecticut. Lyons has completed post-doctoral study at the Harvard University Institute for Educational Management.

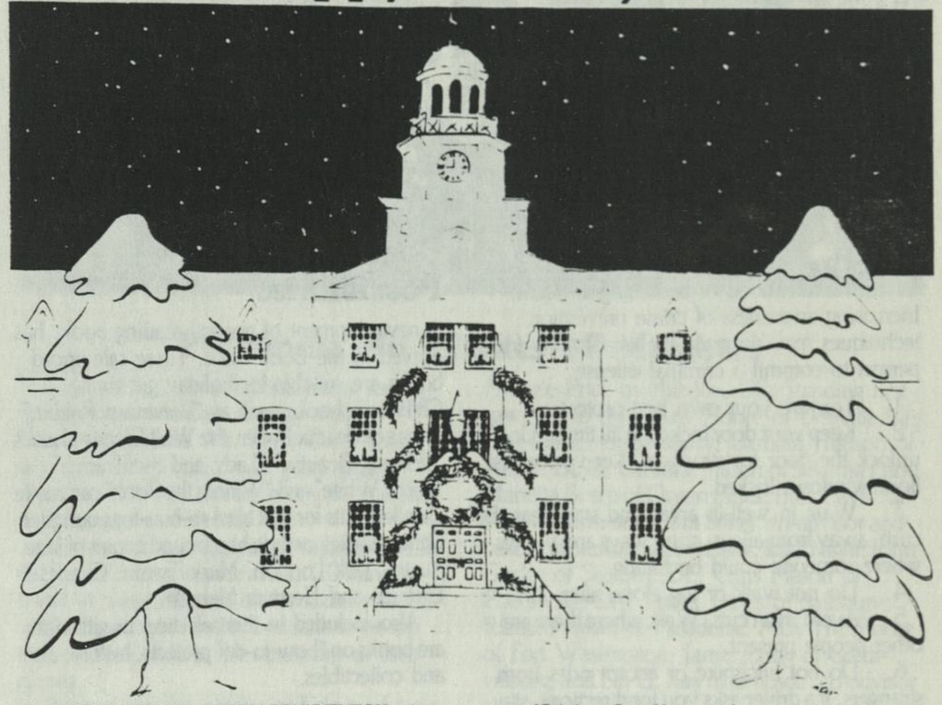
Happy Holidays!



HOLLOWAY HALL IN THE SEASON'S FINERY is the centerpiece of Salisbury State University's campus during the holiday period. "Decking the hall" is a tradition at SSU. Each year evergreen and magnolia foliage is gathered from all over the campus grounds to create the 4-foot wreath suspended over the front door and the pine spirals lacing the columns.

SSU/UMES: An Innovation in Social Work

Salisbury State University and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore have announced an innovative new dual degree program making it possible for more minority students to become licensed as social workers.

Dr. William P. Hytche, president of UMES, described the program as, "one in a series of cooperative, coordinated efforts between these two campuses.

"We have continued that effort with something unique," he said.

Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of Salisbury State, said, "the significant aspect of this program is that we have responded to a social need in the community.

"This cooperative program is not an idea that was internally generated. It is a response to the needs of the region."

What the two campuses have worked out is a program in which a sociology major at UMES can earn a Bachelor of Science at that institution and at the same time acquire the credits required for a second degree, Bachelor of Arts in Social Work, from Salisbury State.

The cooperative, dual degree program was developed by the two campuses in response to a need on the lower Shore for licensed minority social workers.

The need became evident about four years ago when the professional advisory committee for Salisbury State's Social Work Department

Attention December Graduates

Graduation announcements are now available for purchase in the Book Rack. The announcements are 10 to a pack and are $6. Individual announcements also will be available from the cashiers. Also available are forms for personalized name cards. These cards may be purchased directly from Josten's.

Information concerning cap and gowns will be forthcoming.

For further information concerning the announcements, contact a Book Rack representative.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Department of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one may reside. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep your first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit area or a place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Department of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to Public Safety.

For more information on personal safety, contact Public Safety, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Rules of the Road From Public Safety

1. Expect the unexpected.
2. Know what your bike can do and cannot do.
3. Inspect your bike. Don't let a breakdown spoil your day.
4. Drive on the right with the flow of traffic. Never go against traffic.
5. Pedal in single file. It's the best way to go.
6. Don't weave in and out of traffic or between parked cars.
7. Always ride in a straight line.
8. Stop and look in all directions before entering a street from driveways, a curb or another street.
9. Maintain control of your bike when travelling downhill. Take it easy.
10. Pull completely off the road when you stop to rest or talk.

12 Days of Christmas Arrives at Book Rack

The Twelve Days of Christmas sale has arrived at the Book Rack. From December 1-18 there will be a different item on sale each day in the store.

In conjunction with the sale, the store is also holding a contest based on the song, "Twelve Days of Christmas." This contest will run through the end of the sale. In this contest, patrons must correctly choose the current market value of each of the 12 items mentioned in the song. The contestant who has the most correct answers will win a special prize from the staff of the Book Rack.

Stop in and see the different holiday gift ideas as well as the collection of Hallmark holiday cards.

Book Rack Gift Possibilities

A new shipment of general reading books has arrived in the Book Rack. These sale-priced books are suitable for holiday gift-giving. Children's books such as "Velveteen Rabbit," stories of Beatrix Potter, the Walt Disney classics "Sleeping Beauty," "Lady and the Tramp," "Snow White" and "Winnie the Pooh" can make excellent gifts for that hard-to-buy-for youngster. Other classics include hardbound copies of Jane Austin, Jack London, Mark Twain, Charles Dickens and Herman Melville.

Also included in this selection of gift ideas are books on "how-to-do" projects, history, art and collectibles.

Holiday Hours

The Book Rack will close for the Christmas break on Friday, December 22, at 5 p.m. and reopen for Winter Term on Tuesday, January 2.

January Wellness Program

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program starts January 3, 5-6 p.m., Monday - Thursday.

Salisbury Symphony Performs Dec. 15 and 16

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State will perform on Friday, December 15, and Saturday, December 16, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium marking the expansion of its regular programming.

Tickets for the concert are $6 for adults and $4 for students and are available at all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) outlets, the SWAC office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and at the door on the nights of the concerts.

For more information about the SSO concerts or about becoming a patron, call 543-6385 or 749-2787.

Newsletter Semester Deadlines

The last issue of the SSU Newsletter for 1989 is Thursday, December 14.

The first issue of 1990 will be published on Thursday, February 1. The deadline for that issue is Friday, January 26.

For all who have so cordially worked with the Publications and Public Relations staff during the semester, our sincere thanks and best wishes for a happy holiday season.

Tie One On for the Holidays

The Salisbury State University chapter of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), the Department of Public Safety and the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center are working together this holiday season to promote safe driving, free from alcohol and other drugs. Red ribbons distributed on campus are donated by MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) and are supplied through Wicomico County Prevention Coordinator Cindy Shiffler.

This is the fourth year that MADD has participated in the Red Ribbon Program. The goal is to have every vehicle in the state displaying a red ribbon.

Long-Term Disability Insurance

The deadline for the special open enrollment period for long-term disability insurance is fast approaching.

If state employees would like more information as to how this benefit works, or whether it's right for them, call Keith Ferschweiler at 543-6037. But act now, as Personnel would like to receive enrollment cards by Friday, December 15.

African-American Course Offered Spring Semester

An interdisciplinary committee of faculty, administrators and students has organized a one-credit course on African-American Families for the spring semester.

The course will be sponsored by the departments of education, psychology, sociology and social work. Students may enroll in one of these departments under a special topics course designation.

The course will be organized around several evening lectures by visiting scholars and an all-day workshop on Saturday, March 17. The events will begin in late February with 15 hours of class sessions plus public events scheduled to end by spring break in late March.

Watch for additional information about the course and procedures for enrollment in the final University course schedule. For further details, contact Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell of the Social Work Department.

Minority Development Course Being Offered

Beginning in the spring, the Minority Leadership Development Program, sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will be offered as a two-credit course.

The course is designed to provide career guidance, personal and professional development, and a study skills program to assist minority students in achieving higher academic standards and to enhance leadership capabilities.

The course is not included in the spring course listings. Students interested in enrolling in the course should use the course number GENL-150-151, Selected Topics in Developmental Education: Selected Topics in Minority Development.

The course has been tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, 6-8 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Anyone needing assistance in registering for the course should contact Joe Andrade or Terry Clay in the CPPD at 543-6070.

Art Sale Extended

Because of the recent snow storm, the Holiday Art Sale has been extended. The sale will continue through Friday, December 15, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Arts and crafts, paintings, ceramics and photography are on display in the Atrium Gallery of the University Center.

If the public schools close any weekdays between now and Friday, the sale also will close during those times, Art professor Marie Tator Quillen, sale organizer said.

Financial Aid Forms 1990-91

The Financial Aid Forms for 1990-91 are here! Please pick one up from the Financial Aid Office immediately. They are to be completed after January 1. Students applying for any financial aid, including the Stafford Student Loan must complete the form. For priority funding, applications must be received back from the processing center by March 1. Please note that these forms must be completed with a number 2 pencil this year. Pick one up before you go home for Christmas break in Holloway Hall 243.

New Student Registration

On Monday, January 8, the University will test, advise and register over 250 new students. The program will take place in the University Center from 8 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.

Many campus offices may experience an increase in student visits. Students will be seeking information on athletics, housing, vehicle registration, financial aid, books, etc. The Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs urges everyone to make these new students feel welcome to our campus community.

Book Rack and Lower Shore Enterprises Join Forces

The Book Rack and Lower Shore Enterprises will be offering the SSU community a variety of services.

Established in December of 1967, Lower Shore Enterprises currently serves 95 handicapped clients at their new location on Owens Branch Road in Salisbury.

Among the fine services offered by Lower Shore is silk-screening. The Book Rack and Lower Shore are offering some fine sweatshirts ($9), tee-shirts ($6), tote bags, pot holders and bath robes at a substantial savings to you. Many of the designs are customized for the SSU family. Also offered are imprinted napkins, coasters and book matches . . . all in time for the upcoming holiday parties. Personalized pencils and pens are available and come in a variety of colors. Stop by the Book Rack to see the samples.

Montreal Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club trip over Winter Term will go to Shawbridge, Quebec for cross-country and downhill skiing. The trip will run from January 21 - February 2.

The trip this year will feature 11 days in Canada with departure from SSU on January 21 and return on February 2. Cost including lodging, transportation and breakfast and dinner while in Canada will be $220. This does not include rental fees for cross-country skis ($3 Canada per day at the McGill house), rental fees for downhill skis, or lift tickets (about $25 Canada per day or lower with student discount). Downhill skis may be rented in Salisbury for the entire trip or by the day at the slopes in Canada.

A very limited number of spaces are still available. Contact club treasurer Liz Thomas at 546-2576.

Pi Gamma Mu Initiates 17 Members

Pi Gamma Mu, an international honor society for the social sciences, recently initiated 17 University students. Ms. Terry Clay, career development specialist, was guest speaker. A reception followed the ceremony for initiates, their families and friends.

Juniors or seniors applying for admission into the society must complete at least 20 semester hours in specified areas of the social sciences with a B average or better, and rank in the top third of their class in the remainder of their classes.

Pictured are the initiates and their advisors (seated): Carol Howe of Snow Hill; and Michele Price of Millville, DE. December 1989 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

General Information and Directions

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 17, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be Dr. James Earl Lyons, Sr., president, Bowie State University.

3. Caps, gowns and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning Monday, December 1. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore beginning November 15, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in the Flanders Room #1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday-Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. The bookstore will be open on Friday, December 15, from 8:30 a.m.- 5 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 5 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by Dr. Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, December 11. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing and Health Sciences will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Saturday, December 16, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

12. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through letter K (Laurel Kelly) will report to Drs. Bozman and Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart.

Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Theresa Kelly through the letter Z will report to Drs. Wulff and Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart.

13. All Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park) and will report to Drs. St. Martin and White. You will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building) You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

14. B.A.S.W. candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors, on the side nearest the park). You will report to Drs. St. Martin and White and line up alphabetically behind the B.A. candidates. You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

15. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (not the entrance leading to the main arena), and report to Drs. Hedeen and Lewis in the corridor near the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. M.Ed. candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

16. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline and white collar on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President and Vice President of Academic Affairs when they touch their mortarboards.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

17. Graduation Decorum

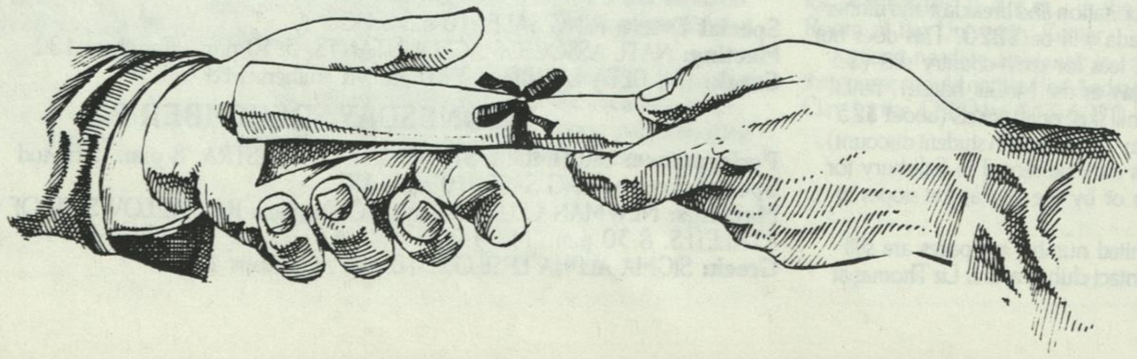
Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).



Ecology, Ornithology Scholarships

The Maryland Ornithology Society (MOS) is now accepting applications from Maryland teachers and youth leaders for three annual scholarships to attend summer ecology workshops which the National Audubon Society holds at its camps in Maine, Connecticut and Wyoming.

Each grant covers the cost of tuition, room and board for an intensive, 12-day course of field study and instruction in ecology, conservation and natural history. These scholarships are funded by the MOS and by the World Nature Association.

The MOS is also accepting applications from Maryland teachers and youth leaders for three annual scholarships for a week of study in ornithology either at the Audubon summer workshop in Maine or at Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology. These scholarships are funded by the MOS and by Captain and Mrs. J. Wood and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cotton.

Although any person over 18 years of age may pay tuition and attend a National Audubon Camp, the MOS requires that its scholarship recipients be those who work with young people. This includes teachers, camp counselors, club officials specializing in youth work, students and others who are planning to make nature education a part of their careers.

Applicants need not be members of MOS but each must be endorsed by a chapter or member of MOS. Each candidate must provide a written statement showing in what manner the Audubon experience will be used to help develop in young people an appreciation of the U.S.'s wild heritage and a sense of responsibility for the care of natural resources and for the quality of the environment. Two or more letters from individuals who know of the candidates' interests and activities are requested.

Applicants wishing to be endorsed by the Wicomico Chapter of MOS must complete an application by January 31. Additional information may be obtained by calling 749-2804 after 5 p.m.

Brochures can be obtained from the Registrar, Audubon Camps and Workshops, 613 Riversville Road, Greenwich, CT 06831.

Applications and letters of recommendation are to be sent to Ms. Linda Cashman, Rt. 1, Box 105, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Roberson at Anthropological Conference

Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor in the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, presented a paper at the American Anthropological Association annual meeting held in Washington, D.C., recently.

Roberson's paper, "Living with Chronic Illness Treatment: The Case of Medication Regimens," was based on her research with rural African-Americans in South Carolina.

Roberson was also elected treasurer of The Council on Nursing and Anthropology of the American Anthropological Association and assumed office at the board meeting held in conjunction with the conference. The Council, with 350 members, promotes the understanding, development and application of anthropological concepts, theory and research in nursing and the other health sciences.

Hepburn Workshop

Dr. Andrew Hepburn, chair of the Communication Arts Department at Salisbury State University, recently taught a class on masks in Greek tragic theatre at James M. Bennett Senior High School and conducted a workshop at Broad water Academy in Exmore, VA, on mime and masks in acting.

The Hecht Co.

Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, conductor of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University, receives a donation of photo portraits of principle SSO members from Bill and Joan Hoffman of Hoffman's Countryhouse Photography. The photos will be on display in Hecht's of the Salisbury Mall and the south Salisbury branch of Maryland National Bank prior to the Orchestra's upcoming concerts. Pictured from left to right are Elliot; Thomas McCarthy, divisional vice president of Hecht's; Roger Van de Grift, vice president of Maryland National Bank; and Joan and Bill Hoffman. The December 15 and 16 concerts will be held at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium at the University. For ticket information call 543-ARTS.

WSCL-FM Presents Holiday Specials

To bring the holiday spirit into its listener's homes, WSCL-FM will feature several Christmas specials as well as favorite CDs from the WSCL Library.

On the eve of Hannukah (December 21), Karl Hass will present his segment "Festival of Lights" on "Adventures in Good Music" at 7 p.m.

On Christmas Eve at 10 a.m., WSCL presents "A Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols," the annual live broadcast of the famous Christmas service from King's College, Cambridge, England. In addition to traditional and contemporary carols, the service includes the reading of Biblical Christmas lessons which have remained virtually unchanged since the service began in 1918. Following this program, "Pipedreams" will present "Seasonal Surprises," a somewhat unusual repertoire from Europe based on Christmas themes.

And for an added treat, WSCL will air "Christopher Hogwood Conducts Handel's Messiah" at 2 p.m. on Christmas Eve. The Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, which has performed this lovely oratorio for the past 135 years, invites all to share in this annual holiday presentation.

On Christmas Day, WSCL will air "Christmas Day Music" from National Public Radio, featuring traditional songs and instrumentals, choral music from across the country, and some beautiful Christmas rarities.

To start the New Year off tune into "New Year's Day From Vienna, 1990," at 11 a.m. on January 1, for a live concert by the Vienna Philharmonic, conducted by Zubin Mehta. In years past, music by the Strauss family has been a specialty of this affair.

WSCL-FM, 89.5 on the dial, Delmarva Public Radio, is a broadcast service of Salisbury State University providing programming to Delmarva 24 hours a day.

Stratas in Puccini's "Il Trittico" December 16 on WSCL

Giacomo Puccini's "Il Trittico"— a triple bill of the three one-act operas, "Il Tabarro," "Suor Angelica," and "Gianni Schicchi"—will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, December 16. This broadcast will begin at 1:30 p.m., Eastern Time, over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network, and will be heard locally over radio station WSCL-FM 89.5 Delmarva Public Radio.

The cast will include Teresa Stratas singing all three heroines, with Luis Lima as Luigi and Timothy Noble as Michele in "Il Tabarro;" Florence Quivar as the Princess in "Suor Angelica;" and Vinson Cole as Rinuccio and Bruno Pola as Gianni Schicchi in "Gianni Schicchi." The conductor will be James Levine, and the announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

During the first intermission Boris Goldovsky, founder of the Goldovsky Opera Theatre and a familiar figure to the Saturday afternoon listeners, will recall his forty-five years with the live Texaco-Metropolitan Opera radio broadcasts. In the second intermission panelists on Texaco's Opera Quiz will be Alfred Hubay, a consultant to the Metropolitan Opera; Christopher Purdy, who heads his own artist management firm; and critic Thor Eckert, Jr.

MAHE Achievement Awards

The Maryland Association for Higher Education (MAHE) is continuing its annual program of awards recognizing educator achievement. These recognitions are made in three areas of professional performance.

"Administrator of the Year" is a professional who may develop, direct and/or evaluate academic programs. The administrator may supervise a staff and manage an office, but also may be responsible for the development and implementation of policies and procedures that affect the student-faculty condition and enhance the educational process in the state.

"Faculty Person of the Year" is a professional who serves as a full-time member of a recognized department within a Maryland post-secondary institution and whose primary responsibility is teaching.

"Advisor/Mentor of the Year" is a professional who serves as an advisor/mentor and whose primary responsibilities have positive impact on the lives and attitudes of faculty and students.

All nominations must be made to Dr. Bellavance and completed application materials must carry his signature.

All applications must be submitted by January 18 to Stan Rich, Chair, MAHE Outstanding Educator Awards, 410 Truth House, Morgan State University, Cold Spring Lane and Hillen Road, Baltimore, MD 21239.

Prescription Coverage

State employees' prescription card coverage for dependents age 19 or older, who are full-time students, must be recertified periodically.

Call 1-800-225-0131 and request a student certification questionnaire. Fill it out and return it to the Blue Cross/Blue Shield offices and one's dependent prescription bills will be honored for the remainder of the school year. This regulation was implemented in February 1989. Anyone with questions should contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035.

Staff Coordinator in Dining Services

Salisbury State University has an opening for a staff coordinator in University Dining Services. The successful candidate will have a bachelor's degree in food management or personnel management or a related area. Experience in a college/university food services student management program is a plus. The coordinator will be responsible for managing and directing the student management program and student employment program for University Dining Services. Duties include recruitment, supervision, training and personnel record management for student employees. Starting salary is $18,000 depending on experience. This is a contractual position with no State benefits.

Please submit a letter of application and resume no later than Friday, December 22, to the assistant director of Personnel, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Salisbury State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Fall '89 Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

With just a few days left in the first semester, its a good time to take a quick glance back at the athletic accomplishments of the past few months. Salisbury State's 1989 fall sports season can best be described as one of ups and downs and good and bad, with several teams enjoying success and others finding disappointment.

The season's best performance was recorded by coach Dawn Chamberlin's field hockey team, which finished 15-4-1 en route to its sixth straight appearance in the NCAA post-season tournament. Highlights along the way included an eight-game winning streak to start the season, road victories against traditional powers Johns Hopkins and Ithaca, and the team's second consecutive Eastern States Athletic Conference (ESAC) championship. Sophomores Cheryl Ish and Vicki Conklin led a balanced scoring attack, as each finished with a team-high eight goals. The SSU defense, led by senior sweeper Debe Clarke, notched nine shutouts and limited opponents to just 14 goals on the season. With the loss of just four seniors from this year's squad and a solid nucleus of returnees, good things should indeed continue for the Gulls.

Posting an equally impressive and successful season under new leadership was the volleyball squad, which finished with a 33-10 record and captured its third straight ESAC championship. Led by first-year co-coaches Barry Shreve and Rhonda Warmsley, Salisbury State won two tournament championships during the year—the Gettysburg Invitational and its own Gull Classic—and placed second in two others. The Maroon and Gold enjoyed a nine-match winning streak in midseason, and closed the year by winning eight of its last nine matches. Co-captains Sandy Jankevicius and Michelle Hammond provided solid on-court leadership during the stellar campaign, with the Gulls' only real disappointment coming at season's end as Salisbury State was overlooked by the NCAA Tournament's selection committee.

Coach Gerry DiBartolo's soccer team capped its first winning season since 1985 with a five-game winning streak as the Sea Gulls finished the year 9-6. SSU outscored its opponents, 16-2, during its season-ending streak, and lost four of its six games by just one goal. Four Gulls earned All-Conference recognition, as sophomore back Chris Carroll was named to the squad's first-team while Bryan Watson, Kelly Wright and Joe Greco earned honorable mention honors.

Despite a disappointing overall season, coach Joe Dailey's football team won its final two games of the year to finish 2-6-1 on the season. The Gulls romped past Western Connecticut, 46-28, for their first win, then defeated former Division I-AA opponent Davidson, 14-13, in the season-finale. Running back Donald Washington helped carry the offense for much of the season's second half as the senior finished with 777 yards rushing and scored 10 of the team's 17 touchdowns. His performance against Western Connecticut was among the best in recent Sea Gull history as he gained 189 yards on 32 carries, caught three passes for 69 yards, and scored four touchdowns. Other individual standouts included senior cornerback John Baugher, who finished his SSU career as the school's all-time interception leader, with 13; and senior nose guard Randy Smith, who topped the team with 7.5 quarterback sacks.

Meanwhile, the men's and women's cross country teams showed marked improvement as the season progressed, with some impressive individual outings along the way. Two freshmen—Tim Smith and Stephanie Brown—and a sophomore, David Atlas, finished as coach Jerry Thomas' most consistent performers, recording several good showings each during the season. Smith and Atlas consistently led the men's squad, including a one-two team finish in the ESAC championships. Brown was SSU's top female finisher in six of nine meets, including a fourth place showing at the conference championship, earning her All-ESAC honors.

Finally, the women's tennis team, under the tutelage of coach Ray Still, finished 2-4 and placed third in the conference tournament. Top individual showings were turned in by a pair of sophomores. Millie Baer, who captured second place in the ESAC Tournament's number two singles flight, and Christina DeSanto, who placed second in the tournament's number six singles flight. The lady netters will return to the courts for a seven-match schedule in the spring.

Microcomputer Workshops

The Department of Computer Science and the Faculty Development Committee are pleased to announce three microcomputer workshops to be held during January in the Tandy Lab in the basement of Blackwell Library. Each workshop will run for two consecutive mornings from 9-11 a.m. (one workshop is four hours in length). All materials will be provided to participants on the first day of each session.

If you wish to register for one or more sessions, please contact the Department of Computer of Science no later than Monday, December 18. If you register for more than one workshop, be sure to indicate your preferences. A faculty member will be accepted into more than one workshop (first-come, first-served) only after registrations have been accepted for single and first choices. Priority will be given to full-time faculty members. You will be notified by mail shortly after January 1 as to whether or not you have secured a seat in a workshop.

Microcomputer workshops to be held in January are: An Introduction to DOS and Microcomputer Applications, Introduction to WordPerfect, and WordPerfect as a Writing Tool.

If additional funds become available, the Computer Science Department will offer a fourth workshop, An Introduction to Lotus 1-2-3 Spreadsheets and Lotus Graphics. If you would like to take this workshop, go ahead and register for it. You will then be notified if it must be cancelled.

Williamson Receives Governor's Crime Prevention Award

Dr. Carol Williamson, Dean of Students, was awarded the Governor's Crime Prevention Award at the 10th awards ceremony in Annapolis recently. Williamson was nominated for the award by Sgt. Carlton (Toby) Tobias, crime prevention specialist in the Department of Public Safety, who accompanied her to the awards luncheon.

Williamson received the award because of the creation of a personal safety task force to pull together services and programs already offered and to analyze future needs for information, personal decision making and behavior.

The concept of risk management was used because it was broad enough to address the level of personal responsibility as well as providing a framework within which multiple issues could be addressed across campus. Among the issues fitting into such a framework were rape and acquaintance rape, alcohol and drugs, assault and battery, personal property protection, and fire safety and prevention.

Williamson said, "I am honored to receive this recognition and do so on behalf of many individuals and departments at the University, including but not limited to Public Safety, the Student Escort Service, the Risk Management Task Force and the Orientation Leadership Team."

"Furthermore," she said, "individual efforts and personal safety awareness on the part of students, faculty and staff contribute enormously to the total well-being of our University community."

The work of the Risk Management Task Force resulted in many improvements to the safety of the campus. Increased campuswide lighting was installed as well as additional emergency phones. Other improvements included the 24-hour locking of residence halls and risk management training for all freshman and transfer students at orientation.

Also, numerous personal and property seminars were held on campus. An escort service was introduced for persons who felt uncomfortable about walking alone on campus or to nearby off-campus locations during evening hours. The service is provided seven days a week, through both student volunteers and campus police.

"The activities initiated by Williamson have enhanced both campus and individual safety and have improved the quality of life in the college community for staff, students and visitors alike," said Jim Phillips, director of Public Safety.

In recognition of the role that crime prevention plays in the reduction and control of crime in Maryland, the annual Governor's Crime Prevention Awards Program was established in 1980. The purpose of the program is to recognize those citizens, community groups, law enforcement agencies and law enforcement officers who have made outstanding contribution to the furtherance of crime prevention in their departments and communities.

Two Position Vacancies in Physical Education: Associate Chair and Athletic Training

Salisbury State University seeks individuals for two tenure-track positions in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics.

The successful candidate for associate chair must possess academic expertise in the area of teacher education with an emphasis in curriculum development. The administrative duties of associate chair include supervision of personnel, budget review, curriculum development and planning, as well as other assigned responsibilities. The position entails 3/4 time teaching. A doctorate is required.

The successful candidate for a faculty position in athletic training must possess academic expertise in athletic training, with an emphasis on effective teaching, curriculum development and advisement of majors. The successful candidate will also serve as director of the athletic training track which includes field experience placements and site visitations. Appropriate NATA certification requirements will be expected. A masters degree is required, doctorate preferred.

Salary and rank will be commensurate with experience for both positions.

Please submit letters of application, resumes and names/phone numbers of three references to Dr. William E. Lide, chairman of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening will begin on February 12 and applications will be accepted until each position is filled. The anticipated starting date is August 15.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Cathcart at National Council

Dr. Don Cathcart, dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and professor in the Department of Mathematical Sciences, conducted a computer workshop at the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics meeting recently in Philadelphia.

Cathcart's workshop, titled "Algebraic and Geometric Techniques Useful in Computer Graphics," focused on mathematical prerequisites for an understanding of algorithms for computer graphics.

The computer programs Cathcart used in the workshop were similar to those developed for some of his classes at SSU.

Cartographer/Geographer Position Available

A tenure track assistant professor/instructor position for a cartographer/geographer is available for fall 1990. Ph.D. is preferred. ABD with dissertation in final stages considered.

The cartographer, with a strong background in manual and computer-assisted cartography, must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, including the ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing. Primary teaching responsibilities are in introductory, advanced and computer cartography. Secondary teaching responsibility is open, but preference is given to specialties that complement those of the existing faculty.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Search will remain open until the position is filled.

Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of recommendation to Calvin Thomas, Chair, Department of Geography and Regional Planning, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Authorization to accept U.S. employment.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Special Events Manager

The University Dining Services has an immediate opening for a special events manager. The successful applicant will have a bachelor's degree, extensive experience in quality catering and be schooled and adept in culinary skills. This is a full-time, unclassified State position. Starting salary in the low twenties. Please send a cover letter and resume not later than Thursday, December 21 to Mary Gene Jenkins, Personnel Director, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Salisbury State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Secretarial

Public Radio Station WSCL has an immediate opening for a secretary. This is a full-time contractual position (35.5 hours/week) with minimal benefits. Responsibilities will include typing, filing and general secretarial duties. Salary is $5-7/hour, depending on experience and qualifications. Interested applicants should submit a letter of application and a resume not later than Friday, December 22, to the assistant director of Personnel, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Salisbury State University and its affiliated organizations are Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employers. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

A History Mystery!

Who has never dreamed of buying an old chest and finding, hidden in its deepest recesses, some secret letters, a treasure map or valuable documents? Only in the movies, you say? Not so! Just such a similar experience recently came to a young local student.

When Andy Scaboo's parents bought an antique desk at a local auction sale a few weeks ago, he and his brother Kris began exploring it, "just to see if anything was still in it." And sure enough, stuck in the very back, behind one of the drawers were two very old looking documents.

"I wasn't sure what they were, and they were hard to read," the young eighth grade James M. Bennett High School student said. Hoping they might be worth lots of money (at the very least!) he asked his parents what he should do. They suggested he call Salisbury State University, and that led him to the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture.

Directors Ray Thompson and Sylvia Bradley examined the documents and upon transcribing them, discovered they were an 1805 deed for property in Worcester County and a notice of Worcester Countian Uriah Hearn's enlistment in the 34th Maryland Militia regiment in March 1830. Although neither document has great monetary value, both have significant historical value. Andy generously offered both to the Research Center. Bradley says the Center was especially pleased to receive these two documents because they are important additions to the Elijah Everett Hearn papers recently acquired by the Center.

Hearn was a prominent businessman, civic leader and patron of the arts with ties to Worcester County as well as Wicomico. His family's papers describe events in the lower Eastern Shore from the 1700s to the 20th century.

Bradley says it is particularly gratifying to find young people with an interest in the past and appreciation for documents such as these.

"Many people, unfortunately, would look at them as worthless old papers and discard them in the nearest rubbish pile, never realizing they may hold keys to our history," said Bradley. "Thanks to Andy Scaboo that will not happen to these two records."

pointed out that local social services agencies were unable to meet their affirmative action goals because they could not find qualified minority applicants to fill vacancies.

Salisbury State University has the only social work program nationally accredited by the Council on Social Work Education on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

In a precedent-setting agreement signed about eight years ago, Bellavance and Hytche coordinated their present and future degree programs to avoid unnecessary duplication and competition within the same region.

However, in the case of social work, Salisbury State had the degree while UMES had the minority students who could fill the region's employment needs.

Dr. Marvin Tossey, chairman of Salisbury State's Social Work Department, in collaboration with Dr. Howard Rebach of UMES, are credited with developing the unique dual degree program to solve this problem. Under negotiated arrangements, each university will accept minor modification of their curriculum and Salisbury State will offer some social work courses on the UMES campus.

As Tossey explains it, a student will be able to meet the sociology degree requirements at UMES, and at the same time meet Salisbury State degree requirements for the Bachelor's in Social Work by completing just three courses, or nine credit hours, beyond the requirements for a separate degree at either campus.

To simplify entry into the dual degree social work program, UMES students will be able to register and pay the fees at that campus. Tuition and fees will be transferred administratively between the two institutions.

UMES will hire a new faculty member in fall 1990 who will, along with Rebach, teach social work courses there in collaboration with the Salisbury State University department. According to Dr. John Wennersten, acting chair of the Department of Social Sciences at UMES, "the sharing of resources of the two institutions will provide a unique opportunity for the students and faculties of both campuses."

Salisbury State's Social Work Department now has a faculty of four. Each semester one of its faculty members is expected to teach a course at UMES.

"There is no social work program quite like this in the country," Tossey said. The University of Maryland System Board of Regents has not only approved the plan but "adopted it as a model for cooperative efforts between other campuses in the state's University System."

Both Bellavance and Hytche said that this is but one of several collaborative programs being developed by their two campuses.

"We are trying to focus on shared resources," Bellavance said.

As in social work, the two campuses are working together "to respond to the needs of the region," he said. They are presently concentrating on a proposal to prepare science students to meet licensing requirements in the field of environmental health.

There is also joint planning in progress in the areas of marine and aquatic sciences.

"Education is not like private business. It takes a lot of time to work these things out," Hytche said.

But the social work dual degree "went through faster than it would have earlier," Bellavance pointed out.

The reorganization of Maryland's universities and colleges under a single Board of Regents has made it possible "to respond more quickly and efficiently to the area's needs," Bellavance added. There would have been more bureaucratic delay under the two governing boards of the past, he said.

Anyone wanting additional information about the program should contact Tossey at 543-6304 or Wennersten at 651-2200, ext. 619.

Twenty-five newcomers join the administrative staff at Salisbury State University this year. "We feel fortunate to have such quality people join us," said Joseph K. Gilbert, vice president of administration. "They're professionals with solid academic credentials and we have great expectations of them."

The 25 bring a variety of experience to their positions.

H. Allen Bennett is the new environmental safety manager for the SSU Office of Public Safety. With his B.S. in biology from Towson State University, he was previously an industrial hygienist at the Johns Hopkins Institution's Office of Safety and Environmental Health.

The School of Education and Professional Studies has hired Doran E. Christensen as its new dean. He earned his Ph.D. in higher education from the University of Maryland College Park and has several publications to his credit. Christensen was chair of the Department of Curriculum and Instruction in the College of Education at Tennessee Technological University.

Paul J. Clements is a laboratory technician in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology. A former chemist and electroplating and electronics technician at K & L Microwave, Inc. in Salisbury, he has his B.S. in chemistry from SSU.

Andrew Dane earned his Bachelor of Music in applied music from the University of Delaware and his Bachelor of Science in liberal studies with a concentration in computer science from SSU. He is a technical analyst for the Computer Services Office at Salisbury State. Formerly, he was a programmer/analyst and systems manager at K & L Microwave, Inc.

Keith J. Ferschweiler is the assistant director of personnel. He earned his M.B.A. in management from Gonzaga (WA) University and worked as a compensation and benefits specialist responsible for advising the director of personnel and the vice president of human resources at

Code of Conduct At Dean of Students

In order to provide students with information of expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty, theft, possession, storage and use of firearms, drug and alcohol misuse, misuse of University property, false information, assault and verbal harassment, violence and extremism, disruptive behavior, sexual harassment and hazing.

The Judicial Guide explains disciplinary proceedings campuswide and in residence, the function of student advocates, procedual and due process, sanctions and appeals. The University Sexual Harassment policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures are available from the University Center information desk and Dean of Students Office, room 212, University Center.

Austin, Cathcart Present Workshop

Dr. Homer W. Austin, professor of mathematical sciences, and Dr. Donald Cathcart, professor of mathematical sciences and dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, recently presented a workshop to 67 teachers of kindergarten - third grades in Accomack County, VA. The workshop was titled, "Using Manipulatives in Teaching Mathematics in Grades K-3."

The workshop included an introduction to the theoretical basis for the use of manipulatives in teaching math. Participants were then provided hands-on experience using concrete materials such as cuisenaire rods, attribute blocks, tangram pieces, chip trading materials and geoboards.

Extended UC Hours

For the convenience of the campus community the University Center will now leave its doors open until 12:30 a.m., rather than midnight, Sunday through Thursdays. This will enable residents of Dogwood and commuters who park in the Dogwood Lot passage through the University Center to their destinations rather than having the inconvenience of circling the University Center.

The staff of the University Center strives to make it convenient, enjoyable and attractive for all at the University to use.

Insurance Plan for Students

Students and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to enroll in a flexible and convenient insurance plan, the Sentry Student Security Plan.

Any full-/or part-time student who is registered and attending a state accredited college or university that formally authorizes the Sentry plan is eligible to enroll. Coverage may also be maintained during the summer vacations and up to one term after graduation.

The program offers several options. Please stop by the Health Center for a brochure or application.

Salisbury State has authorized this insurance program.

Hepburn Workshop

Dr. Andrew Hepburn, associate professor of theatre in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, conducted a series of workshops on "Mask Design and Construction in Theatre, the Neutral Mask and Greek Tragic Masks" at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, PA on January 31.

Homecoming Concert

The "Homecoming Concert" for the Salisbury State University Choir students returning from Germany will be held at Asbury United Methodist Church on Sunday, February 11, at 4 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public. Dr. Nancy J. Cooper will also be featured as organ soloist.

The choral ensemble is under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Karna, director of choral activities and assistant professor of music at Salisbury State. Concerts were presented throughout southern Bavaria during the choir's travels with performances in Heidelberg, Marktoberdorf, Altenstadt, Augsburg and Munich. The choir's two-week itinerary included study as well as sightseeing in these various locations.

As part of a return exchange with the Augsburg University Chamber Choir, the SSU Choir had the opportunity to visit the Augsburg University campus and meet with some of the music faculty and administration from that institution. The two university choirs combined forces for a performance at Augusburg University bringing the singers together to sing a double choral motet by Mendelssohn and the Agnus Dei by Samuel Barber, representing both a German as well as an American composer.

Other works featured on the February 11 concert include choral composition by Lloyd Pfautsch, Randall Thompson, Rene Clausen, Charles Ives, Aaron Copland and Kubik. Organ compositions will include works by Samuel Barber, Dale Wood and William Albright. The concert repertoire represents entirely American composers, a special feature of the choir's tour to Germany.

On Wednesday, January 31, the choral ensemble performed at the Governor's Mansion in Annapolis for a legislative dinner.

Volleyball Tourney Benefits Easter Seals

Volleyball, volleyball and more volleyball! That is what will be happening on February 16 and 17 at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and February 18 at Salisbury State to benefit Easter Seals.

The 1990 Century 21/KHI Volleyball Weekend is an opportunity to have fun and at the same time help people with disabilities. To be eligible to play, teams of up to 10 members raise a minimum of $200 in donations from sponsors. Each team can rate its own ability from "Highly Skilled" to "What's a Volleyball?" Teams play against other teams of similar ability. All are welcome.

Prizes will be awarded to top fund-raising teams and individuals. The grand prize, to be awarded to the top fund-raising individual of the five area volleyball weekend, is a six-night cruise to Bermuda on the S/S Meridian, courtesy of Atkinson and Mullen Travel, Inc. Participants can also qualify for cases of Pepsi, T-shirts, duffel bags and sweatshirts. Proceeds from the weekend will help provide service for children and adults with disabilities on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware.

For more information call (302) 998-2811 or 1-800-377-3800. The deadline for registration is Friday, February 9.

Maryland IPA Dental Info

Maryland IPA Health Program participants take note: arrangements have been finalized and the Salisbury Immediate Dental Center, located just off Rt. 50 in Salisbury, has been approved as a participating dental facility in this area for the MD IPA program membership. If you have questions about approved dentists for other counties, contact the Personnel Office, HH 222 or 543-6035, for additional information.

Black Community Public Policy Discussed

Dr. Samuel L. Myers, Jr., professor of economics and director of Afro-American Studies at the University of Maryland College Park, discusses "Public Policy and the Black Community," on Tuesday, February 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

Myers presentation is part of the Visiting Scholars Program sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs.

Myers is an economist specializing in the analysis of the impacts of social policies on the poor. He has pioneered in the use of applied econometric techniques to examine racial disparities in the criminal justice system, to detect illegal discrimination in consumer credit markets, to assess the impacts of welfare on family stability and to evaluate the effectiveness of government transfers in reducing poverty.

Myers received his undergraduate training at Morgan State University and earned his doctorate in economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has served as a Senior Staff Economist at the Federal Trade Commission and taught economics at the University of Texas, Austin and at the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh. Myers has been a research fellow at the Institute for Research on Poverty, University of Wisconsin, the National Institute of Justice and the DuBois Institute, Harvard University.

Past president of the National Economics Association and member of the editorial boards of the "Review of Black Political Economy," "Social Science Quarterly" and "Evaluation Review," Myers has been active in attempts to translate academic research results into policies relevant to black communities. In his present capacity as director of the University of Maryland's Afro-American Studies Program, Myers is helping to train future policy analysts who can bring superior problem solving skills to minority communities. The program, which provides technical assistance and research support to state and local governments and community-based organizations, is one of the only academic programs in the nation combining technical training in public policy analysis with a comprehensive analysis of the problems of the black community.

Other February events sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs during Black History Month include: Dr. Joyce Ladner lecturing on "Strengths of the Afro-American Family" on Monday, February 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room; and The Other Williamsburg performing "The Afro-American Presence in Colonial America" on Tuesday, February 27, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

For additional information on any of these programs call the Office of Minority Affairs at 543-6125.

Two Gull Teams In Intramural Tourney

Two basketball teams from Salisbury State will compete with up to 50 other colleges and universities during the Schick Super Hoops Regional Tournement at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. on Saturday, February 10.

The Jazz, which includes Norman Ayres, Andre Foreman, Kevin Roberts and James Daniels, and the Runnin' Rebels, comprised of Paul Williams, Jamal Howard, Aubrey Wharton and Tae Johnson, advanced to the intercollegiate tournament by virtue of recently winning the on-campus Schick Super Hoops Tournament.

From the regional tournament, the top two teams will advance to play the championship game at the Capital Centre during halftime of a Washington Bullets game. In addition to participating in the double-elimination regional tournament, each player will also participate in the "K. Swiss Shootout." Prizes include K-Swiss basketball shoes, t-shirts, sweatshirts, Schick Slim Twin Disposable Razors and plaques.

Schick Super Hoops is the country's largest college recreational sports program in the country with more than 800 participating schools and 200,000 students. Regional tournaments are conducted in 22 regions across the country.

Faculty/Staff Wellness

The Faculty/Staff Wellness Program will begin Monday, February 12.

Aerobic dance will be held Monday-Thursday from 4:30-5:30 p.m. in the second floor gym of Maggs. Nautilus training will be available Monday-Thursday from 5-6 p.m.

If you have not submitted a signed physician consent form within the last year, please pick one up at the Physical Education Department. For more information call Bob Cross at 543-6352.

Gala Theme Announced

"Casablanca" is the theme of the Salisbury State Foundation's 11th annual Gala on Saturday, April 28, it was announced by Walter Brittingham, general chairman of the event.

"This is always a fun-filled event, surely one of the social highlights of the year on the Eastern Shore," said Brittingham, owner and president of Buyers' Marketing Service, member of the Foundation board of directors and a Salisbury State alumnus. "The decorations are invariably magnificient, the dinner and appetizers delicious and the entertainment first-rate. Plus, it's a friendly, jovial atmosphere for everyone in attendance.

"Most importantly, however," said Brittingham, "the Gala offers an opportunity for Eastern Shore residents to get to know the University better and to offer it some financial support by attending the event."

Brittingham noted that Salisbury State University began as a two-year state normal school in 1925, involved in training public school teachers.

"What a difference 65 years can make," he said. "From a beginning of one building on 29 acres, an administrative and faculty staff of 13 and only 103 students on campus to a comprehensive university today. We can now boast 25 buildings on 100 acres and offer 36 undergraduate majors and graduate programs in business, education, nursing, English, history and psychology.

"The Salisbury State University Foundation has much to celebrate on the 11th anniversary of the Gala," said Brittingham.

The SSU Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes.

Tickets for the Gala are $150 per couple. For more information, contact the Office of Research and Development at 543-6175.

Horseman Published

Thomas Horseman, instructor of computer science in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, recently had an article published in Respirator Care, the official journal of the American Association for Respiratory Care.

Horseman's article, "Expert Systems: Assistance for Health Care Practitioners and Educators," introduced concepts in expert system technology through an example of respiratory care and suggested tools for developing expert systems. The prototype system used in this article was suggested by, and developed with the assistance of, Ted Wiberg, chair of SSU's Respiratory Therapy Department.

With the publication of the article, Horseman completed the requirements for the M.S. degree in computer science from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. Horseman also holds a M.S. from Clemson University and a B.S. from SSU.

Chapman Honored

Dr. Oscar J. Chapman, personnel specialist in the Personnel Office, has been honored for his eight years of dedicated service to the board of directors of Deer's Head Center, of which the last three years were served as the president of the board. He received the honor from Ms. Betty Powell, director of volunteer services at Deer's Head.

Chapman was originally appointed to the board by former Governor Harry Hughes in 1981 as was re-appointed in 1987 by Governor William Donald Schaefer.

During his tenure as president of the board, Chapman has seen the following achievements at Deer's Head Center: full accreditation of the center, by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations in Chicago; and creation of Deer's Head Center Foundation, the fund-raising organization of the Center. It was through Chapman's efforts that the Foundation was established two years ago.

Students Compete in Stock Market Game

When the stock market opened for trading on November 1, 37 SSU students each took control of individual $500,000 brokerage accounts and began competing against more than 15,000 students across the country in the AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge.

The object of the challenge is to buy and sell any of the 5,000 publicly traded stocks in an attempt to maximize the value of their portfolios by February 28. Up for grabs is over $200,000 in cash and prizes, with one student coming away $25,000 richer.

John Hiltz, an Executive M.B.A. student at The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and a senior vice president at Preston Trucking Co., captured the second spot in the nation during the first week of trading and ranked first in the first month of trading at SSU, investing in high risk stocks.

Doug Johnson, a senior finance major at the Perdue School and the president of Financial Management Association (FMA) student chapter at SSU, indicated that everyone he has talked to is enjoying the contest. He pointed out that even though the market is sagging a bit, students are still doing well.

According to Dr. K. Khazeh of the finance faculty in the Perdue School and an advisor to the FMA, "not only is it an exciting competition, coupled with being fun while you learn, it gives the students the practical experience that they otherwise likely would not receive."

The FMA student chapter at SSU and Perdue School along with the following sponsored the contest to reduce the registration fee to students from $49.95 to $25: Peninsula Bank, Second National Bank, First Shore Federal, First National Bank, Wheat First Securities, Dean Witter, France Smith and Charles Bound.

When students are ready to start investing they just call their broker on a toll-free 800 line that is provided. The broker is positioned at a fully automated trading desk ready to execute trades based on up to the minute stock quotes beamed in via satellite from the exchanges in New York.

Every Monday, USA Today publishes updates on the top 10 and at the end of each month players are mailed account statements and a newsletter. The statement provides an account summary, a record of all the student's transactions, a complete listing of portfolio holdings and a current valuation of student's account. There will also be a ranking section showing how each participant fares against students in their class, at their college and across the country.

Each school will have a winner and the top 10 players nationally will win trips to New York and the Bahamas, national media interviews and some generous cash prizes. Students who are participating at SSU, beside Hiltz and Johnson, include George Diehl, Bernie Rodriguez, David Coontz, Darby Bonsall, Tom Robinson, Paul Hughes III, Craig Snyder, Rhonda Hall, Stacy Milbourne, John Cosimano, Craig Moore, Cregg Lanier, Charles Zerhusen, Eric Van Orden, Melody Pope, Laura Meade, Stacy Matthiesen, Troy Wiley, Thomas Martin, Karen Evans, Jeff Groton, Chris Pilzer, Mark Nelson, Claude Montane, Theresa Strum, Jeff Hostelley, Jung W. Oh, Craig Albright, William Nichols, Robert Heid, Joseph Lariviere and Tim Feehely, Robert Heid, Michael H. Larkin, Craig Coleman, Thomas Martin, and Jeffrey Cottongim.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

Salisbury State will resume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information with prior consent of the student.

Directory information if defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and rewards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

Black History Month Throughout UMS

Dr. James (Dolph) Norton, interim chancellor, has proclaimed February 1990 as "Black History Month Throughout the University of Maryland System." His proclamation reads:

WHEREAS, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, the father of Black History, in 1926 first designated a period in February as Negro History Week; and, WHEREAS, the Association for the study of Afro-American Life and History in 1976 launched the observance of February as Black History Month; and, WHEREAS, Black Americans have contributed significantly to the development of all sectors of our society; and, WHEREAS, the contributions and achievements of Black Americans have not received the recognition and appreciation that they deserve; and, WHEREAS, the University of Maryland System is committed to furthering the public's understanding and appreciation of Black History; BE IT RESOLVED that February 1990 is hereby proclaimed as "Black History Month Throughout the University of Maryland System."

Mabe To Receive Boy Scouts Honor

On Saturday, March 3, the Tri-County District of the Boy Scouts of America will honor Donald Mabe with its Distinguished Citizen Award. Tim Mescon, district chairman, said "It is a fitting tribute that the district recognize someone who has been so supportive of scouting for so many years."

Bill Carey, dinner chairman, said, "Don is an invaluable community resource and scouting advocate. I can't think of anyone more deserving of this award."

Mabe is a native of Kernersville, NC. He received his B.S. degree in poultry science from North Carolina State University in Raleigh and was awarded its Distinguished Agricultural Alumni Award in 1986. He served two years in the United States Infantry and was discharged with the rank of captain. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Mabe of Kernersville.

He and his wife, Flo, live in Princess Anne. They have four children.

Mabe has been with Perdue since 1957 and has served in the following capacities, respectively: broiler supervisor; broiler marketing specialist; broiler sales and service director; the first director of Delmarva hatching egg production; grain and feed production manager; vice president-general manager of the poultry processing division; executive vice president; president; president/vice chairman; and his present capacity as president/CEO.

He is vice chairman of gifts and grants for the Salisbury State University Foundation; advisory board member of First National Bank of Maryland; past president and member of the Delmarva Poultry Industry; board member of the National Broiler Council; member of the Board of Directors of Delmarva Power; member of the Board of Trustees of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center; member of the Greater Salisbury Committee; and vice president and board member of the YMCA. He is an elder in Manokin Presbyterian Church.

The black-tie optional dinner and big band dance will be held in the Ruth Powell Dining Hall. For ticket information, call 543-6316.

Singers Needed

Men who enjoy singing are invited to learn four-part harmony with the Peninsulaires Barbershop Chorus on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. in the Flanders Room of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Tenors, baritones, leads and bass singers are needed for the annual show to be held Saturday, March 24.

For further information call 641-8927 or 742-6680.

Chemistry Position

A tenure track in chimistry is anticipated at the assistant professor level for the 1990-91 academic year.

A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching and research at the undergraduate level is required. The preferred candidate will be able to teach instrumental analysis and have a background/interest in the use of computers in chemical education. Salary is based upon experience.

Send resume, three letters of recommendation and description of teaching and research goals by March 1 to: Dr. E.T. Shaffer, Chemistry Search Committee, Chemistry/Physics Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

The U.S. ARMY FIELD BAND
The Jazz

Jazz Ambassadors To Perform Here February 14

The Jazz Ambassadors of the world-travelled U.S. Army Field Band will present a free concert on Wednesday, February 14, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall. Sponsors are the Salisbury Daily Times, Salisbury State and the University's ROTC detachment.

The Jazz Ambassadors from Washington, D.C. is a select group of military musicians who use their talents to bring the Army image to the American public.

Created in 1969, the Jazz Ambassadors is a component of the United States Army Field Band. Each year this elite big band travels thousands of miles throughout the nation to perform free concerts.

The musicians of the Jazz Ambassadors have earned widespread acclaim with their distinctive musical styling. They show remarkable versatility in their handling of tunes ranging from the swing sounds of the '30s to the popular songs of today's youth.

Many of these performers also are adept composers and arrangers. Their original compositions are sprinkled throughout each program. This arranging dexterity helps to give the band its unique sound.

All the members of the Jazz Ambassadors are chosen by competitive audition. They come from the country's leading universities such as North Texas State, California at Berkley, Towson State and Miami. These performers have achieved national recognition through the superior standard of musicianship they maintain during hundreds of concerts before the public and on radio and television.

Audiences and critics alike have praised this organization as one of the finest performing groups in America. The Jazz Ambassadors present the music of yesterday and today in a program that young and old alike will enjoy.

Free tickets are available, beginning Monday, January 29, at the Salisbury Daily Times, the Army Recruiter in the Twilley Center, Salisbury, and the University Center information desk.

For additional information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Erskine, Quinn Make Donations

The libraries at Yarmouk University and Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST) were the recipients of over 150 books donated by University professors Thomas Erskine and Edna Quinn, who are husband and wife. The couple is spending the 1989-90 academic year as Fulbright Fellows at universities in Irbid, Jordan.

Erskine, who teaches Renaissance literature as well as film at Salisbury State, presented Yarmouk with many 17th century critical works and some American literature texts. One of the books he donated was a critical edition of John Milton's "companion poems," which he had edited. Since Yarmouk was founded in 1975, many of the volumes he donated represented valuable additions to their library holdings.

Quinn, who teaches maternal/child nursing at Salisbury State, presented her university with current texts in her field. Because there have been budgetary constraints caused by the devalued Jordanian currency, the library at JUST, founded in 1986, has limited scientific holdings.

Quinn's gift represented a welcome addition to the library's holdings in nursing. Among the books she donated were several she had reviewed for professional nursing journals. The gifts were acknowledged at separate receptions at the two universities, and pictures and articles appeared in the Jordanian Arabic newspaper.

At both institutions the university presidents acknowledged the support provided over the year by the Fulbright program, which is designed to foster better understanding and mutual cooperation between faculty in participating countries.

Paul Douglass Teacher Scholarship

Applications for the Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office. The deadline for filing is March 31. Applicant must be a Maryland resident, a full-time student and enrolled in the Teacher Education Program. The recipient must agree to teach on a full time basis for two years for each year of assistance. This program is not need-based.

Investment Program In Bay Outlined

This year's Maryland State Income Tax form will mark the second year for the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund.

Last year the fund raised over $960,000. The fund offers Marylanders a way to contribute to the Bay restoration program and to the protection of Maryland's endangered species.

Governor William Donald Schaefer has pledged his full support to the campaign that will raise critical funds for the citizens participation grants program of the Chesapeake Bay Trust and for the endangered species protection programs of the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service of the Department of Natural Resources.

Marylanders can donate an amount of their choice by simply entering that amount on line 63 of their Maryland State Tax Form. The amount will be automatically deducted from their refund or added to their tax payment. The donation is tax deductible for the following year.

Chesapeake Bay Trust financial support grants are available to non-profit organizations, community associations, civic groups and schools for qualified citizen involvement projects relating to the restoration of Chesapeake Bay. The Trust has funded projects throughout the state for a variety of projects including beach cleanups, marsh grass plantings, volunteer water quality testing programs, stream rehabilitation and education programs for the state's youth.

The Forest, Park and Wildlife Service is responsible for the protection and management of Maryland's threatened and endangered plants and animals.

Through the non-game and endangered species program and the Natural Heritage Areas Program, it endeavors to identify and protect Maryland's biological diversity and disappearing natural areas.

Activities include: habitat acquistion, management and conservation; monitoring and surveying threatened and endangered populations; protection of Natural Heritage Areas; implemation of urban wildlife programs; and providing public education.

For further information contact the Chesapeake Bay Trust at (301) 974-2941 or the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service at 974-3195.

Christa McAuliffe Foundation Scholarship

The Christa McAuliffe Scholarship Foundation has established an endowment for teacher education to honor and recognize the ideals of teacher/astronaut Christa McAuliffe. Applicants for this scholarship must be Maryland residents enrolled in a program leading to teacher certification. The recipient must agree to teach one year in Maryland public schools for scholarship grant received. Applications must be postmarked by March 1. Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243. The recipient must be full-time undergraduate and maintain a 3.0 grade point average.

This scholarship is need-based and you must have filed the Financial Aid Form.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

A busy January of basketball has seen both Sea Gull teams surge to the lead in the Eastern States Athletic Conference standings, with the SSU men standing at 9-9 overall and 3-1 in ESAC play heading into play at Shenandoah on January 31, and the Lady Gulls showing a 7-8 overall mark, but 4-1 in ESAC as of January 30. Coach Ward Lambert's men's squad is averaging 103.6 points/game, which ranks Salisbury as the NCAA's top-scoring Division III team. SSU had a string of six-consecutive 100-points-or-more games snapped last Saturday when they defeated York (PA) 88-62 in a "slow-down" game. The Gulls have broken the school's single-game scoring record three times this season, most recently on January 23 when they downed Eastern, 141-132 in OT. The Maroon-and-Gold has won five of its last six games, and will now play five straight games in conference. Next chance to see the Gulls at home is on Saturday, February 3 against Cabrini. Game time is 7:30 p.m., following the Lady Gulls' 5:30 contest, also against Cabrini.

Speaking of the Lady Gulls, they currently stand at 4-1 in the conference, good for first place in the ESAC's Southern Division. Like the men's squad, the women will be tested by the rest of the conference over the next two weeks as they play five of the next six games against ESAC foes. Senior Sandy Jankevicius continues to provide Coach Rhonda Warmsley's team with outstanding leadership, leading the team in scoring (18.0 ppg), rebounding (6.4 rpg) and assists (3.6 apg). On the downside however, it appears that senior co-captain Diane Bickford will be unable to return to action this season. Bickford has not played since January 11, when she injured a knee against UMES.

As for the Sea Gull Grapplers, they return to action in a meet at Del State on Saturday. The Gulls will be looking to improve on their 2-5 dual-meet record. Junior Marty Lewis, who won two matches last weekend against York (PA) and Trenton State, and Will Sandidge, who also notched a win against York, have been Coach Ron Otto's most consistent wrestlers thus far.

Eighteen students recently received their Bachelor of Science degrees from the School of Nursing and Health Sciences. The graduates are: pictured first row from left: Deborah Jean Biewer of Bel Air; Faith Michelle Bragg of Beeville, TX; Clara Anne Colwell, RN, of Salisbury; Kerrie Lee Command of Timonium; Jane E. Dodds of Easton and Sheri Lynn Evans, RN, of Salisbury. Second row: Billie Travis of Painter, VA; Karen S. Griffith of Berlin; Kelli Petr of Timonium; Linda Waller of Salisbury and Lisa A. Scarpulla of Valley Cottage, NY. Third row: Jacquelyn Paylor of Baltimore; Karen J. Leight of Rock Hall; Jeanne Scharf Hornick, RN, of Salisbury; Susan Wainright of Salisbury; Deborah Lynn Whitby of Cambridge; Robin Parr of Gaithersburg and Meri Jo Montague, RN, of Dagsboro. The school is accredited with the National League for Nursing and the Maryland Board of Nursing, and has both undergraduate and master's degree programs.

Bookstore Kindness

Kaaren Kundell, textbook manager at the Book Rack, wrote the National Association of College Stores. Weekly Bulletin with a story of Christmas kindness.

A student had left some Christmas cards in a book that she sold to the store during December buyback. Realizing her error, she called the store to ask if they had been found. Because they had not, Kundell took it upon herself to find them.

During the course of her search, she asked one of her student helpers, Gerald Johnson, if he had seen the cards. Johnson replied that he had indeed found them and had gone to the trouble of taking the three cards to the post office, purchasing stamps and mailing them himself. When she heard the news that her holiday greetings were already on their way, the student was ecstatic.

New Ring Supplier To Design for SSU

Herff Jones, manufacturer of fine quality class rings, is the new exclusive supplier for the Salisbury State University ring.

Education Graduates Are Rated Outstanding

Sandra Bunting

Nancy Thomas Houpe

Rachel Wood

Timothy Young

Several graduates of Salisbury State who were recognized recently as outstanding in the teaching profession have a high regard for the preparatory training they received at their alma mater here.

"Dedicated professors"..."courses I needed"..."graduates well prepared for teaching," were some of their comments.

Timothy P. Young, Delaware's recently named Teacher of the Year, said the courses he took to earn his master's degree in 1976 at Salisbury State proved "very valuable to him as a classroom teacher.

"I learned what would work and what wouldn't," he said. A social studies teacher since 1972 at Chipman Junior School in Seaford, DE, Young said the variety of courses offered at Salisbury provided him with "just what I needed at the time."

He earned his bachelor's at the University of Delaware but took his master's at Salisbury not only due to its convenient location but also because of "all the good things I'd heard about the school." After his graduation he continued to take courses here for credit, he said.

Sandra L. Bunting, recently named Delaware's National Distinguished Principal for 1989, earned her bachelor's in 1966 and her master's in 1974 at Salisbury.

Now principal of the Phillip C. Showell Elementary School in Selbyville, DE, she praised the caliber of student teachers currently coming out of SSU.

"Three to six student teachers from Salisbury come each year to our school" for classroom training under veteran teachers, she said. "We always find them very well prepared. My teachers are happy to have them, and I also recommend them for jobs." She explained that she serves on job interviewing committees for sveral schools including her own.

Of her time at Salisbury she recalled several helpful faculty members, including Dr. Jack W. Wulff, professor of reading education, who she said inspired her to become a reading specialist after nine years of classroom teaching. She was a specialist four years before moving up to assistant principal, then principal.

Bunting was named distinguished principal by a committee of her peers with the Delaware Association of Elementary School Principals. She was one of 60 educators to receive that honor nationwide.

In Maryland, Beverly A. Wilson, a biology teacher at Snow Hill High School, was one of five semifinalists for the state's Teacher of the Year award. The title finally wnet to Anne Patricia Neidhardt, a science teacher at Broadneck High School in Anne Arundel County.

Wilson recalled the "dedicated professors" she studied under when she earned her bachelor's in 1968 and her master's in 1975 at Salisbury. She singled out former faculty members, Drs. Harvey N. Hall, Joseph J. Cutcher and Charles Wingo as teachers who helped her perfect her own teaching skills. "Dr. Hall took us out into public school classrooms for on-the-job training," she said. Wingo became the role model for her own teaching style.

Pointing out that Salisbury was a much smaller college when she attended it, she said she was proud to see it grow because of "the exciting new programs" that growth has brought about.

Two other Salisbury graduates recently won teacher of the year awards in their school districts. They are Rachel E. Wood, a biology teacher at Delmar, DE, who earned her bachelor's in 1971; and Nancy T. Hawpe, first grade teacher at Ross Elementary School, Milford, DE, who took her master's in 1980.

Education Offerings

In order to help meet the needs of area schools, the School of Education and Professional Studies has added some special offerings to its spring semester schedule, according to Dr. John T. Wolinski, assistant dean.

Continued interest in teachers' use of special audio/visual materials has prompted the offering of EDUC 438, "Producing Slide Tape Programs in Educational Settings." According to the instructor and resident media expert, Dr. Arthur J. Wilby, the course will provide teachers and administrators with the expertise needed to allow their students to participate in the Maryland Film Festival as well as provide enrichment for regular classes. The course, which meets on Monday evenings, may be taken for graduate or undergraduate credit.

Mathematics specialist, Dr. Geraldine N. Rossi, will offer a graduate-level seminar titled, "Teaching Elementary School Mathematics." A significant component of this course according to Rossi, Maryland Council of Teachers of Mathematics Association past president, will be the development of techniques and strategies for implementing the latest curriculum standards formulated by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

The title of Dr. Ann Taylor's course, "Integrating Critical Thinking, Learning Styles, and Concept Attainment," basically describes the course content. Developing thinking skills and sensitivity to learning styles is a current topic of much interest in the schools, according to Taylor. In this class, students will be exposed to the latest thinking about teaching thinking and will learn practical strategies for classroom use.

Dr. James R. Replogle, former school superintendent and new assistant professor in administration and supervision, will offer a "School/Community Relations" course. This course, from Replogle's practitioner viewpoint, will explore principles of effective school/community relations based on sound management principles and clear communications skills. Replogle spent many years perfecting school/community relations in his school district and will share insights based on his experiences.

For further information about these offerings, contact the instructors at 543-6280. Classes begin Monday, February 5.

Child Abuse Seminar

Are you interested in preventing the sexual abuse of children? Here is a chance to help make a difference. A training session will be held February 16 from 2:30-4:30 p.m. in the University Center.

Check the information desk for exact location. All interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Shown receiving the contribution is Karen Waggoner, the telethon's community coordinator.

February Is Sweet Month At the Rack

During the month of February the Book Rack will be celebrating "Sweet Month."

There will be three contests running during the month. The first is a photo contest, "Capture Your Sweetie on Film!" The contest rules are simple: the photo must be in good taste; the subject of the photo should be wearing clothing with SSU on it; and the size of the photo cannot exceed 4 x 6 inches. Judging will take place at the end of the month with the photographer receiving a poster size enlargement of the winning photo. The contest is being sponsored in part by District Photo, distributor for the Book Rack's photo supplies.

The second contest, "The Sweetest Treat," requires contestants to submit their favorite sweet recipe on a 3 x 5 card, fill out the entry form and drop it in the provided box in the trade book section of the Book Rack. The prize will be a cookbook.

And, for candy lovers, the Book Rack will feature a different candy bar each week in February at a super savings. Stop in the Book Rack during February to peruse a new display of Hallmark items. The Valentine shop will provide you with many gift ideas. The "Love Tree," a feature in the shop, will bring back memories of "carving" initials on a tree trunk.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Math Majors Complete Test

Five mathematics majors at Salisbury State have competed in the 50th annual Putnam Mathematical Competition. Brenda Figgs of Snow Hill; Joey Pepper of Delmar; Robert Simms and Teresa Trumble of Salisbury; and Leanne Wells of Pittsville took the six-hour test recently. This test is given to select undergraduates across the United States and Canada.

This test is notorious for its difficulty, and those who successfully solve some of the problems are virtually guaranteed admission to a first-rate graduate program in mathematics. The results of the test will be announced by the Putnam Examination Committee in early spring.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 8, 1990

VOL. XI NO. 17

Exhibit Interprets 'Cry, the Beloved Country'

The photographs of Constance Stuart Larrabee will be on display in the Atrium Gallery, located in the Salisbury State University Center next to the bookstore, from February 9 - March 2. The gallery will be open daily from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. Admission is free.

This exhibit titled, "Seek What Is True," successfully blends two art forms, literature and photography. Forty black and white photographs of South African tribal peoples compile a pictorial journey to bring to life Alan Paton's classic novel of South Africa, "Cry, the Beloved Country."

The exhibition begins, as does the book, in the Umzimkulu Valley, where the struggle for human existence in a rural seating takes place in a land of ever-present beauty. It then moves to the congestion of an urban setting, Johannesburg, and the harshness of life in the townships. The exhibition concludes with the images of the dignity and unpretentiousness of traditional life, and finally the innocence of youth.

Transkei, Southern Africa, 1947
(c. Constance Stuart Larrabee)

Larrabee and Patton shared a compassion for humanity and a love for their homeland, South Africa. Through her evocative images and his powerful prose, they capture the moment of a land, and its people, and a world that once was.

On Thursday, February 15, at 2 p.m. the Atrium Gallery will host a reception for Larrabee. She will be in the Atrium Gallery to meet the public and informally discuss the exhibition and her photography.

In addition to "Seek What Is True" in the Atrium Gallery, the Salisbury State Gallery, located in Blackwell Library, also is featuring a photography exhibit in February, "Lewis Hine: Reformer With a Camera." Times and dates for this exhibit may be obtained by calling 543-6271. For additional information on the Atrium Gallery call 543-6100. Both galleries are free and open to the public.

Annapolis Brass Here February 17

The Annapolis Brass Quintet and Friends (Douglas Allanbrook, Ernest Ragogini and John Beck) will perform on Saturday, February 17, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The concert, sponsored by the Department of Music, will feature the works of Mozart, Schubert, William Schmidt and Victor Ewald.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet (David Cran, trumpet; Robert Suggs, trumpet; Sharon Tiebert-Porter, horn; Wayne Wells, trombone; and Robert Posten, bass trombone and tuba) was founded in 1971 as America's first full-time performing brass ensemble. It has been acclaimed as one of the world's truly fine chamber ensembles. Each season the Quintet performs in cultural centers and at universities and colleges throughout the U.S. The annual tours, brass symposias and encouragement of new works by American composers have been instrumental in fostering the tremendous national interest in brass chamber music.

The Annapolis Brass Quintet has toured the European continent 16 times, performing in major cities, at summer festivals in Austria, Spain, Portugal and France, and recording for the broadcast centers in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Ireland. In addition to activity in Western Europe, the Quintet has toured in Central America, the Orient and the Middle East under both independent and State Department sponsorship.

The ABQ has produced 14 commercial recordings, the last in November.

Composer and pianist Douglas Allanbrook has written works in all categories: symphonies, operas, string quartets, piano music, harpsichord music, choral works both sacred and secular, and numerous works for varied chamber music

Film of Clio Awards

The Art Department presents a film on the 1989 Clio Award winners in international television commercials on Thursday, February 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The presentation is free and open to the public. The film is annually presented by the Art Department includes the winners in the international categories. Last year's winners were chosen from 17,000 entries submitted from 44 countries around the world. The entries are from a variety of categories and include non-profit sponsors as well as conventional clients.

"The Clio Awards has been a popular event every year," said Jim Burgess, chair of the Art Department. "Japan, Great Britain, Germany and the U.S. are usually well represented. The international content of the film grants a rare insight into the approach advertisers around the world apply to the respective audiences. The international language of humor is easily understood by all.

"Viewing the cream of the past year's commercials gives the viewer a very different perspective on the impact of the 30-second art form," added Burgess.

The film will run approximately 45 minutes. For more information call the Art Department at (301) 543-6269.

Insurance Plan for Students

Students and/or their dependents now have an opportunity to enroll in a flexible and convenient insurance plan, the Sentry Student Security Plan.

Any full-/or part-time student who is registered and attending a state accredited college or university that formally authorizes the Sentry plan is eligible to enroll. Coverage may also be maintained during the summer vacations and up to one term after graduation.

The program offers several options. Please stop by the Health Center for a brochure or application.

Salisbury State has authorized this insurance program.

Code of Conduct At Dean of Students

In order to provide students with information of expectations for responsible citizenship and procedures for judicial proceedings, a written Student Code of Conduct is published along with a Judicial System Guide.

Topics included in the Code of Conduct include academic and computer dishonesty, theft, possession, storage and use of firearms, drug and alcohol misuse, misuse of University property, false information, assault and verbal harassment, violence and extremism, disruptive behavior, sexual harassment and hazing.

The Judicial Guide explains disciplinary proceedings campuswide and in residence, the function of student advocates, procedual and due process, sanctions and appeals. The University Sexual Harassment policy describes informal and formal procedures for handling complaints.

Copies of all three brochures are available from the University Center information desk and Dean of Students Office, room 212, University Center.

Extended UC Hours

For the convenience of the campus community the University Center will now leave its doors open until 12:30 a.m., rather than midnight, Sunday through Thursdays. This will enable residents of Dogwood and commuters who park in the Dogwood Lot passage through the University Center to their destinations rather than having the inconvenience of circling the University Center.

The staff of the University Center strives to make it convenient, enjoyable and attractive for all at the University to use.

Homecoming Concert

The "Homecoming Concert" for the Salisbury State University Choir students returning from Germany will be held at Asbury United Methodist Church on Sunday, February 11, at 4 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public. Dr. Nancy J. Cooper will also be featured as organ soloist.

The choral ensemble is under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Karna, director of choral activities and assistant professor of music at Salisbury State. Concerts were presented throughout southern Bavaria during the choir's travels with performances in Heidelberg, Marktoberdorf, Altenstadt, Augsburg and Munich. The choir's two-week itinerary included study as well as sightseeing in these various locations.

As part of a return exchange with the Augsburg University Chamber Choir, the SSU Choir had the opportunity to visit the Augsburg University campus and meet with some of the music faculty and administration from that institution. The two university choirs combined forces for a performance at Augusburg University bringing the singers together to sing a double choral motet by Mendelssohn and the Agnus Dei by Samuel Barber, representing both a German as well as an American composer.

Other works featured on the February 11 concert include choral composition by Lloyd Pfautsch, Randall Thompson, Rene Clausen, Charles Ives, Aaron Copland and Kubik. Organ compositions will include works by Samuel Barber, Dale Wood and William Albright. The concert repertoire represents entirely American composers, a special feature of the choir's tour to Germany.

On Wednesday, January 31, the choral ensemble performed at the Governor's Mansion in Annapolis for a legislative dinner.

Black Community Public Policy Discussed

Dr. Samuel L. Myers, Jr., professor of economics and director of Afro-American Studies at the University of Maryland College Park, discusses "Public Policy and the Black Community," on Tuesday, February 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

Myers presentation is part of the Visiting Scholars Program sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs.

Myers is an economist specializing in the analysis of the impacts of social policies on the poor. He has pioneered in the use of applied econometric techniques to examine racial disparities in the criminal justice system, to detect illegal discrimination in consumer credit markets, to assess the impacts of welfare on family stability and to evaluate the effectiveness of government transfers in reducing poverty.

In his present capacity as director of the University of Maryland's Afro-American Studies Program, Myers is helping to train future policy analysts who can bring superior problem solving skills to minority communities. The program, which provides technical assistance and research support to state and local governments and community-based organizations, is one of the only academic programs in the nation combining technical training in public policy analysis with a comprehensive analysis of the problems of the black community.

Gala Theme Announced

"Casablanca" is the theme of the Salisbury State Foundation's 11th annual Gala on Saturday, April 28, it was announced by Walter Brittingham, general chairman of the event.

"This is always a fun-filled event, surely one of the social highlights of the year on the Eastern Shore," said Brittingham, owner and president of Buyers' Marketing Service, member of the Foundation board of directors and a Salisbury State alumnus.

The SSU Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes.

Tickets for the Gala are $150 per couple. For more information, contact the Office of Research and Development at 543-6175.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

Salisbury State will resume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information if defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and rewards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

SSPB Presents Comedy Nights

The SSPB will present two nights of comedy on Friday, February 9, and Saturday, February 10. The shows will be at 8 p.m. in the Gull's Nest.

On Friday the comedian will be Tony Powell. According to observers, Powell is in a class by himself. His refreshing, narrative approach to comedy grabs an audience's attention much like his idol, Bill Cosby. Powell's engaging, affable personality on stage belies his tough east New York section of Brooklyn upbringing. Still relatively new to the comedy scene, he has already made his mark by performing at clubs and colleges up and down the East Coast. Though he could woo an audience with his funny storytelling ability, he is best known for his hilarious impressions of Eddie Murphy, Richard Pryor and Bill Cosby. He was the recipient of the 1987 Henny Youngman Award for the most promising comedian. The exposure he received from this award helped secure spots on a variety of local cable TV shows, which ultimately led to an appearance on NBC's "Showtime at the Apollo." When you see Tony Powell you will genuinely be catching a rising star.

The comedian for Saturday night will be Melvin George II. Tall, lean, bespectacled and armed with a brazen sense of "cool," Melvin George made his comedy debut in his hometown of Boston. In 1975 he moved to New York City where he quickly became a regular at such noted clubs as "Catch-A-Rising-Star" and "The Improvisation." A trained actor and director, he used his theatrical training as a member of "The Kitchen Table Comedy Team" in New York, making appearances at Carnegie Hall, The Village Gate and on several local TV shows. George has completed an HBO comedy special with Robert Townsend. His unusual observations, his smooth delivery and his admirable sense of "cool" will keep entertaining audiences for years to come.

Don't miss these two great comedians on Friday and Saturday in the Gull's Nest at 8 p.m.

Furnace Town Expanding Projects

Furnace Town is looking for a few good gardeners who like to work with the soil and to talk with people. If you would like to be part of a new hands-on garden group, plan now to attend the organizational meeting on Saturday, February 10, at 11 a.m. The meeting is open to anyone interested in gardening as it was done in the 19th century on the Eastern Shore.

In the early 1800's at Furnace Town, women of families who lived and worked in the iron-manufacturing town wove material for their own use. Cotton and flax were grown, cleaned, spun, dyed and woven into the many items needed in a country household. Furnace Town is offering an opportunity for area weavers to bring these skills to life in a 19th century setting.

On Saturday, February 10, at 1 p.m. the organizational meeting of the Furnace Town Fibers Association will be held in the R. Frank Jones Museum.

Printing has come a long way from the 19th century to the present, from hand-setting metal and wooden type to entering text on a computer. Although the process is different, the skills of the printer still determine the quality of the finished product. Furnace Town is seeking people skilled or interested in printing, to demonstrate 19th century printing techniques in the Print Shop while improving their old-fashioned printing skills.

The first meeting of the Print Shop Printers will take place on Saturday, February 10, at 3 p.m. in the Print Shop at Furnace Town.

In the iron-manufacturing company town of Furnace Town in the early 19th century, the country Methodist church was an important part of the community. Manuscripts from the time tell about the church building, the congregation, clothes worn, sermons given and many other details of church and personal life. Books about early Methodism detail its growth in the United States and on the Eastern Shore.

Furnace Town is forming a society so that these fascinating details may be shared with the over 7000 visitors to the Furnace Town historic site.

The 19th Century Church Historical Society of Furnace Town (NCCHSFT) will hold its organizational meeting on Sunday, February 11, at 3 p.m. in the Old Nazareth Church at Furnace Town. Please call 632-2032 for additional information.

Renowned Photographer Visits February 15

Photographer Constance Stuart Larrabee, whose show "Seek What Is True" is currently on exhibit in the Salisbury State University Center's Atrium Gallery, will present an informal gallery talk about her work on Thursday, February 15, at 2 p.m. The Atrium Gallery is located next to the bookstore; the public is invited.

"Seek What Is True" is an exhibit of 40 black and white photographs of South Africa tribal peoples taken from 1937 to 1948. The exhibit represents a collaboration with Alan Paton, author of the classic novel on South Africa, "Cry, the Beloved Country," and seeks to bring his prose to life through the lens of the camera.

Larrabee was born in England in 1914 and soon afterward moved with her family to South Africa. In 1935 she went to Munich, Germany to study at the Bavarian State Institute for Photography where the prevailing impact of the Bauhaus movement in architecture and design revolutionized her way of thinking about photography. She returned to South Africa and established herself as a professional photographer.

During the 1940s leading artists, writers and theatrical personalities sat for their portrait in her studio in Pretoria. She was appointed South Africa's first woman war correspondent during World War II and worked in Egypt and Italy and with the American Seventh Army in France.

Larrabee has lived in the United States since 1949. In the year that she became and American citizen, 1953, she opened her first photographic show at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Two years later two of her photographs were chosen for "The Family of Man Exhibition" at the Museum of Modern Art. More recently, in 1985 and 1989, she has exhibited at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Smithsonian Institute African Museum and the National Museum of Women in the Arts.

Patt's guest speakers have included attorney Jim Otway, former State Senator Joseph Long, Rev. Howard Gordy and personel director at Snelling & Snelling Employment Service, Bill Sargent. The guest speaker program is designed to illustrate the value of effective communication in various parts of the public sector. Patt is an instructor of communication arts in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Great Leaders Lecture February 15

John H. Croom

John H. Croom, chairman, president and chief executive officer of The Columbia Gas System, Inc., will initiate this spring's Great Leader Lecture Series.

Croom's presentation on Thursday, February 15, at 12:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, is sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business. Admission to the lecture is free and the public is invited.

An engineer by training, Croom joined Columbia in 1954 in Charleston, WV, and was later named industrial sales manager for three Columbia distribution companies then headquartered there. In 1973 he moved to Columbus, OH, and became industrial gas utilization manager for the seven Columbia distribution companies.

Prior to moving to Columbia System headquarters at Wilmington, DE, in September 1979, Croom served the distribution companies as vice president of engineering and planning, and vice president of supply and utilization. He was elected chairman and CEO in August 1, 1984, after having served as president of the parent company since November 1982 and as an executive vice president and senior vice president of the Columbia Gas System Service Corporation.

Born in Fayetteville, NC, on December 12, 1932, Croom received a Bachelor of Science in mechanical engineering from North Carolina State University in 1954.

He serves as second vice chairman of the American Gas Association. He is director and former board chairman of the Gas Research Institute and is a member of The Business Roundtable. In Wilmington, Croom is a member of the board of directors and vice president of the Opportunity Center, vice-chairman and a director of the YMCA of Delaware, president and a director of the Del-Mar-Va Boy Scouts Council, chairman of the Delaware Roundtable and a trustee of the Medical Center of Delaware (MCD) Foundation.

He is a registered professional engineer and a member of the National Society of Professional Engineers and the National Eagle Scouts Assocation.

Future speakers in the series include: Leslie Charm, president of Docktor Pet Centers, Inc., Thursday, March 1, 11 a.m.; Barbara B. Hill, president of The Johns Hopkins Health Plan, Tuesday, March 13, 2 p.m.; and Raymond V. Haysbert, Sr., president and CEO of Parks Sausage Co., Wednesday, April 11, 11 a.m. Presentations will be in the University-Center's Wicomico Room.

For more information, contact the Perdue School at 543-6316.

University students and campus organizations collaborated with Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury to sponsor a Halloween Costume Dance to benefit the New Born/Pediatrics Fund of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center. The students raised $687. Sponsors in addition to Pepsi included the Salisbury State Program Board, the Office of Residence Life, University Dining and WSUR, the student-run campus radio station. Pictured are: Randy Whaples of Cambridge (SSU residence life), Ian Moores of Potomac, MD; Donna Richardson, director of development and community relations at PGHMC; Mike Bellina of Beachwood, NJ; and Jodi Henkel of East Hanover, NJ. Zeigler: Empowering Students

Programs to improve the lives of children are the focus of recent workshops and conferences by Dr. Ray Zeigler, professor of music.

In January Zeigler attended the Delphi Foundation Institute's conference titled, "A World Safe for Children," held in Miami. Zeigler represented the Division of Instruction of the Maryland Department of Education. "The primary topic was developing self-esteem and empowerment in students," said Zeigler. "The foundation's feeling is that the only way to make a world safe for children is to make them strong. Strength is found in education."

It was the beginning of a five-year series of conferences designed to bring about major reforms in education. In early February Zeigler met with Governor William Donald Schaefer's liason to the arts in Maryland in the governor's office. Zeigler has been asked to organize a group of teachers who will provide unique experiences in the arts for some 3,000 students at the Children's Convention, to be held in August in Ocean City.

Also this month Zeigler will conduct the Cecil All-County Chorus. "Performing groups in Cecil County are having a difficult time finding students interested in performing," he said. "I want to use a problem-solving approach in rehearsals which directly involves students in making musical decisions" to make rehearsal and performance more exciting for them.

On Friday, February 9, Zeigler, along with Robert Smith of the Communication Arts Department, will speak to parents, administrators and teachers of the Sandy Spring Friends School near Silver Spring, MD, about the importance of the arts in everyone's life. The schools is having to choose between computers for the classroom and teachers in the arts. Last year two teachers were let go, Zeigler said, and that disturbs him.

This spring the music professor will conduct an in-service workshop for music teachers from Accomac County, VA, to be held on the Salisbury campus. It will introduce teachers to some of the latest technology available in areas such as music theory, composition and fundamentals.

For five years Zeigler has been director of the Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, a program for gifted and talented students operated by the Maryland Department of Education. Each February students must audition for admittance into the summer program. This year SSU was included as a state audition site. "We included Salisbury because we wanted more students from the Eastern Shore to have an opportunity to apply," he said. For more information about the Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, contact Zeigler in the University's Department of Music at 543-6385.

Junior-Senior Scholarship

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full-time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, Room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, University Center, Room 212. Deadline for application is March 9.

SSU Student Bikes For Lung Association

David Sipes

"A once in a lifetime experience" is how David Sipes of Salisbury described his last summer's cross-country bicycle trip. Sponsored by the American Lung Association, the TransAmerica Bicycle Trek included 300 riders from 43 different states and several foreign countries.

"A cross-country bicycle trip isn't just restricted to professional cyclists," explained Sipes. "It's the chance to meet 300 great people and make lifelong friends, and at the same time, you feel good because you know that you're raising money to help others."

Sipes, who earned his Bachelor of Science in chemistry from Salisbury State last May, was required to raise $5,000 in donations before he left on the 45-day trip. The riders started from Seattle, WA, on June 5 and ended in Atlantic City, NJ, on July 21, covering an overall distance of 3,400 miles.

He was emphatic in his explanation that it was not a race. "We were 300 people ranging in age from 17-69 and traveling at our own pace. In addition to the riders, there were about 50 volunteers supporting us. There were two tractor trailers following us along our routes—one carried our gear and the other one had been converted into a much needed shower truck. We also had six support vans providing water stops and a mechanics van.

"We averaged about 80 miles a day," said Sipes. "On a typical day, we'd get up by about 5:30 a.m. and would be on the road by 7. We mostly slept in tents along the way and occasionally in college dorms or high school gymnasiums. The weather was beautiful most of the time but the nights got pretty chilly in the mountains and really hot in the plains, especially in North Dakota.

"I'd never been out west before and it was a great chance to see the country. It was a pretty spectacular sight—especially the Rockies.

"We'd ride into small towns consisting of 200 or 250 residents and more than double their population—of course we were front page news," he added. "The people in small town America are just fantastic and very supportive. But we had fun in the big cities as well. In Chicago, for instance, some of us were able to go to a Cubs/Dodgers game at Wrigley Field."

In addition to his warm memories of new friends, places and experiences, Sipes is content with the knowledge that his group did make a difference—they raised $1.8 million for the American Lung Association.

Computer Bowl Here On March 9

The Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, a high school competition in computer programming and literacy organized by the Computer Science Department, will be held on Friday, March 9, in the University Center.

All nine Eastern Shore county school districts in Maryland are invited to participate. A maximum of two teams of four members each will be permitted from each high school. Don Cathcart, dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, said, "We are excited because we know this event will bring many of the best high school computer students on the Eastern Shore to Salisbury State."

Each team will have an opportunity to solve approximately 20 computer programming problems. Points will be awarded based on the number of problems successfully completed and the difficulty of those problems. Mary Lou Malone, chair of the Computer Science Department, said, "The most important aspect of computer programming is problem solving. We will emphasize that in the competition." Computer programs will be judged by the faculty of the Henson School. Students will also be quizzed on computer concepts and terminology by completing a multiple choice exam.

The event is being organized by Tom Dillon a member of the Computer Science Department, and Kathy Farinholt, a member of the computer faculty at Anne Arundel Community College.

"We are planning an exciting and educational experience for these young people and their teachers," Farinholt said, "and Delmarva Power and Salisbury State (the co-sponsors) should be recognized for their contribution to computer education for the Shore."

The first place team will be awarded prize money to be used toward a purchase of computer equipment or software for their school. IBM has contributed $200 for this award.

Delmarva Power, the main sponsor of the event, will award plaques to the first, second and third place teams, savings bonds to the team members of the top three teams and additional computer equipment or software to the winning school.

While the student-team members are competing, their teachers or Computer Bowl coaches, will be invited to two coaches sessions. The first session will center on an innovative use of computers in the classroom. The second will provide a rare look at some of the most advanced computer technology available on the East Coast.

All participants in the Eastern Shore Computer Bowl will be provided with an official Eastern Shore Computer Bowl tee-shirt and certificate of participation. At the conclusion of the day-long event, the students and teacher/coaches will be treated to a buffet luncheon followed by an awards assembly.

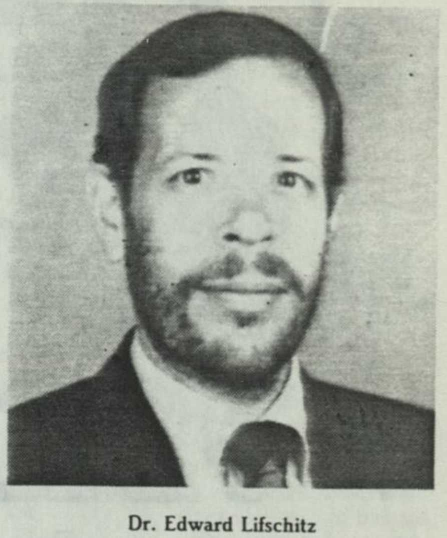
Education Faculty Conduct Mastery-Teaching Workshop

Six faculty members from the School of Education and Professional Studies conducted a workshop, "An Introduction to Mastery Teaching," during winter term. It was designed to provide University faculty, classroom teachers and school administrators with a variety of teaching principles to increase teacher effectiveness. Mastery Teaching is the heart of the Teaching Effectiveness Network, known as TEN, a project which began five years ago in an effort to create a stronger working relationship, common goals, and terminology which could provide more consistency among educators from the Maryland State Department of Education, state colleges and universities, and local school administrators and faculty.

Over 50 classroom teachers and principals from Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester Counties, as well as three SSU faculty members, completed the four-day Level I workshop. Drs. Carolyn Bowden, Maurice Bozman, Ron Frank, James Repogle, Ellen Whitford and John Wolinski conducted the sessions. Plans are underway to give an advanced Level II mastery teaching workshop during the summer. Most of the SSU faculty have received extensive training directly from Dr. Madeline Hunter who designed the Mastery Teaching Principles Program for Maryland. Hunter is professor of education at UCLA and is known worldwide for her teaching methods.

Smithsonian Curator Lectures February 21



Dr. Edward Lifschitz

Dr. Edward Lifschitz, curator of education of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Art, will lecture on "The Human Form in African Art" on Wednesday, February 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Lifschitz, who has held his current position since 1982, is responsible for the development, planning and supervision of the museum's symposia, workshops, institutes, lectures, film series and other programs.

From 1977-82 he was academic studies coordinator of the Smithsonian's National Museum of African Art. There he conducted classes at local universities and adult education centers, museum seminars and symposia, and summer institutes for university professors.

Lifschitz was archivist for the Smithsonian's Eliot Elisofon Archives from 1977-85, a post he held while also directing the Museum of African Art's education programs. As archivist he supervised a national endowment for the humanities-funded project to make the photographic collection more accessible to the public and to scholars; developed loan slide programs for teachers; initiated development of a teaching slide collection; and oversaw the steady growth of the photographic and film collections.

He has taught the undergraduate course, "Art of Black Africa," as an adjunct faculty member for Georgetown University's Department of Fine Arts since 1978. He also has taught courses on African Art in Georgetown's Liberal Studies Degree Program and its school for Summer and Continuing Education.

Lifschitz has conceived, developed and curated several exhibitions, the most recent of which was "Patterns of Life: West African Strip Weaving Traditions." That 1987 exhibit at the National Museum of African Art featured a 12-minute audio-visual presentation.

He has numerous publications to his credit and has done extensive field research in Africa, Europe and Latin America.

Lifschitz earned his B.A. in art history from Brooklyn College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University, both also in art history. Lifschitz's presentation, sponsored by the University Center and the University Forum's Cultural Events Committee, is free and open to the public.

For more information, call the University Center at 543-6100.

Prayer Breakfast

Salisbury Mayor W. Paul Martin, center, is joined by Mayor's Prayer Breakfast planning committee members Davis R. Ruark and Diane C. Banks to announce the 15th annual breakfast to be held on Tuesday, February 27, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center here beginning at 7:30 a.m.

The featured speaker will be General Charles M. Duke, former NASA astronaut on the Apollo 16 lunar mission.

Tickets are $9 and must be purchased in advance at Jack's Religious Gift Shop or the Gospel Shop.

Tickets may also be purchased by writing the planning committee, c/o Mrs. William B. Rictor, 1 Alderney Mews, Salisbury, MD 21801. Tables may be reserved for groups of eight and early reservations are recommended.

Jazz Ambassadors Workshop

The United States Army Jazz Ambassadors will present a two hour Jazz Workshop on Wednesday, February 14, from 3-5 p.m. The workshop will involve selected band members of Wicomico County high schools and members of the Salisbury State University Jazz Ensemble. The first hour of the workshop will emphasize various aspects of ensemble preparation and performance practices. During the second hour emphasis will be placed upon individual instrumental sections of the jazz ensemble. Students will get first hand experience from members of the Ambassadors on various jazz styles, instrument idiosyncrasies and the fundamentals of improvisation.

The idea for the workshop was conceived by Richard L. Johnson, SSU director of bands. Said Johnson, "When David Ganoe, University Center director, told me that the Jazz Ambassadors were coming to campus to perform, I jumped at the chance to have them give a workshop. I think it is a golden opportunity to expose music students to the practical knowledge and professional expertise that the Jazz Ambassadors can provide." Johnson continued, "I feel very stongly that when something like this becomes available, we have a responsibility to offer area music students and their directors, as well as our own players, this level of quality experience. I think that SSU provides these exceptional educational experiences in all areas of the performing arts."

The workshop is sponsored by the University Center. Coordinator of the workshop and SSU liaison for the Jazz Ambassadors is Donna Forgash.

For more information regarding the workshop, contact Richard L. Johnson in room 192 of the Power Professional Building, or telephone 543-6387. For ticket information for the Jazz Ambassadors Concert contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Political Comedy Film February 10-11

SSPB Films opens its spring season with something for Valentine's Day. From Stephen Frears ("Prick Up Your Ears," "My Left Foot") and Hanif Kureishi, the innovative creators of "My Beautiful Launderette," comes "Sammy and Rosie Get Laid" . . . a wicked black comedy of Thatcher England. Cultural, sexual and generational conflicts ensue when a retired Pakistani politician visits his accountant son and his son's social worker wife. Rafi Rahman returns to London (where he lived in his youth only to find the streets on fire with race riots. Once a revolutionary leader who led his country out of colonialism, Rafi has become a tyrannic violater of human rights. He's an old charmer and a very dangerous man. Rafi visits his son Sammy, a not very successful accountant in his late 20's who is partners in an open marriage with Rosie, the rebellious daughter of an upper middle class British family. Rosie and her friends are highly critical of Rafi's brutal activities as a political leader. When Rafi makes an attempt to reunite with Alice, the white married woman he had been in love with as a youth, he comes smack up against the consequences of a lifetime of tyranny and repression.

Showtimes are 7 and 9:15 p.m. on Saturday, February 10, and Sunday, February 11, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Admission is free and open to the public.

Other films in February include "A World Apart" on the 17th and 18th. On February 28 SSPB's Multicultural Committee presents a special screening of "The Learning Tree."

The SSPB film series presents films both in Devilbiss 149 and in the Wicomico Room in the University Center. As a rule, check Devilbiss first. For further information contact David Todd at the SSPB office in the University Center at 543-6197 or 543-6125.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The records continue to fall as the men's basketball team heads down the stretch in the '89-90 season. The latest team mark to fall came last Saturday as SSU converted 35 of 44 free throws to defeat Cabrini, 118-94. The previous single game record for most free throws made, 32, had been set against George Mason University during the '77-78 season. SSU, averaging 103.7 pts/game through last Saturday's game, has broken the single game scoring record three times this season, and is on the verge of breaking several other single season records.

Senior forward Joe McCahon is leading the Gulls in scoring, with 18.3 ppg, while guard David Byer is adding 17.0 ppg. Senior point guard Russell Springmann continues to rank among the Division III leaders in assists, with 9.5/game The Gulls play their final home game of the season on Thursday, February 15 when they host Messiah College at 7:30 p.m.

The Lady Gulls continue to battle for first-place in the ESAC's Southern Division, with an important game at Frostburg State this Saturday. Whichever team finishes in first-place in the ESAC South will host the conference tournament on February 23-24. SSU trails Frostburg by a half game heading into Saturday's showdown.

Senior Sandy Jankevicius continues to lead the Lady Gulls in scoring with a 17.0 ppg average, while point guard Vicki Miller is adding 10.1 ppg and a team-leading 4.0 assists/game. Sophomore Jeanie Daly, who joined the team after the Christmas break, has proved a valuable addition as she leads the team in rebounding with 6.7/game. Jankevicius is averaging 6.6 rebounds per game.

The SSU wrestlers have not found much success on the dual-meet mats this season, with a record of 2-7, but compete on an individual basis in the Metro Tournament in New York this Saturday. Junior Marty Lewis sports the team's best individual winning percentage with an 8-4-1 record.

Student Travel and Research Fund

Undergraduate and graduate students are invited to apply for grants from the newly-established Student Travel and Research Fund.

The fund, sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation, is intended to help students who are making presentations at conferences, working on research projects with faculty, traveling abroad to participate in an educational program, attending conferences with a student/faculty group, etc. Students may receive up to $300 to support their activities.

Application is simple. Interested students should write a letter to the selection committee explaining their need for funding. Please provide as much detail as possible about a project or travel plans. A supporting letter from a faculty member who is in a position to know about the project is also necessary.

Deadlines are: March 20 for the summer, May 15 for the fall semester and November 20 for the winter or spring semester.

Please send letters to: Selection Committee; Attn: Sharon Rubin, Student Travel and Research Fund, c/o Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Room 350 Holloway Hall.

Bradley Publishes on Double Mills

A history of Double Mills, a 19th century turbine mill near Mardela Springs which still has the capability to become operable, was the subject of an article by Sylvia Bradley, assistant professor of history, for the most recent issue of Old Mill News.

This national journal is published by the Society for Old Mills. Bradley, who has specialized in Eastern Shore history, is co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture. She is on the board of directors of Double Mills Inc., dedicated to the preservation and restoration of this mill which is located on a creek feeding into the Nanticoke River.

"Dozens of grist mills at one time operated in the lower Delmarva Peninsula, but one by one they disappeared, both operationally and physically," Bradley said. "Today, only Double Mills remains. On the entire Eastern Shore, Wye Mills is the only other one capable of operations."

For information about preservation efforts for Wicomico's historic mill and setting (used as a mill site as early as the 18th century), contact Bradley at 543-6246.

Erskine/Quinn Collaboration

Professors Thomas L. Erskine and Edna B. Quinn, University faculty and husband and wife, are the authors of biographical essays that recently appeared in "Great Lives from History: Renaissance to 1900," published by Salem Press.

Dr. Erskine, professor of English, wrote essays on Martin Bucer, the Protestant theologian who attempted to reconcile Luther and Zwingli, and Pope Pius V, the pope responsible for halting the advance of the Ottoman Empire and famous for his participation in the Inquisition. Erskine, who teaches religious literature of the Renaissance, focused on the religious controversies of the 16th century.

Dr. Quinn, professor of nursing, outlined the career and achievements of Ignaz Phillip Semmelweiss, the Hungarian physician whose discovery of the cause of childhood fever ranks with the scientific works of Lister and Pasteur. Quinn, who is a certified nurse-midwife and who teaches maternal/child nursing, stressed Semmelweiss' work with the antisepsis. During the couple's summer trip to Jordan, where both are Fulbright professors, they visited the Semmelweiss Museum in Budapest.

Phi Kappa Phi Eligibility

The University chapter of the national academic honor society of Phi Kappa Phi is preparing for its annual initiation of new members. The society is interdisciplinary, drawing from all departments within the University.

The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. The society hopes that by recognizing and honoring those persons who have excelled in scholarship, in whatever field, it will stimulate others to strive for excellence.

Membership is elected from the top 5 percent of the senior class with all candidates having substantially higher than a 3.6 grade point average on a 4.0 scale. Juniors, whose academic performance so merits, also are eligible for consideration by the society.

Those students interested in being considered for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should contact Dr. G. Ray Thompson, HH 380, 543-6251 or 543-6245, by February 28.

Afro-American Families Subject of Lecture

Dr. Joyce Ladner, a nationally known sociologist regarded as an authority on the issues of today's family relationships, stress, children and transracial adoption, will lecture at the University Center on Monday, February 26, at 7:30 p.m.

Ladner, a professor at the Howard University School of Social Work since 1981, will discuss "Strengths of Afro-American Families." Her presentation, in the Wicomico Room, is free and open to the public.

Her lecture is part of a series of programs celebrating Black History Month on campus and begins a spring series on African-American families.

"We are very pleased that Dr. Ladner is visiting the University," said Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, an associate professor of social work at SSU. "Her national reputation as a researcher with particular emphasis on black families and issues impacting on women and children is significant."

A profilic writer, Ladner has to her credit numerous articles and publications. Her books include "Tomorrow's Tomorrow: The Black Women," "Mixed Families: Adopting Across Racial Boundaries" and "The Death of White Sociology." In 1986 she published "Preventing Children from Having Children: Final Report of the Mayor's Blue Ribbon Panel on Teenage Pregnancy Prevention."

Ladner has also published over 70 articles in academic journals as well as such popular publications as The New York Times, The Washington Post, Ebony, Essence and Black Enterprise. She has been cited in The Christian Science Monitor as well as featured in a week-long series on teen pregnancy in The Washington Post. Ladner has made many radio and television appearances including several on the "Phil Donahue Show" to discuss the black family. She was featured in a documentary film on "Black Teen Fathers" on WUSA-TV in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Joyce Ladner

Ladner has become known as one of the foremost authorities in the areas of black women, the feminization of poverty, black families, teen pregnancy and transracial adoption. She not only explores the issues, she offers new ideas toward solutions and an expert opinion. Ladner's lecture is part of a one-credit course on "African-American Families" offered this spring through the departments of education, psychology, sociology and social work. The course will culminate on Saturday, March 17, with an all-day symposium titled, "Strengths of African-American Families."

Ladner has been a professor of sociology at Hunter College and The Graduate Center of the City University of New York. She received a Bachelor of Arts from Tougaloo (MS) College in 1964 and earned a Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy from Washington (MO) University in 1966 and 1968, respectively.

A list of her recent presentations includes "The Future of the Black Family," University of Pennsylvania; "Teen Pregnancy: Implications for Blacks and Other Americans," Yale University; "Women and International Development" conference, moderator, sponsored by TransAfrica Forum, Georgetown University Law Center; and "Shaping a Post-Reagan Foreign Policy Towards Africa and the Caribbean," sixth annual Foreign Policy Conference (conference convener), Cannon Caucus Building, Capitol Hill.

Ladner has served as a chair of the District of Columbia Mayor's Blue Ribbon Panel on Teenage Pregnancy Prevention and is a board member of numerous organizations including TransAfrica Forum, the Field Foundation and Washington Metropolitan Planned Parenthood. Her professional memberships include the American Sociological Association, Eastern Sociological Society, Society for the Study of Social Problems and Sociologists for Women in Society.

Poet Hudgins To Read February 22

Poet Andrew Hudgins will read from his books, "Saints and Strangers" and "After the Lost War," in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on Thursday, February 22, at 8 p.m. The event is free and the public is welcome.

Hudgins, born in Montgomery, AL, currently teaches at the University of Cincinnati. One of America's most honored young poets, his first book, "Saints and Strangers," was runnerup for the 1986 Pulitzer Prize and won the Texas Institute of Letters Award, the Award of the Society of Midland Authors and the Great Lake Colleges Association Award.

"After the Lost War," a book-length narrative poem written in the voice of the poet/musician Sidney Lanier and dealing primarily with Lanier's Civil War experiences, won the Poets' Prize and received lavish praise from critics and fellow poets.

Of his work, Doris Grumbach has said, "Andrew Hudgins' poems are extraordinary: simple, direct, available, yet profound, deeply religious, loving and compassionate.

The poet Rodney Jones has called "After the Lost War" "an American classic."

For his work, Hudgins has received fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Ingram Merrill Foundation and the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown. He has also won a Pushcart Prize, a Stegner Fellowship, an Ohio State Arts Council Grant and a Bread Loaf Fellowship. His poems have appeared in The New Yorker, Poetry, The Hudson Review, The Kenyon Review, The Nation and American Poetry Review.

He is currently the Hodder Fellow at Princeton University.

2. Teaching/Assistant Football Coach—The successful candidate must possess an area of academic expertise compatible with the department's curricular offerings. The person will serve as an assistant football coach and coach in track and field or tennis. This is a contractual position, for which the rank of lecturer will apply. Salary will be commensurate with experience and credentials. Screening will begin March 15 and continue until the position is filled.

The Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics provides general wellness experiences for the entire student body as well as a multi-track physical education major with options in teacher education, health fitness, athletic training and dance. Athletically, the University competes in Division III with 18 sports (9-men, 9-women) and is committed to an athletic program that fosters integrity and personal growth among scholar-athletes.

Letters of application, resumes and three references with addresses and telephone numbers should be forwarded to: Dr. William E. Lide, Chair of physical education and director of athletics and campus recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Film of Clio Awards

The Art Department presents a film on the 1989 Clio Award winners in international television commercials on Thursday, February 15, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The presentation is free and open to the public.

The film will run approximately 45 minutes. For more information call the Art Department at (301) 543-6269.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Computer Bowl Here

The Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, a high school competition in computer programming and literacy organized by the Computer Science Department, will be held on Friday, March 9, in the University Center.

All nine Eastern Shore county school districts in Maryland are invited to participate. A maximum of two teams of four members each will be permitted from each high school. Don Cathcart, dean of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, said, "We are excited because we know this event will bring many of the best high school computer students on the Eastern Shore to Salisbury State."

All participants in the Eastern Shore Computer Bowl will be provided with an official Eastern Shore Computer Bowl tee-shirt and certificate of participation. At the conclusion of the day-long event, the students and teacher/coaches will be treated to a buffet luncheon followed by an awards assembly.

Junior-Senior Scholarship

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full-time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, Room 154, or the Dean of Students Office, University Center, Room 212. Deadline for application is March 9.

Nathan Foundation Gifts Near Half Million Mark

The Nathan Foundation of Dorchester County recently presented $40,000 to the Salisbury State University Foundation, Inc. to finance four-year scholarships. The scholarships, amounting to $8,000 each, are for five Dorchester County students to attend Salisbury State. The check was presented to Dr. Bellavance by Ed Nabb, president of the Nathan Foundation. To qualify for the scholarship, Nabb said, one has to secure a guidance counselor's recommendation. The selection process begins in May.

The Nathan Foundation has been making scholarship money available to Salisbury State-bound students since 1962. The Foundation's 28-year investments in SSU now totals nearly $500,000.

The scholarships are always at Salisbury State, because, Nabb said, "we can buy more quality education there for our dollar than we can at any other institution in the state of Maryland."

Bellavance said distribution of the scholarship money is closely controlled by the University. "There's been a very good track record for these students," he said.

The Nathan Foundation specifies that the money be used only for the benefit of citizens of Dorchester County and goes to organizations that serve people of every race, color and creed.

The Nathan Foundation was created in 1962 following the instructions in the will of Milford Nathan, who died in 1956. Later the Foundation was supported further from the estate of Bertha Nathan, Milford's sister who died in 1981.

Prevention Resource Center Materials Available

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center has a library of materials available on alcohol and other drugs, AIDS, steroids and related topics. Any student, faculty, staff or member of the community may borrow materials for up to a week at a time.

Reference materials and books, pamphlets, and printed materials and over 175 videotapes and films are available for use in writing papers, preparing presentations, or conducting workshops and activities.

The resource center is located behind Maggs Gym in Annex C (the gray trailer). Materials may be checked out with student ID card or drivers' license.

Hours of operation are: Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-noon and 1-4:30 p.m. Evening hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 7-8:30 p.m.

Programming support, a speaker's bureau, directory and referral services for self-help groups and treatment options are also available through the center. All services are strictly confidential.

Prevention Resource Center Has Evening Hours

In response to requests from community members and students who use the Alchohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, evening hours have been established. The center is now open from 7-8:30 p.m., Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. "Hopefully, this will make utilizing the center more convenient for individuals who have classes or work during day hours," said Jennifer Berkman, director of the center. Reservations for tapes or materials can be made by calling the center ahead of time at 543-6309.

AAUW Scholarship Offered

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full-time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212. Deadline for application is Friday, March 9.

Calcott Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212. The deadline is March 9.

Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fundraising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout troop here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Calcott was a writer for The Daily Times.

State Nursing Scholarship

Applications for the Maryland State Nursing Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office.

The deadline is April 16. Recipients must be Maryland residents, attend a Maryland school and have a 3.0 grade point average. Applicants must be enrolled in an academic program leading to a nursing degree or diploma.

Recipients must practice in Maryland one year for each year of the award.

.02 Awareness Campaign

Maryland has a new law regarding drinking and driving for people under the age of 21. The campus' Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center is coordinating an information campaign on campus and throughout the Eastern Shore to help raise awareness about the law.

The new law stipulates that drivers under 21 are driving with an alcohol restriction on their license. New licenses that are being issued from the Motor Vehicle Administration have "Under 21, Alcohol Restricted" printed on the license. However, the restriction applies to anyone under 21, regardless of whether it is printed on the license or not.

The new restriction means that those under 21 who are stopped and found to be driving with a blood alcohol level of .02 or greater will automatically lose their license for 30 days and receive a one point violation on the license. Additionally, for a first violation, the drivers' license can be suspended for up to one year or revoked for six months. Up to $500 in fines can be assessed the violator as well.

For second and third offenses, the drivers' license may be suspended for up to a year or revoked for one year to 18 months. The fine for these offenses can reach $500 as well. For most people, a blood alcohol level of .02 can be reached after as little as one beer. Law enforcement officials on the lower Shore are participating in the awareness campaign. "Students and young adults need to know that the .02 law is going to be enforced. We want to make them aware of the law and the risk they are taking if they choose to drink and drive. The underlying message behind the law is, don't drink anything and drive," said Jennifer Berkman, director of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the law can contact the Prevention Resource Center at 543-6309.

Dr. Naomi Rosenblum, author, curator and professor of the history of photography, will speak on "Lewis Hine and Social Photography" on Monday, February 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Following the lecture, there will be a reception in the University Gallery, located on thee second floor of Blackwell Library, where the exhibition, "Lewis Hine: Reformer with a Camera," will be on display. Both events are free and open to the public.

The exhibition, which was organized by the Library of Congress and is being circulated nationally by Art Services International of Alexandra, VA, will be on display in the University Gallery through March 1. It consists of about 60 photographs by Hine (1874-1940), a major early 20th century American photographer and a leader in the field of "social photography," which sought, by documenting social problems such as child labor, dangerous working conditions, tenement housing and slum life, to bring these social ills to the attention of the public in the hope of effecting reform legislation and social change.

The exhibition focuses on Hine's photographs of child labor, which he made while employed as an investigative photographer and reporter for the National Child Labor Committee during the period 1908 to 1918. The photographs show children, most of them between the ages of eight and 13 and some as young as five, working at various jobs in coal mines, factories and mills; as pieceworkers in the seafood industry, on farms or at home; and as newsboys and vendors on the streets. Captions, based on Hine's notes, list whatever information he was able to obtain, including the children's names, workplaces, work hours and meager daily earnings.

In her lecture Rosenblum, a recognized authority on social photography and co-author of the book, "America and Lewis Hine," will discuss the emergence of social photography and its flowering in the United States during the period before World War I; Hine's work in this mode, as well as his later work of the 1920s and 1930s; and the documentary photography of the Depression era as seen in the photographic projects commissioned by the Farm Security Administration (FSA) during the Roosevelt administration's New Deal.

Rosenblum is widely published and has lectured extensively on numerous subjects related to the history of photography. She is the author of "A World History of Photography," published by Abbeville Press in 1984, and co-author of several books and exhibition catalogues on American photography.

As a further event related to the Hine exhibition, the University Gallery will sponsor a screening of the film, "America and Lewis Hine," in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Monday, February 26, at 7:30 p.m. The film was recently selected by the American Library Association as one of the 15 best documentary films of the decade of the 1980s.

The University Gallery is located on the second floor of Blackwell library and is open Monday - Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Mondays and Wednesdays from 5-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition are given each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator.

NYC Museums Trip Planned

The University Center is sponsoring the first bus trip of the spring semester to two New York City museums on Friday, March 9. The bus will leave the University Center, Dogwood parking lot, at 6 a.m. and return at approximately 11 p.m. There will be brief stops for breakfast and dinner.

The bus will drop off students at the Whitney and the Metropolitan Museums and pick up from the Metropolitan only at 5 p.m. for the trip home. The Whitney Museum is currently exhibiting "Post Modern Sculpture: 1965-1975." Admission is free for students presenting a valid Salisbury State University identification card. The Metropolitan Museum is presently featuring "Gold of Africa," "European Master Drawings," "Geldman Collection: 20th Century Masters" and a costume exhibit titled "Age of Napolean." Admission to the museum is not included in the bus trip charge.

Full-time students may begin sign up at the University Center information desk on Friday, February 23. The trip will cost $12. Part-time students, staff, faculty, guests and alumni may begin sign up on Wednesday, February 28; their charge will be $15.

There are a limited number of seats and sign up will be on a first come basis. For additional information call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

SSPB Films Present 'A World Apart'

Chris Menges ("The Killing Fields," "The Mission"), winner of two Academy Awards for Best Cinematographer, made his directional debut with "A World Apart."

Cannes Best Actress Award-winner Barbara Hershey ("Beaches," "Hannah & Her Sisters," "Shy People," "Boxcar Bertha") stars in Menges' uncompromising, based-on-fact drama about a South African family caught up in the brutal early struggle against apartheid. Set in 1963, "A World Report" is the powerful story of a wife and mother who is arrested for her anti-apartheid activities, leaving her troubled teenage daughter to cope, on her own, with the tumult. Roger Ebert of the Chicago Sun-Times calls "A World Apart,"

A Triumph. One of the year's best films."

David Ansen writes in Newsweek, "'A World Apart' is a stunning look at apartheid. It unearths layers of painful irony that other South African movies have never probed. It touches many of the same bases as Richard Attenborough's 'Cry Freedom,' but director Chris Menges eschews Attenborough's epic pomposities for truths that hit closer to home. Menges....has a background in documentary that serves him well.

"The texture of Johannesburg life is captured in swift, telling details, with none of the over-inflation that sometimes inflects directors dealing with important themes. But his most remarkable achievement is the wrenching, complex, perfect-pitch performance by young Jodhi May. Barbara Hershey's tightly coiled performance is masterful, and Linda Mvusi, as their black housekeeper, Elsie, is astonishingly good."

Showdates are Saturday, February 17, in Devilbiss 149 and Sunday, February 18, in the Wicomico Room. Showtimes are 7 and 9:15 p.m. Note the different location.

Upcoming SSPB films include "The Learning Tree" on February 28, "Forbidden Planet" on March 2 and 3, and "Hairspray" on March 17 and 18. For more information contact David Todd at 543-6197 or 543-6125. It's free and open to the public.

Larrabee Exhibit

"Seek What is True," an exhibit of 40 South African tribal photographs by Constance Stuart Larrabee, continues in the Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the bookstore, through March 2.

The free exhibit will be open daily from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Born in England in 1914, Larrabee moved with her family to South Africa as a baby. Her work spans the years from 1937 to 1949 with a hiatus during 1944-45 when she was working as a war correspondent in Europe. Motivated by her own aesthetic interest and under no constraints of outside scientific or commercial interests she captures these tribal peoples engaging in age-old cycles that would soon be permanently interrupted and disappear due to first, incursion, and then, transplantation.

She does not simply eulogize and oversentimentalize her subject but lets the serene and self-contained images of the Batsuto, Swazi, Ndebele and other tribes speak for themselves. While the images were taken independently, in 1949 she collaborated with Alan Paton, author of the classic novel of South Africa, "Cry, the Beloved Country," to present a narrative sequence of photographs to reflect the poignancy of his novel.

In 1953 Larrabee became an American citizen and in addition to exhibitions in South Africa and Canada, she has exhibited at the American Museum of Natural History, the Museum of Modern Art, the Corcoran Gallery of Art and the Smithsonian Museum of African Art. During 1987 and 1988 "Seek What is True" travelled to Duke University, the University of Virginia and Amherst College.

For information call 543-6100.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

Salisbury State will assume the right, under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, to provide student directory information without prior consent of the student.

Directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student wants more or less than directory information released, please notify the Office of the Dean of Students, 543-6080, room 212, University Center.

African-American Families Course

At 7:00 on Thursday evening, February 15, in Caruthers 111 the first meeting of the one-credit course on African-American families will be held. At this meeting the requirements of the course will be explained. Add slips may be completed at this time.

There will be four sections of the course. The education section is taught by Ms. Julia Webster; the psychology section by Dr. George Whitehead; the social work section by Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell; and the sociology section by Dr. A.K. Talbot, Jr.

Each section will have three class sessions. All students will be required to attend several public lectures including a day-long symposium on "The Strength of African-American Families" on Saturday, March 17.

Phonathon Callers Needed

Do you like to make phone calls and need a little extra cash for the spring? Here's a great opportunity.

The SSU Alumni Phonathon begins on March 7 and runs through April 12. Student callers are needed to call SSU alumni and ask them to make contributions to the Annual Fund. Calling is on Mondays-Thursdays from 6-9:30 p.m. with the possibility of a couple of Sunday afternoons or evening sessions.

Each student will be required to work two to three nights per week. The pay rate is $4.25 per hour. Students must have good telephone manners and be willing to solicit donations over the phone. A mandatory training session will be held before the Phonathon begins. Food and beverages will be served at the training session and each night of the Phonathon.

If interested, stop by the Alumni Office, Holloway Hall, room 136, soon and sign up.

Environmental Trust To Hold Meeting

The Wicomico Environmental Trust will have its first meeting of the year on Sunday, February 18, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center.

The main item of business will be mapping a plan of action, advocacy and direction for 1990. An important item will be plans for Earth Week, including the visit by the internationally renowned systems ecologist H.T. Odum on Earth Monday, April 23.

For more information call Mary Corddry at 742-5568 or Ben Fusaro at 543-6470, or 543-6471.

Student Travel and Research Fund

Undergraduate and graduate students are invited to apply for grants from the newly-established Student Travel and Research Fund.

The fund, sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation, is intended to help students who are making presentations at conferences, working on research projects with faculty, traveling abroad to participate in an educational program, attending conferences with a student/faculty group, etc. Students may receive up to $300 to support their activities.

Application is simple. Interested students should write a letter to the selection committee explaining their need for funding. Please provide as much detail as possible about a project or travel plans. A supporting letter from a faculty member who is in a position to know about the project is also necessary.

Deadlines are: March 20 for the summer, May 15 for the fall semester and November 20 for the winter or spring semester.

Please send letters to: Selection Committee; Attn: Sharon Rubin, Student Travel and Research Fund, c/o Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Room 350 Holloway Hall.

Brunch on the Hill

Looking for a special and affordable way to break that "same old Sunday" routine? Would you like to kick back and enjoy Sunday afternoon without worrying about cleaning up the kitchen? Stop by the Gull's Nest, in the University Center, and be introduced to their family-oriented Sunday Brunch. It features a very attractive setting, an impressive variety and prices that are an old-fashioned value.

The menu includes: carved steamship round or whole tom turkey, omelet bar, salad bar, Belgian waffle bar, broccoli spears with a special sauce, bacon, scrambled eggs, sausage links, biscuits and country gravy, hash browns, toast and assorted pastries, breads and muffins.

Dates are February 11 and 25, March 4 and 18, April 8 and 22 and May 6 and 13.

Prices are: Adults, $6.95 and children, $3.95. Service is available Sunday from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

An RSVP is requested for groups of 5 or more. To RSVP call 543-6103.

Epilepsy Group Meets

The next Salisbury Epilepsy Support Group meeting will be on Wednesday, February 21, at 7 p.m. in the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore Office in the Power Professional Building.

For more information call Edward Simonoff at 543-0665.

Summer Camp Openings

The Salisbury School has several openings for its Summer Day Camp, June 21-August 3, Monday-Friday.

Specialist positions are available in art or arts and crafts, creative writing (story, poem or making a book), video (must have own equipment), puppetry, nature, wilderness adventure and any other course or program someone would like to design and teach.

Other positions available are group counselors to work with children ages 4-12. Counselor responsibilities include planning and leading activities and group supervision. Counselors must be enthusiastic, energetic and resourceful.

Specialists can opt to work full days (9 a.m. - 3 p.m.) or half days (9 a.m. - noon). Counselors must be able to work 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. for the full six weeks of the camp.

The deadline to apply is April 1. Salary is negotiable. The Salisbury School is located on Hobbs Road. For more information call 742-4464.

Dance Open House

SSU Dance Company is holding an open house for all those who are interested in dance on Friday, February 16 in the Maggs dance studio. The dance open house will be an informal information session on the Dance Company and dance program presently at SSU. Refreshments will be served. Students as well as community members are invited.

On Thursday, February 22, from 5-6 p.m., the company will be auditioning for two apprentices. Applicants must be from ages 14 and up. No dance experience is required. Auditions will be held in Maggs Dance Studio.

Clinton Presents Master Class

Pianist, Dr. Mark Clinton, will present a master class February 18, from 2-5 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Clinton, artist-in-residence at Salisbury State, received both his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music from the Peabody. In May 1989 he received the Doctor of Musical Arts Degree from the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University, where he studied under the direction of master-teacher John Perry. He also has studied with Carl Zecchi and Tatiana Nikolayeva at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria.

The class is free to area piano teachers and students. Anyone interested in attending and/or performing should contact the Department of Music at 543-6385 between 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Auditions Held For Symphony Orchestra

A community orchestra depends upon community participation. The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University is holding open auditions for qualified string players.

The SSO presently includes members from most of the lower counties of Maryland, as well as players from lower Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Virginia. This spring's schedule includes the Orchestra's annual fund raiser, "Savor the Symphony," on Friday, March 23, in the University Center; its spring concerts are on May 18 and 19 in Holloway Hall Auditorium, with special guest artists, the Annapolis Brass Quintet.

Fall 1990 will mark the beginning of SSO's fifth season and the celebration will include several exciting events. Plans are underway for two "run-out" concerts to other communities on the Shore, one in the Easton area.

The SSO rehearses every Sunday from 7-9 p.m. during the school year. Anyone who plays a string instrument and would like to become a member, please contact Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chairman, Department of Music, at 543-6385 for an interview/audition.

Outdoor Club

The Outdoor Club will hold meetings on Mondays at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke B of the University Center.

At the meeting on February 19 the club will discuss upcoming trips and programs. Sign-ups will be opened for the caving trip in Bath County, VA, on March 9, 10 and 11. The trip will be open to inexperienced and experienced cavers, and the cost will be $5 for members and $7 for non-members. All students are welcome to participate.

The Prevailing Winds, a woodwind quintet

Prevailing Winds Perform Feb. 27

Prevailing Winds, a woodwind quintet, will appear on Tuesday, February 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The group's lively style of performance includes a wide variety of selections, showing a mastery of classical, popular, jazz and ethnic music.

Prevailing Winds is exactly what the name implies: a fresh breeze in classical music today. The goal is that classic music, be it Beach Boys, Brubeck or Bach, be as much fun for the audience as it is for the performers. Their busy schedule this year includes concert series at Maryland Hall in Annapolis, Kraushaar Auditorium in Baltimore County and Montgomery College's Performing Arts Center near Washington, D.C. They have received an enthusiastic response from their audiences and critical acclaim from the press, and have appeared on numerous radio and television programs.

Norman Middleton of the Washington Post described an evening with Prevailing Winds as "a wide-ranging concert that at once delighted and relaxed the crowd...first-rate intonation, phrasing and dynamics...done with cleverness and animation."

The members of the group are Nan Raphael, flute, who as a member of the Piccolo Society has an active interest in promoting the piccolo as a solo instrument; Kerry Willingham, oboe, who, as well as being a specialist in baroque performance practices, is the originator of the country and western style of oboe playing; Tom Puwalski, clarinet, who counts among his credits study at three major conservatories of music and work with professional orchestras, polka bands, rock bands, and a Klezmer band; Beth McDonald, french horn; and Roy Carson, bassoon, holder of the American land speed record on a German bassoon.

Their combined talents and unique approach to programming and performance promise to provide an entertaining evening of fun and music.

The performance, sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee, is free and the public is invited.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Minority Development Course Is Offered

Beginning this semester, the Minority Leadership Development Program, sponsored by the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), is being offered as a two-credit course. The course is designed to provide career guidance, personal and professional development, and a study skills program to assist minority students in achieving higher academic standards and enhancing leadership capabilities.

The course is not included in the spring course listings. Students interested in enrolling in the course should use the course number, GENL 150-151, Selected Topics in Developmental Education: Selected Topics in Minority Development.

The course is scheduled for Wednesdays, 6-8 p.m., in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Anyone needing assistance in registering for the course should contact Joe Andrade or Terry Clay, the course's instructors, in the CPPD at 543-6070.

SPSS Users Guide Available at Book Rack

A revised and expanded edition of "SPSS on VAX: A Guide to Using the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences at Salisbury State University" is now available in the Book Rack.

In addition to providing a brief introduction to SPSS, the manual documents the EZSPSSX Manager, a system of shortcuts for running SPSS on the VAX computer. This year's edition also includes material on SPSS Graphics.

A small number of complimentary copies of the manual are available to interested faculty on a first come basis.

Contact Ed Steffes in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at 543-6432.

Kappa Delta Pi Presents Gift to Salvation Army

Danielle Hoageson and Laura Foley, vice president and president respectively of Kappa Delta Pi education honor society at Salisbury State, recently presented Debra Furst of the Salisbury Salvation Army Youth Club a wide assortment of new children's books. Children of the community will have access to these books during activities that the Salvation Army sponsors, such as the Latch Key program.

Kappa Delta Pi obtained the books by co-sponsoring a Scholastic Book Fair at the University with the SNEA (Student National Education Association). This was the first time the book fair was held at the University, Foley said.

"We hope it will become a yearly event," she added. "The books we receive for holding the fair will be donated to organizations throughout the community. Each year we would like to increase the number of books donated."

A portion of the books received for the fair also were donated to local Head Start programs.

Gilbert To Chair Celebration of Bicycling

Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration, was recently appointed chair of the advisory board for the National Celebration of Bicycling scheduled from April 21 - June 3.

The National Celebration of Bicycling will take place in cooperation with the League of American Wheelmen and hundreds of other bicycling groups and clubs throughout the United States. It will also align bicyclists with two larger national programs—the National Celebration of the Outdoors and Earth Day 1990—which will involve over 60 national youth, conservation and recreation organizations, representing more than 25 million Americans.

The celebration will have two main goals. First, consistent with the tradition of National Bike Month, an effort will be made to increase public awareness of bicycling and portray bicycling as an enjoyable recreational and fitness activity. Second, the celebration will help educate the public and key decision-makers about the rights and concerns of bicyclists.

The National Celebration of Bicycling Committee includes such notables as: The Honorable U.S. Representative Glenn Anderson; Dr. Robert Arnot, "CBS Morning News"; Lon Haldeman, trans-continental record setter; Dick Harris, chairman, Group W Radio Westinghouse Broadcasting; Elaine Mariolle, champion, 1986 Race Across America; Robert Rodale, Rodale Press; The Honorable U.S. Representative Claudine Schneider; and The Honorable Andrew Young, mayor of Atlanta.

Gilbert recently chaired the League of American Wheelmen's National Rally held on campus. He is a member of the SSU Bicycle Club, the Salisbury Bicycle Club, the Tampa Bay Freewheelers, The League of American Wheelmen and the Florida Bicycle Association.

Mastery Teaching Subject of Workshop

Six faculty members from the School of Education and Professional Studies conducted a workshop during the recently completed winter term minimester.

"An Introduction to Mastery Teaching" was designed to provide University faculty, classroom teachers and school administrators with a variety of teaching principles to increase teacher effectiveness.

Mastery Teaching is the heart of the Teaching Effectiveness Network, known as TEN, a project which began five years ago in an effort to create a stronger working relationship, common goals and terminology which could provide more consistency among educators from the Maryland State Department, state colleges and universities, and local school administrators and faculty.

Over 50 classroom teachers and principals from Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties, as well as three SSU faculty members, completed the four-day Level I workshop. Drs. Carolyn Bowden, Maurice Bozman, Ron Frank, James Replogle, Ellen Whitford and John Wolinski conducted sessions. Plans are underway to conduct an advanced Level II mastery teaching workshop during the summer.

Most of the SSU faculty have received extensive training directly from Dr. Madeline Hunter who designed the Mastery Teaching Principles Program for Maryland. Hunter is professor of education at UCLA. and is known worldwide for her teaching effectiveness methods.

Singer/Songwriter Rick Kelley To Perform

The SSPB Spotlight Club will present Rick Kelley in concert on Friday, February 16, at 9 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room.

In 1979 after receiving his degree in vocal music from the University of Michigan, Kelley moved to Los Angeles and began work writing original music for documentaries, commercials, feature films and songs for major recording artists. After fronting numerous groups, he went solo in 1985 and has since been on the college circuit.

His emotionally charged performances are pure entertainment, aimed at getting the audience involved with him, his music and each other. Kelley's show is an exciting blend of Motown/Beach music classics and original compositions. His now famous high-energy version of "In the Midnight Hour" is balanced by the original ballad "Be A Woman To Me Tonight" which touches the hearts of all those present. Kelley is completely self-contained utilizing synthesizers and drum machines to create his sound.

His talents are evident by his selection to showcase at 12 regional National Association of Campus Activities college entertainment conferences and the 1988 National Conference where he received the largest request for bookings of any musical artist. Over 190 different campuses in the 1988-89 school year got to witness a Rick Kelley performance, and in 1989 he received the NACA Small Concert/Coffee House Entertainer of the Year Award. He also found time to record in 1987 his second album, "I'm Back."

Wellness Program

Faculty and staff are invited to become charter members of Club Maryland, a wellness program designed exclusively for state employees.

Those who join before March 31 receive a one-week membership to a local fitness center, a CLUB MARYLAND T-shirt and a charter member button, and will be eligible for the grand prize, a one-year membership at a fitness center and accomodations for one week at a Maryland vacation resort.

To remain a member in good standing, Club members agree to: make more nutritious food choices; participate in two of the designated "Walks Across Maryland" with family and friends encouraged to join these fun-filled walks; attend two wellness seminars or fitness classes such as smoking cessation, aerobics, safety, a healthy heart, etc. (Four seminars will be held here on campus beginning in March); and provide verification of completion of two of the four screening programs being offered.

The screening programs are: blood pressure screening, February 22, UC Nanticoke A; cholesteral screening, February 22, UC Nanticoke A; mammogram screening, September 18; and colo-rectal screening, October 18.

Teaching Research Conference Here

Author of the critically acclaimed "Women's Ways of Knowing" and a member of the directorate of the seventh international Pan African Congress to be held in 1992 are the principal speakers of the annual Mid-Atlantic Conference on College Teaching and Classroom Research March 9-10 here.

Dr. Jill Mattuck Tarule co-authored the groundbreaking work on women's intellectual development. The New York Times Book Review called "Women's Ways," "A framework for future research on women, knowledge and identity," and Jerome Bruner of the New School for Social Research said, it "opens new vistas...in the general study of human knowledge."

"This important book...encourages one to think in new ways about what constitutes knowledge and therefore about the aims of education for both women and men," wrote Carol Gilligan of Harvard University.

Sharing the rostrum will be Dr. Acklyn Lynch, associate professor of African-American Studies at the University of Maryland Baltimore County.

Lynch is one of 12 people on an international directorate charged with planning the 1992 Pan African Congress in Harare, Zimbabwe. The congress examines political issues confronting African people throughout the world and this is the seventh time in this century that such a congress has been held. (The last was 1974.)

Lynch has been active in the civil rights movement since 1962.

In the 1970s he established an educational program for prisoners in the Massachusetts Correctional System involving some 10 different prison facilities. He also has served as a volunteer teacher at prisons in the Baltimore and Washington areas.

In Washington he has worked with the independent black schools movement, helping to establish Watoto Schule and teaching at Ujamaa Schule, both pre-kindergarten through 12th grade schools with African-American centered curricula. These schools have an impressive track record in sending their graduates to colleges and universities across the country.

Lynch also has worked as a teacher with RAP, Inc. and Black Seeds, Washington-based drug programs primarily for youth, which take a holistic approach to treating drug addiction.

He also is active with TransAfrica, a Capitol Hill lobby, and the Free South Africa movement. He has lectured extensively in Africa, Europe and the Caribbean.

This year's conference explores the relationship between diversity in the classroom and communication and learning. "We know that how students learn is affected by their age, gender, ethnic background, race and other characteristics," said Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Charles and Martha Fulton School of Liberal Arts and a conference organizer. "Increasingly, faculty are aware that their own characteristics also affect how they present their subject matter, and how it is perceived. Content no longer may be taken for granted."

These complex issues will be addressed by Lynch in his Friday afternoon talk, "A View From the Bridge: Effective Teaching in the Nineties," and by Tarule in her Saturday morning presentation, "Women's Voices in the Academy: Themes of Connection." Discussions follow with faculty, students and conference participants.

Teachers from universities, colleges and secondary schools should find both the conference and the weekend on the Eastern Shore enjoyable, continued Rubin.

Faculty are encouraged to bring students. Students will be admitted free and represented in panel discussions which follow the two keynote speeches.

A special resource area also will be set aside to allow participants to informally discuss effective teaching practices. "All participants are invited to bring materials to share on any topic involving excellence in college teaching," said Dr. Andrew Pica, chair of the SSU Faculty Development Committee which is sponsoring the event.

Cost of the conference is $10 for SSU faculty and staff. $20 for those from other institutions. The fee includes a dinner and reception on Friday, and a continental breakfast Saturday.

Several area hotels and motels are offering special rates to conference participants. For a registration brochure with that and other information contact Dr. Andrew Pica, Department of Chemistry and Physics, at 543-6480.

Miller Book 'Worth Being Influenced By'

"Let me take a bit of time this week to draw attention to a book whose plot has haunted me for months," said Martin Marty, senior editor of "Christian Century" and for the past three decades one of the most influential forces in American Protestant thought. The book is "eminently worth struggling with, being influenced by...you might try it."

The book's title is "The Way of Suffering: A Geography of Crisis" by Jerome A. Miller, professor of philosophy at Salisbury State. Earlier his book had been reviewed favorably in "Christian Century," a widely read and highly respected national ecumenical journal.

Now, writing in "Context," a national newsletter on the interaction of religion and culture, Marty said Miller's book "invites the reader to go on a pilgrimage to examine the meaning of suffering in her or his life. Miller begins: 'Because God is so far removed from us, we are constantly approached by those who purport to be his oracles; it seems that as soon as the sacred disappears, instant prophets rush forward to take its place....'

"Miller sees 'ordinary existence as the will to control.' Only when an Other (God, neighbor, friend) interrupts the flow 'do I realize that time slips away from me without leaving a mark.... I forget the fact that I cannot remember what I am doing with my life.' In ordinary life, then we seek ways of mastery without thinking....

"'Without realizing it, I subordinate my whole life to the project of being in control of it.' This is an antireligious drive that is unconsciously at work in our lives. We have to make everything 'manageable,' including Otherness (or God).... 'The will to control is always motivated by a fear of vulnerability....'

"I should say that his (Miller's) is not a hangdog, sniveling, groveling approach to suffering and life. It's an awe-full (sic) book that helps one have encounter with the Other, and it's profoundly humanistic—and theological. In its own way affirmative. I wish I had time and space for more. But some of you at least might call your booksellers to find the book and embark on your own."

"The Way of Suffering" is sold at the Book Rack in the University Center.

Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Coach Ward Lambert's Sea Gull basketball team plays its final home game of the season Thursday evening at 7:30 when Messiah College visits the Maggs Center. Thursday night's game will be the last home appearance for this year's seniors, notably Russell Springmann, Joe McCahon and Eric Jordan.

Additionally, it may be the evening that Springmann breaks the SSU single-season assist record of 233, held by Tom Torrillo ('73-74). The point guard has 207 assists through games of Saturday, February 10, and will have also played at Lincoln this past Tuesday night, moving him within striking distance of the 16-year old record. Springmann is currently ranked second in the nation with 9.5 assists per game.

Other records within reach for this year's team include the individual mark for most three-point field goals made in a season, 68, set by current player David Byer last season. Both Byer (with 54 made through 22 games) and McCahon (59) could establish a new single-season record. The team record of 87.5 points/game for highest scoring average is certain to fall as the Gulls are still leading the nation with an average of 102.8 points/game through last Saturday.

The Lady Gulls will also close out their regular season schedule with a home game on Tuesday, February 20 against Catholic University, beginning at 5:30. Seniors Sandy Jankevicius, Diane Bickford and Lisa Jones will be playing their final home games. Jankevicius, who became the fifth member of the Lady Gull 1,000-Point Club earlier this season, could surpass fourth-place all-time scorer Gail Tatterson (1168 pts) before season's end. Jankevicius has 1083 points through 19 games.

The SSU women have already secured a spot for the ESAC Tournament on February 23-24, while the SSU men are in good position for a tournament berth, but had not yet clinched a spot through February 11. The top two teams from each of the conference's two divisions advance to the season-ending ESAC Tournament.

Coach Ron Otto's wrestlers close out the '89-90 season this weekend at the NCAA East Regionals in Washington, D.C. Paced by junior Marty Lewis' first place finish in the 177 pound weight class, the Gulls finished seventh out of 19 teams at last weekend's Metro Tournament at Hunter College in New York City. Lewis, 12-4-1 on the year, was 4-0 in the tournament. Ron Miles finished fourth in the 134 pound class, Jeff Hake placed fifth at 167 pounds, and Ron Rossi finished sixth at 190 pounds.

Hedeen Workshop

Dr. Robert A. Hedeen, professor of biological sciences, presented the program at the February 1 meeting of the docents of the Ward Foundation Wildfowl Museum.

Hedeen discussed the tidal marshes of Delmarva and their importance to the overall ecology of the Chesapeake Bay system. The lecture was illustrated by slides of the "important species of plants and animals inhabiting this unique environment," said Hedeen. Some 20 docents attended the meeting.

Martin Draws Raves

"A classic play by renowned Modern poet William Butler Yeats, performed in striking, ritualistic style with chanting and drumming, stole the opera show ...at the University of New Mexico.

"The 1917 play, titled 'At the Hawk's Well,' was part of a music theatre triple bill sponsored by the National Opera Association, which is meeting here...."

So begins the glowing review by the Albuquerque Journal of Dance Company director Kathryn Martin's recent Yeats production. Martin, on leave of absense from SSU, was working on her Ph.D. at the University of Colorado at Boulder last year when she produced the dance-drama.

Returning to SSU this fall after two years in Boulder, she recently reunited with her cast in Albuquerque for the National Opera Association, which requested the revival.

"The triumph of (Martin's production)... was to bring...to vivid life...in action and dance the most obscure twists of the tale. Much of the intensity of the performance, and much of its clarity, came from devices suggested by the Japanese theater form called Noh—which was very much on Yeats' mind when he wrote the play," wrote critic David Noble.

"Director Kathryn Martin mounted this bold realization of Yeats' script," Noble said, and the actors "made it live memorably on stage."

This spring in Salisbury Martin will be directing another dance drama—an interpretation of Frederico Garcia Lorca's "Yerma," a tragedy of women, love and societal expectations.

For more information on the Dance Company or auditions for "Yerma" contact Martin at 453-6353.

Shreve Appointment

Dr. Barry W. Shreve, assistant professor in the Department of Psychology, has been appointed as a member of the American Psychological Association's Division 17 (counseling psychology) Ad Hoc Committee on New Professionals where he will join members from institutions such as Penn State University, Kent State University, The University of Texas - El Paso and The University of Missouri - Kansas City.

Shreve's appointment, a first for Salisbury State's psychology program, stands as "evidence of the growing recognition of the graduate program here in counseling psychology," said Dr. George Whitehead, chair of the department, "and of Dr. Shreve's commitment to the training of new counseling psychologists and his recognition within the profession at the national level."

Ralston Published

Dr. Scott Ralston, an assistant professor in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, will have an article titled "Estimation of Potential Reductions in Recreational Benefits Due to Sedimentation" published in the December issue of the Water Resources Bulletin.

In the article a model is developed to estimate the value of the recreational experience for visitors to Reelfoot Lake in northwestern Tennessee.

In addition to the estimates from the model, two other aspects of the study were significant. First, the study applied a relatively untested methodology for deriving the opportunity cost of travel time. Second, a methodology was outlined by which the estimates of the recreational value of Reelfoot Lake could be used to suggest how much cost could be justified for soil erosion control around the lake.

Seldomridge Speaks To Kindergarteners

Lisa Seldomridge, a nursing faculty member, recently spoke to Debbie McMullen's kindergarten class at Creative Child Care.

Her topic, "Your Heart and How it Works," coincided with the celebration of Heart Month. The children learned how to count their pulse before and after exercise, had their blood pressure measured and identified their heart in relation to other body organs. Using the Heart Treasure Chest provided by The American Heart Association, the children are studying ways to keep ther hearts healthy.

Seldomridge is a member of the SSU Speakers Bureau. The Speakers Bureau offers a number of speakers discussing a variety of subjects. The service is free.

Any civic, service or educational organization desiring a speaker should contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

"Again, we wish to thank Martin Printing for donating the posters," said Quillen.

M.B.A. Receptions

Two M.B.A. information receptions are planned by the Perdue School of Business in the next month. Both the evening and Executive M.B.A. programs will be showcased through a short formal presentation followed by an opportunity for questions. Graduate students and faculty will be on hand to informally talk with prospective students.

The first reception is scheduled for the Social Room in Holloway Hall, Friday, February 23, from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. Chesapeake College in Wye Mills is the location for the second reception scheduled for March 2 from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. An invitation to attend is extended to anyone interested in business graduate programs.

For more information contact the Office of the Director of Graduate Programs, Perdue School of Business, 543-6317.

Quitting Smoking?

Smokers who have decided that it is time to stop smoking should consider attending the upcoming seminar offered by Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD).

During the seminar, which lasts for three sessions, McBrien will present a systematic program of educational, behavioral and visualization experiences to guide participants to stop smoking and to maintain their non-smoker's status.

The seminar begins on Tuesday, February 13, and continues on February 20 and 27. The sessions are from noon - 1 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the University Center.

Anyone interested in registering to participate in this step-by-step approach to kicking the smoking habit should call the CPPD at 543-6070.

No Frills Biathlon

The Tri-Maryland Triathlon Club will hold its No Frills Biathlon Sunday, February 18, at 11 a.m. at Schumaker Pond Park.

This low-key event consists of a 3.1 mile run followed by a 14.5 mile bicycle ride. It is a great way for first-timers to check out their multi-sport fitness as well as to enjoy themselves. The event is open to the public as well as club members. The cost is $1.50 for the public and free for club members. Food and drink will be provided by the club.

For more information call 742-5244.

Caged-up Ambitions? Be a Zoo Worker

Do you belong in the Zoo? Now is the time to find out. Thursday, February 15, and Saturday, February 17, at 10 a.m. in the Salisbury Zoo Education Center, experienced docents (zoo teachers) will welcome those who would like to consider becoming zoo education volunteers.

During these informal, get-acquainted coffee hours docents will explain various zoo education programs, which include guided tours for zoo visitors of all ages as well as the interpretation of exhibits in the Discovery Room, and the handling of small animals for the Zoo-To-You presentations to schools, libraries, camps and nursing homes.

Qualifications for an education volunteer include being over 18 years of age, able to make a definite and firm commitment of time, in good physical health, interested in sharing information about animals with children and adults and able to attend all sessions of Zoo Spring Training.

Zoo Spring Training is held each Monday, 9 a.m. - noon, from March 5 - April 2. For weekend volunteers training will be Saturday mornings from March 10 - April 7. For more information, call the Zoo Education Center at 742-2640.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

FEBRUARY 22, 1990 VOL. XI NO. 19

Minority Leadership Program March 6

One of the aims of the University is to foster critical thinking skills in students. Another mission is to address minority issues.

The Minority Leadership Development Program, a program housed in the Center for Personal and Professional Development, and the Dean of Students Office, through the Retention Grant, are sponsoring a Socratic dialogue on minority leadership which will address both goals. The panel discussion, "The Dilemma of Leadership: Racial and Cultural Identity Versus Corporate Identity," will take place on Tuesday, March 6, from 6-7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. It will critically examine many of the issues related to minority leadership in business, industry, higher education and the community.

The moderator of the panel will be attorney Joanne Asparagus of Easton. Guest panelists represent diverse backgrounds both in terms of racial and cultural backgrounds and professional walks of life. Panelists include: Dr. Carolyn Brooks, UMES professor; Sheila Brooks-Tahir, attorney; Tony Cheung, architect; Sheila Haji, manager, organization development; Micheal Hoy, consumer and community relations representative, Delmarva Power; Lionel Layton, manager, DuPont, Inc.; Yetta Lewis, Salisbury State student and chair, SSU Appropriations Board - multicultural programming; Frank Morris, Shore Distributors; Mel McCoy, personnel director, UMES; Michelle Sewell, UMES student and president of student organizations; Dr. George Stevens, dean, Central Florida State School of Business; Dr. A.K. 'Anything Goes' by Cole Porter Opens March 9

by Scott Howard

"Anything Goes," the Cole Porter musical touted as "the show that signified the end of the Depression," sails into Holloway Hall Auditorium for six performances March 9-11 and 15-17.

"It's going to be a lot of fun," said Paul Pfeiffer, director of SSU Theatre and this musical production. "I'll be excited to see it done so I can sit back and watch it."

Originally written in 1934, "Anything Goes" joins together facets of the entertainment world: sleek streamlined sophistication; dancing reminiscent of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers; now classic music; and romance and comic turns—all combined to produce what Pfeiffer calls "a pretty flashy show."

The musical is set on the cruise liner "American" on its voyage from New York City to England. On board, a variety of society types cross paths in some strange, yet funny situations. Characters include a would-be gangster (Public Enemy Number 13—due to his lack of success) posing as a minister, a Mae West-type night club singer with her back-up girls, and plenty of romantic interests, who bring flash and glitter to the ocean vessel.

But the best part of the show is the music. At the time of the original Broadway production, "Big Bands" were becoming popular and the SSU production will be using a 12 to 16 piece orchestra to play such tunes as "You're the Tops," "Blow, Gabriel Blow!" "Easy to Love," "Take Me Back to Manhattan," "Let's Misbehave," "Delovely," and the ever young title number, "Anything Goes."

"When the conductor's baton descends, you'll be hearing some of the greatest American theatre music ever written," said Pfeiffer.

The orchestra will be conducted by Ray Ziegler, professor of music, and will consist of top players from the area. "It's a small group, but they're the best," Pfeiffer said. Dr. Duane Karna, SSU concert choir director, is working with the singers. Karna recently returned from Germany where he conducted the SSU Concert Choir on its first European tour.

Kathryn Martin and Holly Boda, director and assistant director respectively of the SSU Dance Company, are choreographing. Martin's direction of W.B. Yeat's "At the Hawk's Well" recently won accolades at the National Opera Association. Boda has worked with the "Up With People" organization as a choreographer.

Afro-American Families Lecture

Dr. Joyce Ladner, a nationally known sociologist regarded as an authority on the issues of today's family relationships, stress, children and transracial adoption, will lecture at the University Center on Monday, February 26, at 7:30 p.m.

Ladner, a professor at the Howard University School of Social Work since 1981, will discuss "Strengths of Afro-American Families." Her presentation, in the Wicomico Room, is free and open to the public.

Her lecture is part of a series of programs celebrating Black History Month on campus and begins a spring series on African-American families.

"We are very pleased that Dr. Ladner is visiting the University," said Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, an associate professor of social work at SSU. "Her national reputation as a researcher with particular emphasis on black families and issues impacting on women and children is significant."

A prolific writer, Ladner has to her credit numerous articles and publications. Her books include "Tomorrow's Tomorrow: The Black Women," "Mixed Families: Adopting Across Racial Boundaries" and "The Death of White Sociology." In 1986 she published "Preventing Children from Having Children: Final Report of the Mayor's Blue Ribbon Panel on Teenage Pregnancy Prevention."

Ladner has also published over 70 articles in academic journals as well as such popular publications as The New York Times, The Washington Post, Ebony, Essence and Black Enterprise. She has been cited in The Christian Science Monitor as well as featured in a week-long series on teen pregnancy in The Washington Post. Ladner has made many radio and television appearances including several on the "Phil Donahue Show" to discuss the black family. She was featured in a documentary film on "Black Teen Fathers" on WUSA-TV in Washington, D.C.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Poet Hudgins To Read February 22

Poet Andrew Hudgins will read from his books, "Saints and Strangers" and "After the Lost War," in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on Thursday, February 22, at 8 p.m. The event is free and the public is welcome.

Hudgins, born in Montgomery, AL, currently teaches at the University of Cincinnati. One of America's most honored young poets, his first book, "Saints and Strangers," was runnerup for the 1986 Pulitzer Prize and won the Texas Institute of Letters Award, the Award of the Society of Midland Authors and the Great Lake Colleges Association Award.

"After the Lost War," a book-length narrative poem written in the voice of the poet/musician Sidney Lanier and dealing primarily with Lanier's Civil War experiences, won the Poets' Prize and received lavish praise from critics and fellow poets.

He is currently the Hodder Fellow at Princeton University.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Tax Service Offered

Free federal and Maryland income tax preparation assistance is available to lower income, elderly and handicapped taxpayers with simple tax returns and to University students through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program.

Sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the VITA program runs through April 14. Junior and senior business students will assist in the completion of the forms.

Assistance is available on Mondays from 12:30-4:30 p.m. at Wicomico Social Services, Thursdays from 6-10 p.m. at SSU's Blackwell Library and Saturdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Wicomico County Free Library.

Those interested in the service should bring their 1989 tax packages of forms, wage and earnings statements (W-2 forms), interest statements and 1099 forms, and a copy of their 1988 tax return if available.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Prevention Resource Center Has Evening Hours

In response to requests from community members and students who use the Alchohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center, evening hours have been established. The center is now open from 7-8:30 p.m., Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. "Hopefully, this will make utilizing the center more convenient for individuals who have classes or work during day hours," said Jennifer Berkman, director of the center. Reservations for tapes or materials can be made by calling the center ahead of time at 543-6309.

Prevention Resource Center Materials Available

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center has a library of materials available on alcohol and other drugs, AIDS, steroids and related topics. Any student, faculty, staff or member of the community may borrow materials for up to a week at a time.

Reference materials and books, pamphlets, and printed materials and over 175 videotapes and films are available for use in writing papers, preparing presentations, or conducting workshops and activities.

The resource center is located behind Maggs Gym in Annex C (the gray trailer). Materials may be checked out with student ID card or drivers' license.

Hours of operation are: Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-noon and 1-4:30 p.m. Evening hours are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 7-8:30 p.m.

Programming support, a speaker's bureau, directory and referral services for self-help groups and treatment options are also available through the center. All services are strictly confidential.

Calcott Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending Salisbury State who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212. The deadline is March 9.

Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fundraising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout troop here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Calcott was a writer for The Daily Times.

State Nursing Scholarship

Applications for the Maryland State Nursing Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office.

The deadline is April 16. Recipients must be Maryland residents, attend a Maryland school and have a 3.0 grade point average. Applicants must be enrolled in an academic program leading to a nursing degree or diploma.

Recipients must practice in Maryland one year for each year of the award.

Models Needed

The Art Department is looking for a model for the following: drawing/painting classes, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9:30-11:30 a.m.; and drawing class, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6-8 p.m.

Please contact the Art Department at 543-6270 and leave name, telephone number and local address.

Jordan Leondopoulos

'Exorcist' Film Editor Lectures Here March 6

In 1973 William Friedkin directed a motion picture adapted from William Peter Blatty's novel "The Exorcist" that has since become a sort of horror classic. The story concerns a young girl possessed by the devil and the attempts by a Roman Catholic priest to exorcise her. The film was a popular success because it was effectively made.

On Tuesday, March 6, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium one of the artists involved in making this film will lecture on how the film was made.

Jordan Leondopoulos now teaches English at St. John's University, Staten Island, NY, but before he became a university professor, Leondopoulos worked in the film industry as a screenwriter on the feature film "Windmill" (Universal Pictures, 1972), as director and screenwriter for the television film "Sam's Song" (Cannon Group, 1975) and as a film editor for several pictures. In 1973 he was nominated for an Academy Award for his work as supervising film editor for "The Exorcist." If "The Exorcist" was effective as a horror film, it is partly because the movie was effectively put together, and Leondopoulos was in charge of structuring the images.

The title of the Leondopoulos lecture is "Cutting the Devil Down to Size." Leondopoulos has also lectured on "Editing The Exorcist: Shaping the Narrative from Novel to Film" at Georgetown University in 1973 and at the New York School of Visual Arts in 1975. In June 1989 he read a paper on D.W. Griffith's "Intolerance" at the Salisbury State University Conference on Literature and Film. That paper is now scheduled for publication in Literature/Film Quarterly.

Leondopoulos was educated at the City University of New York (B.A., Summa cum laude, 1975) and at Columbia University (M.Phil., 1982; Ph.D., 1985). He has just completed a book titled "Still the Moving World: Intolerance, Modernism and Heart of Darkness" that will be released by Peter Lang Publishers in 1990.

In his "Exorcist" lecture Leondopoulos will also discuss the mythology that developed around "The Exorcist" as a "hexed" film project. The public is invited to the lecture, sponsored by the University Center and the Cultural Affairs Committee. For additional information call 543-6100.

Book Rack Computer Sales

The Book Rack is expanding its electronics offerings and adding computers to its product mix and is looking for just the right person to help start up and run this endeavor.

The candidate should have a working knowledge of either Macintosh or IBM PCs and be willing to learn and sell both product lines. Experience or a desire to learn desktop publishing would also be a plus. Someone who likes a challenge and wants to work with and be trained by people in the computer industry would appreciate this job. The 35 1/2 hour a week position has no state benefits and pays $6 an hour.

Interested applicants should send a resume to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University before February 26.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Clay Details Job Hunt Methods

Terry Clay, career development specialist, is holding a workshop for members of the Salisbury State chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators on Tuesday, February 27, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center. The topic is "How to Go About Getting a Job."

The workshop is for the benefit of members of IABC/SSU. Clay's discussion will include the avenues and resources used in finding good jobs, the pros and cons of cold calling on employers, using the classified ads, etc. Seniors and underclassmen will benefit.

Clay is part of SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development.

The workshop is sponsored by IABC/SSU.

IABC/SSU is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in organizational communication. For membership information, contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060 or Terry Ayers at 860-2731.

Blackwell Library Microfiche Copier

Blackwell Library now has a microfiche reader-printer for public use. It operates by the use of a Vendacard, on the same basis as for the Library's Xerox machines. It is located in the reference room.

The new reader-printer will copy the periodicals which the Library has on fiche, plus the ERIC collection, the BCL collection, the U.S. documents, the annual reports and the CIRR (corporate and industry research reports).

Copies from microfilm and other microfiche collections will still need to be ordered at the Library's circulation desk.

Rieck Published

Dr. David Rieck, a faculty member in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, recently had an article published in the Journal of Chemical Education.

The article, "Using Paladium Hydride to Introduce Crystal Structures," analyzed a new approach for covering certain aspects of structural chemistry.

Rieck is an assistant professor of physical science.

AMS-MAA Meeting

The joint meetings of the American Mathematical Society (AMS) and the Mathematical Association of America (MAA) were held in Louisville, KY, during January 17-21. Attending the meeting from Salisbury State were professors Dr. Kathleen Shannon, Dr. Homer Austin, Dr. Ben Fusaro, Dr. Lee May and Dr. Robert Tardiff. Also attending the meeting were senior students in the mathematical sciences, Brenda Figgs and Leanne Wells.

Shannon presented a paper, "An Argument for Increasing the Scope of the Mathematics Core," and Austin presented a paper, "Calculus Crumbs." Fusaro presented a minicourse on "Coaching a Team for the Modeling Contest."

One highlight of the meetings was the celebration of the 50th anniversary of "Mathematical Reviews." Another highlight was a reading from the play on the life of Turing by the playwright himself, who received the SIAM-AMS-MAA Communications Award for his work. The success of the meetings was exemplified by the reaction of the students who plan to attend next year.

ZTAs Newest

Zeta Tau Alpha would like to congratulate and welcome her newest sisters. They are Sabrina Bowman from Oklahoma, Robin Diehl from Phoenix, MD, Kim Stockton from Joppa, MD, Kim Watson from Salisbury, Lauren Witczak and Kellie Lohne from Medford, NJ, Jill Dugoski from Annapolis, Niki Fraley from Kensington, MD, Beth Hipps from Silver Spring, MD, and Chantel Kushner from Ft. Washington, MD.

ZTA members are planning a trip to Annapolis on Saturday, February 24, for a regional one-day convention with other Zetas in the area. They will be attending various workshops and planning for the future.

The Spring Formal will be on March 3 at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City. Dinner and an awards ceremony are among the planned activities for the evening.

Josten Representative To Visit Campus

A representative from Josten's will be on campus Friday, March 9, taking orders for nursing pins and faculty caps and gowns. Nursing pin orders will be taken from 9-11 a.m. Faculty cap and gown orders will be taken from noon - 4 p.m.

The representative will also be on campus March 14-16 taking orders for a new graduation announcement. The new announcements are custom designed for Salisbury State and feature Holloway Hall. Another feature of the announcement eliminates the need for personalized name cards.

These announcements are available in limited quantities so place your order early to ensure receipt of a customized announcement in time for May graduation.

Outdoor Club

The Outdoor Club will hold meetings on Mondays at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke B of the University Center. At the meeting on February 26 the club will continue discussion and sign-up for the caving trip in Bath County, VA, on March 9, 10 and 11. The trip will be open to inexperienced and experienced cavers. The cost will be $5 for members and $7 for nonmembers. All are welcome to participate.

On Thursday, February 22, from 5-6 p.m., the company will be auditioning for two apprentices. Applicants must be from ages 14 and up. No dance experience is required. Auditions will be held in Maggs Dance Studio.

Auditions Held For Symphony Orchestra

A community orchestra depends upon community participation. The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University is holding open auditions for qualified string players.

The SSO presently includes members from most of the lower counties of Maryland, as well as players from lower Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Virginia. This spring's schedule includes the Orchestra's annual fund raiser, "Savor the Symphony," on Friday, March 23, in the University Center; its spring concerts are on May 18 and 19 in Holloway Hall Auditorium, with special guest artists, the Annapolis Brass Quintet.

Fall 1990 will mark the beginning of SSO's fifth season and the celebration will include several exciting events. Plans are underway for two "run-out" concerts to other communities on the Shore, one in the Easton area.

The SSO rehearses every Sunday from 7-9 p.m. during the school year. Anyone who plays a string instrument and would like to become a member, please contact Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chairman, Department of Music, at 543-6385 for an interview/audition.

Prevailing Winds Perform February 27

Prevailing Winds, a woodwind quintet, will appear on Tuesday, February 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The group's lively style of performance includes a wide variety of selections, showing a mastery of classical, popular, jazz and ethnic music.

Prevailing Winds is exactly what the name implies: a fresh breeze in classical music today. The goal is that classic music, be it Beach Boys, Brubeck or Bach, be as much fun for the audience as it is for the performers. Their busy schedule this year includes concert series at Maryland Hall in Annapolis, Kraushaar Auditorium in Baltimore County and Montgomery College's Performing Arts Center near Washington, D.C. They have received an enthusiastic response from their audiences and critical acclaim from the press, and have appeared on numerous radio and television programs.

Norman Middleton of the Washington Post described an evening with Prevailing Winds as "a wide-ranging concert that at once delighted and relaxed the crowd...first-rate intonation, phrasing and dynamics...done with cleverness and animation."

The performance, sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee, is free and the public is invited.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Housing Needed

The University of Arizona Chamber Choir will be touring the East Coast during early March. Anyone who can house two to four graduate students in their home the evening of Tuesday, March 13, please contact Dr. Duane Karna or Mrs. Karen Griffin at the Department of Music at 543-6385.

The Chamber Choir from the University of Arizona is a choir comprised of 41 students primarily majoring in music at the graduate level. The choir's performance is scheduled for March 13 at Asbury United Methodist Church. A free-will donation toward the choir's expenses will be suggested at the performance.

Hypnotist Performs

The SSU Program Board presents Astonishing Neal, the first artist to perform hypnotism and ESP at the University. He appears in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Saturday, February 24, at 8 p.m.

The performance, "A Close Encounter With the Mind," is 2 1/2 hours, featuring examples of extra-sensory perception and hypnotism. Astonishing Neal has appeared on such national television shows as "To Tell the Truth," "The Mike Douglas Show," "PM Magazine" and the NBC Network show, "Real People," where he drove an automobile at high speed on a winding road after being completely blindfolded by the show's host, Skip Stephenson. Neal is also a popular guest on radio talk shows.

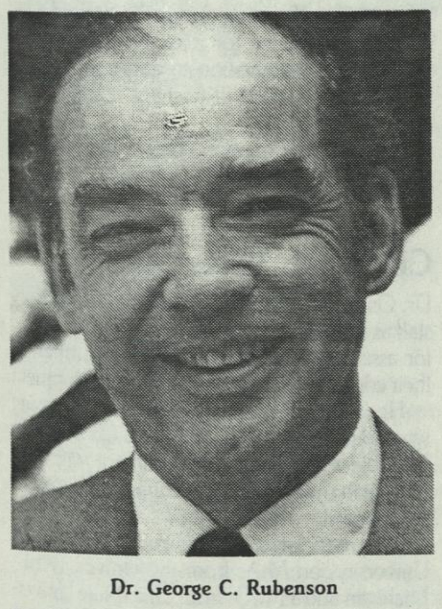
The phenomenon of hypnosis has existed since the beginning of man. It lies at the base of all human behavior. During the past few decades, there has been in intense renewal in the applications of hypnosis. Hypnotic techniques are used today by doctors, dentists, therapists and law enforcement officers.

People who become hypnotized feel completely relaxed, as though enjoying a pleasant dream, and will remember everything that happens, according to Neal.

Neal's expertise in the field of hypnosis comes from studying psychology at Pennsylvania State University. Upon graduation, he developed techniques that are now used in the Neal Institute and in his performances.

Astonishing Neal has helped hundreds of people in breaking habits such as nail-biting and smoking and in losing weight. He also helped in other areas of self-improvement, such as relaxation, relieving insomnia and controlling pain.

The performance is free and open to the public. For more information call 543-6197.



Dr. George C. Rubenson

Rubenson Receives Ph.D

Dr. George C. Rubenson, an assistant professor of management in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, was awarded his Ph.D. from the University of Maryland College Park at graduation ceremonies in December.

His dissertation was "Departure of Organizational Founders: Explaining variance in founder tenure, successor characteristics, successor power and future firm performance."

Rubenson, who has been a member of the SSU faculty since 1987, concentrates on strategic management and human resource management. He will present a paper titled "The Founder's Disease: A conceptual and empirical reexamination" at the ninth annual Entrepreneurship Conference at Babson College on April 4.

African-American Families Symposium

"The Strengths of African-American Families," a community symposium sponsored by SSU, will be held on Saturday, March 17, from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the University Center.

"The African-American family has survived social changes imposed by slavery, emancipation and racism," said Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, associate professor of social work at SSU and one of the symposium's organizers. "This symposium will focus on the uniqueness and strength of the African-American family system as it has cared for and nurtured to its members.

"Special attention will be given to the interaction of African-American families with the major social institutions of work, education, religion and social services," said Elwell.

The keynote speaker for the symposium will be Dr. Elizabeth Fitzgerald Howard, author of three children's books inspired by her female relatives who live or lived in Baltimore. She will discuss her family experiences as inspiration for her creative talent. An associate professor in the Department of Science at West Virginia University, Howard's academic interest is fiction for young people, especially as an adjunct to teaching history. That interest is reflected in one of her non-children's books, "America as Story; Historical Fiction for Secondary Schools."

Howard's first children's book, published last year, is "The Train to Lulu's" based on the experiences of Howard and her younger sister "on our way to Baltimore by ourselves. My sister was only four," recalled Howard, who was reared in Boston, educated at Radcliffe and now lives in Pittsburgh.

Lulu, like Chita Shipley, the subject of her second book, "Chita's Christmas Tree," was from Howard's father's side of the family. For her third book, not yet published, she moved to her mother's side of the family. "Aunt Flossie's Hats" will be a picture book about Florence Wright, Howard's aunt, who "always wore a hat" and saved most of them.

Howard will open the symposium with her presentation from 9-10 a.m. Four workshops will be held simultaneously from 10:15-11:45 a.m., then repeated in the afternoon following lunch. The workshops are: "Participation of African-American Families in the Schools," Randolph G. Outen, assistant superintendent, Wicomico County Board of Education; "Impact of Social Services on African-American Families," Victoria L. Jackson-Stanley, child welfare supervisor, Dorchester County Department of Social Services; "Support for African-American Families by the Church," Rev. Dr. Ashley Maxwell, pastor, Coleman Memorial United Methodist Church, Wilmington, DE; and "Influence of Family on Career Development of African-Americans," Terry Clay, SSU career development specialist.

The cost of the symposium is $3 for students and $6 for others; the cost includes lunch. The registration deadline is Friday, March 9.

For registration materials or more information contact the Social Work Department at 543-6305.

Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The SSU basketball teams both close out the '89-90 season with appearances in the conference tournament this weekend, with the women traveling to Allentown, PA and the men venturing south to Winchester, VA. The Lady Gulls play tournament host Allentown in Friday's opening round game while the other women's first-round game features Frostburg State against Marywood. The championship game is set for 7:30 p.m. on Saturday. Salisbury concluded its conference schedule with a 7-3 record, and is 11-11 overall on the season heading into its final regular season game at home Tuesday night against Catholic. Three senior members of the Lady Gulls—Sandy Jankevicius, Diane Bickford and Lisa Jones—will be playing their final game in the Maggs Center. Through games of February 17, Jankevicius was in sixth place on the all-time SSU women's scoring list, with 1149 points. She needs 20 points to pass fifth place Gail Tatterson (1168 pts), but is unlikely to advance as far as fourth place (Josie Harper, 1293 pts) in the remaining games. Jankevicius, already the all-time leader in steals with 317, needs just five more to break her own single-season record of 89, set two seasons ago. Speaking of records, junior point guard Vicki Miller recently etched her name into the book with a 15-assist performance against Lincoln on February 13. The Lady Gulls won the game, 78-60. Coach Ward Lambert's SSU men, who finished the regular season at 13-12 overall and 5-4 in ESAC games, meet Allentown in the ESAC men's tournament, Friday night at 9 p.m. The other first-round game will feature host Shenandoah against either Cabrini or Lincoln. Those two teams, which finished the season tied for the last tournament berth, meet in a tie-breaking playoff game this week. SSU lost at Allentown, 100-82, in an earlier meeting this season. Senior point guard Russell Springmann continues to chase Tom Torrillo's single-season assist record of 233, set in 1973-74. Springmann, third in Division III with an average of 9.0/game, has 225 heading into this weekend's tournament. Senior forward Joe McCahon, who was named to the ECAC Weekly Honor Roll for his play in last week's games, established a new single-season standard for three-point FGs made, with 71. That mark breaks David Byer's record of 68, set last year. Junior shooter Byer continues to add to his career-record however, with 62 three-pointers this season and 158 in three seasons.

T'ai-chi Ch'uan Course

The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture.

A beginning course will meet on Tuesdays, starting February 27 and ending May 8. An intermediate course will meet on Wednesdays, starting February 28 and ending May 9. Classes will begin at 8 p.m. and last for one hour. They will be held in the Dance Studio of the Maggs Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the U.S. and Taiwan. He has been teaching it in Wicomico County since 1976.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170.

SPSS Users Guide At Book Rack

A revised and expanded edition of "SPSS on VAX: A Guide to Using the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences at Salisbury State University" is now available in the Book Rack.

In addition to providing a brief introduction to SPSS, the manual documents the EZSPSSX Manager, a system of shortcuts for running SPSS on the VAX computer. This year's edition also includes material on SPSS Graphics.

A small number of complimentary copies of the manual are available to interested faculty on a first come basis.

Contact Ed Steffes in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at 543-6432.

Draftsperson Sought

Salisbury State University is seeking an architectural draftsperson.

The applicant should have completed a minimum of two years in an accredited architectural school plus have two years experience as a draftsperson in an architect's office or five years of increasing responsibility as a draftsperson in an architect's office. The applicant should be familiar with and have a working knowledge of civil, mechanical and electrical documents.

Duties will include preparation of construction documents (that is, plans, specifications and estimates, project coordination, contractor liaison and interdepartmental coordination and communication).

This is a 35 1/2 hour per week position with no state benefits; it pays $12 an hour.

Interested applicants should submit a resume to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 by March 5.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Retirement Seminars

If you are within five years of retirement and would like to attend a two-day pre-retirement seminar conducted by the Maryland State Retirement Agency, please contact the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall for a registration form.

There will be seminars this spring throughout the state. The seminar for the Eastern Shore area will be on April 19 and 20 at the Eastern Shore State Hospital in Cambridge. The basic agenda includes an overview of retirement, information about pension, health and social security benefits, financial planning, legal aspects, and wellness and activity options.

WSCL: Help Needed

WSCL is looking for a few good volunteers: to answer phones, to complete pledge forms, to help with pledge mailings; to tell listeners why they should support WSCL; and to help make WSCL's next fund drive an even bigger success. Please call today. The fund drive dates are March 19 - March 31. Phone 543-6895 to volunteer.

Account Clerk Opening

Salisbury State University has an immediate opening for an Account Clerk I in the Cashier's Office.

This individual will handle various duties associated with student accounts receivable and the student telephone system including accepting and processing payments and handling both in-person and telephone inquiries. Considerable contact with the public and students can be expected.

Minimum qualifications are high school graduate and one year experience in fiscal-clerical work. Experience with a CRT is preferred. This is a full-time position with state benefits and a starting salary of $7.20 per hour.

Qualified applicants should send a letter of application and a resume no later than March 1 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Scout Dinner Vice-Chairmen Named

Tim Mescon, chairman of the Tri-County District, Boy Scouts of America, is pleased to announce the names of the vice-chairmen of the Distinguished Citizen Award Dinner Committee.

According to Mescon, "These 12 individuals have committed a tremendous amount of time, energy and effort to this annual dinner campaign. Each has a strong belief in the Boy Scout movement. Additionally, all are fans of our Distinguished Citizen Award recipient, Don Mabe."

The vice-chairmen for the special "blacktie optional" dinner, dance and award ceremony to be held on Saturday, March 3, at the Powell Dining Hall include Dr. Thomas Bellavance, Bob Cook, Tom Evans, Herbert Fincher, Bob Gearhart, Tom Hershey, Pelham Lawrence, Frank Morris, Dr. Gary Pielemeier, Bill Rictor, Bill Satterfield and Dr. Andrejs Strauss.

Drug Awareness Week March 5-9

National Collegiate Drug Awareness Week is a nationally unified and comprehensive drug prevention week to help colleges and universities focus on the issue of drug abuse.

The Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) seeks to address the issues of drug use and dependency while furthering one of its central missions—professional development. A number of occupations in addiction services exists for students with a social science, education or health science background. Information outlining these careers will be available, as well as educational certificate and degree programs.

In keeping with the theme of National Collegiate Drug Awareness Week, the CPPD will distribute free career information related to drug abuse prevention as well as counseling and educating drug abusers during the week of Monday, March 5 - Friday, March 9. The literature will be distributed in the University Center lobby near the information desk between 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. each day. For more information contact Terry Clay at 543-6070.

'America and Lewis Hine' To Be Shown February 26

"America and Lewis Hine," selected by the American Library Association as one of the 15 best documentary films of the decade of the 1980s, will be shown in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Wednesday, February 26, at 7:30 p.m. Its screening is related to the Salisbury State University Gallery's current exhibition, "Lewis Hine: Reformer with a Camera," on display through March 1.

The exhibition focuses on Hine's photographs of child labor, which he made as an investigative reporter and photographer for the National Child Labor Committee during the period 1907 to 1918. They show children, most of them well under the legal working age of 16, working at a variety of jobs in manufacturing and industry, as well as in mines, on farms, and in the streets as newsboys, vendors and messengers.

As the film shows, Hine's photographs document a wide cross-section of American life in the first third of the 20th century. His best known photographs include those of immigrants arriving at Ellis Island in New York; child labor, such as those in the exhibition; and the construction of the Empire State Building. Other series include the workers, home life, and industry of Pittsburgh, a sociological project sponsored by the Russell Sage Foundation and published in six volumes as The Pittsburgh Survey; the slums of Washington, New York and Chicago; Army and Navy training camps; the effects of World War I in France and the Balkans; the life of blacks in the South; the activities of the American Red Cross in providing flood and drought relief; the Tennessee Valley Authority projects; and reemployment possibilities and technological change, commissioned by the National Research Project of the Works Progress Administration during the Roosevelt Administration's New Deal.

The stage setting promises to be as exciting as the music and dancing, the SSU theatre director added. The set, by SSU professor Gerry Patt, will be designed as if the audience were looking at the stern of the ship. A turntable will rest on the stage floor and revolve, allowing set changes without lowering the curtain. Patt is also designing lights.

Any big theatrical production is loaded with challenges. "The biggest one I anticipate," said Pfeiffer, "is unleashing and controlling the energy that student performers need for this particular style of musical." In that respect, it's very similar to "The Pirates of Penzance" which he directed two seasons ago. "Students sometimes struggle with the blend of high and low comedy which is in this play. Some characters are one way, some the other, some both. 1930's comedy is more than "The Three Stooges."

"We're also playing in a big house. (Holloway holds over 750 people)," said Pfeiffer. "The actors have to expand—boost their own energy. Fortunately, alumni, graduate students and other veteran actors have come on board to help students develop that theatrical style."

Tickets for faculty, staff and students are free. Performances are at 8 p.m. March 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, March 11. Telephone reservations may be made by calling 543-6228.

Guerrieris Create A Million Dollar Scholarship Fund For Salisbury State University

At a press conference with Governor William Donald Schaefer on Tuesday in Annapolis, a million dollar scholarship fund for Salisbury State University was annonunced by Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City, MD, and President Thomas E. Bellavance.

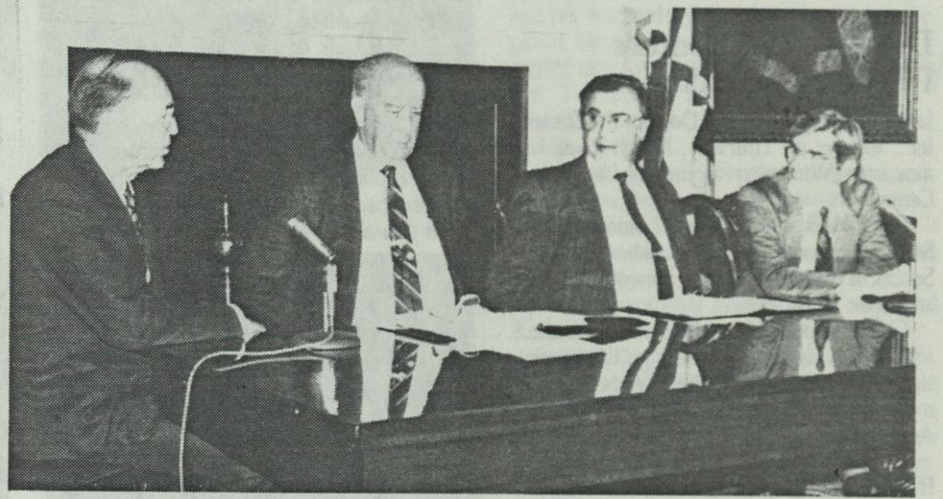
Mr. Guerrieri (pronounced Grr-rare-ree) is president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms, Inc.

"We are extremely pleased by the generosity of the Guerrieri family," said Governor Schaefer. "It is exciting to see others recognize the quality of higher education offered at Salisbury State and the support this institution has drawn from the community. The Salisbury State example is one I hope can be repeated at other state colleges and universities."

"This is the most generous endowment for scholarships in the history of the University," said Dr. Bellavance.

"My wife and I feel that Salisbury State University is something to be proud of," said Mr. Guerrieri. "Not enough people realize what we have here. If they visited, I think they'd understand why we are giving this gift (to the University). We hope others will."

In the last four years this campus of some 5300 students located on the Eastern Shore has become the highest-endowed four-year comprehensive state university in Maryland. According to the Council for Aid to Education, Salisbury was second in the nation in endowment gifts among public comprehensive universities in 1987-88, the most recent available figures.



From left, Dr. James A. "Dolph" Norton, chancellor, University of Maryland System; Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer; Lt. Gov. Melvin Steinberg; and University President Thomas E. Bellavance at a press conference in Annapolis Tuesday announced a $1 million scholarship fund at SSU established by Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City.

"Today is a hallmark for Salisbury," its president continued, "and for higher education in Maryland. This gift by the Guerrieris will allow us to provide considerably more academic scholarships to the brightest and best in every school of the University. These scholarships will not be limited to students in any one area of study. The Guerrieris's wish is that the aid go where needed, which is both generous and wise.

"Their gift is a clarion call to all private citizens and the corporate sector to recognize public institutions for their on-going commitment to excellence. All of us at Salisbury are grateful for

Computer and Musicians Interact in Concert

Alec Bernstein and Mark Cook will present an "Automated Piano and Percussion Concert" on Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and the University Center, the concert, featuring an introduction by Dr. Ray Ziegler of the Music Department, is free and open to the public.

Bernstein has composed and performed several works for automated piano and percussion and trumpet. "Reflex Hammers" and "Big Sonata" were written and performed on a computer driven real time player piano system. The system allows piano writing that is not limited to human technique, but still allows the music to be performed live with the usual interpretations of dynamics, tempi and phrasing normally associated with performance.

The pieces are composed of many small fragments of music which are written in normal notation or in a text file musical notation (a "typewriter shorthand") and entered into the computer. The main score contains all the fragments which were written and are stored in the computer. Each fragment has a name or label, such as lower or upper case "a" through "z."

The musical material is aligned by its label to a key on the computer keyboard. When the label is typed, that fragment plays on the piano. The performance score is made up of the sequences of labels that are to be played on the computer keyboard by the performer and any accompanying musical instructions.

"Work Horse in Progress" for trumpet and computer controlled piano and percussion ensemble was written in a single movement form. The computer driven real time player piano system was expanded to control a marimba, two timbales and a set of four tuned drums.

The piece is performed by two players: a trumpet player, Cook; and a "computer" player, Bernstein. The "computer" performer plays the piano/percussion ensemble from the computer keyboard live with the trumpet player.

There is no electronic synthesis of sound. All sounds are made on real instruments.

"The system has the advantages of standard computer controlled instruments," said Bernstein, "but retains the acoustic beauty of the piano and percussion instruments."

Retirement Seminars

If you are within five years of retirement and would like to attend a two-day pre-retirement seminar conducted by the Maryland State Retirement Agency, please contact the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall for a registration form.

There will be seminars this spring throughout the state. The seminar for the Eastern Shore area will be on April 19 and 20 at the Eastern Shore State Hospital in Cambridge. The basic agenda includes an overview of retirement, information about pension, health and social security benefits, financial planning, legal aspects, and wellness and activity options.

Docktor Pet Centers President Speaks

Leslie Charm, president of Docktor Pet Centers, Inc., lectures on Thursday, March 1, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Part of this spring's Great Leader Lecture Series, sponsored by The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, Charm's presentation is free and open to the public.

Charm is president of Docktor Pet Centers, a 270-store chain of franchised pet department stores located throughout the U.S. He has been a member of the International Franchise Association.

Next in the Great Leader Series is Barbara B. Hill, president of The Johns Hopkins Health Plan, who lectures on Tuesday, March 13, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room.

Raymond V. Haysbert, Sr., president and chief executive officer of Parks Sausage Co., concludes this spring's series on Wednesday, April 11, at 11 a.m., also in the Wicomico Room.

For more information on the Great Leader Lecture Series call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

'Exorcist' Film Editor Lectures Here March 6

On Tuesday, March 6, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium one of the artists involved in making "The Exorcist" will lecture on how the film was made.

In his "Exorcist" lecture Leondopoulos will also discuss the mythology that developed around "The Exorcist" as a "hexed" film project. The public is invited to the lecture, sponsored by the University Center and the Cultural Affairs Committee. For additional information call 543-6100.

SSU Bicycle Club

The following are some of the activities scheduled by the Salisbury State University Bicycle Club over the next few weeks. All rides begin at Maggs Gym at 10 a.m.

March 3, Princess Anne Ride, 27 miles;
March 10, Snow Hill Ride, 54 miles;
March 17, Cedar Hill Park Ride, 63 miles.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Book Rack Computer Sales

The Book Rack is expanding its electronics offerings and adding computers to its product mix and is looking for just the right person to help start up and run this endeavor.

The candidate should have a working knowledge of either Macintosh or IBM PCs and be willing to learn and sell both product lines. Experience or a desire to learn desktop publishing would also be a plus. Someone who likes a challenge and wants to work with and be trained by people in the computer industry would appreciate this job. The 35 1/2 hour a week position has no state benefits and pays $6 an hour.

Interested applicants should send a resume to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, Salisbury State University before February 26.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Blackwell Library Microfiche Copier

Blackwell Library now has a microfiche reader-printer for public use. It operates by the use of a Vendacard, on the same basis as for the Library's Xerox machines. It is located in the reference room.

The new reader-printer will copy the periodicals which the Library has on fiche, plus the ERIC collection, the BCL collection, the U.S. documents, the annual reports and the CIRR (corporate and industry research reports).

Copies from microfilm and other microfiche collections will still need to be ordered at the Library's circulation desk.

Lovely to Retire

Robert Lovely is retiring from his position as director of housing at the end of June. He will remain on the University staff through February 1991 aiding in the transition period for the new director.

Lovely was employed as the housing director here in 1973. At that time there were five residence halls, housing 700 students. Lovely has overseen the enormous expansion of on-campus housing at the University; today there are 10 residence hall accommodating some 1,800 students.

"Bob made a significant contribution to campus life at the University," said Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration. "He'll be missed."

Housing Needed

The University of Arizona Chamber Choir will be touring the East Coast during early March. Anyone who can house two to four graduate students in their home the evening of Tuesday, March 13, please contact Dr. Duane Karna or Mrs. Karen Griffin at the Department of Music at 543-6385.

The Chamber Choir from the University of Arizona is a choir comprised of 41 students primarily majoring in music at the graduate level. The choir's performance is scheduled for March 13 at Asbury United Methodist Church. A free-will donation toward the choir's expenses will be suggested at the performance.

African-American Families Symposium

"The Strengths of African-American Families," a community symposium sponsored by SSU, will be held on Saturday, March 17, from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the University Center.

"The African-American family has survived social changes imposed by slavery, emancipation and racism," said Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, associate professor of social work at SSU and one of the symposium's organizers. "This symposium will focus on the uniqueness and strength of the African-American family system as it has cared for and nurtured to its members.

"Special attention will be given to the interaction of African-American families with the major social institutions of work, education, religion and social services," said Elwell.

The keynote speaker for the symposium will be Dr. Elizabeth Fitzgerald Howard, author of three children's books inspired by her female relatives who live or lived in Baltimore. She will discuss her family experiences as inspiration for her creative talent.

The cost of the symposium is $3 for students and $6 for others; the cost includes lunch. The registration deadline is Friday, March 9.

For registration materials or more information contact the Social Work Department at 543-6305.

WSCL: Help Needed

WSCL is looking for a few good volunteers: to answer phones, to complete pledge forms, to help with pledge mailings; to tell listeners why they should support WSCL; and to help make WSCL's next fund drive an even bigger success. Please call today. The fund drive dates are March 19 - March 31. Phone 543-6895 to volunteer.

Peggy Hall Bagley

Margaret Dawson Isley

New Members for Alumni Board

New Members for Alumni Board Peggy Hall Bagley, Daniel H. Gladding, Lawanda Dockins Gordy and Margaret Dawson Isley were recently named to the board of directors of the University Alumni Association.

Bagley, Class of 1979, is coordinator of the Cardiovascular Disease Prevention Program at the Wicomico County Health Department in Salisbury. She is also active with St. Peter's Church, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association.

Gladding, Class of 1978, is a training specialist and telecommunications consultant with the Maryland Department of General Services' Office of Telecommunications Management. His memberships and affiliations include the Association of College and University Telecommunications Administrators and the Consortium of College and University Telecommunications Managers.

Gordy, Class of 1982, the assistant director of operations at the University Center, is a board member of Soroptimist International and serves on the Wicomico County Parent Advisory Board and the Greater Salisbury Leadership Development Committee.

Isley, Class of 1985, is an account executive for 96 Rock/WWTR-FM and 16AM WETT in Ocean City, MD. She is active with Atlantic United Methodist Church and the Radio Advertising Bureau, and is the public relations director for the Bishop's School (CA) Manor Society.

The SSU Alumni Association has some 12,000 members. The mission of the board is to develop and foster an abiding loyalty for SSU; to promote a professional and ethical spirit which will characterize alumni members; to encourage active participation in all activities that pertain to the betterment and growth of the University; to unite graduates and undergraduates; and to take such other actions as may be deemed appropriate to promote the interests and welfare of the University.

Other members of the board are William H. Allen, Edgar A. Baker, Jr. (president), John Charrier, Jr. (vice president), Robert D. Evans, Charlene Mills, Debbie Panicucci, Paul Rendine, Billye Sarbanes, Ann Sterling-Suthowski and Walter G. Brittingham, Jr. (SSU Foundation representative). Judy Pielemeier is executive director of the Alumni Association.

Cult Classic 'Forbidden Planet'

Beware of creatures from the id. On Friday and Saturday, March 2 and 3, SSPB Films presents "Forbidden Planet"—a big budget (over $1 million) 1956 science-fiction classic that influenced many of today's space films and TV shows. Its morality-play structure was popularized by the "Star Trek" series. The space ship with its crew member Robby the Robot was cloned for the late 1960s TV series "Lost in Space."

In the 23rd century a space ship is dispatched to check up on an earth colony established 20 years earlier. Only two survivors, Dr. Morbius, and his young daughter, Alta, remain on the planet. Morbius has used the technology of an extinct race to create a robot handyman/assistant. The creature that killed the rest of the colonists re-emerges when the earthship arrives, attacking its crew.

Supporting actor Robby the Robot can speak 188 languages, cook, sew, arrange flowers, drive a truck and make bourbon. Robby went on to become a celebrity, starring in his own film several years later. His later work includes cameos in the original "Twilight Zone" series and "Gremlins."

Special effects include a very brief integration of live action and animation (by Disney Studio) that resembles Warner Cartoons' Tazmanian Devil, a brain booster machine, and underground laboratories left over from a previous race. The electronic sound track is still quite impressive.

Although fully enjoyable on its own terms, "Forbidden Planet" is loosely based on Shakespeare's "The Tempest." Danny Peary, author of "Cult Movies," comments on the relationship: "Dr. Morbius is the counterpart of 'The Tempest's magician, Prospero; Morbius's daughter, Alta, of Prospero's daughter, Miranda; the officers of the (spaceship) the first men Alta lays eyes on, of the visiting Italian noblemen who are the first men seen by Miranda; Robby the Robot of the Spirit Ariel; and the Id monster, whose actions are orchestrated by Morbius's subconscious, of the witch-child Caliban, a virtual slave to Prospero's will. (The planet) Altair-4, of course, is the counterpart of Prospero's enchanted island."

Showtimes are 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Friday, March 2, and Saturday, March 3. Upcoming SSPB films include "Hairspray," "Babette's Feast," "Manon of the Spring" and "Heathers." For more information on the series contact David Todd at 543-6197. Suggestions for next year's film series are welcome.

Ocean Pines Presents Comedy

The Ocean Pines Players present, "Romantic Comedy," by Bernard Slade, at the Pines Community Hall on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 8, 9, 10 and 15, 16, 17 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 and may be purchased at the door the evening of the performance.

The play is directed by Jim Striby who has directed a number of Players productions. The current play is "a pleasant and amusing comedy" that Striby considers an "audience pleaser because it tends to be remembered long after it is seen. It is a well-written, sophisticated play which requires a strong cast," he said.

Ellen Bryant Voigt

Poet Ellen Voigt Reading March 12

The English Department is pleased to announce that a reading by one of the country's most distinguished poets, Ellen Bryant Voigt, will take place on Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The reading is free and open to the public. A reception will follow.

Ellen Bryant Voigt grew up in Virginia, graduated from Converse College in South Carolina and received an M.F.A. in writing from the University of Iowa.

Her three volumes of poetry are "Claiming Kin" (Wesleyan, 1976), "The Forces of Plenty" (Norton, 1983) and "The Lotus Flowers" (Norton, 1987). Her poems have appeared in "The New Yorker," "The American Poetry Review," "Poetry," "The Nation," "The Atlantic" and numerous other magazines. Her work has been widely anthologized.

She has received grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Guggenheim Foundation and the Vermont Council on the Arts. She designed and directed the Goddard College M.F.A. Writing Program, has taught at M.I.T. and at the Indian, Aspen, Tucson, Napa and Breadloaf Writers Conferences, and is currently on the faculty of the low-residency M.F.A. Program at Warren Wilson College.

Ellen Bryant Voigt is especially prized among her fellow poets for her strong lyrical gift and the moral self-definition her work conveys. A finalist for the Poets' Prize, the only award given by poets to poets in our country, she enjoys a distinctive position among poets of her generation.

"We're lucky to have a poet of her stature on campus," said Dr. Michael Waters, of the SSU English Department. "I think the audience will find this a special literary event."

The reading is part of the English Department's Writers-on-the-Shore Series.

National Conference For College Women

The National Conference for College Women Students is May 31-June 2 at George Washington University. Women student leaders will meet again this year in Washington, D.C. to examine leadership issues of critical importance. The conference is designed for women students who are currently in leadership roles on campuses across the country. For more information contact the SSU Dean of Students Office, University Center, room 212 or phone 543-6080.

Publications Assistant Opening

SSU Dining Services is now taking applications for the position of student publications assistant.

The responsibilities of the students publications assistant include helping with the production of a bi-weekly newsletter; the design/layout of posters and table tents for UDS special events dinners; coordinating UDS in-house promotions and functioning as a liaison with the University Public Relations Office, the Flyer, WSUR radio and other departments on campus. A strong English or journalism background, good communication skills and entry-level graphic arts experience are required. Position will entail at least 15 hours per week.

Deadline for applications is 4:30 p.m., Friday, March 2. Applications may be obtained from the University Dining Services Central Office.

Erskine in 'Cyclopedia'

The "Cyclopedia of World Authors II," recently published by Salem Press, contains eight entries written by Dr. Thomas L. Erskine, professor of English at the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Most of the essays, which contain a short biography, a critical overview of the author's work and a bibliography, are about writers from British Commonwealth countries such as Canada, New Zealand and Australia.

Included are the founders of New Zealand and Australian literature, Frank Sargeson and Henry Lawson, as well as such outstanding contemporary writers as Thomas Keneally, Janet Frame and Margaret Atwood. The other three essays are on L.P. Hartley, an English novelist; Dan Jacobson, a South African expatriate living in London; and Nelson Algren, an American novelist.

Commonwealth literature is a particular interest of Erskine, who teaches a course in that subject. Erskine is currently a Fulbright scholar teaching in Jordan.

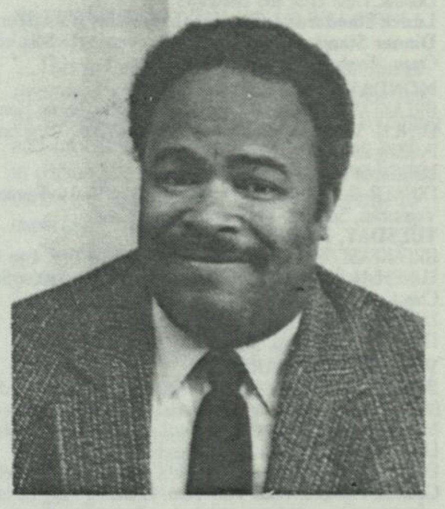
Farrar To Speak



Dr. Hayward Farrar

Dr. Hayward Farrar, an assistant professor of history at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and a specialist in Afro-American History, will discuss "Afro-Americans in the American Work Place" on Tuesday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

His presentation is part of the spring lecture series, "Culture of Work," sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and the University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

Farrar completed his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago is 1983. His major field of study was U.S. history with subfields of Afro-American history, Southern history, urban history, labor history, European history and history in education.

His dissertation was titled, "See What the 'Afro' Says: The Baltimore 'Afro-American' 1892-1950." A book bearing the same title is currently being prepared for publication by the Louisiana State University Press.

Farrar did his undergraduate work at the University of Maryland College Park where he was a Woodrow Wilson Fellow and a Ford Foundation Fellow. He was president of the University of Maryland Black Student Union in 1968-69.

He has been at UMES since 1988. He was previously at Spelman (GA) College, Fisk (TN) University, Roosevelt (IL) University and Morgan State University. At Spelman he chaired the Black History Month Celebration there for three years. While at Fisk he was coordinator of the Race Relations Institute Conference titled, "Corporate Power and Black America."

He has presented papers to national conferences throughout the U.S. In 1987 he discussed, "Teaching World History at Historically Black Colleges," at the 72nd annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History at Durham, NC.

For more information on Farrar's lecture, contact the University Center at 543-6100.

Students Aid O.C. Residents

Free federal and Maryland income tax preparation assistance is now available to lower income, elderly and handicapped taxpayers in the Ocean City area.

Sponsored by the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program runs through April 14. Junior and senior business students assist in the completion of income tax forms.

Assistance is available on Saturdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Ocean City Library and from 5-9 p.m. in the Ocean Plaza Mall.

Other locations are: Mondays, 12:30-4:30 p.m., Wicomico Social Services, Salisbury; Thursdays, 6-10 p.m., SSU's Blackwell Library; and Saturdays, 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Wicomico County Free Library, Salisbury.

Those interested in the service should bring their 1989 tax packages of forms, wage and earnings statements (W-2 forms), interest statements and 1099 forms, and a copy of their 1988 tax return if available.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Outdoor Club

The Outdoor Club holds meetings on Mondays at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke B of the University Center. At the meeting on March 5, the club will finalize plans for the caving trip in Bath County, VA, on March 9-11. Anyone interested in caving must attend the meeting on March 5. The cost will be $5 for members and $7 for non-members.

The meeting on March 5 will also open sign-ups for the spring break trip to Florida. The Outdoor Club will be canoeing on the Peace River in lower Florida. The trip will begin late Friday, March 23, and return late Saturday, March 30. The cost will be between $70 and $80. A mandatory non-refundable deposit of $40 will be collected starting March 5. All are welcome to participate.

History Club to Savannah

The History Club will sponsor a trip to Savannah, GA, during spring break. Savannah was founded by the British general, James Oglethorpe in 1733. Like Charleston, SC, Savannah preserve the look and feel of an active 18th century port city. Moreover, the town is surrounded by the beautiful sea islands of Georgia which are famous for their tropical vegetation. The History Club will leave SSU for Savannah at 6 a.m., Monday, March 26 and return Thursday evening, March 29. The cost for the trip is $35. This includes transportation and three nights lodging. Meals are extra. All SSU students are welcome to come. For more information, call Dr. Tim Miller (543-6243) or Mrs. Ellen Fykes (543-6245). The deadline for signing up is 4 p.m., Thursday, March 8.

Children's Dance Program

Registration is underway for a 10-week dance program for children beginning Saturday, March 10, at SSU. The course is taught by Lynn Duffy-Tawes.

The program will incorporate jazz and modern dance, and movement exploration. The classes will cover two age brackets—6-12 and 13-18. Each class will be 45 minutes in duration, with a 10-15 minute break.

Tawes earned her certificate in Dance from Philadelphia College of the Performing Arts and her B.S. in dance from James Madison University. She is currently pursuing her Master's in counseling.

Some of her contacts have included schools in the tri-counties of Worcester, Somerset and Wicomico; dance studios in Pennsylvania and Virginia; Desisto, a preparatory school in Florida; along with the Wicomico and Worcester Counties' Departments of Parks and Recreation. She also has worked with contests and pageants on local, regional and state levels.

Her background features work in a variety of instruction, choreography, lecture/demonstration, administration and consultant services. She is an active member of the Maryland Alliance for Arts Education; the Maryland Council for Dance; and is the chair of the Dance Subcommittee for the Worcester County Cultural Arts Task Force, a committee of the Worcester County Board of Education. She is also director and owner of Danse Academie, a dance school in Somerset County which offers classes to area students.

The cost of the course is $50. For more information call Kathryn Martin, SSU Dance Company director at 543-6353 or Tawes at 968-0309.

UC Arena Stage DC Trip

On March 15, the University Center is sponsoring a theater trip to the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. to see "A Doll House" written by Henrik Ibsen. With this historic play, director Zelda Fichandler is conducting a contemporary investigation into the timeless issues of women that course through this drama of personal liberation.

The bus to Arena Stage leaves the Dogwood Drive entrance of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. March 15. Curtain time is 8 p.m. There is a short stop for dinner and the bus returns to Salisbury at approximately 1 a.m. Full-time students may begin sign-ups at the University Center Information Desk on Thursday, March 1. The cost is $12 for both transportation and theater ticket. Part-time students, faculty, guests and alumni may begin sign-ups on Tuesday, March 5. Their charge will be $16. Seats are limited and sign-ups will be on a first come first served basis.

Hedeen Discusses Lyme Disease

Dr. Robert A. Hedeen, professor of biology in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, recently participated in the Lower Shore Landscape Maintenance Workshop sponsored by the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Hedeen's topic was the epidemiology and prevention of tick-transmitted Lyme disease. Lyme disease poses a threat to all who work or play out of doors during the warm months of the year.

As a military medical entomologist, Hedeen has had considerable experience in combatting tick-borne diseases in various parts of the world.

The Heaven Hop! Take a short cut to heaven by dancing (everyone there likes to dance) is the theme of the above number from Cole Porter's "Anything Goes," opening March 9 in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Pictured let to right are Lisa Massi, Susan Arbaugh, Jan Kirkpatrick, Christina Macabenta, Trish Pusey and Jim Waltz.

'Anything Goes' Is 'Thundering Good'

The cast of SSU Theatre's production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes," opening March 9 in Holloway Hall Auditorium, is featuring a large contingent of students, alumni and theatre stalwarts from the local community.

They are, in the words of its director, T. Paul Pfeiffer, "a healthy blend of new fresh talents and seasoned veterans."

This delightful show was called "A positive panic" by Walter Winchell when it opened on Broadway in November, 1934. "The foolery and fun was ferverently fondled by the first fans."

"A thundering good musical show—hilarious and dynamic entertainment," wrote critic Brooks Atkinson, in The New York Times. Set on board the ocean liner, "The American," leaving New York for England, the story is romance in typical screwball comedy fashion: A young Billy Crockett stows away when he discovers that his beloved Hope Harcourt is on board. Hope is accompanied by her mother, and fiance, Sir Evelyn Oakleigh.

Also on ship are Reno Sweeney, an evangelist turned night club singer; a wanted criminal, Moonface Martin; and Billy's boss, from whom he must constantly dodge. Although complications come thick and fast, the show manages an audience-pleasing double wedding ending.

Along the way are some of Cole Porter's best song and dance music, including "I Get a Kick Out of You," "Delovely," "Blow, Gabriel Blow!" and the title song.

Leading the cast as Billy is Jon Dietrich, an SSU senior majoring in music. Dietrich played Marat in "Marat/Sade" and Henry David Thoreau in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail."

Opposite him is Lisa Moore of Salisbury as Hope. Moore recently appeared in the Salisbury Community Players production of "Annie, Get Your Gun," and also was in "I Remember Mama."

Martha Pfeiffer, an SSU graduate student majoring in English, is Reno Sweeney. Pfeiffer was in SSU's "The Pirates of Penzance" and last season's production of "Marat/Sade."

Glenn Pruitt of Ocean City plays Sir Evelyn Oakleigh. Active in theatre locally, he also appeared in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Chris Harris, an alumnus of SSU, is Moonface Martin, Public Enemy Number 13.

Kathy Pfeiffer, an SSU alumna and a director at WBOC-TV, plays the matronly Mrs. Harcourt.

Christina Macabenta, Susan Arbaugh, Jan Kirkpatrick and Tish Pusey play "angels," Sweeney's hilarious backup girls.

David Layfield is the ship's purser and David B. Hearn of Parsonsburg is the steward.

Lisa Massi is Bonnie, Moonface's sidekick.

Will Shupe and Glenn Glazer play Chinese converts.

Michelle Saunders, Lisa Gustafsen and Jeanette Hillard are passengers.

Dancers include Jefferson Boyer, Chrissy Sincak, Beth Canalichio, Susan Cosden, Jim Waltz and Pam Kinnamon.

Renee Benton and Mindy Inman are in the tap chorus.

Serving as production stage manager is Jan Luffman Ballestri of Salisbury, who has been active behind the scenes in several SSU Theatre productions.

Performances are at 8 p.m. March 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, March 11. Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For telephone reservations call the theatre box office at 543-6228.

Honors Deadlines

The Honors Convocation Committee would like to remind faculty and administration that deadlines for awards are coming up in early March.

Awards given by departments listed in last year's Honor's Convocation will be included in the 1990 program upon request. Please respond to the Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs no later than March 14. Departments wishing to include new awards may petition the Honors Convocation Committee for inclusion of same in the program. This petition (to be completed on a form mailed to all faculty) must be returned to the Academic Affairs Office by March 9. Honor organizations are reminded to select new members so that all names of recipients can be submitted by March 14.

For additional information please contact the Dean of Students Office, University Center, or call 543-6080.

Salisbury State University has an immediate opening for an Account Clerk I in the Cashier's Office.

This individual will handle various duties associated with student accounts receivable and the student telephone system including accepting and processing payments and handling both in-person and telephone inquiries. Considerable contact with the public and students can be expected.

Minimum qualifications are high school graduate and one year experience in fiscal-clerical work. Experience with a CRT is preferred. This is a full-time position with state benefits and a starting salary of $7.20 per hour.

Qualified applicants should send a letter of application and a resume no later than March 1 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Drug Awareness Week March 5-9

National Collegiate Drug Awareness Week is a nationally unified and comprehensive drug prevention week to help colleges and universities focus on the issue of drug abuse.

The Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) seeks to address the issues of drug use and dependency while furthering one of its central missions—professional development. A number of occupations in addiction services exists for students with a social science, education or health science background. Information outlining these careers will be available, as well as educational certificate and degree programs.

In keeping with the theme of National Collegiate Drug Awareness Week, the CPPD will distribute free career information related to drug abuse prevention as well as counseling and educating drug abusers during the week of Monday, March 5 - Friday, March 9. The literature will be distributed in the University Center lobby near the information desk between 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. each day. For more information contact Terry Clay at 543-6070.

Draftsperson Sought

Salisbury State University is seeking an architectural draftsperson.

The applicant should have completed a minimum of two years in an accredited architectural school plus have two years experience as a draftsperson in an architect's office or five years of increasing responsibility as a draftsperson in an architect's office. The applicant should be familiar with and have a working knowledge of civil, mechanical and electrical documents.

Duties will include preparation of construction documents (that is, plans, specifications and estimates, project coordination, contractor liaison and interdepartmental coordination and communication).

This is a 35 1/2 hour per week position with no state benefits; it pays $12 an hour.

Interested applicants should submit a resume to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 by March 5.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The men's and women's basketball teams ended their seasons last weekend with some record-setting performances and noteworthy team and individual statistical highlights to cap off the 1989-90 season.

Despite a 118-112 loss to Shenandoah in the championship game of the ESAC Tournament, Ward Lambert's men finished the season 14-13, and garnered national attention as the country's top-scoring NCAA Division III squad, finishing with four straight games over 100 points and a 104.5 points per game scoring average. Overall, the Gulls scored more than 100 points in 15 games, and over 90 points in seven other games.

Individually, seniors Russell Springmann and Joe McCahon both leave with their names now etched in the SSU record book. Springmann set a new single-season assists record, with 241, while McCahon is the single-season three-point FG made record-holder, with 76. The team also broke single-game records for most points, 141 vs. Eastern, and most free throws made, 35 vs. Cabrini.

Coach Rhonda Warmsley completed her first season with the Lady Gulls with a 12-12 record and a narrow loss to conference champion Allentown, 69-62, in the season-ending ESAC Tournament. Despite the loss, the Lady Gulls won three of their last five games, and had several noteworthy individual accomplishments along the way. Senior guard Sandy Jankevicius closed out her career as the Lady Gulls' fifth all-time scorer, with 1,173 points, passing Gail Tatterson ('73-77) in the season-finale. Jankevicius also leaves as SSU's career steals leader, with 323, and also broke her own single-season steals record by two with 91 this season. Additionally, junior guard Vicki Miller matched the single-game assist record of 15 against Lincoln.

With the basketball season complete, the spring sports teams quickly leap into action this week as the baseball team and men's lacrosse squad open at home this Saturday. The baseball team plays its first seven games and nine of its first ten games at home before a southern road trip at the end of March. Coach Jim Berkman's lacrosse team also features a predominately home March schedule, with five of its first six games to be played on home turf.

High School Math Contest Here

Juniors and seniors from 24 public high schools on the lower Eastern Shore were invited to the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology to participate in the sixth annual High School Mathematics Contest.

The contest was held in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center on Wednesday, February 28. Registration was at 9:30 a.m. and the test was given in two parts, at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The three highest scorers were declared winners and received plaques; a permanent plaque engraved with the name of the first-place winner will remain in the Department of Mathematical Sciences. A luncheon given by the University followed the testing.

Dr. Kathleen Shannon, assistant professor of mathematical sciences, addressed the students on "What's Bigger Than Infinity?"

Arrangements for the contest were handled by Dr. Homer W. Austin, Joseph D. Jones, Dr. Mohammad Moazzam, Mary A. Nichols and Barbara A. Wainwright, all of the Department of Mathematical Sciences.

Fall Housing Requests

During the week of March 5 - 9, any full-time student (either on or off-campus) wishing to request a room for the fall semester must come to the Housing Office, HH-130, between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

March 4 Telethon For Easter Seals

The 1990 Easter Seal Telethon will be televised locally on Sunday, March 4, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. with hosts Ann Ellis of Sussex County, Bob Snyder from WSBY radio and Bob Groom of Kent General Hospital in Dover. WBOC TV 16 will air the telethon from Salisbury. All three hosts are returning from last year's telethon and hope to raise over $100,000 in donations for the Easter Seal Society of Del-Mar.

The Easter Seal Society of Del-Mar is a non-profit organization which provides services and programs for children and adults with disabilities. In order to maintain the many programs, Easter Seals relies on sponsors from large businesses, organizations and individuals.

For more information about the Easter Seal Telethon or programs, call toll free from Maryland 1 (800) 677-3800. In Delaware call (302) 990-2811.

Arts Scholarship Deadline March 16

Applications are now being taken for the Herbert D. Brent Scholarship, a $500 award given by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. Call 543-ARTS for application forms.

The scholarship is awarded to college students in the written, visual, media or performing arts for the 1990-1991 school year.

The application deadline is Friday, March 16.

T'ai-chi Ch'uan Course

The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two courses in T'ai-chi Ch'uan, a Chinese form of physical culture.

A beginning course will meet on Tuesdays, starting February 27 and ending May 8. An intermediate course will meet on Wednesdays, starting February 28 and ending May 9. Classes will begin at 8 p.m. and last for one hour. They will be held in the Dance Studio of the Maggs Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has studied T'ai-chi both in the U.S. and Taiwan. He has been teaching it in Wicomico County since 1976.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6170.

this major investment in the future of the University.

"We expect great things of our Guerrieri Scholars."

Showell Farms, Inc. began in 1908 as a family-owned live chicken market on 11th street in New York City. The Guerrieris moved to Berlin, MD, outside of Ocean City in 1941 and after World War II relocated to Salisbury, 30 miles away. Their business thrived and from their Eastern Shore base they continued to provide service to the New York City region.

Alan Guerrieri joined the company in 1953. Under his stewardship Showell Farms has grown from its home some 11 miles west of Ocean City to plants in four states employing 3500 people.

Still privately owned, this vertically integrated corporation, which does everything from breeding its own eggs to distributing the final product, last year processed over a half billion pounds of chicken. Showell Farms is the second largest producer of roasters in the world. It sells directly to the Far East including Japan and Hong Kong, and other foreign markets are currently being explored.

Mrs. Guerrieri, who is an alumna, met her husband while she was still a student at SSU in the early 1950s. After their marriage they continued to live in Salisbury and three of their five children attended the Salisbury State Campus Elementary School, a laboratory for classroom teaching and innovation.

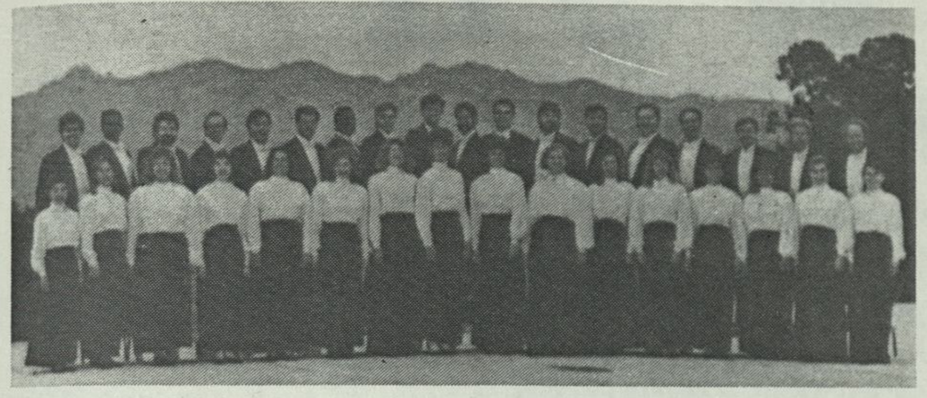
"When my sister and I went to Salisbury, everything was in one building—the library, dining hall, dorms, gym, everything," Mrs. Guerrieri said. Now the campus has 25 buildings. Despite the growth, "I'm glad that Thom (Bellavance) wants to keep the enrollment at its present level, to preserve the small college atmosphere. The campus is a marvelous thing to have in the city of Salisbury."

"Over the years we really hadn't gone over there (to SSU)," Mr. Guerrieri said. Then, a few months ago, at the invitation of Dr. Bellavance, they visited and were impressed; in Mr. Guerrieri's words, "We were surprised..."

The visit "brought back a lot of memories," Mr. Guerrieri continued. And then with a smile he added, "Now we'll be getting over more often."

The first Guerrieri Scholars are expected to be announced this fall.

This is the fourth major gift the University has received in the last four years. Franklin P. Perdue and Richard A. Henson, both of Salisbury, and Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton of Snow Hill have donated gifts of some $2.5 million each to endow schools. The University's Foundation assets now exceed $10 million.



University of Arizona Choir Concert March 13

The Chamber Choir from the University of Arizona presents a concert on Tuesday, March 13, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in·Salisbury.

Sponsored by the SSU Department of Music and the music ministry program at Asbury, the choral concert will feature compositions by J.S. Bach ("Singet dem Herrn ein neues Leid"), Mendelssohn ("Psalm 22") and Schoenberg ("Friede auf Erden"). The Chamber choir is touring the East Coast and performing in Newtown and Princeton, NJ, New Haven and Glastonbury, CT, Bensalem, PA, Northport, NY, and Frostburg and Salisbury.

The 1990 Arizona Chamber Choir is comprised of 41 singers with the majority of students pursuing master and doctoral degrees in vocal performance and choral conducting. The choir is one of numerous choral ensembles at the University of Arizona.

Although the touring choir is the most advanced and select choir on the campus, other choral ensembles include the Symphonic Choir, Collegium Musicum, Recital Choir, Contemporary Ensemble, Honor Choir, University Singers, University-Community Choir, Choraliers, Men's Choir and the Opera Chorus. Thirty graduate choral conducting students also serve as conductors for the various choral ensembles.

In addition to their own concert programs, many of the ensembles join together with the University Symphony Orchestra as well as the Tucson Symphony for major choral/orchestral presentations.

A free-will donation is suggested at the door.

For further information, contact Dr. Duane Karna, Department of Music, at 543-6385.

Leadership Panel a Model for Leadership

"One of the aims of the University is to foster critical thinking skills in students. Another mission is to address minority issues," said Terry Clay of the SSU Center for Personal and Professional Development.

The Minority Leadership Development Program, a program housed in the center, and the SSU Dean of Students Office are sponsoring a Socratic dialogue on minority leadership which will address both goals. The panel discussion, "The Dilemma of Leadership: Racial and Cultural Identity Versus Corporate Identity," will take place on Tuesday, March 6, from 6-7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. The discussion will critically examine many of the issues related to minority leadership in business, industry, higher education and the community.

The moderator will be attorney Joanne Asparagus of Easton. Guest panelists represent a diversity of racial, cultural and professional backgrounds. They include Wylie L. Williams, Jr., deputy mayor for Economic Development for Washington, D.C.; Dr. George E. Stevens, interim dean of the College of Business Administration for the University of Central Florida; and Frank Morris, president of Shore Distributors, Inc. of Salisbury.

Williams was city manager of Inkster, MI, for nearly five years before moving to Washington. As city manager, he was responsible for 10 operating departments and included among his accomplishments organization of the city's first personnel department, reduction in tax millage and successful negotiations for a major industrial park development and for the city's cable television operation. Elmore Scholarships For Nurses Established

$4,000 nursing scholarships for residents of the Eastern Shore of Virginia attending Salisbury State have been established in honor of Margaret Johnson Elmore (seated). Presenting a check for the scholarship to Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance (right), is Page Elmore, son of Mrs. Elmore and president of Shore Disposal, Inc., and his wife Carolyn, a vice principal at Parkside High School in Salisbury. Also pictured is Page and Carolyn's daughter, Kathryn.

Nursing scholarships for residents of the Eastern Shore of Virginia attending Salisbury State have been established in honor of Margaret Johnson Elmore, a 54-year resident of Painter, VA who spent over 20 years in the nursing profession.

The four-year scholarship will be awarded in amounts of $1,000 per year for four years annually to an Accomack or Northampton County student entering Salisbury State as a freshman to seek a degree in nursing who meets the academic criteria. Recipients must then maintain a 2.5 grade point average to remain eligible for the yearly award.

The scholarship is funded from a donation made by Mrs. Elmore's son, Page, and his wife Carolyn.

"Our roots in the Eastern Shore of Virginia run very deep," said Page Elmore, "and this scholarship is a way for our family to acknowledge the people from that area who have been so very good to us. It is also an opportunity for us to help Salisbury State University and to perpetuate my mother's lifelong devotion to the

'New Wave' Larkin Draws Raves–Performs Tuesday

Patty Larkin, a "new wave" folk artist, is a "fast rising star on the new urban folk scene," according to the Boston Globe. She will be appearing at the University Center's Gull's Nest on Tuesday, March 13, at 8:30 p.m. The show is sponsored by the Program Board.

Larkin has been described as rich, joyful, outrageous, hugely funny, witty and above all else, one of the most lyrically creative singer/songwriters today.

Larkin's two albums "Step Into the Light" and "I'm Fine" have placed her at the forefront of a movement in acoustic music that integrates contemporary sound with the folk music form. A three-time winner of the Boston Music Awards, Larkin is part of the new wave of new traditionalists.

Her profile has emerged as a result of her eclectic music style. "Music is a universal language. I use different styles to reflect mood and attitude," she said. She is a consummate guitarist and lyricist, who muses on the paradox of human life with compelling skill and irresistable emotion, according to critics.

An East Coast based artist, she has garnered national and international attention through performances at the likes of Vancouver and Winnipeg Folk Festivals, Philadelphia Folk Festival, The Kennedy Center,· Boston's Symphony Hall and Newport Folk Festival. She made guest appearances on Mountain Stage and Minnesota Public Radio, and in 1989 she was selected judge at the Kerrville Folk Festival for the "New Folk" Contest—a distinction among

Women and Economy Is Subject of Lecture

Dr. Phyllis Palmer, director of the Women's Studies Program and Policy Center at George Washington University, lectures on "How Women Nurtured the U.S. Economy: The Untold Story of an Invisible Past" on Monday, March 12, at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee and Council on Women's Issues, Palmer's presentation is free and open to the public.

The lecture will move from the Colonial economy through the present, providing information and examples to illustrate a primary difference between the kinds of work women have done in the U.S. society and the kinds of work men have done.

"Men's work has resulted in visible, on-going companies or brands, buildings and structures, edifices that announce men's importance to the country," said Palmer, an associate professor of women's studies and American studies at George Washington.

"Women's work, even when manufacturing things," said Palmer, "has produced ephemeral, mundane, perishable goods that vanish with human use—so women's importance to the country has been lost in historical memory and remains invisible today.

"Within this framework," continued Palmer, "I will talk about how Afro-American, Indian, Euro-American, Asian-American women played different parts in caring for human life, though all suffered invisibililty. Men also had different positions, but from corporate presidents to road-building laborers men re-shaped the environment in visible ways.

"Finally, I will argue, this division of human responsibility and recognition into genders no longer serves the country well," said Palmer. "The U.S. needs to make caretaking a more visible and central social activity, as in public schooling, for instance, and to curb our ambition to leave marks on the environment, as in dam bulding."

Palmer earned her B.A. from Oberlin College and her M.A. and Ph.D. from Ohio State University. She has published numerous articles on women's issues and served on the planning committee of the first national conference of women's studies program directors last fall.

She was a member of the Washington, D.C. Community Humanities Council from 1983-89.

Palmer's presentation is part of the University's spring lecture series, "Culture of Work."

For more information call 543-6100.

Computer and Musicians Interact in Concert

Alec Bernstein and Mark Cook will present an "Automated Piano and Percussion Concert" on Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and the University Center, the concert, featuring an introduction by Dr. Ray Ziegler of the Music Department, is free and open to the public.

Retirement Seminars

If you are within five years of retirement and would like to attend a two-day pre-retirement seminar conducted by the Maryland State Retirement Agency, please contact the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall for a registration form.

There will be seminars this spring throughout the state. The seminar for the Eastern Shore area will be on April 19 and 20 at the Eastern Shore State Hospital in Cambridge. The basic agenda includes an overview of retirement, information about pension, health and social security benefits, financial planning, legal aspects, and wellness and activity options.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Housing Needed

The University of Arizona Chamber Choir will be touring the East Coast during early March. Anyone who can house two to four graduate students in their home the evening of Tuesday, March 13, please contact Dr. Duane Karna or Mrs. Karen Griffin at the Department of Music at 543-6385.

The Chamber Choir from the University of Arizona is a choir comprised of 41 students primarily majoring in music at the graduate level. The choir's performance is scheduled for March 13 at Asbury United Methodist Church. A free-will donation toward the choir's expenses will be suggested at the performance.

African-American Families Symposium

"The Strengths of African-American Families," a community symposium sponsored by SSU, will be held on Saturday, March 17, from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the University Center.

The keynote speaker for the symposium will be Dr. Elizabeth Fitzgerald Howard, author of three children's books inspired by her female relatives who live or lived in Baltimore. She will discuss her family experiences as inspiration for her creative talent.

The cost of the symposium is $3 for students and $6 for others; the cost includes lunch. The registration deadline is Friday, March 9.

For registration materials or more information contact the Social Work Department at 543-6305.

Poet Ellen Voigt Reading March 12

The English Department is pleased to announce that a reading by one of the country's most distinguished poets, Ellen Bryant Voigt, will take place on Monday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The reading is free and open to the public. A reception will follow.

The reading is part of the English Department's Writers-on-the-Shore Series.

Farrar To Speak

Dr. Hayward Farrar, an assistant professor of history at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and a specialist in Afro-American History, will discuss "Afro-Americans in the American Work Place" on Tuesday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

His presentation is part of the spring lecture series, "Culture of Work," sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and the University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

For more information on Farrar's lecture, contact the University Center at 543-6100.

Josten's Rep Visit Change

The Josten's representative will be on campus to take nursing pin orders on Friday, March 9, from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. in room 220 of the Power Professional Building. This is a time change from that previously published. The Book Rack is sorry for any inconvenience this may cause anyone.

The representative will be on campus to take faculty cap and gown orders on March 14-16. This also is a change from the previously published schedule. The representative will be in the Book Rack from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. to answer questions regarding academic regalia.

Nature Walk

John Dennis of Princess Anne will lead a Nature Walk along the Nature Conservancy trail at Furnace Town on Sunday, March 11, from 2-4 p.m. "Signs of Spring" is the title for this second in a series of nine guided nature walks sponsored by Furnace Town Foundation in cooperation with The Nature Conservancy.

Walkers are encouraged to wear comfortable walking shoes. Admission for the walks is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Furnace Town's regular site admission. Space is limited; please call 632-2032 to make your reservation.

Furnace Town Historic Site is located 16 miles south of Salisbury and five miles north of Snow Hill off Maryland Route 12.

Students Aid O.C. Residents

Free federal and Maryland income tax preparation assistance is now available to lower income, elderly and handicapped taxpayers in the Ocean City area.

Sponsored by the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program runs through April 14. Junior and senior business students assist in the completion of income tax forms.

Assistance is available on Saturdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Ocean City Library and from 5-9 p.m. in the Ocean Plaza Mall.

Other locations are: Mondays, 12:30-4:30 p.m., Wicomico Social Services, Salisbury; Thursdays, 6-10 p.m., SSU's Blackwell Library; and Saturdays, 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Wicomico County Free Library, Salisbury.

Those interested in the service should bring their 1989 tax packages of forms, wage and earnings statements (W-2 forms), interest statements and 1099 forms, and a copy of their 1988 tax return if available.

For more information, call the Perdue School at 543-6315.

Children's Dance Program

Registration is underway for a 10-week dance program for children beginning Saturday, March 10, at SSU. The course is taught by Lynn Duffy-Tawes.

The program will incorporate jazz and modern dance, and movement exploration. The classes will cover two age brackets—6-12 and 13-18. Each class will be 45 minutes in duration, with a 10-15 minute break.

The cost of the course is $50. For more information call Kathryn Martin, SSU Dance Company director at 543-6353 or Tawes at 968-0309.

UC Arena Stage DC Trip

On March 15, the University Center is sponsoring a theater trip to the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. to see "A Doll House" written by Henrik Ibsen. With this historic play, director Zelda Fichandler is conducting a contemporary investigation into the timeless issues of women that course through this drama of personal liberation.

The bus to Arena Stage leaves the Dogwood Drive entrance of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. March 15. Curtain time is 8 p.m. There is a short stop for dinner and the bus returns to Salisbury at approximately 1 a.m. Full-time students may begin sign-ups at the University Center Information Desk on Thursday, March 1. The cost is $12 for both transportation and theater ticket. Part-time students, faculty, guests and alumni may begin sign-ups on Tuesday, March 5. Their charge will be $16. Seats are limited and sign-ups will be on a first come first served basis.

Honors Deadlines

The Honors Convocation Committee would like to remind faculty and administration that deadlines for awards are coming up in early March.

Awards given by departments listed in last year's Honor's Convocation will be included in the 1990 program upon request. Please respond to the Office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs no later than March 14. Departments wishing to include new awards may petition the Honors Convocation Committee for inclusion of same in the program. This petition (to be completed on a form mailed to all faculty) must be returned to the Academic Affairs Office by March 9. Honor organizations are reminded to select new members so that all names of recipients can be submitted by March 14.

For additional information please contact the Dean of Students Office, University Center, or call 543-6080.

'Culture of Work' Spring Lecture Series

Salisbury State presents a spring lecture series titled the "Culture of Work," featuring speakers with diverse backgrounds and interests.

On Wednesday, March 7, and Thursday, March 8, Dr. Walter Licht, professor of history at the University of Pennsylvania, discusses the changing nature of work in America as the nation has evolved to an increasingly service-oriented, white-collar economy. Both lectures are at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center.

Dr. Phyllis Palmer, director of the Women's Studies and Policy Center at George Washington University, delivers a broadly focused lecture on the issue of women and work. She will talk about the changing, complex attitudes which influence the kinds of work opportunities available to women and the lower monetary value given to work done primarily by women, such as nursing, teaching and child care. Her presentation is on Monday, March 12, at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The history of African-Americans in the labor force is the topic addressed by Dr. Hayward Farrar, professor of history at UMES, on Tuesday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center. He examines the legacy of slavery, racial discrimination and relative lack of educational opportunity for African-Americans, an experience significantly different from that of whites or white immigrants.

On Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center, Dr. Phil Bosserman, a professor of sociology at SSU, discusses the opposite of work—leisure—which contrary to the expectations of a decade or so ago is becoming ever scarcer for people in the work force.

Tom Dillon, a computer science faculty member at Salisbury State, lectures on the computer's impact on work at 4 p.m. on Monday, April 16, in the University Center. His presentation looks at both the industrial and service sectors of the economy, including office technology (especially financial services), publishing, education and design.

Other lecturers include George Vecsey, a New York Times reporter discussing the physical and mental pressures of both superstars and everday people, and Stephen Peet, who makes a film and lecture presentation on the 1937 sit-down strike at the General Motors plants in Flint, MI and the role of women in the labor uprising.

The "Culture of Work" lecture series is supplemented by movies shown during the semester in the International Film Series. Also, the Salisbury State University Gallery has a related exhibit: "People at Work," April 4-26. The exhibition consists of 41 works, primarily prints, on the subject of work, most of them created under the auspices of the Works Progress Administration.

The series is sponsored by the SSU Cultural Affairs Committee. Palmer's presentation is co-sponsored by the Council on Women's Issues. All events in the series are free and open to the public.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Textbook Purchases

Faculty, please announce to your classes the following: textbook purchases for the current spring semester need to be made immediately. Leftover texts are being returned in preparation for condensing the textbook department of the Book Rack.

Sculpture by Henry Heller

Metal Sculpture Exhibit in Atrium

A unique and unusual sculpture exhibit will open Friday, March 9, in the Atrium Gallery, located in the University Center next to the book store. The one-man show, metal sculptures by Henry Heller, is open from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily, until March 23.

Heller's welded sculptures began as a hobby after his retirement from the automobile frame work business. He had no formal artistic training but became interested when his daughter sought his assistance with her art education project. Seeing his interest, his wife gave him a welding kit and from that beginning a hobby developed into a thriving little business. Today, at 76, Heller has many months of back logged work for customers throughout the mid-Atlantic states and has even sold one of sculptures to singer Barry Manilow.

Heller has tried several techniques in building his forms. In the beginning he experimented with "found" forms of machines and farm equipment parts, assembling them into surreal animal and human shapes. Finding this too time-consuming, today he buys 4 by 8 foot sheets of virgin mild steel to create his large open-form structures. A few abstract pieces are seen in his work but the majority are whimiscal animal forms that capture the essence of the creature and incorporate a touch of humor. Heller has three techniques for finishing the steel. They include leaving it natural, painting it flat black or applying a urethane finish after the rusting process has started. The finish depends on where the piece will be placed. Often the sculptures are placed out of doors.

When asked where he gets his ideas, Heller is quick to credit his wife. Together they conceive an idea and often she is the one to rough sketch it. Then she acts as helper and chief critic. On occasion he will execute the ideas of customers. Heller finds giving form to their idea is another avenue for his creative expression. Whatever the origin of idea, this exhibit sends one away smiling.

The Atrium Gallery is free and open to the public. Questions concerning this Heller sculpture exhibit and other exhibits should be directed to the University Center Office by calling 543-6100. In addition to the Atrium Gallery show the University is exhibiting a print show in March in the SSU Gallery located in Blackwell Library. Questions concerning that exhibit should be directed to 543-6271.

No Newsletter March 22

Due to spring break, the SSU News will not be published on Thursday, March 22. The campus newsletter will be published on Thursday, March 29. Deadline for that issue is Friday, March 23.

Saturday Classes Study Conducted

The 25+ Student Union, an organization of non-traditionally aged students, formed last semester to address the needs of full-time employees, family members and students.

The organization conducted a survey to assess these needs and found that there is wide interest in Saturday classes. The Executive Council of the 25+ Student Union is looking into the possibility of scheduling a few Saturday classes in the future. To do so, however, the exact number of interested students is needed.

The registrar is considering adding the following classes: (General Education) Communication Arts 100, English 210 (short story) and Biology 101 with lab; and, (upper level) Psychology 333 (effective parenting), Math 117 or 200 (college algebra or math and culture) and Education 300 (development and learning).

The project will only come into existence with student support. If interested, please contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313, or leave your name, social security number and the class you are interested in taking at the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (second floor, University Center, 543-6125).

Remember this is a proposal only; the issue of Saturday classes will not be pursued without student endorsement.

EAES Scholarship

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore, Inc. has established a scholarship program.

The scholarship fund has been created as a means of returning money to the community while offering educational opportunities to those individuals it is pledged to serve. Through the program financial assistance will be available to deserving candidates for the purpose of pursuing educational goals past the secondary school level.

The opportunity is being presented to people who have epilepsy so that their quality of life can be enhanced through the satisfaction of educational achievement. A funding limit of $2,500 will be set aside each year.

For an application or information call the EAES Office at 543-0665.

Earth Day, Environmental Issues

On Tuesday, March 13, at 3:30 p.m. a meeting on environmental concerns will be held in Devilbiss Hall, room 230. Topics to be discussed include: plans for Earth Day, recycling on campus, proposed tree plantings and "Adopt a Stream" project.

Anyone interested in these or other environmental issues is encouraged to attend the meeting. For more information call 543-6496.

Earth Day/ Recycling Meeting

There will be a meeting on Tuesday, March 13, at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss 230 for anyone interested in participating in upcoming Earth Day activities and for those who would like to start a campus recycling project.

Tree-planting and other events scheduled for Earth Day will be discussed as well as plans to start recycling.

If you have any ideas or wish to help out in some way with either Earth Day or recycling, please come to the March 13 meeting.

If there are any questions concerning the meeting, contact Dr. Ellen Lawler at 543-6496.

Assistantships

The English Department has available four assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing option).

This two-year program of study (33 credit hours) involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. In addition to taking courses, each student will work in the Writing Center and in the University's freshman English program.

The department also offers two assistantships (same terms) for students pursuing the M.A. in English (literature option). This program involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Students will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445. Deadline for applications for GRE is March 15 and deadline for assistantships is April 6. SSU is an affirmative action/equal employment opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Pyramid Atlantic Exhibits At Gallery

Artists' prints from two major print workshops, Pyramid Atlantic of Washington and Baltimore, and Brandywine of Philadelphia, will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through March 22.

The exhibition was curated by Jan Howard, associate curator of prints at the Baltimore Museum, and organized by Maryland Art Place, an artists' cooperative gallery in Baltimore.

Both workshops are non-profit organizations which provide technical assistance and specialized facilities to artists who are interested in producing experimental and innovative prints. The workshops also sponsor lectures, demonstrations and other outreach programs.

Brandywine, for example, has made a special commitment to minority artists; 40 percent of its artists are African-American, and the workshop has an inner city mural program.

Brandywine Workshop was established by Allan Edmunds in 1972 in a two-story garage on Brandywine Street in Philadelphia. Its Visiting Artists' program brings together painters and sculptors from Philadelphia and throughout the United States in collaborative sessions with master printers. The workshop specializes in innovative approaches to screenprinting and offset lithography.

Pyramid Atlantic was founded by Helen Frederick in 1981 in Baltimore as a workshop for the related arts of papermaking and printmaking. It rents space and specialized equipment to artists, provides them with technical assistance and sponsors a Visiting Artists' program which brings artists from as far away as Japan. It is particularly noted for its handmade paper. The workshop instructs artists both in traditional techniques for making paper by the sheet and in such recent approaches as casting pulp, vacuum forming or pulp painting.

Besides printmaking and papermaking, Pyramid also prints artists' books, both as one-of-a-kind examples or in limited editions.

Regularly scheduled gallery talks on the exhibition, given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Tuesday at ll a.m. and at l p.m.

Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday from l0 a.m.-5 pm., Saturday and Sunday from l-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m.

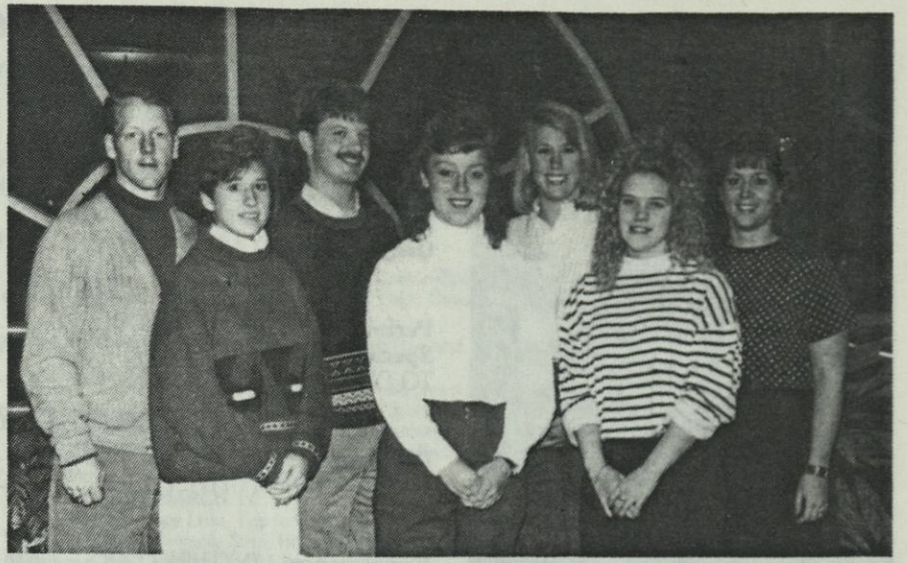
Professional Tennis Returns to Shore

Professional tennis returns to the Eastern Shore on March 15-18 when Maryland National Bank of the Eastern Shore and the Rotary Club of Salisbury present the Rotary-Eastern Shore Hall of Fame Tennis Classic at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center.

Eight players of international marquee stature will vie for $45,000 in prize money in singles and doubles competition. To date, Hall of Famers Ilie Nastase, Stan Smith, Vijay Amritraj, Alex Metreveli, Bob Lutz, Dick Stockton and Cliff Richey have confirmed their participation in the Rotary Club fundraiser, with two more players to be announced.

All Rotary funds derived from the event are targeted for scholarships for area young people. Special events planned for "Tennis Week" will add to the festive atmosphere and benefit area charities including the Salvation Army Boys Club, Deer's Head Foundation, the Salisbury Jaycees and Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council.

Reserved seat series tickets are $40, or $25 for full-time students with valid identification. For more information, call 543-4414 or contact SSU representative Tim Williams at 2A1 Chester Hall, 546-4304.



IABC Officers—Six students were recently appointed officers of the newly formed Salisbury State University Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) which is sponsored by the IABC Chapter in Delaware.

The purpose of IABC is to provide a professional organization for students of all majors interested in public relations and organizational communication, to sponsor speakers who have gained success through effective communication and to allow students professional exposure through the externship program.

The new officers are (left to right): Greg Thornburg of Newburg, treasurer, a senior majoring in liberal studies with a concentration in business and communication arts; Brenda Boyle of Queen Anne, vice president, a senior communication arts major; Terry Wayne Ayers, public relations director, also a senior communication arts major from Federalsburg; Rebecca (Becky) L. Kramer of Halethorpe, secretary, a junior majoring in communication arts and minoring in marketing; Michelle (Shelley) Christian of Salisbury, president, a communication arts senior; Karen Godlewski, externship director, a sophomore majoring in communication arts from Salem, NJ; and Peggy Klein, advisor and communication arts faculty member.

WCEI Chief Speaks to IABC/SSU

Jim Hammond, general manager and vice president of WCEI AM-FM, will speak to the Salisbury State University chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators on Tuesday, March 13, at 7 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the University Center.

Hammond, a seasoned radio professional with experience in engineering, sales, on-air and management, will talk about a radio station's relationship with its community.

Hammond is a vice president with Clark Broadcasting Company. WCEI, 96.7 on the FM dial and 1460 on the AM dial, is based in Easton.

IABC/SSU members and faculty are invited to attend.

IABC/SSU is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in excellence in organizational communication. For membership information, contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060 or Terry Ayers at 860-2731.

IABC Student Achievement Awards

The Salisbury State chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators, in conjunction with IABC/Delaware, is seeking to recognize creative SSU communicators through the "Student Achievement Award in Communications" contest now until March 23.

Any student at Salisbury State can submit entries in writing, editing, publication design, graphic design, typography, advertising, photography, audio or videotape, or film. For example, the following are acceptable entries: newspaper or feature articles, newsletters, photos, posters, radio commercials or instructional videos. Special consideration will be given for works designed for business or organizational communication.

To enter the student should write a 100 word or less statement defining the objective of the work; the audience, goal of the work, any pre-analysis and results should be included. The statement and creative work can be sent to IABC/SSU, SSU Box 3072.

The winner will receive $100 in communications reference books and an award certificate in April at the IABC/DE First State Awards Ceremony.

Any undergraduate student in any major may enter.

Judging is being conducted by a committee of IABC/DE members.

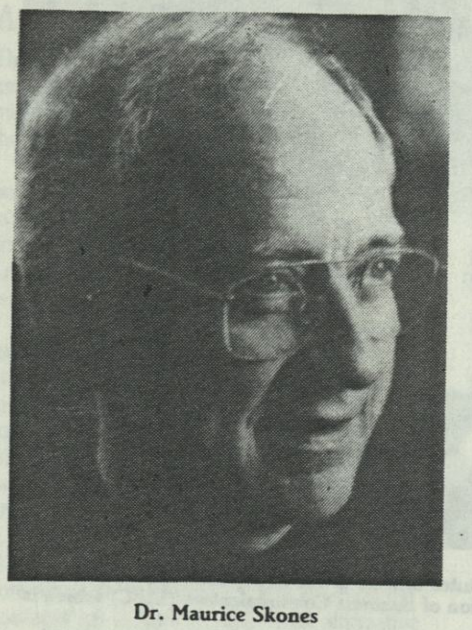
For more information, contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060 or Terry Ayers at 860-2731.

IABC/SSU is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in excellence in organizational communication.

New Tennis Center

The University recently purchased a building which houses three indoor tennis courts. The "SSU Tennis Center" is located on east campus near the Power Building (next to Merritt Racquetball). In addition to physical education classes and tennis team practice the center has daily free play hours. Free play hours are scheduled from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., Monday-Friday beginning Monday, March 5.

Reservations can be made in person one day in advance at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs. A valid SSU I.D. is required for use.



Dr. Maurice Skones

Arizona Choir Performs March 13

The Chamber Choir from the University of Arizona, conducted by Dr. Maurice Skones, performs in concert on Tuesday, March 13, at 8 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

Skones is professor of music and director of choral activities at Arizona where he heads the graduate choral conducting program. He was the director of the "Choir of the West" from 1964-1983 and served as chairman of the Music Department of Pacific Lutheran University for 18 years. Skones completed his undergraduate work at Concordia College in Moorhead, MN, and holds graduate degrees from the University of Montana and the University of Arizona. During his 19 years at Pacific Lutheran his choirs achieved international acclaim for many outstanding performances in America and Europe.

Regarding Skones directed choirs, critics have said: "...This group has achieved a level of competence which compares with any of the best professional choirs," Krystof Penderecki, composer, Krakow, Poland; "...It is unbelievable that full-time students can achieve results which many professional choirs must envy them for!" Aftenposten, Oslo, Norway; and "...Smooth sound, impeccable attacks, crystalline diction and superb balance, a polished and dynamic ensemble," Seattle Times.

Sponsored by the Salisbury State University Department of Music and the music ministry program at Asbury, the choral concert will feature compositions by J.S. Bach ("Singet dem Herrn ein neues Leid"), Mendelssohn ("Psalm 22") and Schoenberg ("Friede auf Erden").

A free-will donation is suggested at the door. For further information contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Salisbury Festival

This year's Salisbury Festival is May 4-6. Many organizations on campus have used the Festival as an opportunity to raise funds through the sale of food items. Additionally, many groups, including the Dance Company and Children's Theatre, have performed in prior years.

The Festival Committee anticipates a weekend crowd of some 20,000, obviously affording extensive exposure for participants.

Any organization which is interested in participating, please contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Arts and Crafts Festival Applications

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is looking for talented performers and gifted artists and craftmakers to be a part of the color and vitality of the 1990 Salisbury Festival. The Salisbury Festival, Delmarva's largest outdoor festival, always takes place on the first weekend in May, this year on May 4-6. The Arts Council, in conjunction with the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsors this annual event.

The Salisbury Festival attracts over 20,000 people each year from around the state and up and down the East Coast. Those wishing to exhibit their work or who would be interested in performing during the Saturday of this weekend of excitement should contact the Arts Council at 543-ARTS for more information and an application.

Exhibiting fees for Saturday, May 5, for artists are $20 for one booth and $30 for two spaces. Booths for craftspersons are $30 for one space and $40 for two spaces. SWAC organizes two performance stages which are located at the Government Plaza and Flag Plaza in the middle of downtown Salisbury. Entertainment is provided on both stages and runs continuously from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

The deadline for receipt of booth applications for original arts and crafts is March 23. The deadline for applications for performers is March 9. These deadlines assure that publicity can be generated for the Festival, including a program/brochure for the day. Any applications received after the deadlines cannot be accepted. For more information call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

Wellness Day

The Office of Student Activities and Organizations together with the Health Center are pleased to announce that this year's Wellness Day will take a different, more exciting form.

The event, scheduled for Monday, May 14, will be held inside and outside of the University Center. Many of the companies from the area and student organizations have volunteered to take part in this Wellness Day and will be giving free of charge check-ups (such as cholesterol, body fat content, etc.).

Additionally, there will be showcases available on the subject of good health, nutrition and exercise. The Office of Student Activities and Organizations would like to see this event incorporated throughout the campus. Both the library and bookstore will provide information and exhibits related to the subject of wellness.

For more information contact the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (second floor, University Center, 543-6125). All organizations and individuals are welcome to participate; registration forms will be available in the Student Activities Office through April 6.

Promotional Manual

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) has announced the publication of the second edition of "Draw A Crowd, Get Into The Promotion Act." Now available, the manual is presented by the Community Arts Alliance of Maryland (CAAM), a statewide assembly of local arts agencies.

The manual is geared toward volunteer agencies and is a how-to guide to successful promotion which can help Maryland's arts organizations. The Arts Council has produced the manual in the belief that the best way to nurture local organizations is to assist them in better and more effective promotional techniques.

"Draw-A Crowd, Get Into The Promotion Act" was first printed in 1986 and quickly sold out. It was a cooperative joint effort between the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, WMDT-TV, Salisbury State (through its interns who wrote and designed the book) and the advice and assistance of numerous resources in the media. "Draw A Crowd, Get Into The Promotion Act" was such a success in Wicomico County in 1986 that CAAM recently decided to reprint the manual and distribute it on a statewide basis so that the arts management material could be used in art communities throughout Maryland. The cost of the manual is $7; it can be purchased at the SWAC Office or at the offices of any Maryland county arts council.

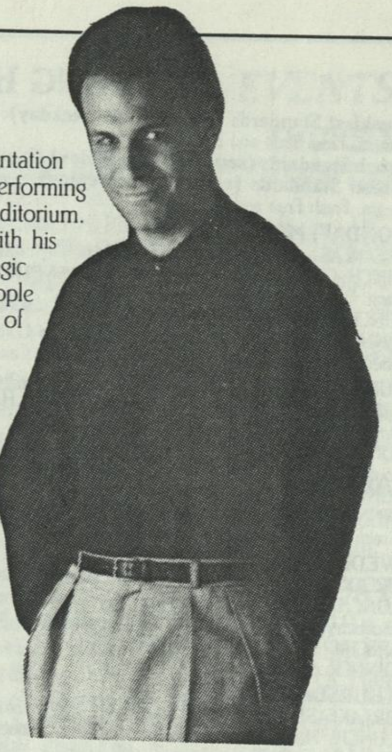
Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Coach Jim Berkman's men's lacrosse squad and Deane Deshon's baseball team both made successful debuts last weekend as the Gulls downed visiting Potsdam State, 14-8, in lacrosse on Saturday, then the baseball team blanked Rutgers-Camden, 4-0, on Sunday. Senior attackman Bucky Sharretts led the Salisbury scoring charges in Saturday's season-opening lacrosse win as he tallied five goals and added an assist. Newcomer Eric Ungleich added three goals and four assists as the Gulls stormed to a 7-1 halftime lead en route to the win. Berkman is hoping that continued good play from Sharretts and Ungliech, as well as significant contributions from several other talented new additions to the Sea Gull roster will help carry Salisbury back to the NCAA Division III playoffs again this season. The SSU defense will be led by senior co-captain Rob Lynch, along with returnees Chris Andrews and Tony Sposato. Junior Scott Bentkowski, who recorded nine saves against Potsdam, returns in goal, with back up from Scot Overton. Over on the SSU baseball diamond, Coach Deshon hopes that last Sunday's 4-0 opening-game blanking of Rutgers-Camden will be a sign of things to come. The Gulls combined excellent pitching, (eight innings of scoreless, four-hit ball from ace righthander Mark Perry), with solid defense and timely hitting (single runs in the second, fourth, sixth and seventh innings) to produce the win. Deshon, now in his 27th year, will be counting on additional pitching support for Perry from senior Brad Beck, juniors Andy Redmond and Pat Overton, sophomore Doug Burig and freshman Don Rera. He will also look for good defensive play and run production from senior third baseman Mike Marinelli and outfielder Mike Shockley. Coach Dawn McCrumb will get an early look at her women's softball squad this Friday and Saturday as the Gulls play in the Virginia Wesleyan Tournament. Salisbury plays three games on Friday, and will advance to Saturday's elimination play if it finishes among the top two teams in its bracket following Friday's games. Seniors Diane Bickford, Debe Clarke, Tina DeJaco and Kristy Keil will be the nucleus which McCrumb will look to for leadership, although the key to the team's success may hinge on how junior Amy Geppi and several others perform on the mound. McCrumb will have a chance to evaluate her team's play and consider any adjustments after this weekend as the Gulls have a two-week break before returning to game action on March 23.

Magic and Mime Performance on March 10



Magic, mime, comedy…it's all a part of the SSPB presentation of "The Magic of Craig Collis." Magician Collis will be performing on Saturday, March 10, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Collis keeps his audience laughing and amazed with his unique approach to magic—he performs original magic completely in pantomime. No one is safe as he takes people out of their seats and onto the stage to become part of his performance.

Collis has had the opportunity to perform across the country in a large variety of showcases. He performed at the 1980 Winter Olympics, at New York's famed ARTPART and at the International Renaissance Festival in Maryland. For three years he toured in the popular revue "The Magic of Broadway."

Collis has appeared before thousands of people at festivals, colleges, universities and cultural institutions and on television. He also has performed as guest artist-magician with a number of major symphony orchestras. Some of his corporate sponsorships have been Sun Oil Company, the Mobil Oil Foundation and IBM.

This Is Drug Awareness Week

College is where one's future starts, don't let it end there. Using drugs today, even occasionally, can have a profound effect on one's tomorrow.

—You won't be nominated as a Supreme Court judge.

—Employers ask about past drug use, and may even test.

—It's illegal, and getting caught means a police record.

—You may not pass a polygraph, and many jobs require one.

—Intravenous drugs carry the risk of life-threatening diseases, like hepatitis and AIDS.

—The effects of drugs are unpredictable, you may not have a future.

Sgt. Carlton (Toby) Tobias of the Office of Public Safety, crime prevention officer, will be discussing drug usage and its effects. He will be in the lobby of the Powell Dining Hall and at the main concourse of the University Center at various times during the week. Stop by and discuss this issue with him and find out what other resources are available on campus.

WSCL Broadcasts 'Radio Free Delmarva'

WSCL-FM is going on stage. On March 10, WSCL News Director Van Williamson will be taking his monthly radio variety show, "Radio Free Delmarva," to the Caruthers Hall Theatre which seats 200.

Williamson feels that a major part of a live variety show is its audience. "The old time radio variety programs always had a live audience. Radio originally brought vaudeville into the living rooms of thousands of listeners. These programs always had a live audience," said Williamson.

Past programs have included jazz and classical musicians, poets, writers and film critics. A jazz guitarist, Williamson frequently plays with the groups and acts as host for the evening performances. "All of the performers on 'Radio Free Delmarva' live and work on the Eastern Shore," Williamson said, "and this is a good opportunity for our audience to become acquainted with the arts community working on the Peninsula."

Admission is free to the show which begins at 9 p.m. and ends at 11 p.m. Anyone wishing to attend the programs should call WSCL at 543-6895 for a reservation.

Outdoor Club News

The Outdoor Club holds meetings on Mondays at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke B of the University Center.

At the meeting on March 12, the club will finalize plans for the spring break canoe trip in Florida. The club will be canoeing on the Peace River in lower Florida. The trip will begin late Friday, March 23, and return late Saturday, March 30.

The cost will be between $70 and $80. A mandatory non-refundable deposit of $40 will be collected on March 12. All members and non-members are welcome on this trip.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

nursing profession."

"This is surely one of the most heartwarming scholarship gifts Salisbury State University has yet received," said Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of the University. "To provide the financial encouragement to young people to pursue a career in a field which another found so rewarding is especially noteworthy in my estimation. We are very grateful to the Elmores for their generosity to Salisbury State, but more we salute the thoughtfulness and foresight that went into their decision."

Mrs. Elmore was born in Onancock, VA in 1908 and graduated from Onancock High School in 1927. After receiving "recommendations from a minister, a doctor and a lawyer," she was accepted into the nursing school at Stuart Circle Hospital in Richmond. She graduated in 1930 as a registered nurse and returned to Painter where she became a nurse for the late Dr. W. L. Cosby.

In 1934 she married Charles T. Elmore, Sr. and temporarily retired from nursing to devote her time to her family which included three stepchildren and one son, Page, who was born in 1939. Two of her stepchildren, Margaret Seiga Lankford and Charles T. Elmore, Jr., are deceased. A stepdaughter, Anne E. Floyd, is a nuclear medicine technician in the X-ray Department at Northampton-Accomack Memorial Hospital in Nassawadox, VA. (Today she has 13 step grandchildren and one granddaughter.)

Following her husband's death in 1954, Mrs. Elmore resumed her nursing career at Northampton-Accomack Memorial as a floor supervisor. She returned to Stuart Circle in 1959, this time as a staff nurse, and stayed for five years before returning to the Eastern Shore for good in 1964. She continued nursing for the next 10 years, first at Northampton-Accomack Memorial and later at the Accomack County Nursing Home, before retiring from full-time nursing in 1973. She did private duty nursing, however, for several years after that. She currently resides in Manokin Manor Retirement Center in Princess Anne.

"Nursing was always interesting work for me," said Mrs. Elmore. "I enjoyed my career and feel I got along well with all of my patients.

"It's a very educational occupation," said Mrs. Elmore of nursing. "And today, with all of the new technology, the field is more interesting than ever.

"Hopefully this scholarship will attract more young people into what I personally feel is an enormously rewarding career field," said Mrs. Elmore.

Page Elmore is president of Shore Disposal, Inc., a waste collection company serving the Delmarva peninsula. Shore Disposal is headquartered in Painter with branch offices in Pocomoke City, MD and Seaford, DE. Carolyn Elmore is a vice principal at Parkside High School in Salisbury.

They have three children: Diana Lynn and R. Stephen Mears, adults; and Kathryn Elmore, age 8.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 15, 1990

VOL. XI NO. 22

New International Studies Minor

Global change is being felt on the campus of the University as well as in the seats of political and economic power.

Starting this spring semester Salisbury State students are being offered a minor in international studies.

The new program of study "fulfills a need," said Dr. Gerry St. Martin, chair of the Modern Languages Department and one of the faculty members who designed the minor. "Students ask every semester, 'Isn't there a program in international studies?'"

St. Martin and Dr. Greg Cashman, chair of the Department of Political Science, designed a minor which can be combined with a major in almost any field of study such as business, social work, or science and technology.

The minor was developed to prepare students for future jobs in what is increasingly becoming a global marketplace.

The two professors were able to develop the program requirements by combining courses already offered at Salisbury State into a directed program of study.

It requires a working knowledge of a language with added course requirements emphasizing another culture.

Possible selections for study can be in fields of art and art history, communication and culture, world mythology, musical styles, Eastern philosophies, comparative literature, comparative economic systems, comparative governments, foreign policy, social planning, regional geography, international finance, or systems of health care delivery.

A good response when students register this spring for the 1990/1991 college year could eventually lead to a major in international studies, Cashman and St. Martin explained.

SSU is also planning a series of Global Seminars next fall to help faculty members develop a worldwide prospective in presenting all courses of study from the social sciences to biology or mathematics.

Waxing Poetics Concert March 16

Waxing Poetics perform in concert on Friday, March 16, at 9:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center. Sponsored by the SSPB, tickets will be on sale at the door. Cost is $2 with SSU I.D. and $3 without.

Waxing Poetics, the premiere band of the rapidly growing Norfolk music scene, was formed five years ago. They released a single, "Return," in May 1985, on their own label. In January 1987, the album "Hermitage" was released on the Emergo label. Their latest album, "Manakin Moon" was produced by Steve Gronback (Rain Parade, Don Dixon, Marthenon Huxley).

Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chairman of the music department, prepares for the "Savor the Symphony" benefit, to be held on Friday, March 23.

'Savor the Symphony' Fundraiser March 23

The music of Vienna, featuring the great Viennese Classical composer, Mozart, and the waltzes of Strauss, will be the theme for this spring's "Savor the Symphony" fundraiser for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra on Friday, March 23, at the University Center.

Sponsored by WMDT-TV and the Salisbury State University Foundation, Inc., this second annual event will allow patrons of the SSO to sample the specialities of area restaurants and caterers while enjoying a series of mini-concerts.

The SSO's Brass quintet opens the evening of entertainment at 6:30 p.m. followed at 7 p.m. by a special performance by the Department of Music's artist-in-residence, Dr. Mark Clinton, who will play the Mozart Piano Concerto No. 20 in d minor, one of Mozart's most enduringly popular concertos.

After the sit-down concert guests will have ample time to mingle and circulate throughout the University Center to sample the exhibitor's food and beverages. (Some of the exhibitors include TCBY, The Plump Parrot, Park's Wholesale/ One-Stop-Dash-In, Webster's caterers, Wyatt Wholesale/Accomack Vineyards, The Uncommon Gift, Diet Pepsi and Cheers.) The orchestra's other chamber ensembles, the woodwind quintet, the string quartet and the brass quintet, will perform during this portion of the evening.

Then at 9 p.m. patrons can enjoy some old-fashioned ballroom dancing as the orchestra concludes the evening with an hour of Strauss waltzes.

"A young, vital and growing orchestra, the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra is greatly in need of funds to continue its phenomenal growth since its birth four years ago," said Lacey Work, managing director of the SSO. "The orchestra attracts quality musicians from all over the Eastern Shore who travel, rehearse and perform with dedication to the SSO. However, music scores, quality instruments and program support are very expensive. This event will go a long way toward enabling the orchestra to upgrade itself in so many ways, improvements which will be appreciated by music lovers of all ages."

The orchestra was formed in 1985 by Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of the Department of Music, the orchestra conductor and music director.

"A lot of people came up to me when I first got here and asked if I would be willing to form the orchestra," Elliot said recently.

He said he thought it would be difficult to come up with 50 or 60 good musicians willing to spend the time it takes to be a member of a symphony orchestra.

He began with a nucleus—a string quartet, the members of which were excited about the idea of having a symphony orchestra.

"I made hundreds of phone calls," Elliot said. "Finally, in January of 1986, we had our first rehearsal."

Elliot said there were only 20 musicians in the first season of the Salisbury Symphony

African-American Families Symposium

"The Strengths of African-American Families," a community symposium sponsored by SSU, will be held on Saturday, March 17, from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the University Center.

The keynote speaker for the symposium will be Dr. Elizabeth Fitzgerald Howard, author of three children's books inspired by her female relatives who live or lived in Baltimore. She will discuss her family experiences as inspiration for her creative talent.

The cost of the symposium is $3 for students and $6 for others; the cost includes lunch. The registration deadline is Friday, March 9.

For registration materials or more information contact the Social Work Department at 543-6305.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Wellness Day

The Office of Student Activities and Organizations together with the Health Center are pleased to announce that this year's Wellness Day will take a different, more exciting form.

The event, scheduled for Monday, May 14, will be held inside and outside of the University Center. Many of the companies from the area and student organizations have volunteered to take part in this Wellness Day and will be giving free of charge check-ups (such as cholesterol, body fat content, etc.).

Additionally, there will be showcases available on the subject of good health, nutrition and exercise. The Office of Student Activities and Organizations would like to see this event incorporated throughout the campus. Both the library and bookstore will provide information and exhibits related to the subject of wellness.

For more information contact the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (second floor, University Center, 543-6125). All organizations and individuals are welcome to participate; registration forms will be available in the Student Activities Office through April 6.

'Culture of Work' Spring Lecture Series

Salisbury State presents a spring lecture series titled the "Culture of Work," featuring speakers with diverse backgrounds and interests.

On Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center, Dr. Phil Bosserman, a professor of sociology at SSU, discusses the opposite of work—leisure—which contrary to the expectations of a decade or so ago is becoming ever scarcer for people in the work force.

Tom Dillon, a computer science faculty member at Salisbury State, lectures on the computer's impact on work at 4 p.m. on Monday, April 16, in the University Center. His presentation looks at both the industrial and service sectors of the economy, including office technology (especially financial services), publishing, education and design.

Other lecturers include George Vecsey, a New York Times reporter discussing the physical and mental pressures of both superstars and everday people, and Stephen Peet, who makes a film and lecture presentation on the 1937 sit-down strike at the General Motors plants in Flint, MI and the role of women in the labor uprising.

The "Culture of Work" lecture series is supplemented by movies shown during the semester in the International Film Series. Also, the Salisbury State University Gallery has a related exhibit: "People at Work," April 4-26. The exhibition consists of 41 works, primarily prints, on the subject of work, most of them created under the auspices of the Works Progress Administration.

The series is sponsored by the SSU Cultural Affairs Committee. Palmer's presentation is co-sponsored by the Council on Women's Issues. All events in the series are free and open to the public.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Saturday Classes Study Conducted

The 25+ Student Union, an organization of non-traditionally aged students, formed last semester to address the needs of full-time employees, family members and students.

The organization conducted a survey to assess these needs and found that there is wide interest in Saturday classes. The Executive Council of the 25+ Student Union is looking into the possibility of scheduling a few Saturday classes in the future. To do so, however, the exact number of interested students is needed.

The registrar is considering adding the following classes: (General Education) Communication Arts 100, English 210 (short story) and Biology 101 with lab; and, (upper level) Psychology 333 (effective parenting), Math 117 or 200 (college algebra or math and culture) and Education 300 (development and learning).

The project will only come into existence with student support. If interested, please contact Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313, or leave your name, social security number and the class you are interested in taking at the Office of Student Activities and Organizations (second floor, University Center, 543-6125).

Remember this is a proposal only; the issue of Saturday classes will not be pursued without student endorsement.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

EAES Scholarship

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore, Inc. has established a scholarship program.

The scholarship fund has been created as a means of returning money to the community while offering educational opportunities to those individuals it is pledged to serve. Through the program financial assistance will be available to deserving candidates for the purpose of pursuing educational goals past the secondary school level.

The opportunity is being presented to people who have epilepsy so that their quality of life can be enhanced through the satisfaction of educational achievement. A funding limit of $2,500 will be set aside each year.

For an application or information call the EAES Office at 543-0665.

IABC Student Achievement Awards

The Salisbury State chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators, in conjunction with IABC/Delaware, is seeking to recognize creative SSU communicators through the "Student Achievement Award in Communications" contest now until March 23.

Any student at Salisbury State can submit entries in writing, editing, publication design, graphic design, typography, advertising, photography, audio or videotape, or film. For example, the following are acceptable entries: newspaper or feature articles, newsletters, photos, posters, radio commercials or instructional videos. Special consideration will be given for works designed for business or organizational communication.

For more information, contact Shelley Christian at 742-4060 or Terry Ayers at 860-2731.

IABC/SSU is a professional organization for students of all majors who are interested in excellence in organizational communication.

New Tennis Center

The University recently purchased a building which houses three indoor tennis courts. The "SSU Tennis Center" is located on east campus near the Power Building (next to Merritt Racquetball). In addition to physical education classes and tennis team practice the center has daily free play hours. Free play hours are scheduled from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., Monday-Friday beginning Monday, March 5.

Reservations can be made in person one day in advance at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs. A valid SSU I.D. is required for use.

Pyramid Atlantic Exhibits at Gallery

Artists' prints from two major print workshops, Pyramid Atlantic of Washington and Baltimore, and Brandywine of Philadelphia, will be on display in the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through March 22.

The exhibition was curated by Jan Howard, associate curator of prints at the Baltimore Museum, and organized by Maryland Art Place, an artists' cooperative gallery in Baltimore.

Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 pm., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m.

'Into the Woods' Bus Trip

Journey into the world of fairytales on Saturday, April 21 when the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council sponsors a bus trip to the Morris Mechanic Theatre in Baltimore to see "Into the Woods."

Orchestra tickets for this musical fantasy are $62 ($57 for SWAC members) and are now available by calling 543-ARTS.

Rubin: Making a Habit of Service

Over the past several months, Dr. Sharon Rubin, dean of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has been an active participant in the ongoing national debate over student involvement in community service.

In November, Rubin was a scholar-in-residence at James Madison University, Harrisonburg, VA. A guest of the Center for Service Learning, she gave both a workshop for faculty and a public address while there. In December, Rubin was invited by Michigan Campus Compact, an organization of college presidents who are advocates of student public and community service, to give a day-long workshop for faculty and administrators from member schools. The workshop was held at Michigan State University.

The SSU dean was invited to attend a Johnson Foundation Wingspread Conference on Secondary School Community Service in January. These conferences bring together small, diverse groups of participants to work together to create materials or policies that are then shared with a wider audience.

Because of her expertise on the topic, Rubin was selected to evaluate the community service program at the University of Minnesota's main campus in Minneapolis. She spent two days interviewing faculty, administrators, students and representatives of community organizations to determine strengths and weaknesses of the current program, and directions for future activities.

Her most recent presentation was at an invitational conference, "Teaching (About) Philanthropy," sponsored by the Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University. Faculty administrators from across the country came together to discuss how to combine academic study of the history and philosophy of philanthropy with student service in the community.

Two new books on the subject of community service will include writings by Rubin. Several reprints of past work will be appearing in "Combining Service and Learning," while a new chapter, "Transforming the University Through Service Learning" will be included in "Community Service as Values Education."

While Rubin frequently uses her expertise off-campus, this semester she is also teaching an Honors course, "Habits of the Heart," to introduce Honors students to both the theory and practice of community service. Students taking the course not only have to do the reading and writing any course entails, they also have to participate in at least 15 hours of service in any of a wide variety of community organizations.

Sunday Brunch Program in National Competition

On Sunday, March 18, a very special brunch will be offered at the Gull's Nest. "We're entering this program in the 17th Annual NACUFS Dining Awards competition," says Van Glaman, assistant director of University Dining Services.

NACUFS (the National Association of College and University Food Services) is a nationally recognized group of largely self-run food service operations across the country. Past winners of NACUFS dining awards include Cornell University, Kansas State University, University of Richmond, Pennsylvania State University, California State University at Sacramento, University of Tennessee at Knoxville and the University of San Diego.

The photo layout for SSU's entry will be shot on March 17 and 18. "We hope it's going to be a warm and sunny day, so we can offer seating on our patio. This program has all the marks of a winner," states Glaman. "We've got some very talented people who have invested a lot of time and planning in this event…we all feel it can bring some national attention to SSU."

Persons wishing to attend this brunch are urged to make reservations by calling 543-6103 or 543-6105, Monday through Friday. Brunch is offered in the Gull's Nest from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. Prices are $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children for this all-you-can-eat buffet.

Something Good Just Got Better

On Sunday, March 18, The Gull's Nest Brunch will begin offering more healthy alternatives. "We've been listening to our customers, and have constantly been changing to meet their needs," says Van Glaman, assistant director of University Dining Services.

Glaman indicates that special menu items added on March 18 will become regularly featured items in future brunches. "Some customers have asked us for low cholesterol alternatives. Although many of our menu items already fit into this classification, some have asked for low cholesterol eggs." Present low cholesterol items include: carved turkey, salad bar, broccoli spears, a special chef's cheese sauce with a low cheese content, muffins from fat modified recipes and several dessert selections. Beginning March 18, a choice will be offered between fresh eggs and low cholesterol eggs on the omelet bar, and a selection of fresh fruit will be added to the salad bar.

Persons wishing to attend this brunch are urged to make reservations by calling 543-6103 or 543-6105, Monday through Friday. Brunch is offered in the Gull's Nest from 11 a.m. - 2 p.m., March 18, April 6 and 22, and May 6 and 13. Groups of five or more are asked to make reservations early to allow time for better accommodation of special requests.

The Gull's Nest Sunday Brunch is open to the general public and features the folowing menu: carved steamship round or whole tom turkey, omelet bar, salad bar, broccoli spears and special chef's cheese sauce, Belgium waffle bar, bacon, sausage links, biscuits and gravy, scrambled eggs, hash browns and toast. Prices are $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children for this all-you-can-eat buffet.

AIDS Panel March 20

"Keeping the AIDS Secret: The Right to Privacy vs. The Right to Know" is scheduled for Tuesday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room "A" of the University Center.

The program will feature a panel discussion concerning the legal, ethical and professional issues connected with confidentiality and AIDS cases. Mary Kane of the Nursing Department faculty will serve as moderator. Funding for the program is being provided by the Salisbury State Program Board, the Gay/Lesbian Support Group, the Student Health Advisory Committee, the Student Nurses Association and the Dean of Students Office.

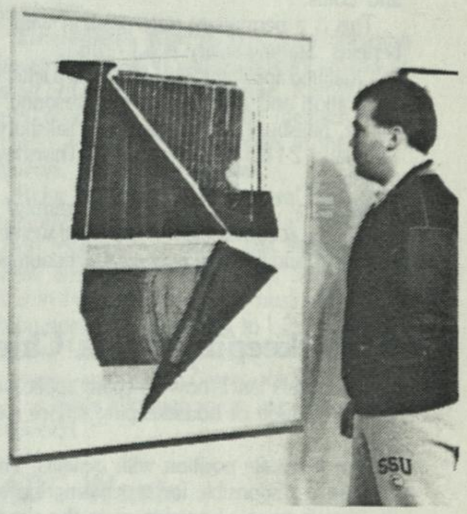
Wicomico Arts Weekend

The Wicomico Arts Weekend, March 30 - April 1, will feature the best in local art and innovative regional contemporary crafts.

As part of this weekend, the first Coastal Show of Contemporary Crafts, sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, will be held on Friday, March 30, and Saturday, March 31. This show highlights original work from contemporary craftmakers from as far away as New Mexico and as close to home as Salisbury in an exciting display on the cutting edge of contemporary crafts. This first Coastal Show of Contemporary Crafts will be held in the surroundings of the Sheraton Salisbury with an exclusive opening night reception and sale from 6-8 p.m., on Friday, March 30. It will kick off the event, and on Saturday, the show will be open to the general public from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. The cost for this inaugural event is $15 per person for the opening night reception on Friday, and $2.50 per person for the exhibit and sale on Saturday. Reservations for the opening night reception are required and may be made by calling the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

The first Coastal Show of Contemporary Crafts runs concurrently with the Art Institute & Gallery's 37th Annual Spring Fine Arts Show which is also part of Wicomico Arts Weekend. The Annual Spring Fine Arts Show will take place at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center with an opening night reception taking place on Friday, March 30, from 7-9 p.m. Saturday's hours will be from 10 a.m. - 9 p.m. and this show is also open on Sunday from 1-6 p.m. The 37th Annual Spring Fine Arts Show is free and open to the public.

For more information about the 37th Annual Spring Fine Arts Show contact the Art Institute & Gallery at 546-4748.



SSU STUDENT JIM IHASZ, a leisure studies major, views one of the works now on exhibit at the University Gallery in Blackwell Library. Artists' prints from two major print workshops, Pyramid Atlantic of Washington and Baltimore, and Brandywine of Philadelphia, are on exhibit through March 22.

Anderson Grant Evaluator

Dr. Eva K. Anderson, assistant professor of education, and a licensed psychologist, was invited by the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services, to serve as a grant application evaluator.

The subject of this national competition was the preparation of special education and related services personnel in rural areas. The panel of evaluators met in Washington, D.C. during February 20-23.

Anderson has been a grant application evaluator for several programs funded by the U.S. Department of Education for the past six years.

Assistantships

The English Department has available four assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing option).

This two-year program of study (33 credit hours) involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. In addition to taking courses, each student will work in the Writing Center and in the University's freshman English program.

The department also offers two assistantships (same terms) for students pursuing the M.A. in English (literature option). This program involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Students will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445. Deadline for applications for GRE is March 15 and deadline for assistantships is April 6. SSU is an affirmative action/equal employment opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Dean Rubin and Jill Olson at last year's "Pot Party"

The 9th Almost Annual 'Faculty Pot Party'

Faculty, staff and administration are urged to circle their calendars for Tuesday, April 10, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. in Potomac Hall room 101 to get down and dirty. The Art Department ceramic classes are again inviting faculty, staff and administration to participate in the art of pot making. Students will be seeking help from their university partners as part of a test, "How well does the student know the subject of clay?"

"Faculty pots equal the student grade. Come join us for a mud-slinging good time," said Marie T. Quillen, ceramics professor.

For more information contact the Art Department Mud Lady at 543-6273. A special guest artist this year is Jerry Caplan who will be conducting a clay workshop, "Smokeless Raku," on Monday and Wednesday, April 9 and 11.

More information on the workshop will follow in the next newsletter.

Habitat Interest Meeting

Meeting Anyone interested in learning more about Habitat, a nonprofit organization which works to provide decent, affordable homes for families, is invited to attend a meeting on Monday, March 19, at 7 p.m.

The meeting is being held in the University Center, next to the Gull's Nest, by the fireplace. This meeting will explain what Habitat is about, and what it will be doing. Then, on Saturday, April 7, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Habitat will be working on a home here in Salisbury. Some of the things to be done include painting, carpentry, installing insulation, and dry walling.

For more information contact Julia Parks at 548-2161.

Tryouts for Ocean Pines Players

Auditions for the Ocean Pines Players' next production will be held Sunday and Monday, March 18 and 19, at the Ocean Pines Community Hall, White Horse Park. The new play will be Dorothy Macardle's classic ghost story, "The Uninvited," as dramatized by Time Kelley.

The play will be presented at the Pines Community Hall on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m., May 3-5 and 10-12. Jeanine Chapman is production manager. Additional people are also needed to assist in production.

Call Chapman at 641-5476 for more information. To attend the auditions or the play, enter Ocean Pines at the North Gate entrance, in the vicinity of Route 90, and travel on Ocean Parkway about one and a half miles to the Community Hall in White Horse Park.

Danceforum Tours Area

Danceforum, the touring troupe of the University Dance Company, has hit the road in March, presenting a lecture-performance program to area schools and nursing homes. The purpose of Danceforum is to expose the community to what is happening in the field of dance as well as what is happening at Salisbury State University. Danceforum has approximately 12 members this semester who were selected from SSU's 32-member Dance Company.

The tour schedule began this week and includes seven performances. The public school visits include Pinehurst Elementary, Berlin Middle School, Chincoteague Elementary, and Showell Elementary. Saturday, March 17, Danceforum also will tour several local nursing homes.

Club Maryland News

There's still time to sign up and become a Charter Member of Club Maryland. Membership is free. A commitment to health is all it takes.

If you join before March 31, you will receive a one-week membership to a local fitness center. You'll also receive a Charter Member button and be eligible for the grand prize, a one-year membership at a fitness center and accommodations for one week at a Maryland vacation resort.

For more information contact Keith Ferschweiler at 543-6037, or stop by the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, room 222.

Julie Ridge

Swimming Record-Holder Here March 19

Julie Ridge, a free-lance writer and Guiness Book world record-holder for swimming one 28.5 mile lap around Manhattan Island for five consecutive days, presents a lecture titled "Take It to the Limit" on Monday, March 19, at 8 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room.

Ridge has also swum the English Channel, completed the Hawaii Ironman Triathlon and was the first person to swim twice, non-stop, around Manhattan Island.

She has been published in numerous national magazines including Life, USAir, Self, New Woman, Ms., Outside, Women's Sports & Fitness and Cosmopolitan. Her book on endurance sports and motivation, "Take It to the Limit," was published in 1985 by Rawson Associates.

In her lecture, as in the book, she emphasizes that an individual should not be concerned with being first across the finish line. Rather, she feels, people should challenge themselves to achieve optimal personal results in their endeavors, athletic or otherwise.

Ridge has appeared on several talk shows including "Late Night With David Letterman," Good Morning America," "The Phil Donahue Show" and "The Morning Show." She currently lives in Manhattan with her husband, Murray Rubinstein, and is training to bicycle across country for charity this spring—L.A. to Boston—with her 67-year-old father.

For more information on her lecture call 543-6012.

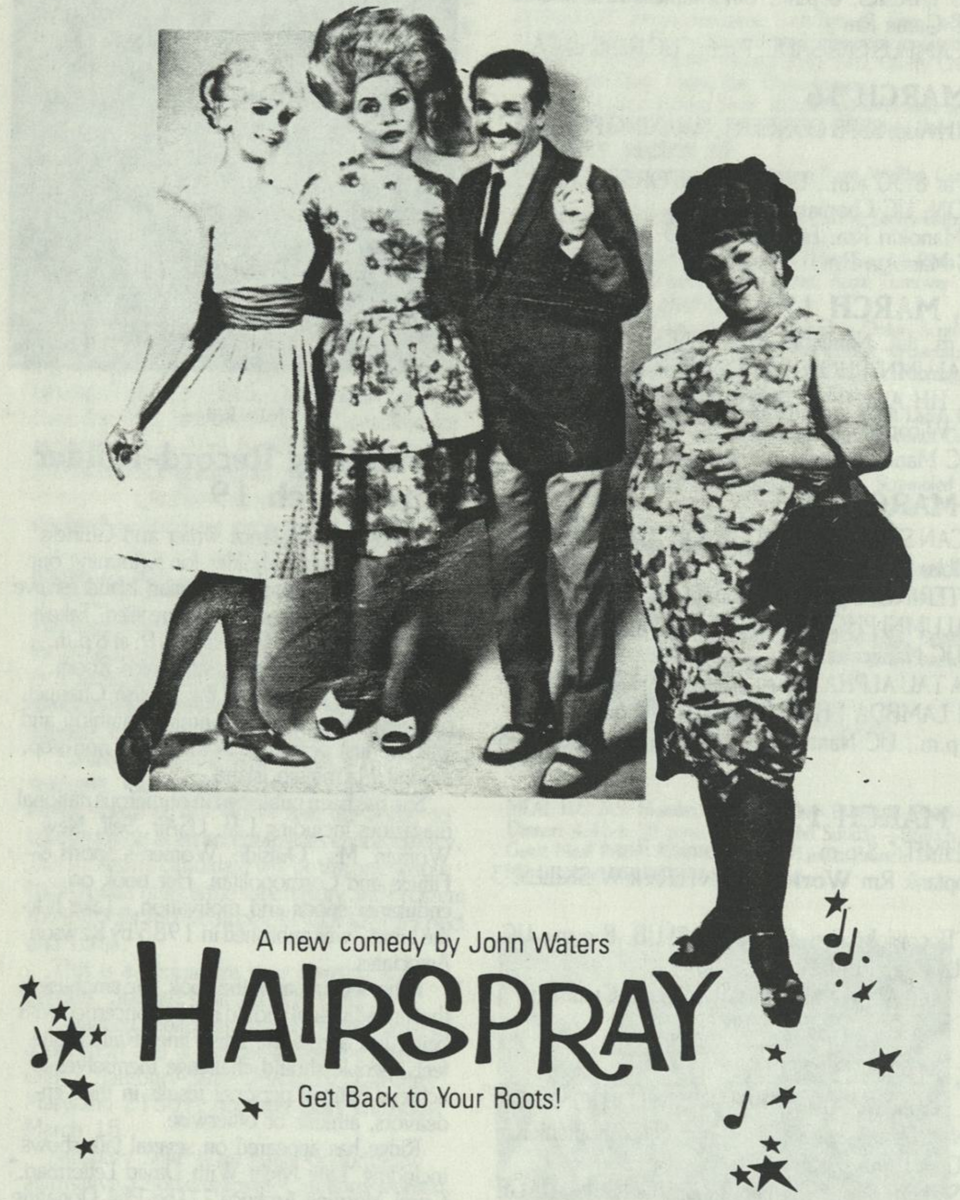
IABC Wants Business Contacts

The University Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators is looking for local businesses and industries which are willing to allow a student to spend a day observing a professional at work.

IABC/SSU is a professional association for students wishing to engage in careers in public relations, advertising, marketing, consulting, community relations and employee relations. The externship program of IABC/SSU seeks out businesses which are willing to let students spend a day working with that business and learn about the profession of their choice.

Any business interested in hosting a student for a day should write to Shelley Christian, president, IABC/SSU, SSU Box 3072, Salisbury, MD, 21801.

IABC/SSU is open to students of all majors and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, age, national origin or handicap. IABC has over 11,000 members worldwide and many student chapters.



A new comedy by John Waters
HAIRSPRAY
Get Back to Your Roots!

Free 'Hairspray' for New 'Do's

by David Todd

Do something unusual to your hair and gain free admission to John Waters' 1988 film "Hairspray." The director of "Pink Flamingos" and "Desperate Living" attempts to reach a mainstream audience with his synthesis of pop culture and bad taste—a feat made easy with the addition of supporting cast members Sonny Bono and Pia Zadora.

Waters describes his film as "an all-talking, all-dancing sort of big-budget civil rights comedy dealing with glamour-starved teen-age celebrities, their blue-color stage mothers and their quest for mental health." Set in Baltimore in 1962, the story loosely revolves around competing families' attempts to win a local teen-age dance contest. Cast members include Debbie Harry, whose hairdos seem to be inspired by the architecture of the Art Deco craze, Jerry Stiller, and, of course, Devine, America's favorite 300-pound transvestite. Rick Ocasek of the Cars has a minor role as a beatnick artist living with Pia Zadora. Pia doesn't sing. Waters proves that even bad taste has limits.

Showtimes are Saturday, March 17, at 7 and 9:15 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room and Sunday, March 18, at 7 and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Please note that there has been a change in location for March 17. Admission is free to those with unusual hairstyles, or $1 for those with a normal conservative hairdo. The general public is welcome.

Upcoming SSPB films include "Babette's Feast," "Manon of the Spring" and "Heathers." We are currently in the process of planning next year's film series. If you have any comments or suggestions please contact David Todd in the SSPB office or call 543-6197.

Nursing Society Officially Chartered

The University's Nursing Honor Society will be chartered as an official chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, International Honor Society of Nursing, on March 18.

Dr. Kathy Schweer will conduct the installation ceremony at Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Approval for the chapter was granted at the Sigma Theta Tau biennial meeting in November 1989 in Indianapolis, IN.

Membership in the honor society is by invitation and is extended to undergraduate and graduate students, faculty and professional nurses who have demonstrated superior scholastic, leadership and nursing achievements.

Sigma Theta Tau has more than 130,000 members in 263 chapters in colleges and universities throughout the United States, Canada, Korea and Taiwan. The organization encourages and sponsors research, promotes the development of nursing leadership and supports the development of nurse scholars.

Some 125 nurses leaders will be inducted as charter members in this group. Officers to be installed are: president, Denise Conklin; vice-president, Twila Harden; secretary, Susan Davis; and treasurer, Sally Irwin.

Bradley Voted Outstanding Woman

The Wicomico County Commission for Women has recognized Sylvia Bradley, assistant professor of history, as one of the outstanding women of Wicomico County for "accomplishments, dedication and service."

Bradley, co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture, will be honored at the annual Women's Recognition Day Ceremony with other recipients, to be held on Sunday, March 25, at 2 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, Flanders Room. Family, friends and guests are invited to attend.

"We look forward to expressing our gratitude...for making Wicomico County a better place to live," said Fran Tracy-Mumford, program chairman.

Education Job Fair

The University's Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) will hold an Education Job Fair from 3:30-6 p.m., Thursday, April 5, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

School systems from Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D.C., New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Florida will be represented.

"The job fair is an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in the field of education to become aware of job opportunities ," said Linda Benson, placement coordinator of the CPPD.

SSU alumni are invited to attend the job fair and should bring copies of their resumes. For more information, contact Benson at 543-6075.

No Newsletter March 22

Due to spring break, the SSU News will not be published on Thursday, March 22. The campus newsletter will be published on Thursday, March 29. Deadline for that issue is Friday, March 23.

Rotellini Named Head Football Coach

Joseph E. Rotellini has been named head football coach, Director of Athletics, Dr. William E. Lide has announced. Rotellini will also serve as an instructor in the University's Physical Education Department.

"We've conducted a national search for this position, and feel that Joe Rotillini is the best candidate for the job," said Lide. "We are extremely glad to have him here, and feel that he will not only provide strong leadership for our football program, but will also be a positive addition to our faculty based on his extensive teaching experience."

Rotellini, 35, has been the assistant head football coach at Shippensburg University since 1987, where he coordinated all administrative duties for the football program in addition to his on-field coaching duties.

Prior to joining the Shippensburg staff, Rotellini served an assistant coach at Salisbury State University in 1985 and 1986. The Sea Gulls advanced to the NCAA Division III playoffs both years, finishing as the national championship runnersup in 1986. He also served as the Sea Gulls' head lacrosse coach from 1985 to 1987, compiling a 32-15 record.

"I am extremely excited about the opportunity being given to me by Salisbury State University," said Rotellini. "I regard this job as one of the premier jobs in Division III, and I'm committed to building a solid program here. The University has a lot to offer to prospective student-athletes, including an excellent academic reputation and a beautiful campus, and I look forward to reestablishing my contacts with many of the high school coaches throughout the state."

Rotellini's extensive football background also includes stops at Alfred (NY) University, Anne Arundel (MD) Community College and Glen Burnie (MD) High School, dating back to 1978. Rotellini, a 1972 graduate of St. Mary's High School in Annapolis, MD, received his Bachelor of Arts in physical education and health from Bethany College in 1977, and his Master's of Education in administration and supervision from Loyola (MD) College in 1982.

Rotellini becomes the fifth head coach in Salisbury State's 18-year football history, and replaces Dr. Joseph Dailey, who resigned on January 30 due to family considerations and personal reasons. Dailey's three-year record was 15-11-1. The three other coaches were: Dick Yobst, 1972-78, 39-25-1 record; Bill Yeagle, 1979-81, 15-13-1; and Mike McGlinchey, 1982-86, 44-11-1.

Andre Kole

Andre Kole Spectacular

Andre Kole, a world renowned illusionist with Campus Crusade for Christ, will be "appearing" at SSU on Monday and Tuesday, April 2 and 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Famed magician David Copperfield says, "You must see Andre Kole's 'Magical Spectacular.' As my friend, he has inspired me and all lovers of magic by creating and artistically performing some of the most phenomenal illusions ever conceived."

According to Campus Crusade, millions of people in 74 countries have been mystified, entertained and inspired by the performances of Kole and his "Magical Spectacular." During his performance people appear, disappear, dematerialize, and levitate before the audience. Kole is the only magician in the world who has been able to successfully accomplish the illusion of walking on water, backers said.

Kole also will include, as part of his stage presentation, a portion of his program that is inspirational in nature.

Tickets are $6 each, $5 for students. Group rates are available. Tickets for Tuesday's performance may be obtained from Homer Austin (Math Sciences, Room 134, Power Professional, 543-6468) or Ed Senkbeil (Chemistry Department, Room 337-A, Devilbiss Hall, 543-6455).

Faculty Bible Study

As Faculty Bible Study (FBS) begins the semester, it would like to invite others to join them. This semester FBS will be studying principles of leadership from the life of Gideon as contained in the book of Judges, chapters 6-8.

Bring a "brown bag" lunch any Wednesday from noon - 1 p.m. in Devilbiss 219. There are no prerequisites, nor homework. Contact Homer Austin, Ed Senkbeil, Ed Shaffer, Wayne Shelton or Steve Young for more information.

Budget Officer/Secretary

Salisbury State University seeks an individual for the contractual appointment of budget officer/secretary in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics. The successful candidate must possess expertise in such areas as typing, filing, duplicating, record keeping, comprehension of budget management and records, and other applicable office management skills. Knowledge of Lotus 1-2-3 a plus. The salary will be $7 per hour (35.5 hour work week).

Please submit a cover letter and resume, with references, to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 not later than March 23.

Marson Exhibit April 4-5

A special exhibition and sale of original graphic art will be presented on April 4 and 5 at the University Center. Exhibit times are Wednesday, 11 a.m. - 8 p.m., and Thursday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Marson Galleries Ltd. of Baltimore specializes in exhibiting for sale a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of some 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in the collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth and others. Also included is a fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts. There is a large group of works by such distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azechi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Ebi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima and Saito. Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of Ukiyo-E prints are also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection and to answer questions about the work, the artists and the various graphic techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited. Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers. For more information call 543-6100.

SSU Student Is U.S. Watermelon Queen

Julia Lynn Nelson of Salisbury has been picked the 1990 National Watermelon Queen.

Nelson, 21, the reigning 1989 Mar-Del Watermelon Queen, won her new crown at the National Watermelon Association's 76th annual convention on Saturday, March 3, in Orlando, FL.

Nelson, a senior at Salisbury State majoring in English and elementary education, is the daughter of Thea and H. Daniel Nelson of Salisbury.

The national title required a personal interview, speeches and an evening gown modeling competition.

Nelson, who represented Maryland and Delaware as queen of the association's Mar-Del Chapter, edged seven other candidates representing eight states. Her win is the first national title for the 60-member local chapter since its formation nearly 20 years ago.

Nelson also won the Jubilee Award for congeniality in Orlando and is the first contestant to win both the national title and the award.

Her first official function is to preside over the crowning of the next Mar-Del queen March 10 in Laurel, DE.

As national queen, she will make guest appearances throughout the country this year to promote the watermelon industry.

Dave Rudolf

Dave Rudolf To Bring Music, Mirth and Mayhem

Once upon a time Dave Rudolf was a singer/songwriter. Then people began laughing at him. They were laughing at the jokes he would tell, the funny songs he would sing, and his generally bizarre behavior—but Rudolf realized that people liked his show. In fact, they loved his show. Now Rudolf is bringing his unusual combination of music, mirth and mayhem to campus on Wednesday, April 21. The show starts at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Rudolf's unique blend of comedy, music and general mayhem received great reviews all over the country. "Newsweek" called him "one of the most frequently recommended college acts."

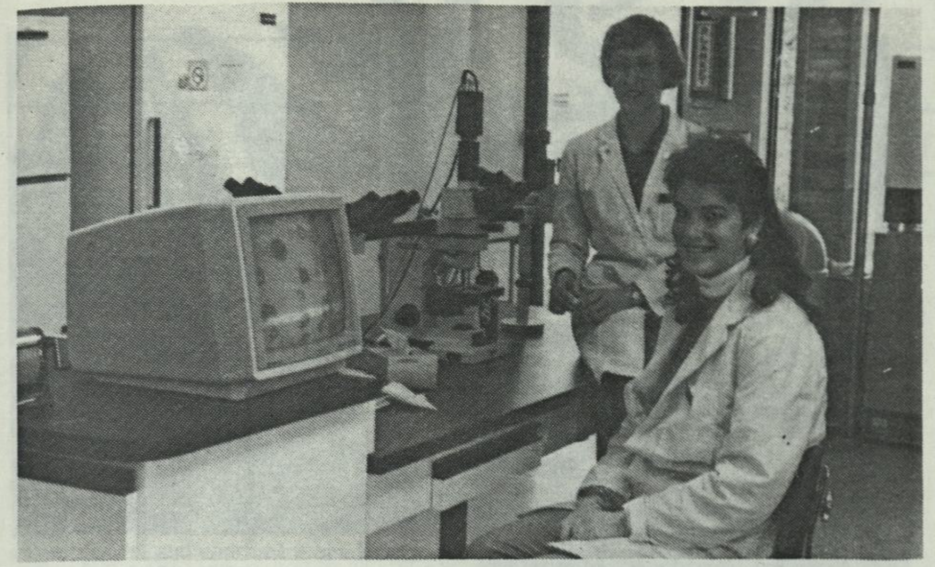
Rudolf has released seven albums and has appeared on numerous cable TV shows. He has been nominated for the College Entertainer Awards for the past eight years. Starting in 1982 when the awards were first introduced, he has received eight nominations for Coffeehouse Entertainer of the Year and two nominations for College Entertainer of the Year.

He has opened for Cheech and Chong, The Beach Boys, the Everly Brothers, the Little River Band, Sha Na Na, Steve Goodman, Ramsey Lewis, Leo Kottke, and others. He's been featured on the "Dr. Demento Show." Rudolf has been a headliner at comedy clubs such as Snicerz and the Bijou, and also appeared on National Public Radio folk shows such as "The Flea Market."

Versatile, yes; strange, certainly; entertaining and funny, definitely.

From parodies to audience participation to Dave Rudolf hand puppets—his show is essentially a lot of fun.

The "Chicago Sun Times" says, "Dave Rudolf captivates his audience. Anything and everything that happens on-stage or off-stage during a Rudolf set becomes fair game for his disarming wit."



Tammie Dixon, a University student, and Cindy Cowell, an instructor in the Medical Technology Department, work with the new five-headed microscope, a special instrument whose images are shown on a TV monitor.

Clinical Laboratory Scientists in Demand

There is a certain group of students at Salisbury State, numbering no more than 16 at any one time, who are assured of jobs in their chosen field when they graduate.

"People come looking for them. I get calls all the time from Baltimore and Washington and sometimes places like Texas and Arizona asking if we have graduates interested in moving to their areas."

So says Johanna W. Laird, head of SSU's medical technology program.

The demanding skills required of medical technologists, also known as "clinical laboratory scientists," are in short supply nationwide and expected to become more so through the year 2,000, she says.

Graduates usually move first into jobs at hospital laboratories where they conduct the vital tests doctors need to help diagnose disease and determine treatment for patients. These tests may range from a simple blood sugar or cholesterol level to sophisticated enzyme analyses used in detecting heart attacks. Starting salaries are more than $20,000.

Once they get experience, the young scientists can move on to other public or private laboratories to specialize in such fields as medical research, drug testing, microbiology, hematology and others.

To acquire these sought after skills, MT students undergo an intensive four-year course of study accredited by the American Medical Association. With some curriculum adjustments the program also can serve as a pre-med course for those who want to become physicians.

During the first two years, science courses are taught along with general studies in English and other liberal arts that are required of all SSU graduates. The final two years concentrate on training in the laboratory climaxed by a semester of actual laboratory work at hospitals in Salisbury and Easton.

Graduates earn a Bachelor of Science and, like lawyers who face bar exams, must also take a certification test given by the American Society of Clinical Pathology. Once they pass they are entitled to carry the initials MT (ASCP) after their names and are assured a place in their career field.

A month after earning his B.S. in medical technology at SSU, Herman F. Staats, a 1988 graduate, started at a Ph.D. program at the University of South Alabama. Recently he co-authored an article in Intervirology, a national scientific journal.

"I'm on a full fellowship," he said. "My area of research is immunology.... I feel my training at SSU taught me the importance of using good technique in the laboratory. This has helped me in graduate school.

"The medical technology curriculum provided me with very strong science training. The Salisbury State professors were always ready and willing to talk to me about school or anything I wanted to talk about. It helps getting that personal attention as an undergraduate."

Last year all the graduates in the program passed. If any should fail they are given opportunities to retake the exam later.

The program is limited to classes of 16 at a time because of the expensive lab equipment needed to train each student. Even so, classes average below that.

The reasons, Laird says are, first, lack of public awareness that such a career field exists. Many young people have never heard of it and don't know the program is offered at SSU. Second is the rigor of the curriculum with its emphasis on chemistry and biology courses. Third is a lack of the glamor attached to other highly publicized fields, and fourth is the fear among young people of contracting AIDS by being employed in the health care field.

Though there is no guarantee against getting AIDS in any walk of life, medical technologists are thoroughly trained in observing the known precautions against contracting it, Laird points out. "I believe it is one of the safest areas to work in health care."

Aside from pay, the job's main reward is the satisfaction of knowing one is playing a vital role in the health care system, she said. Lab tests today are a major factor in patient treatment. A professional MT, besides being trained in the use of today's high-tech precision instruments, also has the scientific background to ensure the all-important accuracy of lab tests.

To give this kind of training, the University has just opened a new state-of-the-art laboratory, Laird said. "We have the latest in equipment and safety devices, including a five-headed microscope that enables an instructor to describe a diseased cell, for example, while four students look on."

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Led by a solid core of returning players, the Lady Gull lacrosse team opens its season with road games at Lynchburg College and Sweet Briar this weekend. Coach Dawn Chamberlin's team, which captured the Maryland State Championship last year, will look to senior co-captains Kim Marlett and Andie Phillips to pace the offense. Both players possess good speed and a consistent shot. Defensively, Salisbury will rely on the leadership and experience of two juniors, Stephanie Ellsworth and Cyndee VanDerbeek, to help shut down opponents. SSU's 14-game schedule, which includes the likes of Frostburg State, Trenton State and Washington, concludes on April 27-29 when the Gulls will try to defend their championship at the Maryland State Tournament.

As for teams already in action, Coach Deane Deshon's baseball squad hopes to snap a four-game slide when it visits Virginia Wesleyan on Thursday. Despite good pitching through the first five games, the Gulls have been unable to produce the timely hits in the key situations, as evidenced by 11 runners left on base in last Sunday's 8-4 loss to Johns Hopkins. Senior Mike Shockley was 4-4 in stolen bases in that game, and has nine thefts through five games.

The men's lacrosse sqaud is off to a 2-1 start, with impressive early-season wins against Potsdam State and Alfred University. Salisbury hosts St. Lawrence University in a 1 p.m. clash on Saturday, with the Gulls looking to rebound from last Sunday's 9-8 overtime loss to Ohio Wesleyan. Junior Eric Ungleich leads the Maroon and Gold with 10 goals and 16 points through the first three games.

Paced by singles match victories by Millie Baer, Vicki Franz and Kathy Marshall, the Lady Gulls made a successful debut on the tennis courts last week with a 5-4 win over Goucher. SSU's doubles tandems of Sherri Shepard/Lisa Trelease and Susan Hoeck/Suzanne Curtis also notched key wins. The ladies return to action on March 21 at UMES.

The stress on an international approach in all fields of study is applauded throughout the faculty.

"We can't let SSU students graduate without understanding another culture and having compassion for the Third World," said Dr. Karin E. Johnson, professor of nursing. "I feel strongly that we have to find a way to get students involved—to identify with the people of Uganda or Kenya" and not simply measure the rest of the world by our own American standards.

Johnson is in Kenya this spring with the African Medical and Research Foundation. She is working with the medical school of Makerere University in Nairobi to develop a 10-year-plan which will enable that institution to offer students advanced medical training they can now get only by leaving the country.

With the new campuswide stress on global awareness, Salisbury State is part of what is being called a renaissance in international studies in colleges and universities across the nation.

Figures show that the number of students enrolled in international programs at Maryland state universities has more than quadrupled in the past eight years.

Clinton To Play Mozart At Symphony Fundraiser

Dr. Mark Kennerly Clinton, artist-in-residence at the University, will be the featured performer at the second annual "Savor the Symphony," held at the University Center on Friday, March 23, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

"Savor the Symphony" is a fund-raising event for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU. Sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation and WMDT-TV, the annual event was a sellout last year. Clinton will begin the evening of music and food with his performance of Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 20 in d minor, accompanied by the Salisbury Symphony chamber players, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room. "It's one of Mozart's most enduringly popular concertos," Clinton said, "and I'm looking forward to this performance. Coincidentally, this concerto has a history in fund-raising. Several years after Mozart died it was performed by Beethoven at a concert staged to raise money for Mozart's widow, Constanze.

"Another interesting note about this concerto," Clinton continued, "is that Mozart never wrote the cadenzas. As a master of improvisation, he apparently thought they would be best performed spontaneously, composed on the spot by the pianist. When I play the concerto for 'Savor,' I'll be playing cadenzas written by Beethoven and Paul Badura-Skoda."

After the concerto performance, the evening becomes less structured, as guests visit exhibits set up by local restaurants and caterers to sample a wide variety of food and beverages. Exhibitors for this year include TCBY Yogurt, The Plump Parrot, Tolley Point Seafood, The Uncommon Gift, Cheers, Webster's Restaurant, Accomack Vineyards, One Stop Dash-in, Diet Pepsi, Parks Wholesale and Wyatt Wholesale.

The evening will be hosted by Roger Follebout, news anchor for WMDT-TV. Follebout will announce performances by various SSO chamber ensembles as they play throughout the University Center. Exhibitors will have their displays set up for conveniently listening to the music.

At the end of the evening the orchestra will gather in full force for a rousing concert of Strauss waltzes, and music in the Viennese style. Pieces such as "The Blue Danube" and "The Emperor" are sure to lure guests on to the floor for some romantic ballroom dancing. "Tickets are going fast," said Carolyn Hall, co-chair for the event. "Last year was a complete sellout and response this year has been enthusiastic. People know that this is a fun event, unique in the area."

Tickets are $25 each and are available at WMDT-TV on the Downtown Plaza, at Hall's Tidewater Travel at Rt. 50 and Mt. Hermon Road, and at the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in the Civic Center.

"Because of the limited number of tickets advanced sales are encouraged but, if available, they will be sold at the door," said Judy Pilgrim, co-chair.

For information about "Savor the Symphony," call the Music Department at 543-6385.

Their music has been described by critics as "a folky base that combines an elegant interplay of acoustic and electric guitars, with a punchy, cracking drum sound and "nuggets-style garage-grunge" and "they take it from Britbeat to hard funk with ease, slow it bluesy-like, pop it up again, confident throughout." They have been seen on MTV's "120 Minutes." Their next album is expected to be released this summer.

Orchestra. About 50 is a good average size, he said. Now they have 54 members.

He said it was important for musicians in the area to have the opportunity to play in the orchestra.

"This is a once in a lifetime chance for most people," he said. "The opportunity to play in a symphony orchestra is unheard of."

Elliot said music teachers have told him the numbers of young children taking the violin have doubled since the orchestra's inception, and has led to the formation of the Greater Salisbury Youth Symphony Orchestra.

"My aim is to make this orchestra a mecca," he said, "a place people will come to."

Like last year, a sell-out crowd of 400 is anticipated; patrons of the orchestra are urged to purchase their tickets soon.

Tickets, at $25 per person, are on sale at the following Salisbury locations: WMDT-TV on the Downtown Plaza, Hall's Tidewater Travel at Rt. 50 and Mt. Hermon Road and the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MARCH 29, 1990

VOL. XI NO. 23

Foundation Awards $4,200 to Faculty, Staff

The Salisbury State University Foundation, recently awarded a total of $4,200 to faculty and staff members for various development activities.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Diane Savage, the co-chair of the grants committee.

The Foundation was established for the encouragement and enrichment of education and incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for educational, charitable and scientific purposes at Salisbury State.

Andrade, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development, was awarded $200 for expenses to be incurred at the 1990 annual Convention and Exposition of the American Association for Counseling and Development in Cincinnati, OH.

Defino, an assistant professor of computer science in the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology, was awarded $200 to assist with expenses incurred at a multiday seminar on microprocessor education sponsored by the School of Engineering at the University of Pittsburgh.

Pictured are Foundation grant recipient James C. Lackie, director of retention and special academic programs; Mrs. Diane Savage of South Point, grants committee co-chair; and recipient Dr. Francis I. Kane, chair of the Philosophy Department.

Elwell, an associate professor of social work in the School of Education and Professional Studies, will present a paper titled "Case Management for Elderly Retarded Citizens" at the annual Conference of the American Association of Mental Retardation in Atlanta. She was awarded $400.

Fusaro, a professor of mathematical sciences in the Henson School, will receive a grant of $300 to attend the annual meeting of the Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics in Chicago.

An award of $300 has been made to Gehnrich, an assistant professor of biology in the Henson School, in support of his expenses in the preparation of a laboratory manual for a course in vertebrate physiology, which is the study of "how animals work."

Hopson, an assistant professor of psychology in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, will present a professional paper titled "Uniting a Severely Disturbed Child with

Minority Literature Conference Here April 7

Shakespeare. Milton. Melville. Hemingway. Faulkner. These giants of literature and others like them have historically made up the literary canon, the standard by which all other writers are judged. This traditional canon has been at the center of the English curriculum of elementary and secondary schools and colleges and universities. Until recently it has also been the focus of most scholarly study.

However, of late many teachers and students alike have been asking questions about biases, intended or otherwise, in restricting literary study to the "classics." What about other writers, especially those who are not white and male? Are there works by females, African-Americans and Native Americans that our second graders, 11th graders and university students should be studying?

These and other related questions will be addressed at the Minority Literature Conference on Saturday, April 7, from 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The conference, sponsored by the SSU Department of English, is designed for English, language arts or other teachers, kindergarten

Bosserman on the Changing Workplace

Fifty years ago Americans made things, things you could touch and feel—cars, cantaloupes, crayons—tangible things. Today that's the exception rather than the rule.

The U.S. is now a nation of service industries. The impact that change has had on the collective psyche of the American worker and what the future holds for the nation's workforce is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Phillip Bosserman on Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"Beyond Employment: But Will the 21st Century Be a Society of Leisure" is the title of Bosserman's presentation, sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and part of the spring lecture series, "Culture of Work." How work has changed in the past 50 years will be Bosserman's major thrust.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Assistantships

The English Department has available four assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing option).

This two-year program of study (33 credit hours) involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. In addition to taking courses, each student will work in the Writing Center and in the University's freshman English program.

The department also offers two assistantships (same terms) for students pursuing the M.A. in English (literature option). This program involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours). Students will teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program.

For application packets call the Department of English at 543-6445. Deadline for applications for GRE is March 15 and deadline for assistantships is April 6. SSU is an affirmative action/equal employment opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Club Maryland News

There's still time to sign up and become a Charter Member of Club Maryland. Membership is free. A commitment to health is all it takes.

If you join before March 31, you will receive a one-week membership to a local fitness center. You'll also receive a Charter Member button and be eligible for the grand prize, a one-year membership at a fitness center and accommodations for one week at a Maryland vacation resort.

For more information contact Keith Ferschweiler at 543-6037, or stop by the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, room 222.

IABC Wants Business Contacts

The University Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators is looking for local businesses and industries which are willing to allow a student to spend a day observing a professional at work.

IABC/SSU is a professional association for students wishing to engage in careers in public relations, advertising, marketing, consulting, community relations and employee relations. The externship program of IABC/SSU seeks out businesses which are willing to let students spend a day working with that business and learn about the profession of their choice.

Any business interested in hosting a student for a day should write to Shelley Christian, president, IABC/SSU, SSU Box 3072, Salisbury, MD, 21801.

IABC/SSU is open to students of all majors and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, age, national origin or handicap. IABC has over 11,000 members worldwide and many student chapters.

Education Job Fair

The University's Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD) will hold an Education Job Fair from 3:30-6 p.m., Thursday, April 5, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

School systems from Delaware, Maryland, Washington, D.C., New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Florida will be represented.

"The job fair is an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in the field of education to become aware of job opportunities," said Linda Benson, placement coordinator of the CPPD.

SSU alumni are invited to attend the job fair and should bring copies of their resumes. For more information, contact Benson at 543-6075.

Faculty Bible Study

As Faculty Bible Study (FBS) begins the semester, it would like to invite others to join them. This semester FBS will be studying principles of leadership from the life of Gideon as contained in the book of Judges, chapters 6-8.

Bring a "brown bag" lunch any Wednesday from noon - 1 p.m. in Devilbiss 219. There are no prerequisites, nor homework. Contact Homer Austin, Ed Senkbeil, Ed Shaffer, Wayne Shelton or Steve Young for more information.

What's in the Census for Me?

No one gets paid for answering the census, but it pays off for everyone.

The information your answers provide helps your community leaders decide where to put day care centers, schools, hospitals, and many more services. And, the census is used to determine how many seats your state has in the U.S. House of Representatives so your voice is heard where it counts the most.

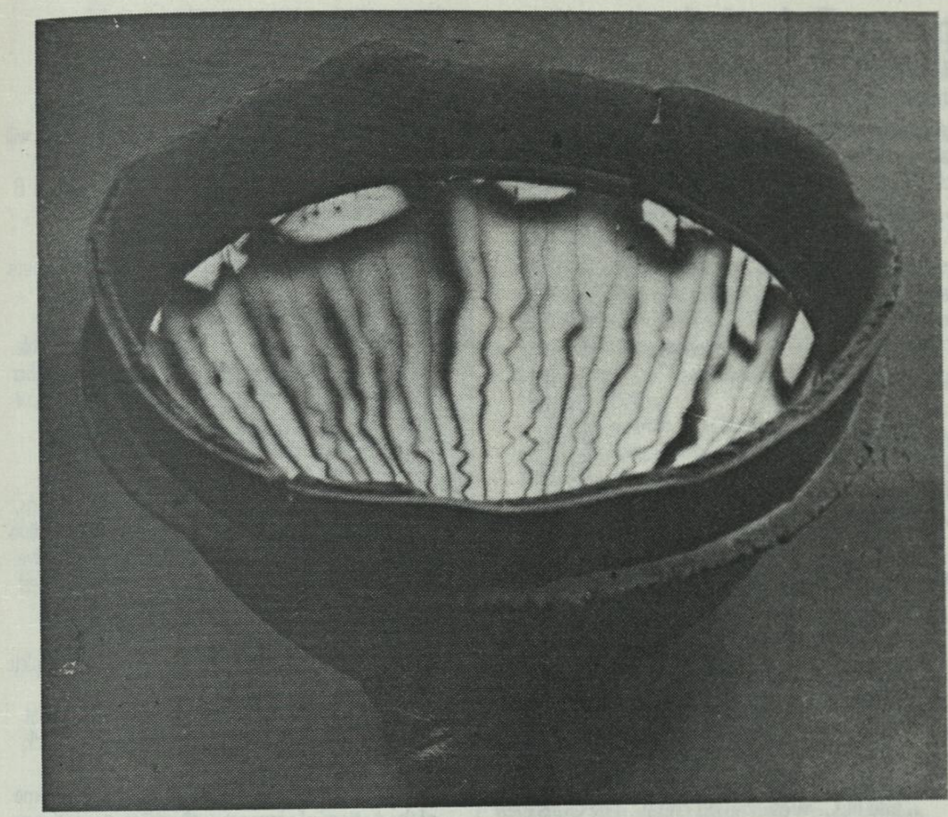
Wicomico Arts Weekend

The Wicomico Arts Weekend begins Friday, March 30, and runs through Sunday, April 1, and features two exhibits, the First Coastal Show of Contemporary Crafts sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and the 37th annual Spring Fine Arts Show sponsored by the Art Institute & Gallery.

The First Coastal Show highlights the best of regional and local craftmakers works. The Coastal Show begins at 6 p.m. on March 30 at the Sheraton Salisbury, with a gala opening night reception and sale. Tickets for the sneak preview are $15 per person. For reservations call the Arts Council at 543-ARTS.

On March 31 the Coastal Show opens from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.; admission is $2.50 per person. Functional handpainted pottery, handcrafted jewelry, quilts and kimonos, and large one of a kind clocks will be some of the many items on sale during the inaugural show.

The Fine Arts Show also opens with a reception and sale on March 30 from 7-9 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. The show opens to the general public on March 31 from 10 a.m. - 9 p.m. and again on April 1 from 1-6 p.m. There is no admission charge. Black and white drawing, sculpture, watercolor and acrylic are a few of the different types of media that are on sale. For more information call the Art Institute & Gallery at 546-4748.



Raku Work by Jerry Caplan

Raku Pottery Workshop Upcoming

Jerry L. Caplan, who is a master in the Oriental art of raku pottery, will be in residence at SSU April 9-11. Caplan, whose works are displayed in private and public collections across the country, will give a two-day workshop for SSU students and area artists, to which the public is invited to observe.

"Raku is a 16th century Oriental ceramics technique first used for small ceremonial teabowls and distinguished by its hand-formed character and texture. Now used in a wider range of ceramics pieces, its informal simplicity is especially appealing to today's artists and public," said Marie Tator Quillen, associate professor of art at SSU.

On Monday, April 9, from 9-11 a.m., Caplan will give a slide presentation and demonstration of his "smokeless raku" technique which avoids "filling the air with pollution," he said. That afternoon from 1:15-3:15 p.m., he will supervise a hands-on workshop for participants.

A day is required for the clay to dry so the workshop will reconvene on Wednesday, April 11, from 9 a.m. - noon, when he will then show students how to fire their works using his smokeless technique.

In between, on Tuesday, April 10, Caplan will be present for SSU's "almost annual faculty pot party" where faculty without an art background are invited to get down and dirty with clay, said Quillen, who oversees the ceramics program. Students supervise the work and are evaluted on how well they can convey knowledge of the craft. The faculty pot party is from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

All programs will be conducted in the University's ceramics studio, room 101 of Potomac Hall.

Caplan, who has his Bachelor of Fine Arts and Master of Fine Arts from Carnegie Mellon University, is professor emeritus at Chathan College, Pittsburgh, where he was Buhl Professor and chair of its Art Department.

His work has been commissioned by various corporations including Rockwell and Westinghouse, as well as Chicago's Botanical Gardens and Temples Emanuel and Beth El in Pittsburgh, and Adat Ariel in Los Angeles.

The originator of ceramic pipe sculpture, his works also have been exhibited at the Carnegie Institute, Scripps College in California, the Butler Institute of American Art Annuals in Pennsylvania and the American Crafts Gallery in Cleveland.

His teaching experience includes several distinguished art programs such as the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Mellon, the Rochester Institute of Technology, the Tyler School of Art at Temple University, Ohio University, the College of Steubenville in Ohio and The Haystack Mountain School of Crafts in Maine.

He is a past president of The Associated Artists of Pittsburgh and was voted Artist of the Year by the Pittsburgh Center for the Arts.

Caplan has conducted his raku workshop at several art departments including the Tyler School of Art, Haystack, Kansas State, and William and Mary College.

Those wishing to observe Caplan's program should contact the Art Department at 543-6270. Space is limited.

Workshop on Reducing Test-Taking Stress

Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development, offers a three-session seminar in April titled, "Reducing Test-Taking Stress."

In the seminar McBrien teaches stress releasing relaxation skills, positive mental rehearsal techniques and the psychology of successful test-taking. Participants learn a self-management program which replaces testing anxiety (or other performance-based anxiety) with self confidence and the ability to think clearly while taking tests.

The seminar begins on Tuesday, April 10, and continues on April 17 and 24. The sessions are from noon - 1 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Those interested in participating in the seminar should register in the CPPD or call 543-6070.

Parenti To Discuss Foreign Policy

Dr. Michael Parenti, Distinguished Residence Professor at California State University-Northridge this spring, discusses "The Sword and the Dollar: Myths of U.S. Foreign Policy" on Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center.

Free and open to the public, Parenti's talk is sponsored by the SSU Political Science Club.

Parenti received his Ph.D. in political science from Yale University in 1962. He has taught at a number of colleges and universities, including State University of New York, at Stony Brook and at Albany, the University of Vermont and Sarah Lawrence College. He was a guest professor of political science at Howard University for 1987-88 and at the University of Canterbury, New Zealand in spring 1989.

His books include "The Anti-Communist Impulse" (Random House), "Trends and Tragedies of American Foreign Policy" (Little, Brown, a book of edited readings), "Ethnic and Political Attitudes" (Arno Press), "Power and the Powerless" (St. Martin's Press), "Democracy For the Few" (St. Martin's Press), "The Sword and the Dollar: Imperialism, Revolution, and the Arms Race" (St. Martin's Press) and "Make Believe Media" (the politics of the entertainment media, forthcoming).

His articles have appeared in the Nation, the Progressive, Political Affairs, American Political Science Review, Journal of Politics, Politics and Society, Witness, National Catholic Reporter, Harvard International Review, Economic Notes, New York Times, Los Angeles Times, Science and Nature, Massachusetts Review, In These Times and numerous other publications.

He has received research grants from the Social Science Research Council, the Ford Foundation, the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion and various universities.

He served on the advisory boards of Politics and Society and New Political Science. He has appeared on numerous radio and television talk shows to discuss current issues or ideas from his published works. Parenti's lectures have been played on numerous radio stations. He has lectured widely on college campuses and before religious, labor, community and public-interest groups around the country. Among the many topics he has spoken on are: democracy and economic power; imperialism; the arms race and U.S. interventionism; inventing reality: political bias in the U.S. news media; and democracy, revolution and popular struggle.

Audio and videotapes of Parenti's lectures are sold on a non-profit basis by People's Video, P.O. Box 99514, Seattle, WA 98199.

His lecture is also sponsored by the SSU Political Science Department, Sociology Department, Communication Arts Department, History Department and History Club.

For more information call (301) 543-6030.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

Competing against a field of predominantly Division I teams, the Salisbury State men's and women's track teams posted several fine performances in their season-opening outdoor meet at Towson State University last weekend. Distance runner Doug Mock paced the SSU men with a third place finish in the 1500 meters, with a time of 3:59, and a sixth place finish in the 800 meters, with a time of 1:58.4. Other Gulls who performed well included Ron Rose, who placed fourth in the pole vault with a jump of 12 feet; Dan Quinn, sixth in the shot put with a throw of 39 feet; and Tim Smith, sixth in the 10,000 meters with a time of 34:15. Sophomore Cheryl Ish was SSU's top female performer as she placed sixth in both the discus, with a throw of of 93 feet, and the javelin, with a throw of 82 feet. Amy Stanton also finished fifth in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 1:22. Both Sea Gull squads return to action this weekend in the Battleground Invitational Meet, hosted by Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, VA. Several of the other SSU teams approach the end of their weeklong road trips. Coach Deane Deshon's baseball team ends a seven-games-in-seven-days road trip with games at Methodist on Thursday and N.C. Wesleyan on Friday. The Gulls then get four days off before hosting Wilmington College next Wednesday at 3 p.m. The men's tennis squad, which completed a five-day, five-match road trip on Wednesday, also plays again next Wednesday, hosting Haverford at 3 p.m. The Lady Gull softball team will play three successive home games, beginning with Buffalo State at 3 p.m. on Thursday. Salisbury also hosts Stockton State and Shenandoah, Friday and Saturday, respectively. Coach Dawn Chamberlin's women's lacrosse team will also play at home on Friday, hosting cross-state rival Frostburg State at 4 p.m. The Lady Gulls then visit Trenton State on Sunday.

Black Athlete Teleconference April 18

"The Black Athlete - Winners or Losers in Academia?," a live satellite teleconference, will be presented on Wednesday, April 18, at 12:45 p.m. - 3 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B of the University Center.

"Black athletes are seen by millions of Americans every week in arenas and stadiums or on the living room television set," said Vaughan White, coordinator of minority programming at SSU. "They are the most visible and controversial segment of American higher education. They are our major colleges' student athletes."

Many of the issues surrounding today's college athletes will be evaluated including secondary preparation, recruiting, admissions, testing, the role of the NCAA, and graduation and matriculation issues. Live and interactive, the discussion provide a unique view of the best and worst aspects of how modern college programs have combined academics and athletics to the benefit of the individual athlete and the universities.

The event also will take an insightful look at the myths and realities of the plight of the black college athlete.

Participants in the event will include some of the nation's foremost authorities, practitioners, participants and observers from the world of academics and athletics. Participants include: Arthur Ashe, a former professional tennis star; Dr. Harry Edwards, founder of the Sports Sociology Field at the University of California at Berkeley; Joseph Johnson, president of Grambling State University; Wyatt Kirk, chairman of the Department of Human Development and Services at N.C. A&T State University; Richard Schultz, executive director of the NCAA; Vivian Stringer, head women's basketball coach at the University of Iowa; James Brown moderator for CBS Sports; Morgan Wooten, men's basketball coach at Dematha High School near Washington, D.C.; and many others.

Sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs and the Department of Sociology, the teleconference is free and open to the public. In addition, classes from the respective academic departments will be attending.

For more information call 543-4503.

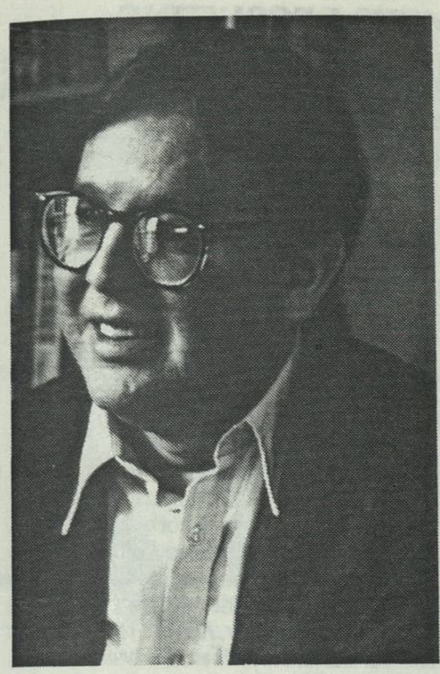
Erskine Published

The recently published "Masterplot II: Drama Series" (Salem Press) contains three essay reviews by Dr. Thomas Erskine, professor of English at SSU.

Each entry in the reference work contains a summary of the plot, a discussion of themes and meanings, an analysis of the critical context in which the play was written and a bibliography.

Erskine wrote about two contemporary British plays, "Inadmissible Evidence" by John Osborne, more famous for his "Look Back in Anger," and David Hare's "Plenty," a critical success as a film starring Meryl Streep. He also wrote about "Ham Funeral," by Australian Patrick White, the most critically acclaimed Australian novelist.

Erskine teaches a course in Commonwealth literature at SSU and regularly takes students to London during winter term to study English theatre.



James Welch

Welch Reading

Native American novelist James Welch will read from his forthcoming novel, "Indian Lawyer," in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on Thursday, April 12, at 8 p.m. The event is free and the public is welcome.

"James Welch is, along with Leslie Silko, N. Scott Momaday and Louise Erdrich, one of our most important Native American voices. To say that is also to say he's among the finest novelists currently writing," said Jon Davis, visiting professor of English at SSU. "Welch will be unveiling his new novel—he was just finishing it when I called to invite him—so this will be both a rare treat and an auspicious event."

Welch, whose books deal with the American Indian experience, is of Blackfeet lineage on his father's side, Gros Ventre on his mother's side. He was born in Browning, MT, and attended schools on the Blackfeet and Fort Belknap reservations before enrolling at the University of Montana, where he studied with the poet Richard Hugo.

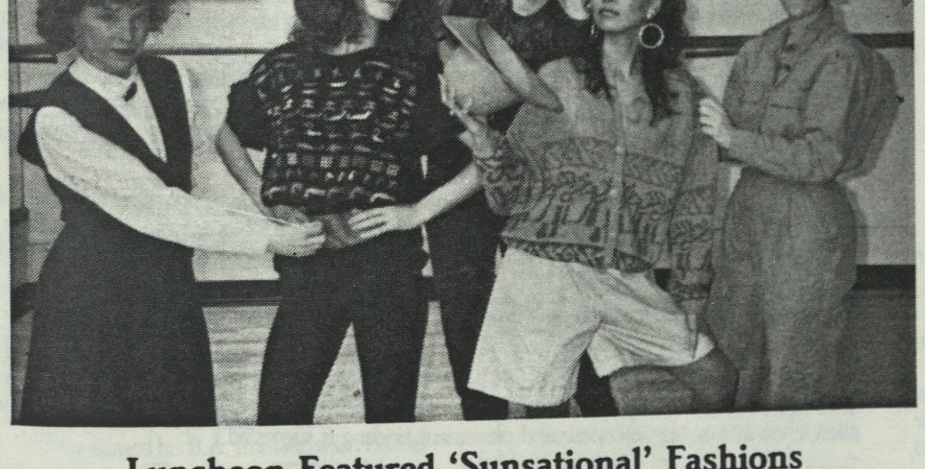
Welch is the author of three previous novels, "Winter in the Blood" (1974), "The Death of Jim Loney" (1979) and "Fools Crow" (1986), and a collection of poems, "Riding the Earthboy 40" (1976). His poems are included in "Carriers of the Dream Wheel," the groundbreaking anthology of Native American poetry, and in "The Norton Anthology of Modern Poetry."

Welch's work has appeared in numerous magazines, including Poetry, The New Yorker, American Poetry Review, New American Review, and Harper's. He has received a National Endowment for the Arts grant, the Pacific Booksellers' Award for Poetry, the Montana Governor's Award, and the Indian Council Fire National Achievement Award. He has served on the literature panel of the National Endowment for the Arts and on the advisory panel for the Center for History of the American Indian at Newberry Library. He is currently a member of PEN International's board of directors.

"Fools Crow," Welch's most recently published novel, received the 1987 Pacific Northwest Booksellers' Award, the American Book Award, and the Los Angeles Times Book Award. The novelist Wallace Stegner called "Fools Crow" "a novel that, in the...variety of its characters, in the scrupulous authenticity of its cultural reconstruction, and in the sheer flow and strength of its prose, is a major contribution to Native American literature."

Welch has taught at the University of Montana and the University of Washington and is currently visiting professor of English at Cornell University. He lives and writes in Missoula, MT.

The reading is a part of the English Department's Writers-on-the-Shore Series.



Luncheon Featured 'Sunsational' Fashions

Holly Boda, assistant director of the SSU Dance Company, center, is shown with students Kelli Dial, left, and Christina Macabenta as they prepared for the March 22 luncheon and fashion show held at the Sheraton Salisbury. Also pictured are Nancy Carragher (right) of Schwinn Fitness & Fashion and Judy West (left) of The Jetty.

The luncheon, titled "Sunsational," was sponsored by the American Cancer Society and was devoted entirely to enlightening area women on the many ways to avoid the risks of skin cancer from the sun.

Boda choreographed these and other students in the fashion show, which featured protective sun and fun wear from Sand In My Shoes and Schwinn Fitness & Fashion in Salisbury and The Jetty in Lewes, DE. In addition to the fashion show, Dr. Thomas N. Berry, Salisbury dermatologist, and Christy Merritt, owner of Renaissance, offered prevention tips and complimentary skin care samples.

McBrien Presents Parenting Program

Dr. Robert J. McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development, presented a program on positive parenting skills for raising non-addicted children at the regional conference of the North American Society of Adlerian Psychology in Orlando, FL.

"Across the nation parents are concerned with the reality of addictions in our society," said McBrien. In discussing the variety of addictions young people develop, McBrien does not limit his concern to alcoholism or drug addiction. Included in his list of addictions are foods, relationships, work, money and video games. "Developing any of the addictions is the result of the interaction of an addictive personality with the substance or an experience," said McBrien. "Addictive personalities are recognized by the attitude 'I want what I want when I want it.'"

The major points in McBrien's program include an understanding of how the personality is formed in the family before age seven and the impact of parenting attitudes and methods on the formation of the personality.

"We can prevent addictiveness in our children through positive parenting methods," said McBrien. McBrien recommends the optimistic theory and practical methods first developed over 70 years ago by Alfred Adler, a giant in the human development movement.

"Growing up in a healthy family atmosphere beginning with the child's first days home from the hospital allows the personality to thrive," said McBrien. "I believe that children will be resistant to addictiveness when they have a healthy personality groomed in the family atmosphere provided by parents using the positive methods taught by Adlerian parent educators. If prevention of addictions in youth is going to be effective, it will be taught in the family, by parents before children reach their seventh birthday."

McBrien is a nationally certified counselor and has provided parent education workshops locally for over 15 years.

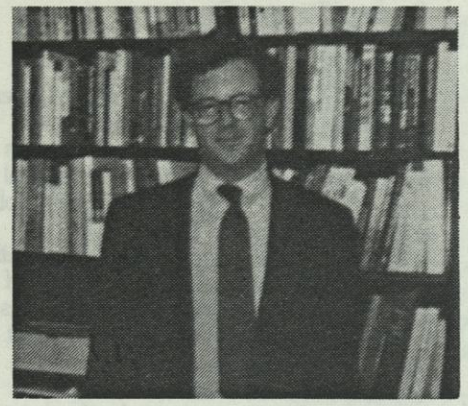
Writers' Conference

The second annual Writers' Conference will be held on Friday, March 30, and Saturday, March 31. Co-sponsored by Del Tech and the Eastern Shore Writers' Association, the conference will include symposium speaker, C. Michael Curtis, senior editor of "The Atlantic Monthly," and 16 other prominent professionals in the field of writing.

Workshop time will be spent with writing specialists that include a playwright, a journalist, a photographer and a folklorist. Additionally, presenters who write for children, for composing computers, for reviewing grammar, for contemporary magazines, for creating poetry and for documenting non-fiction are also included.

Besides all of the writing information, attention is also being given to the packaging of a novel. New York writers' agent, Alice Orr, provides this instruction and other sessions are devoted to writing a letter of query and how to handle professional, literary rejection. If manuscripts are submitted in advance of the workshop, a critique service is also provided.

For more information, contact Linda Forte at Del Tech at (302) 856-5400 or Nan Hayes, president of ESWA, at 543-9019.



Steven Kramer

Cold War End Topic of Lecture

Steven Kramer, visiting professor with the Government Department at Georgetown University and professorial lecturer at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, lectures on "The End of the Cold War" on Wednesday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and open to the public.

Kramer is now teaching comparative Western European politics at Georgetown, including a colloquium on recent developments in Europe. He spent the summer of 1989 as a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars writing on the future of Europe in a post cold-war era.

He holds degrees from Brandeis and Princeton and before going to Georgetown was associate professor of history at the University of New Mexico. He has served in the Latin American Policy Planning Office of the State Department. The State Department has sent him both to Europe and to several Central American countries.

In 1987 he was elected to the Council on Foreign Relations. He ran for congress in New Mexico.

So far this year he has already been to Europe and has written op-ed pieces for the Los Angeles Times and the Chicago Tribune. His most recent book is titled "Socialism in Western Europe" (Westview Press, 1984).

Besides having been a State Department Fellow in Policy Planning, he spent a year at the Department of State in the Bureau of Intelligence and Research.

For more information on Kramer's lecture or other University events call 543-6100.

Dr. Cain Hope Felder

Blacks in Bible Subject of Lecture

Dr. Cain Hope Felder, professor of New Testament languages and literature and editor of the Journal of Religious Thought at The Howard University School of Divinity, lectures on "The Black Presence in the Bible" on Monday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Sponsored by the African American Historical and Philosophical Society and the SSU Office of Minority Affairs, Felder's presentation is free and open to the public.

Felder has been researching the presence of blacks in the Bible for over 15 years. His research has culminated in the publishing of his current book, "Troubling Biblical Waters: Race, Class and Family," which is entering its fifth printing. His book is available in the Book Rack at the University Center and is the April selection of the African American Philosophical Society.

Two main themes run through Felder's book. One is the story of important black men and women in the Bible, the other is the relevance of the Bible to black churches and families today. As a theology and divinity student at Columbia University in New York and Oxford University in England, Felder would ask his professors about the black presence in the Bible.

"I got only two answers," he said. "'We don't know' or 'That's not important.' I decided to find out for myself."

Beginning with a thorough indictment of Eurocentric biblical precepts that historically have misrepresented African and African-Americans involvement in the development of Christianity, he analyzes at length and in depth the racial motifs and social and class stratifications presented in biblical narratives. In addition, Felder devotes a chapter focusing on women in leadership roles, regardless of race.

Felder earned his B.A. from Howard University, Diploma of Theology from Oxford University, Master's of Divinity at Union Theological Seminary (New York) and Master's of Philosophy and Ph.D. from Columbia University. He has published numerous articles, reviews and papers throughout his career.

ZTA Busy

Zeta Tau Alpha's newest pledges are Lisa Trelease, Reneé Riccardi and Suzanne Wiekert.

The chapter traveled to Annapolis for a one-day regional conference on February 24 which included workshops, a buffet lunch, singing contests and awards. The alumna group coached by Salisbury's Zetas won first place in the alumnae singing contest and the University of Maryland Zetas won the collegiate contest.

Advisor Harriette Schmick of Salisbury was recognized for her 30th year of Zeta membership and will be receiving her honor ring this summer at the international convention. The honor ring is the highest award a member can receive and is only awarded after many years of dedicated service to the fraternity.

The annual spring banquet was held at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City on March 3. There was plenty of food and dancing, as well as awards. Several members were recognized for having a GPA at or above a 3.0 and two were recognized for having a 4.0.

ZTA's future plans include the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon on April 1, a social with the brothers of Pi Lamda Phi and a social with the brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Several sisters will be assisting with the Special Olympics here April 21, as well as participating in Greek Week, Spring Fling Week and Derby Days. A booth is planned for Wellness Day on May 14 with information on eating disorders and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

Seldomridge Presentation

Lisa Seldomridge, a nursing faculty member, spoke recently to four second grade classes at Westside Primary School in Quantico.

The classes of Pat McKenzie, Gloria Carrigan, Darlene Nobles and Patricia Fletcher heard the presentation "Your Heart and How it Works" which focused on basic anatomy and physiology. The children had their pulse rate measured by pulse oximetry and experimented to determine the effects of exercise on their pulse rates. Each had the opportunity to use a stethoscope.

Over 80 students participated in this enrichment activity. Seldomridge is a member of the SSU Speakers Bureau.

Rembrandt, Matisse At National Gallery

The University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. on Wednesday, April 18.

Sign up begins on April 5 for full-time students and April 9 for part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests. The cost is $8 for full-time students and $10 for all others. Sign up is at the information desk and is on a strict first come basis. The bus departs from the Dogwood Entrance of the University Center at 8 a.m. and returns to the same location at approximately 6:30 p.m.

The two featured exhibits at the National Gallery are "Rembrandt's Landscapes: Drawings and Prints" and "Matisse in Morocco The Paintings and Drawings 1912-1913." The Rembrandt exhibit consists of 96 works and is the first major exhibition devoted to Rembrandt's landscapes drawings and prints and is only at the National Gallery.

The Matisse exhibit is the most comprehensive ever to focus on the works of Henri Matisse during his visits to Morocco in 1912-1913. His subjects were the landscapes and gardens Tangier, still lifes; and the people of Morocco and these motifs were to inspire his work for the remainder of his career. Twelve of the 23 paintings on view have never been exhibited in the U.S. and many of the 45 drawings were discovered during the research for the exhibition.

For more information call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Cashman To Speak At Breakfast Lecture

Dr. Greg Cashman, assistant professor of political science, analyzes the recent developments in Eastern Europe in the first of a special breakfast lecture series sponsored by the Alumni Association. The program will be held Thursday, April 5, at 7:30 a.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center.

Cashman will discuss the tremendous changes in Soviet domestic and foreign policies and their impact of the revolutionary changes in Eastern Europe today. He will also explore the implications of those changes on the United States.

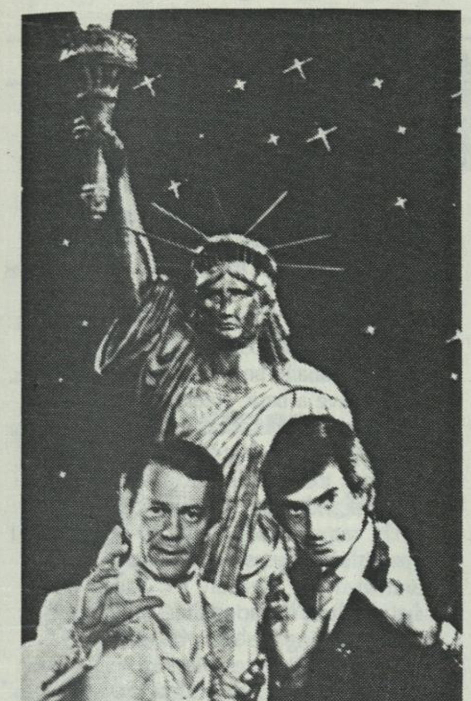
Alumni who would like to attend the breakfast and lecture should send a check for $7 to the SSU Alumni Association, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801, or call 543-6042. The reservation deadline is April 3.

Freshman Survey Results Available

A copy of the results from the freshman survey conducted in September is available on request at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library.

The survey provides information about the characteristics of the 1989 freshman class including their views on current social issues and probable careers. The aggregated responses from a group of public four-year colleges and universities which also administered the survey are available for comparative purposes, as well.

Any questions about the survey should be directed to Linda Cashman, director of institutional research, 543-6025.



Renowned Magician Performs Here in April

Renowned illusionist Andre Kole, considered to be one of the world's great magical entertainers and illusion inventors, will perform at Salisbury State on Monday, April 2, and Tuesday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Open to the University community and the general public, the show's sponsor is Campus Crusade for Christ.

During the colorful full-stage production called the "Magical Spectacular," Kole combines his performing skill with an extensive background as a psychic investigator and inventor of magical effects. The production includes Houdini-like escapes, people materializing and dematerializing, a first-hand investigation of the truth behind communication with the dead and other psychic phenomena such as the Bermuda Triangle mystery.

In addition to holding the highest award from the Academy of Magical Arts in Hollywood presented to him in 1982, Kole is a creative consultant for David Copperfield and Doug Henning, two of the most popularly known magicians in the world today. Since consulting with Copperfield in his famous television disappearance of the Statue of Liberty illusion, Kole has added a similar feat to his own live stage show. For this illusion, Kole makes a 10-foot replica of the Statue of Liberty, weighing several hundred pounds, disappear in slow motion.

Copperfield has called Kole's Statue of Liberty creation "one of the most remarkable illusions ever attempted on stage, anywhere in the world." Added Copperfield, "I don't know of anyone else who would attempt such a feat. Don't miss it."

Tickets for Kole's two-hour stage show are $5 each for University students and $6 for the general public. Tickets may be obtained in advance from Homer Austin (Math Sciences Department, Room 134, Power Professional, 543-6468) or Ed Senkbeil (Chemistry Department, Room 377-A, Devilbiss Hall, 543-6455). Tickets will also be available in the Ruth Powell Dining Hall, in the University Center and at the door on the days of the performances.

'Phantom' Bus Trip

The University Center is sponsoring a theatre trip to New York's Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, May 9, to see "Phantom of the Opera."

The bus departs the Dogwood Entrance of the University Center at 12:30 p.m. and returns to the same location at approximately 4 a.m. There will no stops either going or returning. Time for dinner "on your own" before the 8 p.m. curtain is planned. The bus leaves New York immediately following the performance. Seats are limited and sign up is on a first come basis.

Bus trip and theatre ticket cost for full-time SSU students is $20; for part-time students, faculty, staff, alumni and guests the cost is $30.

Sign up at the University Center information desk (beginning April 16 for full-time students, April 19 for everyone else). "The Phantom of the Opera" is a Tony Award-winning musical adapted from Gaston Leroux's novel, set in Paris in the 1880s, about a deformed man who falls in love with an opera singer. The book is by Richard Stilgoe and Andrew Lloyd Webber with lyrics by Charles Hart, with additional lyrics by Stilgoe. It is directed by Harold Prince.

an Adoptive Family" at the 1990 Mid-Winter Convention of the Divisions of Psychotherapy, Psychologists in Independent Practice and Family Psychology of the American Psychological Association in Palm Springs, CA. She has been awarded $400.

Horne, professor of English in the Fulton School, is preparing a 425-page manuscript, "Making a Heaven of Hell," a book-length critical study of marriage poetry in Great Britain (1650-1800), for submission to the University of Georgia Press. He has been awarded $300 to help pay the final production costs.

An award of $200 has been made to Kane, a professor of philosophy in the Fulton School, to assist with expenses incurred while attending the American Philosophical Association Convention in Atlanta.

Karna, an assistant professor of music in the Fulton School, has been awarded $300 as he participates in the American Choral Directors Association Eastern Division Convention in Washington, D.C.

Lackie, director of retention and special programs, will attend the 1989-1990 conference on the Freshman Year Experience. He will be co-presentor of a presentation on a comprehensive and organized effort to orient new students to SSU. He has been awarded $250.

Malone, an assistant professor of computer science in the Henson School, will participate in a technical computer science symposium to be held in Washington, D.C. She has been awarded $200.

Skeeter, an instructor of geography in the Henson School, will receive a grant for $400 to participate in the 1990 annual meeting of the Association of American Geographers in Toronto, Canada.

Thomas, an associate professor of geography in the Henson School, will also participate in the 86th meeting of the Association of American Geographers in Toronto. He is also developing a series of slides, videos and narratives on the changing character of small towns, rural landscape and land use on the lower Eastern Shore. He has received a grant of $300 in support of these requests.

Waters, an associate professor or English in the Fulton School, will attend the Associated Writing Program's annual conference in Denver, CO and will participate in the Pedagogy Forum at the conference. He will receive $200 to help with expenses.

Finally, White, an assistant professor of psychology in the Fulton School, will attend the 1989-90 conference on the Freshmen Year Experience, and will be co-presentor with Lackie on a comprehensive and organized effort to orient new students to SSU. He will receive an award of $250.

According to Bob Gearhart, executive director of the Foundation, $10,000 will be given to faculty at the University for deserving activities and projects during the 1989-90 fiscal year.

"The nature of work has changed," said Bosserman, a sociology professor at SSU who collaborated with John Robinson of the University of Maryland College Park on a 1984 national study on how Americans use their time. "We are now a service economy."

The service industry, from insurance companies to the government bureaucracy to corporations' bureaucratic structure to higher education, now constitutes 70 percent of the entire workforce. That restructuring has been at the expense of the manufacturing industry as well as primary sector jobs such as farming, mining and forestry.

And to add irony to this dramatic change in the character of the U.S. marketplace, farm production continues to escalate while the numbers farming dwindles and many farmers must supplement their incomes with jobs in the service sector.

As the types of jobs Americans are performing has changed significantly in the last half century, so too have people's relationships to those jobs.

"Work time on the average has not gone down to the degree sociologists thought it would 20 years ago," said Bosserman, "but it has gone down." Today's average work week is 35.6 hours. Bosserman is quick to point out, however, that today's Young Upwardly Mobile Professional spends enormous hours on the job. The 35.6 figure is the mean for all workers.

"There is no evidence that the work week is actually increasing," said Bosserman.

Along with an ever declining number of hours that Americans spend in paid employment, non-paid work and leisure time is increasing.

For example, Bosserman says, the average life span for a woman in this era is 81 years. "During the waking hours in her lifetime, she will spend only 18 percent of her time in a paid job. The balance of her time will be free from paid work," that unpaid work encompassing house care, child care and volunteer work in addition to recreational activities.

And fewer and fewer individuals are spending all of their adult lives on the job. People are retiring earlier, the average at 62 today, according to Bosserman, and that figure continues to drop.

Bosserman cites several reasons for earlier retirement. "First, there is a certain segment of the population which has the resources to retire early. Many in the older population are quite well off.

"But for many others," said Bosserman, "paid work today is very dissatisfying and people want to get out of it as fast as they can. The growth of bureaucracy has made work increasingly onerous. In 1900, for example, there were 100 workers per supervisor in the workplace. Today, it's seven workers per supervisor. People feel the weight of that enormous bureacracy and want to get out from underneath it."

Bosserman feels that due to these factors and others, the American workplace faces dynamics that argue for further changes.

"We are moving more and more toward a non-employment economy," said Bosserman. "Future work patterns will be outside the formal work structure. We are moving to an informal economy, where people will barter their skills, without the exchange of money. You do wome carpentry work for me and I'll do some bookkeeping for you.

"This raises issues such as how are we going to live in this changing economy. The notion of guaranteed yearly income needs to be addressed."

Bosserman's lecture is free and the public is invited. For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

through university, who are introducing or want to introduce literature from other cultures to their students.

The morning session will feature a pair of keynote speakers: Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, for 20 years a high ranking administrator with the National Institute of Mental Health, who will speak on "The Changing Make-Up of the Workplace and Its Implications for Teachers and Administrators"; and Dr. Jean H. Lightfoot, director of the Educational Assistance Program at the Univesity of Illinois at Chicago, who will discuss "Writing Assignments to Introduce Students to Minority Literature: Strategies to Promote Intra- and Inter-group Understanding and Appreciation."

In the afternoon there will be five groups sessions: "Female Voices and Gender Issues in the Classroom"; "Native American Literature"; "African and African-American Literature in the Classroom"; "Cultural Diversity in the Classroom"; and "Multi-cultural Literature in Elementary and Middle Schools."

According to Dr. Connie White, chair of the SSU English Department, the theme for the conference came from area elementary and secondary school teachers.

"In the 1970s the English Department here hosted an annual conference for secondary school teachers," said White. "The English faculty wanted to revive that opportunity to share ideas with our colleagues in the high schools so we went to them and asked what topic would be of universal interest.

"The overwhelming choice was minority literature," said White, "and to our surprise there was enormous interest as well from elementary teachers."

While there was agreement on the title of the topic, there was and is considerable discussion about what that title means.

What is minority literature? Does it include only literature by minorities or about them as well?

Should minority literature be taught as something distinctive or fully integrated with other "good" literature?

How can teachers evaluate materials to choose those with appropriate representation?

How can students whose experience is completely different from that of the minorities be introduced to the literature?

According to White, most of the decisions made about what constitutes good literature have traditionally been made by white males.

"We have a basic premise in the United States," said White, "that we all have a voice. But many voices, while present and articulate, have been traditionally excluded from the published and scholarly reviewed canon.

"The same ideology tends to get reinforced in publishing houses," said White. "Who determined that these are the classics and by what standards? Who set the standards and are we perpetuating the same biases?

"In my own classes I feel an obligation to show what the biases in literature have been." White feels there are other reasons for investigating minority writings beyond the reasons for its exclusion from mainstream literature.

"There are other issues here, too," said White. "Studying literature provides explanations of cultural differences and dilemmas. A lot of prejudice can be alleviated by explaining why cultures are different and the reasons behind those differences.

"Furthermore, studying one's own literary traditions deepens one's sense of identity and the cultural heritage into which we were born. I have strong midwestern roots and it's because of the stories I grew up listening to. Giving minorities the opportunity to study their own literature provides them with a sense of rootedness; the history behind the here and now."

The registration fee for the conference is $20 and includes lunch. To register or for more information call the SSU Department of English at 543-6445.

"It's not the money, it's how happy you are," Joseph Bernard, founder and owner of Wye River Seasonings, told students in The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at Salisbury State University recently. Five years ago at age 30, Bernard took a second mortgage on his house, cashed in his profit sharing from some 13 years in the supermarket business, and set up as a one-man venture in his garage. He parlayed his skills at marketing and love of cooking into a multimillion dollar premium line of food products with an Eastern Shore theme. The largest manufacturer and seller of crab soup in the world, Wye River's roster includes crab seasonings and seven varieties of soup. He's also brought out frozen crab nuggets, a silver queen-corn tortilla chip and a microwave line. Bernard, who was executive-in-residence at the Perdue School for the day, is a 1977 business graduate of SSU. "I made a lot of mistakes," he told classes, "but never the same mistake twice." He encouraged students to become entrepreneurs. "I've had a lot of fun," he said.

Ference at Institute

Dr. Gregory C. Ference of the Department of History has been selected to participate in the 1990 American Association of State Colleges and Universities Japan Studies Institute.

Ference is one of 20 faculty members chosen in a nationwide competition to take part in the program "Incorporating Japanese Studies into the Undergraduate Curriculum." The institute will be held from June 10 - July 7 at San Diego University.

The 28-day program will feature a wide variety of experts in Japanese studies and is designed to provide the participants with a greater understanding of the major historical, social and economic conditions, trends and issues concerning Japanese civilization.

The aim of the program is for the participants to return to their respective schools using their acquired knowledge to strengthen and to add an international dimension to the curriculum in addition to increasing understanding and awareness of Japanese civilization within the local community at large.

Sports Medicine Program Is Among Region's Best

Injuries.

Coaches worry about them.

Players hope to avoid them.

Athletic trainers deal with them.

And fortunately for the student-athletes at Salisbury State, the training staff, under the guidance of head trainer Pat Lamboni, is among the best anywhere in dealing with those inevitable injuries that plague collegiate athletes.

"During the busiest season, we will do 100 to 120 treatments a day." said Lamboni.

And how has Lamboni, the only full-time trainer on staff, learned to cope with the plethora of demands made upon the training staff at SSU. Simple. By utilizing the very resource that every college and university revolves around—students.

As a matter of fact, Lamboni's small platoon of trainers, which has grown from three per semester when the program started in 1972 to about 15 per semester currently, is now recognized throughout the collegiate ranks as one of the best.

"Our graduates are definitely well-respected and highly thought of in the athletic training community," said Lamboni. "We currently have over 30 SSU graduates working in the athletic training field throughout the country."

Indeed, Salisbury State alums head the training staffs of high schools up and down the East Coast, from New Jersey to Baltimore to Virginia Beach, VA. Former Salisbury trainers now also dot the staffs of collegiate programs at Penn State, Georgetown, LSU, Mississippi State, Bowie State, Austin Peay and Frostburg State, to name but a few. The head trainers of the Indianapolis Colts and Baltimore Blast also have Salisbury State connections.

How does Lamboni - himself a '78 graduate of SSU - explain the success of the athletic training, or sports medicine (the term of the '90s), program at Salisbury State?

"What we do is supplement the academic coursework—SSU offers five courses that comprise the athletic training track within its physical education major—with hands-on experience," said Lamboni. "We have 30 students in the sports medicine program right now, and they all progress through the system gaining greater responsibility each year. By the time they become seniors, they are required to do a two-semester internship at a local high

1989 Star Search Comedy Grand Champion To Appear

Mike Saccone, the 1989 Star Search Comedy Grand Champion, will be appearing on Saturday, April 7, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room.

"The Italian kid" from Kansas City has come a long way from playing cow bars. In 1984 he moved to Philadelphia and instantly became a regular at two of the city's most renown clubs: The Comedy Works and The Comedy Factory Outlet. After making his presence felt in Philadelphia, he made the big move to New York City where his casual approach to comedy set him apart from the others. A barrage of television offers soon followed.

With appearances on ABC's "Comedy Club" and Arts and Entertainment Network's "Good Times Cafe" under his belt, Saccone decided to venture west for the Star Search 1989 competition in Los Angeles. The pattern of success continued and he was crowned 1989 Star Search Comedy Grand Champion.

He has been selected to showcase for the National Association of Campus Activities East Coast Coffeehouse and Wisconsin regional conventions. From America's heartland to both coasts, his unique brand of humor has been embraced by all. Don't miss your chance to see him live!

New Chancellor Named to University of Maryland System

The University of Maryland System Board of Regents has approved the appointment of Dr. Donald N. Langenberg as chancellor of the University System. Langenberg is currently chancellor of the University of Illinois at Chicago. His appointment is effective July 1.

As chancellor of The University of Maryland System, Langenberg will be the chief executive officer of an institution comprising 11 campuses and four major research and service components.

As chancellor of the University of Illinois at Chicago since 1983, Langenberg leads a campus of some 24,500 students and more than 2,000 full-time faculty members. The institution awards degrees through the doctoral and first-professional levels and comprises schools of dentistry, medicine and pharmacy. Among its nationally recognized programs are those in engineering and philosophy.

Langenberg successfully led the administrative consolidation of the Chicago campus with the medical center, two locations separated by a mile of residential and business development. He has also encouraged the institution to develop partnerships with the city of Chicago, most notably with inner city schools.

Before joining the Chicago campus, Langenberg served as deputy director and acting director of the National Science Foundation from 1980 to 1982.

Prior to his tenure at the National Science Foundation, he served in various positions at the University of Pennsylvania.

Langenberg has served on numerous boards and commissions. Currently, he is president of the American Assocation for the Advancement of Science and chairman-elect of the executive

Raku Pottery Workshop Upcoming

Jerry L. Caplan, who is a master in the Oriental art of raku pottery, will be in residence at SSU April 9-11. Caplan, whose works are displayed in private and public collections across the country, will give a two-day workshop for SSU students and area artists, to which the public is invited to observe.

"Raku is a 16th century Oriental ceramics technique first used for small ceremonial teabowls and distinguished by its hand-formed character and texture. Now used in a wider range of ceramics pieces, its informal simplicity is especially appealing to today's artists and public," said Marie Tator Quillen, associate professor of art at SSU.

On Monday, April 9, from 9-11 a.m., Caplan will give a slide presentation and demonstration of his "smokeless raku" technique.That afternoon from 1:15-3:15 p.m., he will supervise a hands-on workshop for participants.

A day is required for the clay to dry so the workshop will reconvene on Wednesday, April 11, from 9 a.m. - noon, when he will then show students how to fire their works using his smokeless technique.

In between, on Tuesday, April 10, Caplan will be present for SSU's "almost annual faculty pot party" where faculty without an art background are invited to get down and dirty with clay, said Quillen, who oversees the ceramics program. Students supervise the work and are evaluated on how well they can convey knowledge of the craft. The faculty pot party is from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

All programs will be conducted in the University's ceramics studio, room 101 of Potomac Hall.

Those wishing to observe Caplan's program or know more about the "pot party" should contact the Art Department at 543-6270. Space is limited.

Black Athlete Teleconference April 18

"The Black Athlete - Winners or Losers in Academia?," a live satellite teleconference, will be presented on Wednesday, April 18, at 12:45 p.m. - 3 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B of the University Center.

The event will take an insightful look at the myths and realities of the plight of the black college athlete.

Participants in the event will include some of the nation's foremost authorities, practitioners, participants and observers from the world of academics and athletics. Participants include: Arthur Ashe, a former tennis star; Dr. Harry Edwards, founder of the Sports Sociology Field at the University of California at Berkeley; Vivian Stringer, head women's basketball coach at the University of Iowa; James Brown moderator for CBS Sports; and many others.

Sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs and the Department of Sociology, the teleconference is free and open to the public. In addition, classes from the respective academic departments will be attending.

For more information call 543-4503.

Blacks in Bible Subject of Lecture

Dr. Cain Hope Felder, professor of New Testament languages and literature and editor of the Journal of Religious Thought at The Howard University School of Divinity, lectures on "The Black Presence in the Bible" on Monday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Sponsored by the African American Historical and Philosophical Society and the SSU Office of Minority Affairs, Felder's presentation is free and open to the public.

Felder earned his B.A. from Howard University, Diploma of Theology from Oxford University, Master's of Divinity at Union Theological Seminary (New York) and Master's of Philosophy and Ph.D. from Columbia University. He has published numerous articles, reviews and papers throughout his career.

For more information call 548-4503.

Rembrandt, Matisse At National Gallery

The University Center is sponsoring a bus trip to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. on Wednesday, April 18.

Sign up begins on April 5 for full-time students and April 9 for part-time students, staff, faculty, alumni and guests. The cost is $8 for full-time students and $10 for all others. Sign up is at the information desk and is on a strict first come basis. The bus departs from the Dogwood Entrance of the University Center at 8 a.m. and returns to the same location at approximately 6:30 p.m.

For more information call the University Center Office at 543-6100.

Freshman Survey Results Available

A copy of the results from the freshman survey conducted in September is available on request at the circulation desk of Blackwell Library.

The survey provides information about the characteristics of the 1989 freshman class including their views on current social issues and probable careers. The aggregated responses from a group of public four-year colleges and universities which also administered the survey are available for comparative purposes, as well.

Any questions about the survey should be directed to Linda Cashman, director of institutional research, 543-6025.

Program Planning

Program planning begins Monday, April 9, for all nursing and pre-nursing majors. All advisors will post a schedule of appointments on their office doors in the Power Professional Building, located on Power Street. Please sign up for an appointment. There will be a sheet outside each faculty advisor's door with dates and times.

On-Campus A.A.

An on-campus Alcoholics Anonymous group has been established in an effort to make A.A. meetings more accessible for students and the campus community and to provide support to young adults, particularly college students, whose issues, concerns and ways of relating to each other may differ from community groups.

The only prerequisite for attending the meeting is a desire to stop drinking or to maintain abstinence or a sincere interest in finding out more about A.A. All meetings are confidential.

Parenti To Discuss Foreign Policy

Dr. Michael Parenti, Distinguished Residence Professor at California State University-Northridge this spring, discusses "The Sword and the Dollar: Myths of U.S. Foreign Policy" on Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center.

Free and open to the public, Parenti's talk is sponsored by the SSU Political Science Club.

Parenti received his Ph.D. in political science from Yale University in 1962.

His books include "The Anti-Communist Impulse", "Trends and Tragedies of American Foreign Policy" and "Democracy For the Few."

His articles have appeared in the Nation, Harvard International Review, New York Times, Los Angeles Times and numerous other publications.

His lecture is also sponsored by the SSU Political Science DDepartment, Sociology Departmment, Communication Arts Department, History Department and History Club.

For more information call (301) 543-6030.

Jane Agar Scholarship

Applications are being accepted for the Jane Agar Scholarship sponsored by the Eastern Shore Business and Professional Women of Accomack and Northampton counties. The scholarship is for an Eastern Shore of Virginia resident and is not necessarily based on financial need but on proven scholastic ability and character. There are three awards to be made in the amount of $500 each. Applications are available in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline is April 6.

Workshop on Reducing Test-Taking Stress

Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development, offers a three-session seminar in April titled, "Reducing Test-Taking Stress."

In the seminar McBrien teaches stress releasing relaxation skills, positive mental rehearsal techniques and the psychology of successful test-taking. Participants learn a self-management program which replaces testing anxiety (or other performance-based anxiety) with self confidence and the ability to think clearly while taking tests.

The seminar begins on Tuesday, April 10, and continues on April 17 and 24. The sessions are from noon - 1 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. Those interested in participating in the seminar should register in the CPPD or call 543-6070.

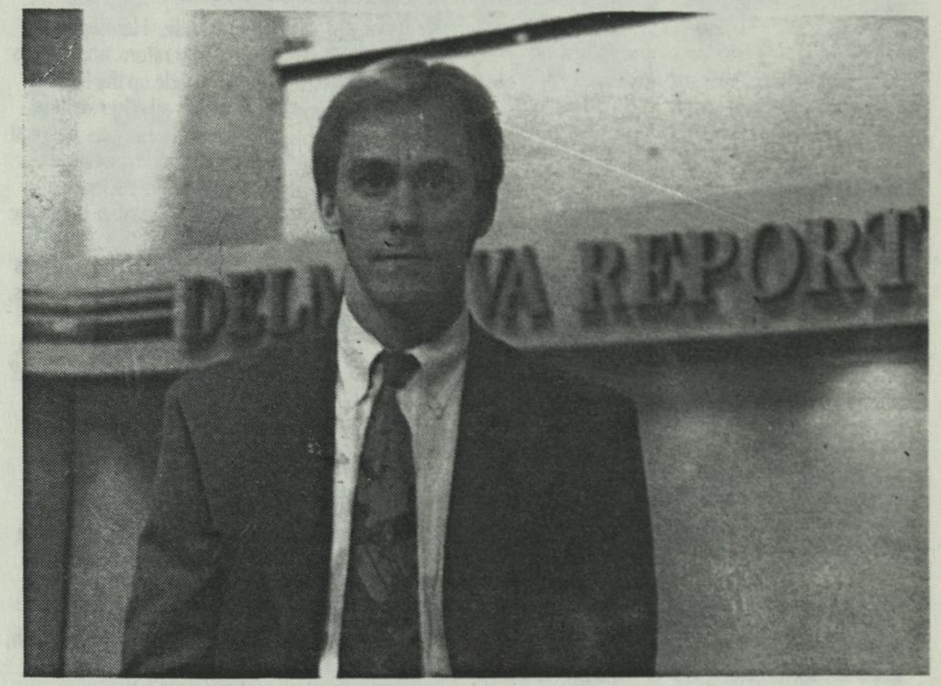
Medical Technology Applications Due

Students who intend to register for upper division medical technology courses are reminded that applications are due in the Department of Medical Technology by May 1.

Those who apply should have reached sophomore standing and are seeking admission effective in the fall of the junior year. Students who have previously declared the medical technology major will be given the application form when they see their individual advisors for program planning.

Others who have not previously declared the major and wish to seek application or information regarding the program should phone 543-6364 or 543-6331 for more information.

Seidel Weathers Career Changes Well



WBOC-TV meterologist Mike Seidel

You've heard the old saw, "If you don't like the weather here on the Eastern Shore, don't worry. It'll change in five minutes." Well, to Mike Seidel you can also apply that same notion to his career field, TV meteorology.

Seidel, meteorologist at WBOC-TV and a Salisbury State graduate, is just 33, yet has already experienced a tumultuous career. But for the Salisbury native, this a job field he's been interested in since grade school.

He attended the Campus Elementary School at Salisbury State through the fifth grade, and sixth grade at North Salisbury Elementary. His secondary education was at Wicomico Junior and Senior High Schools. At Wi-Hi he became the first student in the county in 17 years to graduate with a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

At Salisbury State there were more honors including Who's Who status and acceptance into a pair of prestigious honor societies, Phi Kappa Phi and Omicron Delta Kappa. In 1979, the year he graduated, he was cited as one of the Geography and Regional Planning Department's top students with an award at Honors Convocation. He got all A's in his geography courses.

"No question, he was one of our top students," said Dr. Cal Thomas, chair of the department.

Then it was on to Pennsylvania State University, and one of the top meteorology programs in the country, where his academic accomplishments earned him a graduate assistantship. In 1983 he finished his coursework, gaining a Master of Science, and set out in search of full-time television employment. But he went job hunting with more than a pair of academic degrees; Seidel had already logged 10 years of on-air radio and TV experience.

He began his broadcasting career at age 16 for WJDY, answering request lines. That led to a job as a part-time announcer on the station. Other stops along the way, all during the summer between school sessions, included WDMV in Pocomoke City, WSUX in Seaford and WKHI in Ocean City (from 1978-83).

His first crack at the visual electronic medium came in summer 1980 when WMDT-TV hired him to do weather and sports on the weekends.

"It was a classic act," said Seidel rolling his eyes. "I was awful. I can still use improvement, but then...I was pretty bad." He admittedly was coping with the "radical change from going from radio to television. In radio, you walk off the beach and into the studio, without a thought given to your appearance. You can't do that on television," he laughed.

As any fledgling TV type will tell you, in the overcrowded field of broadcast journalism just getting your mug in front of the camera is exceedingly difficult. To improve you've got to get air time. Seidel freely admits to being lucky before he was good.

When the need for a new meteorologist at WMDT popped open in both the summer of '81 and '82 Seidel was tabbed as the full-time fill-in, despite his personal panning of his rookie performance there. Blessed with a resume glistening not only with a sparkling academic record but with that all-important on-air experience, Seidel landed a job as the No. 2 meteorologist at WYFF in Greenville, SC, just a couple of months after finishing up at Penn State. He was fresh out of college and already with the 36th (out of 212) largest TV market in the U.S. (Delmarva, by comparison, ranks 163rd.)

For the next five years, seven days a week, noon on Monday through Friday and 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. on the weekends, Seidel told Carolinians whether to pack an umbrella or wear a short sleeved shirt.

Then, like a summer thunderstorm that materializes out of nowhere, he was out of a job. Budget cuts. Unemployment. Significant ego rearrangement.

He remained out of work until September of last year when meteorologist Dennis Phillips' departure from WBOC for a Florida station left the long-time ratings news leader in need of a replacement. Seidel was home again.

"This is a great opportunity that WBOC has given me," said Seidel. "I'm the primary meteorologist on the No. 1 station in town, the most watched newscast on Delmarva."

"Mike is experienced and professional in his presentation," said Marilyn Buerkle, news director at WBOC. "He adds depth to our newscast. It's also great to have someone who was born and raised in Salisbury who is such a contributor to the community."

"At WBOC," said Seidel, "I get to work with a bunch of young, energetic individuals who are trying to improve on their craft so they can move up in the field. I'm also excited about being so close to my family." (Dad is Sam Seidel, president of Peninsula Insurance Co. and civic leader, Mom is Lynn, exceedingly interested in community issues herself. Brother Hank is married with three kids. Sister Jenni is married with two kids.)

Home is also Salisbury State, where including elementary school he spent 10 of his formative years. The past two years Seidel has thanked the University for its profound impact on his life by making a pair of $1,000 contributions to the Geography Department. The first of those gifts was made while he was unemployed.

"I am indebted to Salisbury State for the terrific education it gave me," said Seidel. "I attended Penn State on a free ride due to the preparation I received here and because of the support I received from my professors, who wrote letters on my behalf. I wanted to try to give something back to the University in appreciation for all it has given to me."

"It is quite exceptional," said geography professor Thomas of the gifts which will be spent on computer equipment and weather information. "for someone that age, so early in his career, to make contributions of that magnitude. We are very proud of him and his accomplishments."

'Get Hooked on Seafood' Seminar April 9

The Maryland Small Business Development Center in conjunction with The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business is offering a seminar titled "Get Hooked on Seafood Business Management."

The seminar, on Monday, April 9, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center, is designed for those in the seafood industry—retailers, wholesalers, processors and brokers—who are interested in problem solving and market analysis.

The seminar will focus on the increase in seafood consumption in the U.S. and abroad over the past few years, along with the need for information on current trends, cash flow, business assistance and the basic economics of management.

The day-long program opens at 9:15 a.m. with a presentation on the "Status and Potential of Regional Seafood Business Development." Other sessions include: "Analyzing Business Management Assistance Programs: Where Can I Get Help?" 10 a.m.; "Handling a Seasonal Business: Can I Roll With Market Trends?" 10:45 a.m.; "Cash Flow and Its Importance: the Fuel Behind Your Success!" 11:30 a.m.; "How To Tap New Markets: What's Hot and What's Not!" 1:15 p.m.; and problem-solving panel groups on retail, wholesale and processing, 2 p.m.

Sponsors of the event are the Eastern Region Maryland Small Business Development Center, The Perdue School, the University of Maryland Sea Grant Extension Center, the Center for International Business Development at SSU, the European America Business Institute and the Maryland International Trade Division.

The fee for the seminar is $60 which includes lunch. For more information cal Dr. Richard Palmer, the director of the SSU Small Business Institute, at 543-6394.

Deaf Scholarship

Applications are now being taken for the 1990 Maryland State Grange Deaf Scholarship. Applicants must be one of the following: a resident of Maryland; a Maryland high school graduate; or attend a college in Maryland.

Applicants may be either hearing impaired students or students preparing to work with the hearing impaired. Application guidelines and criteria are available in the Financial Aid Office. Deadline in May 1.

D.C. Incentive Grant

Applications are now being taken for a Washington D.C. Student Incentive Grant.

Applicants must be undergraduates who have been D.C. residents for at least 15 consecutive months prior to application, have financial need and are in good academic standing. Deadline is June 29. The Financial Aid Office has a few applications or call (202) 727-3688 in D.C. for additional information.

Welch Reading

Native American novelist James Welch will read from his forthcoming novel, "Indian Lawyer," in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on Thursday, April 12, at 8 p.m. The event is free and the public is welcome.

"James Welch is, along with Leslie Silko, N. Scott Momaday and Louise Erdrich, one of our most important Native American voices. To say that is also to say he's among the finest novelists currently writing," said Jon Davis, visiting professor of English at SSU.

Welch is the author of three previous novels, "Winter in the Blood" (1974), "The Death of Jim Loney" (1979) and "Fools Crow" (1986), and a collection of poems, "Riding the Earthboy 40" (1976). His poems are included in "Carriers of the Dream Wheel," the groundbreaking anthology of Native American poetry, and in "The Norton Anthology of Modern Poetry."

'Phantom' Bus Trip

The University Center is sponsoring a theatre trip to New York's Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, May 9, to see "Phantom of the Opera."

The bus departs the Dogwood Entrance of the University Center at 12:30 p.m. and returns to the same location at approximately 4 a.m. There will no stops either going or returning. Time for dinner "on your own" before the 8 p.m. curtain is planned. The bus leaves New York immediately following the performance. Seats are limited and sign up is on a first come basis.

Bus trip and theatre ticket cost for full-time SSU students is $20; for part-time students, faculty, staff, alumni and guests the cost is $30.

Sign up at the University Center information desk (beginning April 16 for full-time students, April 19 for everyone else). "The Phantom of the Opera" is a Tony Award-winning musical adapted from Gaston Leroux's novel, set in Paris in the 1880s, about a deformed man who falls in love with an opera singer. The book is by Richard Stilgoe and Andrew Lloyd Webber with lyrics by Charles Hart, with additional lyrics by Stilgoe. It is directed by Harold Prince.

Teacher Scholarships

Residents of Washington, D.C. who are planning to become teachers are eligible for $5,000 annual scholarships for up to four years through the D.C. Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship Program.

Administered by the District of Columbia's Office of Postsecondary Education, Research and Assistance (OPERA), call (202) 727-3688 or (202) 724-4934 for details. Scholarships are available for the 1990-91 academic year.

Minority Literature Conference Here April 7

Shakespeare. Milton. Melville. Hemingway. Faulkner. These giants of literature and others like them have historically made up the literary canon, the standard by which all other writers are judged. This traditional canon has been at the center of the English curriculum of elementary and secondary schools and colleges and universities. Until recently it has also been the focus of most scholarly study.

However, of late many teachers and students alike have been asking questions about biases, intended or otherwise, in restricting literary study to the "classics." What about other writers, especially those who are not white and male? Are there works by females, African-Americans and Native Americans that our second graders, 11th graders and university students should be studying?

These and other related questions will be addressed at the Minority Literature Conference on Saturday, April 7, from 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The conference, sponsored by the SSU Department of English, is designed for English, language arts or other teachers, kindergarten through university, who are introducing or want to introduce literature from other cultures to their students.

The registration fee for the conference is $20 and includes lunch. To register or for more information call the SSU Department of English at 543-6445.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Mathematical Sciences Positions

The Department of Mathematical Sciences expects to have openings for the fall semester. A strong commitment to the mathematical sciences point of view (a blending of pure and applied mathematics, statistics and computer science) and good teaching recommendations are essential. Candidates must be able to teach students with diverse backgrounds (this includes the ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing). Rank commensurate with credentials and experience. A Ph.D. in one of the mathematical sciences is required for tenure-track position. Those interested in a temporary or visiting position are also invited to apply. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization authorization to accept employment in this country.

Initial screening will be based on each applicant's academic background and teaching experience supported by recommendations. Final selection will be made on the basis of the foregoing, a personal interview, and a formal lecture on a topic of the candidate's choice. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, and three letters of recommendation to: Search Committee, Department of Mathematical Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening of applications will begin on April 4 and continue until all positions are filled. Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Women, minorities and the disabled are encouraged to apply.

Bosserman on the Changing Workplace

Fifty years ago Americans made things, things you could touch and feel—cars, cantaloupes, crayons—tangible things. Today that's the exception rather than the rule.

The U.S. is now a nation of service industries. The impact that change has had on the collective psyche of the American worker and what the future holds for the nation's workforce is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Phillip Bosserman on Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"Beyond Employment: But Will the 21st Century Be a Society of Leisure" is the title of Bosserman's presentation, sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee and part of the spring lecture series, "Culture of Work." How work has changed in the past 50 years will be Bosserman's major thrust.

Brown Addresses Cancer Support Group

Voncelia Brown, R.N., M.S., a member of the faculty of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, recently addressed the cancer support group at Nanticoke Memorial Hospital in Seaford, DE. Her lecture was titled "Sexuality and Chronic Illness."

Lewis Named To Commission

Dr. John Lewis, professor of finance in the Perdue School of Business, was recently named to the Middle States Commission on Higher Education Program Review Team to West Chester University, located in Pennsylvania.

Lewis, who has served on Middle States review teams on two other occasions, will serve as a program evaluator of the Finance Department in the School of Business and Public Affairs at West Chester.

The review visit is scheduled for April 1-3.

The Artist in Business

The business of art: promotion, marketing, tax considerations, commissions, and dealing with individual buyers and galleries. These often can be confusing and problematic for artists of all types.

Libby Platus, a sculptor, will discuss the intricacies of the business of art during a one-day seminar on Thursday, April 26, from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. during the Ward World Championship Wildfowl Carving Competition weekend at the Ocean Inn, 48th Street and Coastal Highway, in Ocean City.

Platus' seminar will be an intensive workshop devoted to the business of selling artwork with an emphasis on marketing. The following areas will be included: promotion, marketing, planning, private and corporate sales presentations, pricing, contracts, record keeping, budget, taxes and regulation.

For more information on the seminar and fees, contract Christine Brown, curator of education, the Ward Foundation, 655 S. Salisbury Blvd., Salisbury, MD 21801, 742-4988.

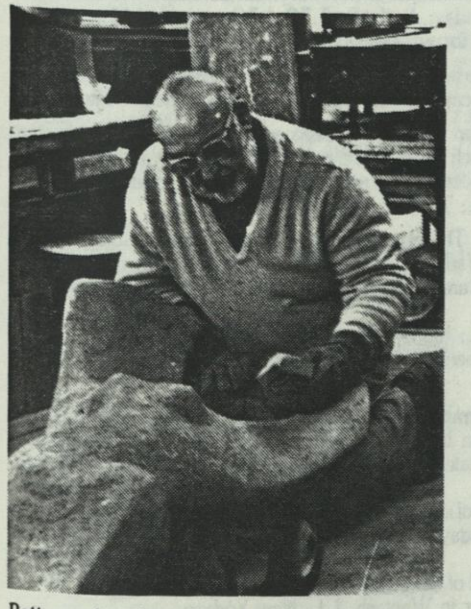
Calling All Producers!

Want to get more involved with activities on SSU campus? Are you interested in working with entertainers and agents? Do you like finding new ideas and themes for programs? The the Program Board is looking for you.

The Salisbury State Program Board is now accepting applications for all officers and chairperson positions for the 1990-91 academic year.

SSPB is the student operated and funded organization that creates, produces, promotes and advertises many of the events you see on campus including: concerts, films, trips, hypnotists, comedians, Homecoming, Spring Fling, etc. The Program Board is composed of seven committees. These committees are: comedy/concerts, films, recreation and travel, spotlight club, public relations, multicultural and variety showcase. Whatever your interests are, there's a place for you with SSPB.

Applications are available through April 6 at the Dean of Students Office, Student Activities Office, SSPB Office, Registrar's Office and the University Center Information Desk. Applications are due in the Student Activities Office, 2nd floor, University Center, by 4 p.m. on Friday, April 6. For more information call 543-6197 or 543-6125.



Potter and sculptor Jerry L. Caplan, artist in residence April 9-11, will conduct a two-day workshop on Oriental raku pottery techniques here. For details of his program see page two or call 543-6270.

Professor/Student Art Exhibit April 9

The Atrium Gallery, next to the book store in the University Center, opens its second annual Professor/Student Art Exhibit on Monday, April 9.

This year Dr. Kent Kimmel, who teaches two- and three-dimensional design, color theory and a variety of print making techniques at SSU, along with many of his students will exhibit from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily. The exhibit, which closes May 1, is free and open to the public.

Kimmel received his B.F.A. from Miami (OH) University and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Maryland College Park. He was chair of the SSU Art Department from 1973 to 1980. His personal current artisitc endeavors are in the medium of stained glass. He does all original designs with special attention to color and texture. He takes into consideration how these things are affected by both natural and artifical light. He has several pieces in private collections, the most recent a memorial window designed for St. John's Methodist Church in Fruitland, MD.

Thirty students will also take part in the exhibit. All either were or are now enrolled in Kimmel's classes. Student works to be exhibited consist of examples from classes in design, color theory and printmaking. Items will include etchings, silkscreens, reliefs and color designs as well as three-dimensional creations from a wide variety of materials.

A reception for Kimmel and his students will take place on April 19 in the Atrium Gallery. Interested persons are invited to attend.

In addition to the Atrium Gallery Show, the SSU Gallery in Blackwell Library will present a print show, "People at Work," featuring 41 prints, drawings and watercolors from the Depression era. For more information about these two exhibits call either the University Center, 543-6100, or the SSU Gallery, 543-6271.

P.E. Symposium April 19

A symposium on physical education and fitness will be presented in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Thursday, April 19, from 1-3 p.m.

Sponsored by the Department of Physical Education and Athletics at SSU, keynote speakers are Drs. Connie Koenig-McIntyre and Tom McIntyre, wife and husband, both associate professors of physical education at the State University College at Brockport (NY) and noted scholars in their field.

"The symposium is an excellent opportunity for the campus and community to be updated on recent developments in physical education," said Dr. William Lide, chair of the Physical Education Department.

"It is vital that we expose our students and staff to diverse topics and to various experts like the McIntyres," said Lide. "Furthermore, the symposium exemplifies our department's commitment to a well-rounded program."

Tom McIntyre, who was a Visiting Fellow in the Department of Sociology at Harvard University in 1983-84, will discuss "Physical Education and Sport: a Global Perspective."

His book, "Sport Sociology: Contemporary Themes," co-authored with A. Yiannakis, is now in its third edition. He has studied sport in Western and Eastern Europe countries extensively.

In 1988 his paper, "Perestroika, Glasnost and the Structure of Elite Soviet Sport," was presented at the annual convention of the American Political Scientists' Association in Washington, D.C.

He organized and presided over a session titled "Sport, Values and Heroes" at the ninth annual meeting of the North American Society for the Sociology of Sport in Cincinnati in 1988. Koening-McIntyre, chair of her department from 1986-89, will discuss "Problems With Fitness in Elementary Children."

Also frequently published, she co-authored "Methods and Materials for Secondary School Physical Education" with Charles Bucher in 1961. The sixth edition of that text was printed in 1983.

Some of the most recent papers she has presented include: "Instructional Strategies to Increase Academic Learning Time," at the physical education curriculum section meeting of the Eastern District Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in Philadelphia; and "Evaluating Teacher Effectiveness," at the higher education section meeting of the New York State Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in Syracuse.

She has conducted numerous workshops on trends in elementary and secondary physical education.

Admission to the symposium is free and the public is invited. For more information call the SSU Physical Education Department at 543-6340.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The SSU men's lacrosse team will be coming off a 10-day break in the schedule when it hosts Guilford in a 1 p.m. game on Saturday. Coach Jim Berkman's squad is 5-2 at the season's midway point, but will have just one other home game following the Guilford encounter. The Gulls close out the regular season with four games on the road. Junior attackmen Rick Berkman and Eric Ungleich lead a group of six Sea Gulls who have at least 20 points through the team's first seven games. As a team, SSU has outscored opponents, 110-49, and holds a 60-18 advantage in first-half goals.

The Lady Gulls will be playing their third game in five days when they visit Washington College in a 4 p.m. game on Thursday. Coach Dawn Chamberlin's team was 3-3 through Sunday's action, and will have an eight-day layoff before returning to action against St. Mary's on April 13. Team co-captains Kim Marlatt and Andie Phillips continue to lead the scoring attack with 25 and 22 points, respectively, through last Sunday. The women's softball team had their three-game winning streak temporarily halted by last weekend's rain, which washed out doubleheaders on both Friday and Saturday. Following yesterday's scheduled doubleheader against Christopher Newport, the Lady Gulls don't play at home again until April 16, when they host Stockton State for two games. Junior LF Shari Rupertus currently leads the team in hitting with a very healthy .526 average, while 1B Saundra Miller is batting .428 and has seven runs scored.

Coach Deane Deshon's diamondmen look to change their fortunes over the next 10 days as the 3-11 Gulls play six of their next seven games on home turf. SSU hosts Virginia Wesleyan this Saturday at 1 p.m., then welcomes St. Mary's on Sunday at 1 p.m. Senior Mike Shockley's base-running prowess has been one of the team's bright spots through the first-half of the season as the speedy outfielder was 21 of 21 in stolen-bases before finally being caught in the first-inning of the team's game at Ferrum on March 28.

Freshman George Wines and sophomore Jim Ireton were among the leading individual performers on the men's tennis team's recent road trip through the South. Both players won three of four singles matches on the five-day trip. The SSU men host Frostburg State at 11 a.m. this Saturday while the Lady Gulls return to action on Monday at home against Washington College.

Philosophy's Spring Symposium Saturday

"The opportunity to explore in a thoughtful, philosophical way a topic which often fires passions at the expense of reason," is how Dr. Jerry Miller of the Philosophy Department describes this year's philosophical Spring Symposium, to be held on Saturday, April 7, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Caruthers 118.

"Abortion: a Philosophical Conversation" is the topic, and "promises to be a fitting culmination of our first decade" of lively and provocative symposia, Miller continued.

Sponsored by the student Philosophical Society and the Philosophy Department, the subject was selected by students in the society, "...insisted on by them!" Miller noted. The day will be devoted to discussion by students, SSU faculty and two distinguished visiting professors with opposing views on the issue.

Despite philosophical differences, the two guests "have profound respect for each other, and have earned the respect of those who have read and listened to them," Miller said.

Dr. Sidney Callahan, professor of psychology and associate director of the Institute of Ethics at Mercy College in New York, is author of "Abortion: Understanding Differences" and "Illusion of Eve: Modern Woman's Search for Identity." He is a nationally recognized speaker on women's issues.

The second guest is Dr. Bonnie Steinbock, professor of philosophy at the State University of New York at Albany. She is the author of "Killing and Letting Die" and a forthcoming work from Oxford University Press: "The Moral and Legal Status of Fetuses and Newborns."

After coffee and donuts at 9:15 a.m., the morning session of the symposium will be devoted to the two presentations, followed by a question and answer period. After lunch, for which there is a small charge, a faculty/student panel will initiate an afternoon of open discussion.

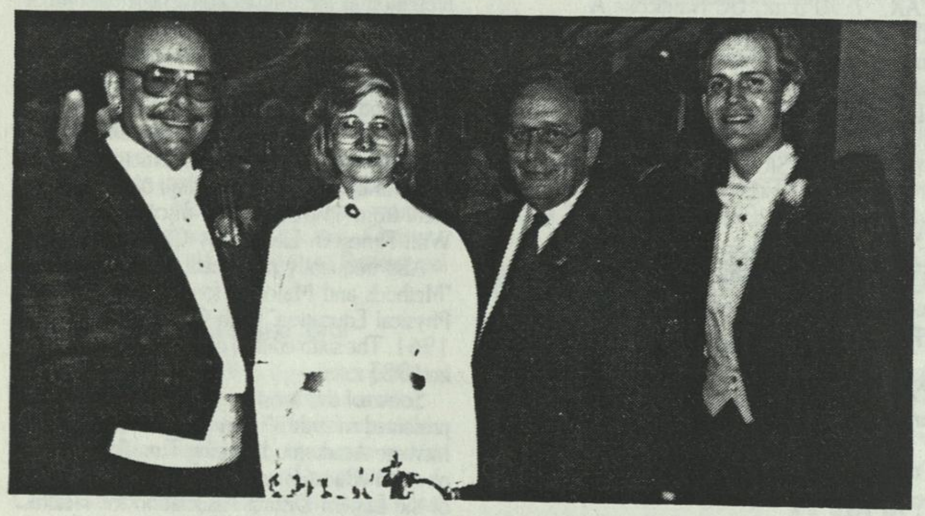
"This year's topic is one that requires a great deal of philosophical reflection," said Miller, "and we think students will profit enormously from hearing it discussed in a thoughtful way." The campus community is invited to attend.

Peterson Exhibits at Marlboro Gallery

Dean Peterson, assistant professor of art at Salisbury State University, is represented by recent works in an exhibit of printmakers in the Marlboro Gallery at Prince George's Community College. The show is a collection of work done by the members of the Maryland Printmakers, a group of artists involved in printmaking from around the state. The membership includes faculty from many of the state's schools including the Maryland College of Art Institute and the University of Maryland College Park.

Peterson's background includes a B.F.A. and an M.F.A. in printmaking and drawing. His works in the show are richly colored abstract images produced using experimental techniques with a photographic color medium. Each print is a unique image that explores an atmospheric mood the artist was interested in developing.

The show runs until April 7.



"Savor the Symphony," the annual fundraiser for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State, attracted some 350 orchestra patrons on Friday evening, March 23. Key organizers and participants in the event were: Dr. Thomas Elliot, chair of the Music Department and conductor of the orchestra; Carolyn Hall, ticket coordinator; Frank Pilgrim, general manager of WMDT-TV, co-sponsor of the event; and Dr. Mark Clinton, artist-in-residence in the Music Department who performed a piano recital that night. The other co-sponsor was the SSU Foundation.

Haysbert Concludes 'Great Leader' Series April 11

Raymond V. Haysbert, Sr., president and chief executive officer of Parks Sausage Company, concludes this spring's Great Leader Lecture Series with a presentation on Wednesday, April 11, at 11 a.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Sponsored by SSU's Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the lecture is free and open to the public.

In 1952 Haysbert joined H.G. Parks, Inc., better known as the Parks Sausage Company and headquartered in Baltimore, after a seven-year tenure on the business instruction staff of Central State University (OH).

Born in Cincinnati, he holds degrees from Wilberforce University in mathematics, Central State in accounting, and graduate studies at Morgan State University (where he taught business for 17 years on a part-time basis), Johns Hopkins University and the University of Baltimore. He received an Honorary Doctorate of Public Service from the University of Maryland College Park.

He has had a distinguished career as a businessman. He holds corporate directorships with the Parks Sausage Company, Bell Atlantic Corporation, the Baltimore Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Equitable Bancorporation, The Forum Caterers of Baltimore and Washington, D.C., and others. He is one of the founders of Advance Federal Savings and Loan Association and presently serves on that advisory board as well as the advisory board of Harbor Bank of Maryland.

Active in numerous civic and charitable organizations, Haysbert has received many awards and citations for service. Among the honors he has received are being named a laureate in the Baltimore Business Hall of Fame by Junior Achievement of Central Maryland, Distinguished Black Marylander by Towson State University and Outstanding Black Businessman by the Howard University School of Business. Haysbert is the president emeritus of the HUB Organizations, and he has the honor of being a civilian aide to the Secretary of the United States Army.

Haysbert is married and father of four children. He is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and Prince Hall Masons.

For more information on his lecture call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

'Babette's Feast' Viewing

On Friday and Saturday, April 6 and 7, SSPB Films proudly presents the Academy Award winning "Babette's Feast." Director Gabriel Axel wrote the screenplay from a story by Danish author Karen Blixen-Finecke (Isak Dinesen).

"Babette's Feast" is set in the late 1800s in a small remote fishing village in Denmark. Its central characters include the two daughters of a Protestant pastor, who turn away their suitors so they may devote themselves to their father and his mission.

After their father's death, the two young women slip into unmarried middle age, carrying on the pastor's work with saintly dedication. One night, in the middle of a terrible storm, Babette turns up at their door, battered by weather and circumstances. Having lost both her husband and son in the Paris Commune, Babette needs political sanctuary. The sisters, who are nearly penniless, accept Babette's offer to act as their unpaid housekeeper.

In time Babette becomes an indispensalbe, though enigmatic, member of the household. She brings order and efficiency to the sisters' lives as defenders of their father's flock, which, over the years, has become split by old grievances and jealousies. Babette cooks, cleans, washes and sews, always remaining aloof and proud, at a distance from her benefactors.

Showtimes are Friday and Saturday, April 6 and 7, at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in Devilbiss 149. Admission is free and open to the public. The film is in Danish and French with English subtitles. "Babette's Feast" won the Oscar for Best Foreign Film of 1987. Upcoming SSPB films include "Manon of the Spring" on April 28 and 29, and "Heathers" on May 11 and 12.

The purpose of the SSPB is to offer a diverse and well-rounded schedule of social, recreational, educational and multi-cultural activities which will complement the educational and cultural resources of the University and surrounding communities. We are in the process of planning next year's film series. If you have any suggestions of films (cult, international, classic or popular), double feature themes, or titles that would tie in with other campus events, contact David Todd at the SSPB Office in the University Center, 543-6197.

Cheerleading Coach Sought

Salisbury State seeks an individual for a contractual, part-time position as head cheerleading coach. Specific responsibility for all phases of the program includes coaching, recruiting, team selection and budgeting.

Qualifications for the position require notable expertise in the sport, plus a background of proficiency in teaching and coaching cheerleader type activities.

Remuneration for this position is negotiable, not to exceed a maximum salary of $2,500.

The application deadline is April 16. Send letter of application to Dean Burroughs, Associate Athletic Director, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Housekeeping Work Chief

The Physical Plant is accepting applications for the positions of Housekeeping Service Work Chief.

This is a state position with benefits. The position is responsible for supervising the work of a small group of employees in the cleaning of Maggs Center. Responsibilities also include inspecting the work of subordinate employees on a daily basis, establishing and maintaining proper supply levels of cleaning materials, and understanding and following both oral and written instructions.

Qualifications include a minimum of one year of full-time experience in the cleaning and care of building materials. Supervising skills and the ability to issue routine assignments and give specifically detailed instructions are preferred.

Starting salary is $13,274.

Interested applicants should complete and turn in an application not later than Friday, April 6, to the Personnel Office.

school, which requires about 25-40 hours a week and really prepares them for the outside world." According to Jeff Wood, a 1989 SSU grad and currently head trainer at Cherokee High School in Marlton, NJ, which has over 2,200 students and 700 athletes, the internship is an invaluable experience. "That senior year makes a big difference," said Wood. "It helps turn the corner for most of the students."

Other grads also point to the intangible benefits of the program. "Not only do you get unbelievable hands-on experience," said Marty McGinty, a 1987 SSU grad and head trainer with the Baltimore Blast, "but you develop great discipline. You make a commitment to the program and to the profession because of the vast amount of hours you invest."

Lamboni, with cooperation from the SSU team physicians and the campus' Health Center, carefully monitors each student's progression through the system, with strict requirements for advancement. Students must demonstrate promptness and reliability, classroom success and self-initiative in order to receive greater responsibility. Each student must also pass the department's three-part competency test before being allowed to do the senior-year internship.

"It's always a teaching situation," said Lamboni. "Inside and outside the classroom, students are constantly learning what the profession is all about."

The Salisbury State athletic training program began in 1972 when the school expanded its athletic program to include football, lacrosse and wrestling. Hunter Smith, a graduate of James M. Bennett Senior High School in Salisbury and a recent graduate from Tennessee Tech, was hired as the first athletic trainer.

It was Smith, now the head trainer for the Baltimore Colts, who nurtured the program along during those first few years. He began with three student assistants and just one course offering, Prevention and Treatment of Athletic Injuries.

Lori Haleski, head trainer at The Gilman School, an all-boys high school in Baltimore, completed her undergraduate work under Smith in 1982, then returned to SSU for her master's in '86 under Lamboni. "Hunter established a very competitive program," said Haleski. "Pat made a few changes when he took over, but has continued the same excellence."

Smith looks back with pride at the growth of the SSU program and credits Lamboni for the present-day success.

"Pat has done an excellent job in extending the program," said Smith. "He has worked very hard in helping the program grow—including local internships and other community opportunites. He has added several new courses and brought in people to give special presentations. He's elevated the learning level of the program and he deserves a lot of credit."

Among the first of Smith's student trainers was Doug Huffman, now the head trainer at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. Huffman joined the Hoya staff after graduating from Salisbury State in 1974, then became Georgetown's head trainer three years later.

"I felt well prepared when I arrived at Georgetown," said Huffman. "I was ready to handle football, baseball, track and field, and everything else."

In fact, when Huffman became head trainer in 1977 and had a position to fill on the Hoya staff, he knew exactly where to look.

"I called Hunter and he recommended Lorry (Michel)," said Huffman.

The rest is history, as the saying goes. Michel has been a fixture on the Georgetown training staff since 1977, and has been the head trainer for John Thompson's high-profile basketball team since 1982.

"We always consider SSU grads when we have openings," said Huffman. "They are well-considered candidates for jobs everywhere."

As for the future of the Salisbury State program, it is Lamboni's hope that it be elevated to the next level, that of National Athletic Trainers Association approved, or curriculum status. Only 64 institutions in the nation and none in the state of Maryland currently have curriculum status from the NATA. Most programs, including Salisbury State, operate at the NATA's internship level.

"The main difference in the program levels is one of course requirements," explained Lamboni. "We would need to add three more courses to our academic side in order to merit NATA approved certification."

In an effort to further strengthen the overall program, Leslie Bartoshesky has joined the SSU staff this year as the coordinator of the athletic training academic program. Bartoshesky, who also serves as the assistant athletic trainer, is now working with Lamboni in a cooperative effort to further extend and enhance the academic offerings available to SSU students.

"I'd like to see us move up to the next level, if possible," added Lamboni. "Although we're currently at the internship level, we exceed all of the guideline standards, and it would give our graduates even greater credibility coming out of an NATA approved program."

With the number of SSU graduates currently succeeding in the field, it seems that a lack of credibility is not an issue. But as Lamboni said, "Salisbury State University wants to be considered among the elite institutions in the world of athletic training."

Warner Bros. Holds Maryland Writers Workshop

Warner Bros. Television will sponsor a comedy-writers workshop in association with the Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and Washington, D.C. Film Commissions. The intensive workshop will be held in Baltimore May 29 through June 2.

Warner Bros. Television, the producers of Growing Pains, Night Court, Murphy Brown, Head of the Class, Just the 10 of Us, China Beach and Life Goes On, is seeking new writers to continue their series success. The studio is holding a "portable" writer's workshop—a traveling seminar to develop talent outside Hollywood. The pilot study in Maryland is a condensed version of the highly successful ten-week workshop held at the Burbank lot.

The one-week training program will focus on the staff experience of a television writer. Only 20 people will be chosen from this region. Participants will be required to develop a script idea from pitch to step outline. Studio programming executives, producers and writers will appear as guest speakers. Qualified writers will then be chosen to participate in a 10-week workshop in Hollywood.

Warner Bros. Television has been conducting writers workshops for over 10 years. Former participants include Emmy-winner Winifred Hervey and 227 creator Bill Boulware. Seven of the 20 writers in the 1989 workshop went on to staff positions.

Applicants should submit one of the following writing samples: a spec (has not yet been produced; can be old or existing TV show or original; must be script format; treatments not accepted) half-hour situation comedy (up to 30 to 40 pages in two-hole binder) - a two-act comedic play - a feature length comedy (not more than 140 pages).

For more information, call the Maryland Film Commission Hotline, 333-6632. The submission period is through April 10. Include a resume and a one-page bio explaining why you want to take the workshop.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

APRIL 12, 1990 VOL. XI NO. 25

'Brighton Beach Memoirs'—Neil Simon's Love Letter

"Brighton Beach Memoirs," what T.E. Kalem in Time Magazine called "Neil Simon's love letter to his past," will be presented April 27-29 and May 3-5 by Sophanes, the student theatre club.

Produced on Broadway in 1983, "Brighton Beach Memoirs" was Simon's 20th play in as many years, and was considered by many critics as one of his best. It "is first and foremost a very funny play," wrote Catharine Hughes in America Magazine. It "offers more surprises than any Simon play since 'The Sunshine Boys,'" said The New York Times.

Set in Brooklyn in 1937, the play tells the story of the Jeromes, a Jewish family struggling through the Depression. The hub of the comedy is 15-year-old Eugene, Simon's alter ego, who wants to pitch for the New York Yankees, or failing that, become a writer. To that end he keeps a diary, and through him we learn of various family quarrels and reconciliations: the overworked father experiences a heart attack; the widowed sister sees a promising romance aborted almost before it has begun; and Eugene's rapidly maturing brother discovers that integrity and employment do not necessarily mix.

The Jerome family of Neil Simon's "Brighton Beach Memoirs": (seated, left right) Kristin Lyons, Heather Campbell, Kelly Sottile and Laura Foran; (standing) David Hyland, Will Shupe and David Cherry.

There are moments of tenderness and insight, said Jack Kroll in Newsweek. "And Simon still has his ear for the comedy of character, as when he has Eugene's harassed mother say, 'Stop shouting, I've got a cake in the oven.'"

In "Brighton Beach Memoirs," said Kalem, we see ". . . compelling glints of an urban 'Morning's at Seven' a ghetto 'Our Town' and a wryly caustic 'Ah, Wilderness!' Like them, 'Brighton Beach Memoirs' belongs to the family genre where the passwords are forgive and remember."

Simon is one of America's most popular playwrights and in the 1980s was honored on Broadway with a theatre named after him. His career as a comedy writer began in the early days of television. Since then his classic stage successes have included "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple," "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," "Plaza Suite," "The Sunshine Boys" and "Biloxi Blues," for which he won Broadway's highest accolade, the Tony Award. Perhaps his most popular original screenplay was "The Goodbye Girl."

Leading the cast of the SSU production is David Cherry, a senior communication arts major who appeared in "The Foreigner" and "The Pirates of Penzance." Other members of the ensemble are David Hyland, Laura Foran, Will Shupe, Heather Campbell, Kelly Sottile and Kristin Lyons. Direction and set design are by David

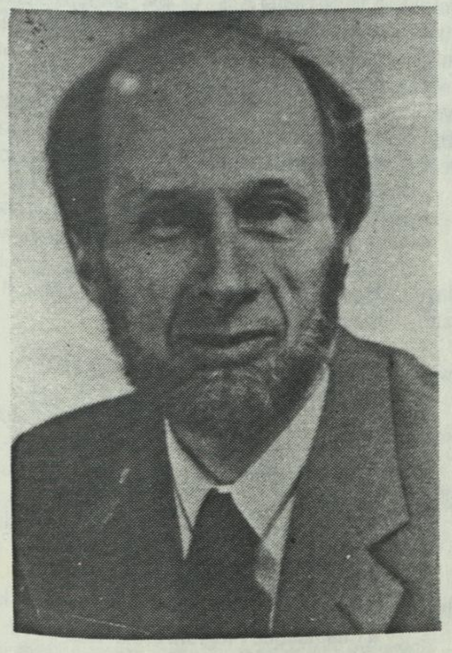
N.Y. Times Reporter 'Culture of Work' Speaker

George Vecsey, a sports columnist for the New York Times who has also covered varied subjects including coal mining, religion and country music, in addition to writing over a dozen books, lectures on "Working on the Edge" on Thursday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

"My best book was 'One Sunset a Week,' done in 1974," Vecsey said. "It was about a coal-mining family in Appalachia, and all the angers that family faced. It was the same region that has been in the news with the Pittston strike in recent months, and it sounds as if nothing has changed. I loved that book, and was always more comfortable out in the field writing about working people than about politics."



George Vecsey

In 1976 Vecsey collaborated with Loretta Lynn on her autobiography, "Loretta Lynn: Coal Miner's Daughter," which became a best-seller and was made into a movie. Sissy Spacek won an Academy Award for her portrayal of Loretta Lynn.

In 1985 Vecsey helped write "Martina," the autobiography of Martina Navratilova, the tennis star. That book was on the best-seller list for 10 weeks.

He has also written "Five O'Clock Comes Early: A Young Man's Battle with Alcoholism," with Bob Welch, then of the Los Angeles Dodgers, now with the Oakland Athletics.

Recently Vecsey wrote "A Year in the Sun," a diary of the year 1986, trying to show what personal history and professional habits went into each column.

Born in the borough of Queens in New York City, he attended Jamaica High School and Hofstra College and worked for Newsday before joining the Times in 1968. From 1970-1972 he was the Appalachian correspondent for the Times, based in Louisville, KY.

Later he covered the Papal Conclave in Rome in 1978 as well as Pope John Paul's trips to Mexico and the United States in 1979.

Writing Project Summer Institute Here

Teachers teaching other teachers about writing is the thrust of the Maryland Writing Project's Summer Institute at Salisbury State.

A satellite program of the highly lauded National Writing Project, the Institute runs from June 25-July 26, Monday-Thursday, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Participants, called Summer Fellows, earn six hours of graduate credit and become teaching consultants of the Maryland Writing Project.

"The philosophy of the National Writing Project," said Dr. Wavie Gibson, Jr., an assistant professor in the English Department and one of the Institute's co-coordinators, "is that teachers are the best teachers of teachers and that in-service development must have classroom at its focus.

Medical Technology Applications Due

Students who intend to register for upper division medical technology courses are reminded that applications are due in the Department of Medical Technology by May 1.

Those who apply should have reached sophomore standing and are seeking admission effective in the fall of the junior year. Students who have previously declared the medical technology major will be given the application form when they see their individual advisors for program planning.

Others who have not previously declared the major and wish to seek application or information regarding the program should phone 543-6364 or 543-6331 for more information.

Welch Reading

Native American novelist James Welch will read from his forthcoming novel, "Indian Lawyer," in the Social Room of Holloway Hall on Thursday, April 12, at 8 p.m. The event is free and the public is welcome.

"James Welch is, along with Leslie Silko, N. Scott Momaday and Louise Erdrich, one of our most important Native American voices. To say that is also to say he's among the finest novelists currently writing," said Jon Davis, visiting professor of English at SSU.

Welch is the author of three previous novels, "Winter in the Blood" (1974), "The Death of Jim Loney" (1979) and "Fools Crow" (1986), and a collection of poems, "Riding the Earthboy 40" (1976). His poems are included in "Carriers of the Dream Wheel," the groundbreaking anthology of Native American poetry, and in "The Norton Anthology of Modern Poetry."

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Salisbury State is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

'Phantom' Bus Trip

The University Center is sponsoring a theatre trip to New York's Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, May 9, to see "Phantom of the Opera."

The bus departs the Dogwood Entrance of the University Center at 12:30 p.m. and returns to the same location at approximately 4 a.m. There will no stops either going or returning. Time for dinner "on your own" before the 8 p.m. curtain is planned. The bus leaves New York immediately following the performance. Seats are limited and sign up is on a first come basis.

Bus trip and theatre ticket cost for full-time SSU students is $20; for part-time students, faculty, staff, alumni and guests the cost is $30.

Sign up at the University Center information desk (beginning at 9 a.m. on April 16 for full-time students, April 19 for everyone else). "The Phantom of the Opera" is a Tony Award-winning musical adapted from Gaston Leroux's novel, set in Paris in the 1880s, about a deformed man who falls in love with an opera singer. The book is by Richard Stilgoe and Andrew Lloyd Webber with lyrics by Charles Hart, with additional lyrics by Stilgoe. It is directed by Harold Prince.

Palmer Finalist

As part of a national search by the California and Oregon Councils of the Humanities, William Palmer, associate professor of Spanish, has been invited to San Francisco as one of three finalists to portray Christopher Columbus in the 1992 quincentenary celebration of the discovery of America.

If selected, Palmer will spend nine weeks in a Chautauqua Program in summer 1992. The program will be presented in communities throughout California and Oregon.

'Songs Poets Sing' Performed Here April 19

The works of classical black poets, new fiction by an SSU professor which contrasts the male and female points of view, a translation of a 19th century Spanish poem, and familiar pieces by American and English men are all part of a reading, "Songs That Poets Sing," performed by faculty on Thursday, April 19.

To be presented at 8 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall, admission is free and the public is invited.

Directed by Dr. Robert J. Wesley, the program will introduce new readers and works. Furahaa Saba, who joined the Department of Communication Arts this year, has selected four poems by black authors, which "show part of the cultural experiences of black people that normally would not be shared," she said. "Black Woman" by Georgia Douglas Johnson who was born in 1886, "is a unique poem with a different perspective on the intentions of black women." In contrast "Nocturne," by Naomi Long Madgett, a 20th century poet and a native of Norfolk, VA, paints a delicate portrait of a black woman.

"Runagate Runagate" by Robert E. Hayden is a narrative about slaves attempting to escape to freedom and the people instrumental in helping them, Saba continued. Hayden, who was born in 1913, won the 1965 Grand Prize for Poetry at the National Festival of Negro Art held in Senegal. A writer of both poetry and drama, Hayden taught at Fiske University from 1946-1968. William Stanley Braithwaite's "If I Could Touch" on the other hand is "a very romantic poem," Saba said. Braithwaite, of West Indian ancestry, grew up in Boston where he was on the editorial staff of the Boston Transcript. He was widely known as an anthropoligist and poet before his death in 1961.

William Palmer, of the Department of Modern Languages, has contributed three original works which he and Cynthia Wesley will perform. Cynthia Wesley, who is an adjunct professor in communication arts, will read "A Hard Choice," a story about a young woman who turns to her parents for advice about two suitors. The father will not provide an answer but the mother is "right to the point and her reply says much about the feminine mind," Mrs. Wesley said.

"Dirge of Winter," a poem for two voices, is performed by Mrs. Wesley with Palmer. Palmer also has translated excerpts of "Song of the Pirate" by the 19th century Spanish poet, Jose Espronceda, which Palmer will read.

Robert Wesley, a professor in the Communication Arts Department, will read Robert Brownings' "Home Thoughts From Abroad," and T.S. Eliot's "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock," which Wesley believes "speaks to us now more than when Eliot wrote it in 1932."

Sponsored by the Department of Communication Arts, the faculty reading hour has become an annual tradition in recent years. For more information on "Songs That Poets Sing," contact the department at 543-6229.

Business Seminar Here

The Maryland Small Business Development Center in conjunction with the Perdue School of Business is offering an international business trade seminar titled "Think Globally, Act Locally."

The seminar, on Monday, April 16, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center, is designed for anyone in business interested in establishing contacts and developing initiatives in the internatiional arena.

The focus of the seminar will be on the unparalleled growth in the international import and export arenas in the past several years. Asia has been the scene for aggressive marketing potential while new activity lies ahead in Europe and the Economic Community.

Along with the expanding international trade comes the need for current information and reliable assistance for new and expanding companies. The seminar will introduce business people to regional resources to assist in the decision-making process.

The day-long program begins at 9:15 a.m. with an overview of international business, "Where It's Going and Can You Get a Ride." The following sessions include: "Accessing a Niche: Do You Have What the Market Takes?," 10 a.m.; "International Marketing: Keys to Success," 10:45 a.m.; "Accessing Markets: Trade Shows and Overseas Contacts," 11:30 a.m.; "Doing Business in Another Culture: Is He Really Holding My Hand?," 1:15 p.m.; and panel group discussions, 2:15 p.m.

Sponsors of the event are the Eastern Region Maryland Small Business Development Center, the Perdue School, the University of Maryland Sea Grant Extension Program, the Center for International Business Development at SSU, the European America Business Institute and the Maryland International Trade Division.

The fee for the seminar is $60 which includes lunch. For more information call Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the SSU Small Business Institute, at 543-6394.

Delegate Johnson On Environment Issues

On Tuesday, April 24, Maryland State Delegate Samuel Q. Johnson III will be on campus to discuss environmental issues addressed during the 1990 legislative session. Johnson's address, part of SSU's Earth Week program, will be held at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 149.

Johnson has been representing the 37th Legislative District for over seven years. A native of the Eastern Shore, he is especially interested in environmental issues and is currently a member of the Environmental Matters Committee. Johnson's talk is free and open to the public.

Phi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, will hold its spring initiation on Thursday, May 10, at 4 p.m.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall B average in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact the co-advisors, Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Miss Clara Small of the History Department, by noon on April 23.

Pi Gamma Mu Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, will hold its spring initiation on Thursday, May 10, at 5 p.m.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social sciences courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography, with a B average (85 percent). In addition, eligible students should be in the top 35 percent of their class (seniors, juniors, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors, Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Miss Clara Small of the History Department, by noon on April 23.

Outdoor Club News

Outdoor Club meetings are held on Mondays at 9 p.m.

Upcoming events include an Earth Day clean-up day trip to Assateague Island National Seashore on Saturday, April 21. Those wishing to stay overnight in the park may do so as long as they provide their own transportation.

Also, on the weekend of April 27-29 the club is offering a hang gliding trip to Naggs Head, NC. Closing out the spring semester will be the annual picnic social at Jane's Island State Park. Further information can be obtained at the meetings.

WSCL GM Sought

WSCL-FM has an opening for a general manager and director of the Communications Center.

Responsibilities include administration and supervision of all station matters and management of the Communications Center. WSCL-FM is an SSU Foundation licensed station and the Foundation relates to the station via an advisory board. The general manager/director reports to the academic vice president of the University and serves as the primary representative to the station's audience, licensee, state and national agencies and the broadcast industry. As director of the Communications Center the individual is responsible for instructional media, audio-visual and television services to the University.

Qualifications include a bachelor's degree in broadcasting or related field, with master's degree preferred. Minimum five years in a management position in radio, public broadcasting or related area is required. Successful applicant must have leadership, planning and fiscal management skills; sensitive and excellent communication capabilities with the University's constituency are required.

Salary is competitive with excellent benefits.

The position will be open until filled.

Send resume and letter of application to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, Academic Vice President, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

SSU is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

As we approach Easter Sunday, most of the spring sports teams have just passed the midway point in their seasons, with many outstanding individual performances to note from the first half.

Although Coach Deane Deshon's baseball team is off to an uncharacteristically slow start at 5-11 overall heading into Wednesday's game at Wesley, outfielder Mike Shockley is having a banner season. The senior is batting .406 through 16 games, with a team-high 24 hits in 59 at-bats. He also tops the squad in runs, 14, and stolen bases, 24, and has been thrown out stealing only once. The Gulls host Catholic in a twinbill on Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, on the softball diamond, Dawn McCrumb's squad had won five of its last six games to improve to 6-5 going into Wednesday's action at Wilmington College. A key player in the team's recent surge has been freshman pitcher Sonja Akers, who has stepped in as the staff 'ace' due to an arm injury to junior Amy Geppi. Akers hurled her first collegiate shutout last Saturday, blanking Shepherd College, 4-0, and has been the winning pitcher in each of SSU's wins this season.

Distance runner Doug Mock continues to pace the track team with his performances in the 1,500 and 5,000 meter runs. The senior won the 1,500 at last weekend's Captain's Classic with a season-best time of 3:56.9. He still needs to shave three seconds off that mark to qualify for the national championships later this spring. Mock also finished second in the 5,000 meter run last weekend. Seniors Kim Marlatt and Andie Phillips continue to vie for top scoring honors on the women's lacrosse team. Marlatt leads in total points, with 30, while Phillips has 27 points and a team-high 22 goals. The Gulls host St. Mary's on Friday at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, on the tennis court, newcomers George Wines and Jim Ireton have been pleasant surprises for Coach Dean Burroughs. Both players posted singles victories as SSU blanked Frostburg State, 9-0, last weekend.

Resident Director Positions Available

Salisbury State is seeking to fill four resident director positions for the fall.

Resident directors are full-time graduate students who live in and supervise one residence hall. The major responsibility is to know the residents living within that hall and to promote a secure living and learning environment.

Residence hall experience is desirable. Compensation is room and board, utilities included except telephone, $2,250 per semester and tuition waiver.

Application materials are available in the Department of Housing and Residence Life, Holloway Hall 130, and must be returned by April 20.

On Campus A.A.

An on-campus Alcoholics Anonymous group has been established in an effort to make A.A. meetings more accessible for students and the campus community and to provide support to young adults, particularly college students, whose issues, concerns and ways of relating to each other may differ from community groups.

The only prerequisite for attending the meeting is a desire to stop drinking or to maintain abstinence or a sincere interest in finding out more about A.A. All meetings are confidential.

Meetings are held every Wednesday from 11 a.m.-noon in the University Center's Manokin Room.

Dillon on Computers At UC on April 16

"Fear to Fanatic: Attitudes on Computers in the Work Place" is the title of a lecture by Tom Dillon on Monday, April 16, at 4 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

"Computer technology is being introduced into manufacturing, finance and accounting divisions in today's businesses, into the secretarial office and into many more sectors of the work force," said Dillon, an instructor in the Perdue School of Business. "People are experiencing changes on the job, both positive and negative, because of their introduction to computers.

"Attitudes about computers vary and change," said Dillon, "ranging from 'love them' to 'I don't really want to know they exist.'"

Dillon's presentation will examine how computers have changed how people work and how those changes are accepted. He will analyze why, "some people love computers too much, some love them not at all and some love them just right."

Dillon, who earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Shippensburg (PA) University, recently coordinated the first Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, sponsored by Delmarva Power and Salisbury State.

His most recent publications are "Improving Spreadsheet Control for Sales Managers Through the Use of the Systems Development Life Cycle," with Drs. Ernst Goss and James Busbin of the University of Southern Mississippi, in the Journal of Personal Selling and Sales Management, and "Bittersweet Spreadsheets: Application Development Needs Control," also with Goss, in The Woman CPA.

Dillon's presentation is part of the "Culture of Work" spring lecture series sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee. For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Creative Conflict Workshop

A Creative Conflict Resolution workshop, sponsored by the Camden Friends and Alternatives to Violence Project (AVP), will be held April 20-22 at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

"Violence permeates our world, our nation, our cities and neighborhoods, and even our homes," said Alice Howard of AVP. "The Alternatives to Violence Project is offering a weekend of training in skills for transforming violence. Trained professionals are volunteering their time to provide the opportunity for anyone interested in devoting one weekend to learning through small group experience the transforming power of self-worth, trust, problem solving skills, negotiation and cooperation."

Participants are asked to attend all workshop sessions: Friday, April 20, 7-10 p.m.; Saturday, April 21, 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.; and Sunday, April 22, 12:30 - 9 p.m. Meals are provided and participants are expected to remain at the workshop site during mealtime.

Cost of the workshop is $25 per person. Financial assistance in the form of scholarships is easily arranged. The program is open to anyone 16 years of age and older who is interested in changing his or her response to conflict. Free overnight accomodations are available for Friday and Saturday nights.

To register or obtain more information, call Mary Miller at (302) 697-2566 or Jackie Jarrell at (302) 798-2096.

Barlow Performs in Sacred Music Concert

Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano, and John Bertolette, organist, perform a sacred music concert on Sunday, April 22 at 4 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

The program features works by such composers as Bach, Mozart, Lili Boulanger, Rossini, Gounod, Louis Vierne, Joramir Weinberger and Ned Rorem.

Barlow, a native of Bradenton, FL, is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia where she received her bachelor's degree in music and master's degree in opera. She was the soprano soloist at St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia for seven years where she and Bertolette first began their musical collaboration. Barlow has also been heard with the Pennsylvania Opera Theatre, the Annapolis Opera, the Suncoast Opera, the Asolo Opera Company, the Sarasota Opera Association and the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

In addition to having many private voice students in the Delmarva area, Barlow is on the faculty at Salisbury State. She occasionally gives master classes at the Delaware Music School, the Academy of the Arts in Easton and also for area church choirs. She performed at Salisbury State as Mabel in Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance" in 1988.

She has performed for the past five summer seasons at The Commander Boardwalk Cabaret in Ocean City as a singer and dancer.

Her performances with orchestra include the Wahnfried Chamber Orchestra, the Jefferson Chamber Orchestra (her New York City debut), the Concerto Soloists Orchestra of Philadelphia, the Philly Pops, the Florida Gulf Coast Symphony, the Curtis Symphony Orchestra and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra.

Barlow has appeared under the baton of such conductors as Max Rudolf, Zubin Mehta, Lorin Maazel, Erich Leinsdorf, Leonard Bernstein, Sergiu Celibidache, Seymour Lipkin, Peter Nero, William Smith and Serge Baudo. Last spring, she was seen in SSU's production of Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas," the Salisbury Choral Society's performance of Haydn's "Creation" and, in November, the Easton Choral Society's performance of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Requiem" under the direction of Dr. Douglas Smith.

On May 1 Barlow joins forces with SSU colleague Roland Raffaelle for the ever-popular Bach's Lunch Recital Series at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in downtown Salisbury.

Raffaelle is the guitar instructor at Salisbury State. He and Barlow will perform a program of English lute songs by John Dowland and Sei Ariette by Vincenzo Bellini.

Bertolette is a native of the Philadelphia area beginning his musical studies at the age of five with Dr. Catherine Morgan. He acquired his first church job playing organ at the age of 14.

Bertolette studied at Westminster Choir College with Joan Lippincott and at the Curtis Institute of Music with John Weaver. After completing his studies at Curtis, he continued with Claribel Thomson at Ardmore Presbyterian Church on the Main Line in Philadelphia. He just recently completed a round of lessons with MacNeil Robinson, the famed organist of Park Avenue Christian Church in New York City. For the past 10 years, Bertolette has been director of music and organist at St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia.

Most recently Bertolette performed on the concert series at The First and Franklin Streets Presbyterian Church in Baltimore and National City Christian Church in Washington, D.C. He is a much sought after piano accompanist for Philadelphia area vocalists and instrumentalists.

Bertolette has had many appearances at the Irvine Auditorium Concert Series at the University of Pennsylvania which houses the world's 10th largest organ. In addition, he has also served as accompanist for various choral groups performing oratorio and sacred repertoire, including the Delaware Choral Society, St. Martin-in-the-Fields Choir of Chestnut Hill, PA, the Oratorio Choir of Germantown Presbyterian Church, the Singing City Choir of Philadelphia, the Mendelssohn Club of Philadelphia and the Bel Canto Chorale of Paoli, PA.

Bertolette was recently invited to play for the Octave Club of Norristown, PA, in a program honoring his first teacher at the age of 92, performing her organ compositions, one of which will be played in the joint recital with Barlow. Bertolette also played another benefit for the Octave Club for the Ursinus College Music Fund in Collegeville, PA.

Barlow and Bertolette performed this sacred music program at First Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia in March to an appreciative Sunday afternoon audience.

The program is made possible by the music ministry program at Asbury United Methodist Church. The concert is free and open to the public. For further information, contact the church at 749-2131.

Wheelchair Games Here

The ninth annual Maryland Wheelchair Games, which attracts some 200 athletes, will be held May 11-13 at Salisbury State. The event is sponsored by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury and SSU.

The Games are a series of events sanctioned by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA), the governing body for wheelchair sports in the U.S. Competition is held in weightlifting, swimming, slalom, track and field, air guns, table tennis and archery.

Participants in prior years have ranged in age from six to "over 65," and both men and women are actively involved. The skill level ranges from absolute beginner to world recordholder. Athletes are grouped according to degree of disability, age and sex and compete only against similarly disabled competitors. The emphasis is on fun, participation and sportsmanship, although many athletes strive to meet qualifying standards for national championships.

Novice athletes are welcome in all events and assistance is given willingly by volunteers and seasoned competitors to the newcomers. Every competitor gets a commemorative T-shirt and medals are awarded to the top three finishers in each event, in each disability category.

Anyone may enter the Maryland Wheelchair Games by completing the entry form, which is available from Elaine Harrington, DNR Office, 122 Arlington Road, Salisbury, MD 21801. NWAA regulations require that all athletes become members of the NWAA and be classified medically. Through the support of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury, there is financial assistance available for first-time athletes to join the NWAA at no charge.

For more information, call Harrington at 749-2461.

Salisbury Festival Volunteers Needed

"The Proud, The Few . . . The Festival Crew!" The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is now looking for multitalented volunteers to help coordinate all events for the Salisbury Festival on the weekend of May 4-6.

Volunteers are needed in all areas for the planning stages through the actual days of the Festival.

"The events of the Salisbury Festival, with its fun, food and many activities, couldn't take place if it wasn't for the hundreds of volunteers who make it all happen," said Keith Lott, vice president of the Arts Council.

Volunteers are especially needed in the children's crafts area. The title of this year's children's area is "Salisbury's Little Indians." It will be located next to the City Center where the Newtown Theatre used to be. The children's area will have four to six different craft stations and volunteers will be needed to work the booths throughout the day.

"At least two people will be needed at each area and that equals approximately 60 volunteers for just the children's area," said John Johnson, coordinator of the tribal activities.

The children create crafts such as their own unique head bands, Indian sand paintings and their personal "totem." Perennial favorites such as cookie decorating and face painting will all take on an Indian motif this year.

Volunteers are needed to assist in the advance preparation of all materials for the children's crafts as well as helping the children at the Festival. The colored sand for the Indian sand paintings will need to be organized in advance, and the symbols for the head bands will need to be cut out and made ready for the children to use. Festival volunteers will be needed to guide the children's little fingers as they make their personal works of art—and to witness the delight that will abound.

During Festival Saturday other SWAC volunteers are needed for jobs ranging from stage managing the Arts Council performance stages, selling SWAC T-shirts and merchandise and helping with the SWAC food concession. Most shifts are no longer than two hours so volunteers have plenty of time to help out and still actively enjoy the Festival.

Both individuals and organizations are welcome to volunteer. In the past Salisbury State organizations such as the Student National Education Association and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority have volunteered and greatly contributed to the success of the children's crafts area. Area businesses that have also volunteered personnel in the past include Peninsula Bank and Grumman Electronics Corporation.

For more information or to volunteer, please contact the Arts Council weekdays at 543-ARTS from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Public Service Scholarship Program

The Public Employees Roundtable announces its fifth annual scholarship program designed to encourage bright, talented college students in their pursuit of careers in government service.

Criteria for the scholarships have been established. Applicants must be currently enrolled full time in an undergraduate degree program at a four-year college or university or pursuing a graduate degree; have plans to pursue a career or continue a career in government service; and have a cumulative scholastic average of 3.5 or better.

Preference will be given to candidates with local, state or federal government/community service experience (internships, summer employment, etc.). Applicants must write an essay titled, "How My Education and Experience Prepare Me for My Chosen Public Service Career."

All application materials must be postmarked or hand-delivered by May 21. Candidates should mail the application(s) to Scholarship Committee, Public Employees Roundtable, P.O. Box 6184, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Application forms are available from the Department of Personnel's Employee Development Division located at 2100 Guilford Avenue, Baltimore, MD or by calling Wylie Campbell, employee development administrator, at (301) 333-6417.

Furnace Town Invites Shore Artists to Exhibit

Furnace Town Foundation, Inc. announces an art exhibit and sale to be held on Saturday, May 5, at the historic site. The exhibit, titled "Shore Art," is being held in conjunction with Mayfest, a day-long celebration of 19th century life.

The exhibit is open to anyone, amateur or professional, and is intended as a forum for Shore artists. An individual may exhibit up to five items, in any medium. Each entry must be dry, framed and wired for hanging; all work will be displayed in the Old Nazareth Church on the site. There is no entrance fee for the exhibition, and the entrance fee to the historic site will be waived for the exhibiting artist.

For information call 632-2032. Deadline for full entry privileges is April 20.

'Radio Free Delmarva' Moves to Caruthers

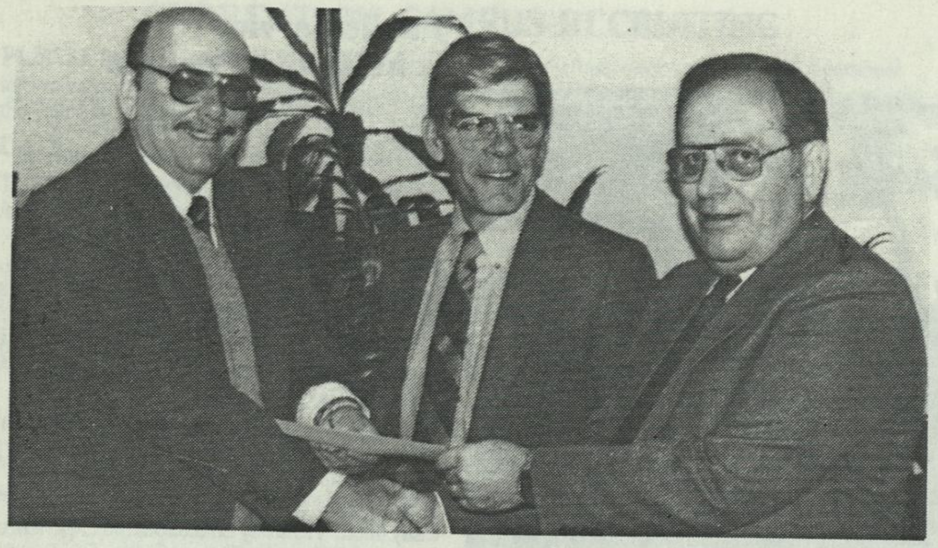
Saturday night, April 14, the Delmarva Peninsula's only live variety show hits the boards in Caruthers Auditorium.

"RFD, Radio Free Delmarva" is moving from the confines of Seagull Studios at WSCL into the more spacious surroundings of the 200-seat theater. The monthly show is produced and hosted by WSCL news director, Van Williamson, and features entertainment by musicians, writers and artists living and working on the Peninsula.

The special Easter program will feature jazz by The Medics quintet; musical selections from "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," sung by the Possum Point Players; film reviews by Baltimore writer Jack Purdy; rap music for the sick and tired, with accompaniment by the accordian-playing Bellows Babes; and a special appearance by the Easter Bunny. Williamson will perform on guitar with The Medics.

The free show is performed before a live audience. Anyone wishing to attend should call the station at 543-6895. Show time is 9-11 p.m. and will be broadcast live on WSCL, 89.5 FM.

For further information, contact Williamson at the station.



'Savor the Symphony' Fundraiser a Success

"Savor the Symphony," the annual fundraiser for the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State, raised $7,750, according to Frank Pilgrim, general manager of WMDT-TV, co-sponsor of the event.

"The evening, with excellent music and food, was an all-around nice affair," said Pilgrim. "It was a good opportunity for people in the community to come out and listen to the orchestra and meet its members and patrons in a cordial atmosphere. We have a great artistic resource here." Some 350 patrons and friends of the SSO mingled throughout the University Center on Friday evening, March 23, enjoying a piano recital by SSU Artist-in-Residence Dr. Mark Clinton and performances by a variety of orchestra ensembles. An array of food and beverage exhibits by area restaurants and caterers provided patrons with an evening delicious in all aspects.

"The ambiance was sublime," said Dr. Thomas Elliot, chair of the SSU Music Department and conductor and founder of the SSO, now in its fifth year. "The tone for a class act was set by Mark Clinton's performance and the event went beautifully thereafter."

"'Savor the Symphony' represents a culmination of bringing together this partnership of the orchestra, Salisbury State University and the Delmarva Peninsula," said Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of SSU. "The University has provided the Orchestra with a home and Tom Elliot has galvanized support throughout the Eastern Shore for this talented and dedicated group of musicians.

"(The fund-raising event) was most enjoyable," said Bellavance. "Everyone just said, 'Let's enjoy ourselves.' We did and had a wonderful evening."

"It was a tremendous success," echoed Elliot. "The orchestra played well, everyone in attendance was in good spirits—and we raised almost $8,000 to keep the orchestra fiscally sound through the next year."

The other co-sponsor was the SSU Foundation. Exhibitors at the event were TCBY Yogurt, the Plump Parrot, Parks Wholesale, One-Stop-Dash-In, Webster's-Hampton Inn, Wyatt Wholesale, Accomack Vineyards, Tolley Point Seafood, Cheers, the Uncommon Gift, Diet Pepsi and SSU Dining Services.

Clinton Recital Features Bach, Haydn

"How is it that great composers are here today, and gone tommorrow, this rare, or unique occurence in nature?" was the question recently asked of Dr. Mark Clinton, pianist and artist-in-residence at Salisbury State.

Clinton, who will be giving a solo performance Sunday, April 22, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, feels there were many such occurences in human history, during that era commonly referred to as the "Classical Period," from the mid-17th through the early 19th century.

"They were probably more in touch with something that allows the realizing of their abilities. We have to infer that there's a transcendent human quality that transends that individuality, or their own mortality," he said.

"For me Beethoven best embodies those characteristics: he is my ideal composer. I recently read 'The Changing Image of Beethoven,' how he was lionized by the Romantics of the mid-19th century, as the ideal Romantic. They felt Beethoven wrote music for what he felt, actually communicating some message from within himself. He broke the mold, as far as what society expected from composers," he added.

"The last movement of his last piano sonata has the most sublime peace," said Clinton. "It recognizes what his turmoil was, and how he worked it out. He seemed to resolve it by doing what he does best, composing," he concluded.

A Peabody Conservatory graduate under Leon Fleisher, and recipient of the Doctorate of Musical Arts under John Perry at Houston's Rice University, Clinton took first prize in 1980 in the Beethoven Society of Washington, D.C., Young Pianists Competition, as well as many other firsts in other piano competitions.

He is often asked, however, how a concert artist survives?

"If you want a steady income, you need the university as a patron and refuge, a place to share what you're doing, with people who are interested in what you're doing. The university system is some vestige of the patronage system today.

"Yet one can only get play concerts through concert management agents," said Clinton, "and they want competition winners. You can't play without management, but they don't want you unless you've played."

Although he has won numerous piano competitions Clinton therefore continues to apply for, or register in, new ones.

What about the family? What is their attitude and involvement with his art?

"I've been fortunate that my family has been very supportive of me, and continues to be," he said.

Now 26, Clinton is the son of John and Mary Ann Clinton, and grandson of H.B. Kennerly, a retired seafood dealer on the Eastern Shore.

The artist-in-residence position of Salisbury State's Music Department avails students in a variety of classes, like general music appreciation, American music and fundamentals, the opportunity to receive lectures from a practicing performer, who has worked with major symphonies.

Clinton intends to continue giving master classes to aspiring pianists, as well as "pre-recital" lectures to students and the community at large. One of these is scheduled Wednesday, April 18, at the University Center, open to all.

Clinton's performance on April 22 will feature the "Prelude and Fugue in B Flat Minor" by Bach, Haydn's "Sonata in C Minor," three pieces by Chopin, and in the last portion, some contemporary works: Ned Rorem's "Song and Dance" and Prokofief's "Sonanta #6 in A Major."

Photosilkscreen Course

A special graduate and undergraduate course in photosilkscreen on paper will be offered through the Department of Art during the fall semester by Dr. Kent N. Kimmel. The course will be taught on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5-7 p.m. from September 5 - December 21.

Undergraduate degree in-person preregistration is April 9-20; undergraduate degree, graduate and undergraduate non-degree in-person registration will be June 4-13 and August 20-29; and graduate and undergraduate non-degree mail registration runs from July 10 - August 15. Early registration is suggested because the course will have a limited number of seats, the SSU art professor said.

For additional information, contact Kimmel at 543-6272 or 543-6270.

"The Summer Institute is a central component," said Gibson, "bringing together teachers from every educational level, kindergarten through university, to share and build ideas about writing and teaching writing."

Both Gibson and Elizabeth Curtin, director of the Writing Across the Curiculum program and the Institute's other co-coordinator, are part of the Maryland Writing Project's corps of teacher consultants following their completion of a Summer Institute last year at Towson State University, Project state headquarters.

"I learned specific approaches for teaching writing that I can use in my classroom," said Curtin of her participation in the Towson program. "But it also made me aware of what is going on in elementary and middle schools," a development that surprised her. "It showed me how many of the approaches to writing that I had learned that were relative to secondary and university levels were also applicable to elementary classrooms."

Curtin found the actual writing aspect of the Towson experience to be equally enlightening. "I got to write in a way that was very enjoyable," said Curtin. "We got to play around with different forms of writing while we discussed ways to stimulate students.

"It was fun, intense, but fun," said Curtin. "We bounced around lots of ideas, did lots of writing. And the different support groups provided a stimulating atmosphere. It's hard work, but rewarding."

Jan Currence, writing resource coordinator for Worcester County who completed a Summer Institute at Washington College in 1986, is equally estatic about the Institute's effectiveness.

"The most exciting aspect of the program is its built-in credibility, teachers teaching teachers," said Currence, now a teaching consultant for the Maryland Writing Project. "It makes for an authenic teaching environment. You know what is being taught is not strictly theoretical with no practical application. In fact, it's being used in the classroom . . . right in front of you . . . by the person teaching the Institute class."

Curtin and Currence both emphasize the program is not just for English teachers. "Some of the most interesting presentations at the Institute at Towson," said Curtin, "were by an elementary art teacher, a biology teacher in a community college and a secondary school social studies teacher.

"The broader the base the better," said Curtin. "We'll have that in mind when we (the selection committee) choose this year's participants."

Currence advises that applicants should possess a strong writing background coupled with a generous amount of teaching experience and a desire to improve their own writing skills while developing fresh ideas for using writing as a teaching tool.

To apply, applicants should submit a resume, letter expressing the reason for applying and any experience that could be shared with fellow participants, a letter of recommendation from a supervising administrator and a letter of recommendation from a colleague to the Maryland Writing Project, Holloway Hall, Room 333A, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Tuition is $456 plus $33 in fees. Dormitory rooms are available at an additional charge. The application deadline is April 27.

For applications materials or more information contact Curtin at 548-5594 or Gibson at 543-6443.

Euro-American Institute Provides Business Network

A way for small U.S. businesses to take advantage of expanding trade opportunities in Europe and the Third World is offered by a new consulting service based here at Salisbury State.

Called the European American Business (Research and Development) Institute, it operates through an informal network of university scholars and business executives in 12 European countries and the U.S.

The idea is to help small U.S. businesses that lack the resources to compete on their own in world markets to pair up with compatible firms abroad in mutually beneficial ventures.

The Institute is the brainchild of Dr. Mehmet (Memo) F. Diriker, a newcomer to the faculty of the Perdue School of Business.

Marketing opportunities are increasing in the European trade bloc, as well as in newly opened central and eastern European countries and the Third World, Diriker said.

Many small U.S. companies—high tech firms, for example, or producers of farm commodities—have developed unique technologies, processes and management expertise that would be useful to small and medium-size European countries.

For their part, the latter often have developed over-the-border markets with neighboring nations and the Third World.

Linking up such companies here and abroad could prove profitable to those involved, Diriker said.

But the problem is that small companies often are unaware of the opportunities overseas and also lack the know-how for getting into export markets. With its international connections, the Institute, Diriker explained, can help small companies determine whether they have the resources to undertake such ventures and, if so, provide them with information on overseas markets and even specific contacts.

As an example, he cited the case of a small Boston advertising firm that the Institute steered into an opportunity to make documentaries for newly opening TV channels in Portugal.

Diriker, who joined the faculty here last summer, teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in international marketing and sales management on a schedule that permits him to attend to the affairs of the Institute. One of his reasons for coming here, he said, is the supportive base SSU offered the Institute, including clerical help for its operation.

On its side, the Institute aims to broaden SSU's connections in the international business community, help set up student internships in this country and eventually abroad, and help recruit foreign graduate students for research assistantships here.

In May and August the Institute will be sponsoring workshops in Washington, D.C. for business leaders and educators on the impact of the emerging European trade bloc.

Also in the near future two seminars will be held at SSU, one for representatives of Maryland small businesses interested in international trade, and the second for individual business executives interested in entrepreneurial opportunities.

The two will be co-sponsored by the Institute and another SSU-based agency, the Small Business Institute, under the direction of Richard Palmer, who is also on the Perdue School faculty.

Diriker first became aware of small business opportunities overseas as a faculty member at Boston's Bentley College, one of the nation's largest business schools. He was sent abroad by the college to develop faculty and student exchange programs.

The acquaintances he made among university professors in his travels led to their setting up a network to exchange information on business research projects such as, for example, consumer behavior surveys or studies of print advertising effectiveness.

To help finance and carry out these projects, the foreign professors, who had close ties with their business communities, sought the aid of Chambers of Commerce in nearby cities.

Out of those connections grew the Institute which now has two-person teams, a college faculty member and a business representative, in 12 western European countries. Still in its infancy, the Institute's aim is to expand its network in Western Europe and eventually into Central and Eastern Europe.

In an effort to broaden its U.S. connections, Diriker has sent brochures to a number of business college professors, all members of the American Marketing Association, suggesting that they join the Institute and make use of its opportunities for consultancy, teaching, research assistance and community service.

Backing up Diriker's efforts is Dr. Timothy S. Mescon, dean of the Perdue School, who said, "we are deeply committed to enhancing the global aspect of our curriculum. That coupled with the dramatic developments throughout Europe, east and west, amplify the importance of our supporting the European American Business Institute.

"Dr. Diriker has exceptional ties in Europe and is an ideal candidate to direct this effort."

Diriker's upbringing uniquely prepared him for a multinational role. He was born in Turkey, spent part of his childhood in this country, earned his undergraduate degree in industrial engineering at Aston University in England, then came to the U.S. to earn his master's and doctorate in business administration at Memphis State University.

It was there at an orientation for foreign students that he met his future wife, Veronique Lance, a French student, who also is a business consultant employed now as director of Salisbury's Downtown Revitalization Program.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

APRIL 19, 1990 VOL. XI NO. 26

Earth Day Renewal at SSU

The University Cycling Club, which pedals miles of country roads each year, initiated Earth Day celebrations on campus recently with the planting of loblolly pine seedlings on the University Center lawn. Pictured from left to right are Cheryl Recchia, Mike Lepre, Chris Hall, Kelly Steelman and Chris Johnson. Kneeling is William Nichols. Earth Day activities on campus continue through the end of April. For more information contact Dr. Ellen Lawler, SSU Earth Day Committee chair, at 546-9056.

Planting thousands of seedlings at a Wicomico County park, cleaning the beaches at Assateague Island, helping host a visit and lecture by one of the world's leading ecologists —these are some of the actions on behalf of the planet by University students for Earth Day, Sunday, April 22.

Students also will be traveling to Washington, D.C., to participate in the national rally and initiating a recycling program for the campus.

Students, who have already started planting trees at the University as part of Earth Day festivities, seem optimistic about the future of the environment. "As a biology major I'm being made aware of all the problems associated with the earth," said 21-year-old Sandy Wagner, a senior from Queenstown. President of the Biological Society, Wagner also believes the public is aware. "It's just a matter of people pulling together so we can make a difference." She is one of two dozen SSU students who on Saturday, April 21, will be planting 3,000 seedlings at San Domingo Park near Sharptown for the Wicomico County Parks Department. On Earth Day itself she plans to work at the Salisbury Zoo where she is a volunteer. "I'm looking forward to the day with people celebrating all across the nation," she said.

Earth Day activities on campus, which began with the Cycling Club planting loblolly pines around the University Center, are being "coordinated with different campus groups so that interest in preserving our enviroment won't just die after Earth Week," said Dr. Ellen Lawler, assistant professor of biology and coordinator of SSU Earth Day. Lawler has been meeting regularly with students and she gives them high marks for their commitment.

So does Les Lutz, director of horticulture, who is chair of a project which takes the first step during Earth Day week toward wide-scale recycling at the University. Some student groups such as the Social Work Club have already started smaller-scale recycling projects. "Students are involved big time in recycling planning," Lutz said. "They are 100 percent behind us." The University will start recycling aluminum in its three high rise dorms within the coming two weeks. By fall all buildings will be recycling aluminum, glass, paper and cardboard, Lutz said.

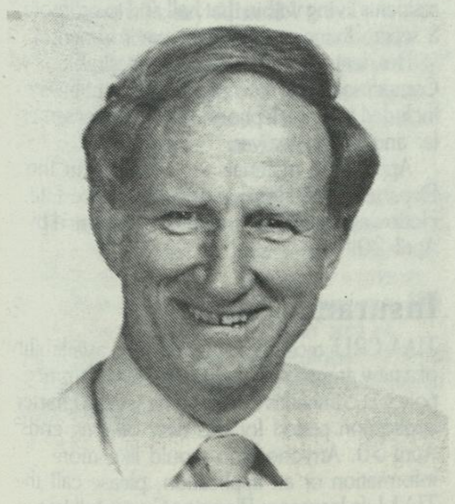
Celebrated Ecologist Highlights SSU's Earth Day

A visit by Dr. Howard T. Odum, one of the world's leading ecologists whose work has received international acclaim, highlights Earth Day celebrations at the University.

On Monday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center, Odum will give "a major address on 'Prosperity and Ecological Values,'" according to Dr. B.A. Fusaro, professor of mathematics and president of the Wicomico Environmental Trust. Admission is free and the public is invited.



Dr. Howard T. Odum

Fusaro calls Odum "one of the top two or three people internationally in the ecological movement...a creative genius." He also labels Odum, a professor at the University of Florida, "a fishbone in the throat of establishment economists" who feel the environmental engineer is encroaching on their turf. Nevertheless, the Swiss government sent an economist to study for a year with Odum. The Florida professor was elected to the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences and in 1987 was presented the academy's Crafoord Prize by King Carl Gustaf in recognition of his landmark discoveries on the workings of ecosystems. The Crafoord Prize is conferred on work in fields not covered by the Nobel Prize. Odum also has received the Prix de l'Institute de la Vie in France.

"Odum is a dynamic, provocative speaker," Fusaro said, "whose original ideas are being felt by the American business and government establishment."

In landfill policy, for example, the " . . . idea that out of sight, out of mind—reminds me of when I lived in the country as a boy," the

An Insider's View Of Environmental Matters

Maryland Delegate Samuel Q. Johnson III will visit the campus to review "Environmental Issues in the 1990 Legislative Session" on Tuesday, April 24, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in the main auditorium of Devilbiss Science Hall.

Johnson's address is part of the University's Earth Week program. A native of the Eastern Shore, Johnson has been representing the 37th Legislative District which includes parts of Wicomico County for over seven years. A member of the Environmental Matters Committee, environmental issues have been his forte in the legislature, according to Dr. Robert Hedeen, professor of biology, and a neighbor of Johnson.

N.Y. Times Reporter 'Culture of Work' Speaker

George Vecsey, a sports columnist for the New York Times who has also covered varied subjects including coal mining, religion and country music, in addition to writing over a dozen books, lectures on "Working on the Edge" on Thursday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

In 1976 Vecsey collaborated with Loretta Lynn on her autobiography, "Loretta Lynn: Coal Miner's Daughter," which became a best-seller and was made into a movie. Sissy Spacek won an Academy Award for her portrayal of Loretta Lynn.

In 1985 Vecsey helped write "Martina," the autobiography of Martina Navratilova, the tennis star. That book was on the best-seller list for 10 weeks.

He has also written "Five O'Clock Comes Early: A Young Man's Battle with Alcoholism," with Bob Welch, then of the Los Angeles Dodgers, now with the Oakland Athletics.

Vecsey's presentation is part of the University spring lecture series, "Culture of Work." Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the SSU Cultural Events Committee.

For more information call the University Center at 543-6100.

Writing Project Summer Institute Here

Teachers teaching other teachers about writing is the thrust of the Maryland Writing Project's Summer Institute at Salisbury State.

A satellite program of the highly lauded National Writing Project, the Institute runs from June 25-July 26, Monday-Thursday, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Participants, called Summer Fellows, earn six hours of graduate credit and become teaching consultants of the Maryland Writing Project.

To apply, applicants should submit a resume, letter expressing the reason for applying and any experience that could be shared with fellow participants, a letter of recommendation from a supervising administrator and a letter of recommendation from a colleague to the Maryland Writing Project, Holloway Hall, Room 333A, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Tuition is $456 plus $33 in fees. Dormitory rooms are available at an additional charge. The application deadline is April 27.

For applications materials or more information contact Curtin at 548-5594 or Gibson at 543-6443.

Barlow Performs in Sacred Music Concert

Katherine Turner Barlow, soprano, and John Bertolette, organist, perform a sacred music concert on Sunday, April 22 at 4 p.m. at Asbury United Methodist Church in Salisbury.

The program features works by such composers as Bach, Mozart, Lili Boulanger, Rossini, Gounod, Louis Vierne, Joramir Weinberger and Ned Rorem.

On May 1 Barlow joins forces with SSU colleague Roland Raffaelle for the ever-popular Bach's Lunch Recital Series at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in downtown Salisbury.

Raffaelle is the guitar instructor at Salisbury State. He and Barlow will perform a program of English lute songs by John Dowland and Sei Ariette by Vincenzo Bellini.

Barlow and Bertolette performed this sacred music program at First Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia in March to an appreciative Sunday afternoon audience.

The program is made possible by the music ministry program at Asbury United Methodist Church. The concert is free and open to the public. For further information, contact the church at 749-2131.

Medical Technology Applications Due

Students who intend to register for upper division medical technology courses are reminded that applications are due in the Department of Medical Technology by May 1.

Those who apply should have reached sophomore standing and are seeking admission effective in the fall of the junior year. Students who have previously declared the medical technology major will be given the application form when they see their individual advisors for program planning.

Others who have not previously declared the major and wish to seek application or information regarding the program should phone 543-6364 or 543-6331 for more information.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Phi Alpha Theta Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, will hold its spring initiation on Thursday, May 10, at 4 p.m.

Phi Alpha Theta requires the junior, senior or graduate student to have completed at least 12 semester hours in history courses and to have an overall B average in at least two-thirds of the remainder of all work. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For information about Phi Alpha Theta contact the co-advisors, Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Miss Clara Small of the History Department, by noon on April 23.

Attention May Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Further information regarding graduation will follow shortly.

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in social science, will hold its spring initiation on Thursday, May 10, at 5 p.m.

Pi Gamma Mu requires the completion of at least 20 hours in five social science areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations) and in some other social sciences courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography, with a B average (85 percent). In addition, eligible students should be in the top 35 percent of their class (seniors, juniors, etc.).

For information regarding specific qualifications for Pi Gamma Mu membership, students should contact the co-advisors, Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Miss Clara Small of the History Department, by noon on April 23.

WSCL GM Sought

WSCL-FM has an opening for a general manager and director of the Communications Center.

Responsibilities include administration and supervision of all station matters and management of the Communications Center. WSCL-FM is an SSU Foundation licensed station and the Foundation relates to the station via an advisory board. The general manager/director reports to the academic vice president of the University and serves as the primary representative to the station's audience, licensee, state and national agencies and the broadcast industry. As director of the Communications Center the individual is responsible for instructional media, audio-visual and television services to the University.

Qualifications include a bachelor's degree in broadcasting or related field, with master's degree preferred. Minimum five years in a management position in radio, public broadcasting or related area is required. Successful applicant must have leadership, planning and fiscal management skills; sensitive and excellent communication capabilities with the University's constituency are required.

Salary is competitive with excellent benefits.

The position will be open until filled.

Send resume and letter of application to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, Academic Vice President, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

SSU is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Resident Director

Positions Available

Salisbury State is seeking to fill four resident director positions for the fall.

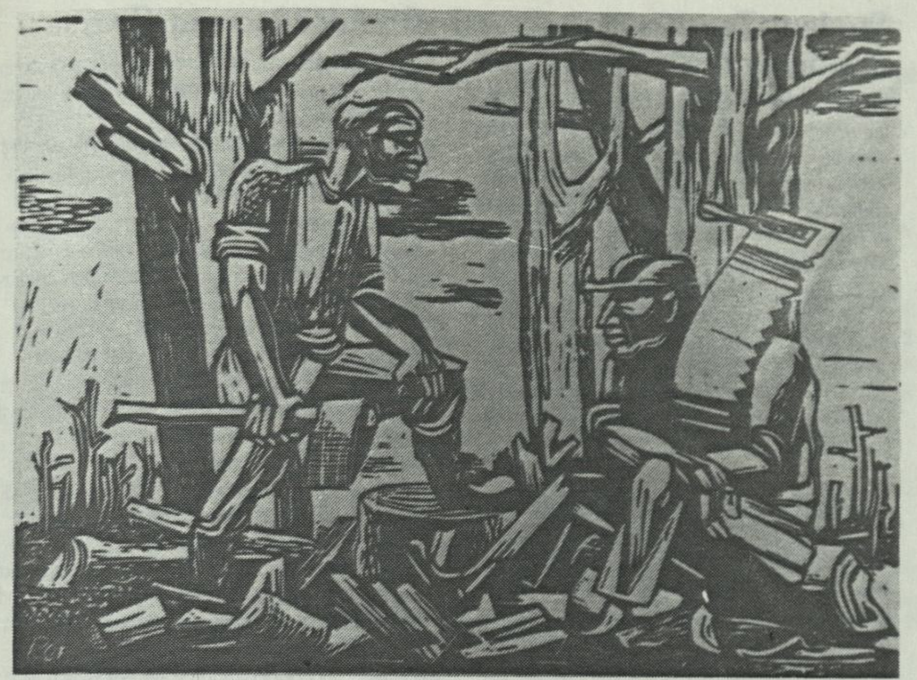
Resident directors are full-time graduate students who live in and supervise one residence hall. The major responsibility is to know the residents living within that hall and to promote a secure living and learning environment.

Residence hall experience is desirable. Compensation is room and board, utilities included except telephone, $2,250 per semester and tuition waiver.

Application materials are available in the Department of Housing and Residence Life, Holloway Hall 130, and must be returned by April 20.

Insurance Info

TIAA-CREF recently announced the availability of a new annual renewable term life insurance policy at competitive prices. The special charter application period for this new offering ends April 30. Anyone who would like more information or an application, please call the TIAA Life Insurance Planning Center toll free at 1-800-223-1200.



"Woodchoppers," a woodblock print by Anton Refrigier, is one of some 40 prints on the subject of work, now on display at the SSU Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through April 26.

'People at Work' Print Exhibition

"People at Work," an exhibition of prints, primarily from the Depression era, will be on view at the University Gallery, located on the second floor of Blackwell Library, through April 26.

Most of the works on display are examples of what became known as "American Scene" art, which emphasized typically American subject matter rendered in a simplified, representational style, so that the work could easily be understood by the general public. In addition to showing scenes of work, the exhibition also includes scenes of small towns and villages, as well as urban views.

Most of the works in the exhibition were done under the auspices of the Federal Art Project (FAP) of the Works Progress Administration. Founded in 1935 and lasting until 1943, the FAP was the best known and most extensive of several federally supported art programs, known as the New Deal art projects, which were organized by the U.S. government to give work to unemployed artists. The FAP employed painters, sculptors and graphic artists and paid them monthly stipends; sponsored mural and sculptural projects for public buildings; and developed the country's first comprehensive art education program. It also provided funds for exhibitions and for the research and documentation of American art and design.

In connection with the exhibition, the film, "Artists at Work," which documents the activities of the FAP and other New Deal art projects, will be shown on Tuesday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center. The film will be introduced by Dr. Donald Whaley of the History Department and followed by a reception in the University Gallery.

The exhibition was curated by Andrew Jay Svedlow and drawn from the holdings of the Mulvane Art Center of Washburn University in Topeka, KS. It is being circulated nationally by EXHIBITS USA, a division of the Mid-America Arts Alliance.

The University Gallery is open Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 1-5 p.m. and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5-8 p.m. Regularly scheduled Gallery talks on the exhibition given by Karen Mitchell, the Gallery's education coordinator, take place each Tuesday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Student Poem Published

A poem by one of Salisbury State's senior citizen students has been included in the 1989 edition of "American Poetry Annual."

Pearline Mitchell, a sophomore English major, is the author of "Old Lady in the Woods," a description of an old tree near her home. Another one of her poems, "The Sea," appeared in "Tidewater Times," an Easton, MD publication.

Mitchell began her studies at SSU in spring 1988 with the creative writing course which, she says, developed her interest in writing short stories as well as poetry. Most of her works are descriptive of Eastern Shore phenomena. She lives in the Quantico-Wetipquin area of Wicomico County and is the mother of seven children, all of whom are successful professional young adults.

Aids Panel Rescheduled

"Keeping the AIDS Secret: The Right to Privacy vs. The Right to Know" has been rescheduled for Tuesday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m. in Devilbiss 108/109.

The program will feature a panel discussion concerning the legal, ethical and professional issues connected with confidentiality and AIDS cases. The panel will include Joshua Volle, assistant director of HIV Antibody Testing and Counseling at the Whitman-Walker Clinic in Washington, D.C., and Gerard Chevalaz, a gay man with HIV disease. Mary Kane of the Nursing Department faculty will serve as moderator.

Funding for the program is being provided by the Salisbury State Program Board, the Gay/Lesbian Support Group, the Student Health Advisory Committee, the Student Nurses Association and the Dean of Students Office.

St. Andrew's School Choral Concert

The St. Andrews School Choir will perform a choral concert and organ recital on Sunday, April 29, at 4 p.m. in St. Stephen's United Methodist Church in Delmar, DE. A reception will immediately follow the concert.

The choir is under the direction of Marc F. Cheban. Cheban has been chapel organist and choirmaster at St. Andrew's School in Middletown, DE, since 1974. He has also extensively concertized in the northeastern United States, and performed in England, France and Italy. Cheban has also written several original organ compositions as well as choral music.

The concert choir is a distinguished group of 16 singers whose membership is determined by audition. Over the years the choir has made numerous tours, including one to France - singing in Notre Dame de Paris, Chartres Cathedral, and Rouen Cathedral. They have also toured England, Germany and Austria, performing in several renowned secular and ecclesiastical settings.

Tickets for the event are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. For further information or to reserve tickets call St. Stephen's Church office at 846-9501 from 8 a.m. - noon. Tickets will be sold at the door.

Bach's Lunch

"Bach's Lunch," a free noon-time recital series at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Salisbury, runs on consecutive Tuesdays from April 24 - May 15. The concerts begin at 12:15 p.m. and last a half hour.

Area musicians are featured and a variety of music is represented, from classical to jazz to popular. All music and lunch lovers are invited to come and enjoy a half hour of music to eat by. The concerts are free. Bring a brown bag; sodas and brownies will be sold in the Parish House. For further information call 742-5118.

Upcoming performances are: April 24, Van Williamson, jazz guitar; May 1, Jim Raffaelle, guitar, and Kathy Turner Barlow, soprano, Spanish music for voice and guitar; May 8, Consort Baroquen, Connie Bell, director, music for recorder ensemble; and May 15, Salisbury State Brass Quintet, Richard Johnson, director.

Shreve Published

Dr. Barry Shreve, assistant professor of psychology in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently had a pair of papers accepted for publication.

"Self-psychology, Shame and Adolescent Suicide: Theoretical and Practical Considerations" will appear in the Journal of Counseling and Development, a monthly publication by the American Association for Counseling and Development.

"The Role of Shame in Adolescent Suicide: A Self-psychological Perspective" will be published by the Educational Resources Information Center through its Counseling and Personnel Services Clearinghouse.

Shreve also had a paper, "Shame and Adolescent Suicide: A New Perspective," accepted for presentation at the annual conference of the American Association of Suicidology in New Orleans on April 28.

'Brighton Beach Memoirs'—Neil Simon's Love Letter

"Brighton Beach Memoirs," which T.E. Kalem in Time Magazine called "Neil Simon's love letter to his past," will be presented April 27-29 and May 3-5 by Sophanes, the student theatre club.

In "Brighton Beach Memoirs," said Kalem, we see ". . . compelling glints of an urban 'Morning's at Seven' a ghetto 'Our Town' and a wryly caustic 'Ah, Wilderness!' Like them, 'Brighton Beach Memoirs' belongs to the family genre where the passwords are forgive and remember."

Leading the cast of the SSU production is David Cherry, a senior communication arts major who appeared in "The Foreigner" and "The Pirates of Penzance." Other members of the ensemble are David Hyland, Laura Foran, Will Shupe, Heather Campbell, Kelly Sottile and Kristin Lyons. Direction and set design are by David Dull, Costume design is by Suzanne Bickford, lighting design is by Thomas H. Godwin and stage manager is Amaya Doty.

Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage. Show times are 8 p.m. except on Sunday, April 29, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff. The Theatre Box Office opens April 16 for reservations, which may be made by calling 543-6228. For more information call 543-6235.

'Songs Poets Sing' Performed Here April 19

The works of classical black poets, new fiction by an SSU professor which contrasts the male and female points of view, a translation of 19th century Spanish poem, and familiar pieces by American and English men are all part of a reading, "Songs That Poets Sing," performed by faculty on Thursday, April 19.

To be presented at 8 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall, admission is free and the public is invited.

Directed by Dr. Robert J. Wesley, the program will introduce new readers and works. Farahaa Saba, who joined the Department of Communication Arts this year, has selected four poems by black authors, which "show part of the cultural experiences of black people that normally would not be shared," she said.

William Palmer, of the Department of Modern Languages, has contributed three original works which he and Cynthia Wesley will perform.

Robert Wesley, will read Robert Brownings' "Home Thoughts From Abroad," and T.S. Eliot's "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock."

Sponsored by the Department of Communication Arts, the faculty reading hour has become an annual tradition in recent years. For more information on "Songs That Poets Sing," contact the department at 543-6229.

Teleconference Satellite

SSU now has a satellite receiver which will enable the University to receive satellite downlinks for teleconferences.

Contact Cynthia Cornish, the television studio manager, at 543-6301 for more details.

Student Teacher Application Meetings

Students who are eligible to student teach in the fall semester should follow these steps: contact advisor to determine eligibility (competency tests/NTE, professional program application, completed, GPA); and if not currently enrolled in a methods course attend the meeting scheduled on Tuesday, April 24, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Auditorium.

Since no other meetings will be held, students must attend this meeting in order to receive an application for student teaching. Questions about the application process should be directed to Sharon Clark, director of field experiences, Caruthers Hall, room 147.

Wheelchair Games Here

The ninth annual Maryland Wheelchair Games, which attracts some 200 athletes, will be held May 11-13 at Salisbury State. The event is sponsored by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury and SSU.

The Games are a series of events sanctioned by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA), the governing body for wheelchair sports in the U.S. Competition is held in weightlifting, swimming, slalom, track and field, air guns, table tennis and archery.

Anyone may enter the Maryland Wheelchair Games by completing the entry form, which is available from Elaine Harrington, DNR Office, 122 Arlington Road, Salisbury, MD 21801. NWAA regulations require that all athletes become members of the NWAA and be classified medically. Through the support of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Salisbury, there is financial assistance available for first-time athletes to join the NWAA at no charge.

For more information, call Harrington at 749-2461.

Public Service Scholarship Program

The Public Employees Roundtable announces its fifth annual scholarship program designed to encourage bright, talented college students in their pursuit of careers in government service.

Criteria for the scholarships have been established. Applicants must be currently enrolled full time in an undergraduate degree program at a four-year college or university or pursuing a graduate degree; have plans to pursue a career or continue a career in government service; and have a cumulative scholastic average of 3.5 or better.

Preference will be given to candidates with local, state or federal government/community service experience (internships, summer employment, etc.). Applicants must write an essay titled, "How My Education and Experience Prepare Me for My Chosen Public Service Career."

All application materials must be postmarked or hand-delivered by May 21. Candidates should mail the application(s) to Scholarship Committee, Public Employees Roundtable, P.O. Box 6184, Ben Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Application forms are available from the Department of Personnel's Employee Development Division located at 2100 Guilford Avenue, Baltimore, MD or by calling Wylie Campbell, employee development administrator, at (301) 333-6417.

Photosilkscreen Course

A special graduate and undergraduate course in photosilkscreen on paper will be offered through the Department of Art during the fall semester by Dr. Kent N. Kimmel. The course will be taught on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5-7 p.m. from September 5 - December 21.

"The course introduces and investigates the visual and mechanical principals utilized when the processes of silkscreen printing and high contrast photography are combined," Kimmel said. "Various mono- and polychromatic silkscreen printing techniques using direct and indirect photographic emulsions with orthochromatic film and multiple image photographic techniques will be explored."

Registrants should have a practical understanding of basic silkscreen stencil techniques as well as intermediate experience in camera and darkroom techniques.

Undergraduate degree in-person preregistration is April 9-20; undergraduate degree, graduate and undergraduate non-degree in-person registration will be June 4-13 and August 20-29; and graduate and undergraduate non-degree mail registration runs from July 10 - August 15. Early registration is suggested because the course will have a limited number of seats, the SSU art professor said.

For additional information, contact Kimmel at 543-6272 or 543-6270.

Clinton Recital Features Bach, Haydn

Mr. Mark Clinton, pianist and artist-in-residence at Salisbury State will give a solo performance Sunday, April 22, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

A Peabody Conservatory graduate under Leon Fleisher, and recipient of the Doctorate of Musical Arts under John Perry at Houston's Rice University, Clinton took first prize in 1980 in the Beethoven Society of Washington, D.C., Young Pianists Competition, as well as many other firsts in other piano competitions.

Clinton's performance on April 22 will feature the "Prelude and Fugue in B Flat Minor" by Bach, Haydn's "Sonata in C Minor," three pieces by Chopin, and in the last portion, some contemporary works: Ned Rorem's "Song and Dance" and Prokofief's "Sonanta #6 in A Major."

Salisbury Festival Volunteers Needed

"The Proud, The Few . . . The Festival Crew!" The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council is now looking for multitalented volunteers to help coordinate all events for the Salisbury Festival on the weekend of May 4-6.

Volunteers are needed in all areas for the planning stages through the actual days of the Festival.

Both individuals and organizations are welcome to volunteer. In the past Salisbury State organizations such as the Student National Education Association and Alpha Sigma Tau sorority have volunteered and greatly contributed to the success of the children's crafts area. Area businesses that have also volunteered personnel in the past include Peninsula Bank and Grumman Electronics Corporation.

For more information or to volunteer, please contact the Arts Council weekdays at 543-ARTS from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

DOLBY STEREO IN SELECTED THEATRES
EMBASSY PICTURES Release

On Thursday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center's Wicomico Room, the University Center and Wilderness Orientation students present a screening of "The Emerald Forest" as part of on-going Earth Day celebrations. The 1985 film directed by John Boorman is inspired by a true story and tells of an American engineer's 10-year search for his only son lost in the Amazon rain forest. It examines the relationships between humanity, the forces of nature and mysticism. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Zoo Gives Free Pine Seedlings

The Friends of the Salisbury Zoo (FOSZ) will host a 20th anniversary Earth Day celebration sponsored by Delmarva Power at the Salisbury Zoo on Sunday, April 22, from noon-4 p.m.

Volunteers from FOSZ and Delmarva Power will be giving away loblolly pine seedlings to encourage people to take part in the event. Puppet shows and slides on environmental topics will be presented by zoo education docents.

The Salisbury Bike Club will participate by offering free bicycle safety inspections and reflectors. The Lower Shore Herb Society will be providing information on planting and caring for herbs.

Commemorative Earth Day 1990 T-shirts will be offered for sale to benefit the Salisbury Zoo. Refreshments will be available.

National Experts Zero In on O.C.

The area's first coastal conference on Maryland's Forgotten Bays will be held May 5-6 at the Ocean City Elementary School in west Ocean City.

These bays, consisting of Assawoman, Isle of Wight, Sinepuxent, Newport and Chincoteague, are under assault from many directions. With the passing of the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area Laws, developers are besieging the unprotected coastal mainland with plans for more marinas, golf courses, housing and trailer parks.

Citizens can learn how to voice their concerns and become active in the process of saving these bays.

The following nationally recognized experts will be speaking: Orrin Pilkey, Ph.D., director, marine research, Duke University; James B. Duke, professor of geology, Duke University; John R. Pomponio, chief, Environmental Impact & Marine Policy Branch, U.S. EPA, Region III; James Chambers, Ph.D., National Marine Fisheries; Edward Christoffers, Ph.D., National Marine Fisheries; Stephen P. Leatherman, Ph.D., director, University of Maryland Center for Global Change, and director, Laboratory for Coastal Research; Robert Knecht, Ph.D., co-director, Center for the Study of Marine Policy, University of Delaware, and former assistant administrator of NOAA, U.S. Department of Commerce; and J. Charles Fox, political director, Friends of the Earth.

Afternoon workshops will be conducted by environmental specialists and aimed at providing citizens with the skills and tools necessary to help save Maryland's coastal bays from destruction. Some of the workshop topics will be: "The Permitting Process," "Maryland's Coastal Grants" and "Sea Level Rise."

Registration cost is $20 which includes Saturday's workshops and lunch. Sunday there will be a two-hour tour of the bays aboard the Bay Queen for an additional cost of $5.

Deadline for registration is April 21. For registration information call Joan Willey, Sierra Club, 1116-C West Street, Annapolis, MD 21401. For other information, the Eastern Shore contact is Ilia Fehrer at 632-2640.

Beautification Project At Newtown Site

The Newtown Association begins a beautification project at Robin's Nest Park, a small public park located at the corner of Parsons and Gay Streets, on Saturday, April 21, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. The initial work will include planting trees, installing brick pavers and general cleanup of the park. Equipment and supplies will be provided.

Students, faculty and staff who are Newtown residents are encouraged to participate in the activity, which is co-sponsored by the Town-Student Coalition. This is an excellent opportunity to meet neighbors, students and landlords, and make friends and contribute to the enhancement of one's neighborhood. It's also a great way to celebrate Earth Day. Refreshments are being donated by the Salisbury Property Owner's Association.

For more information contact Bob Heid, Student Senate president, at 749-8824 (home) or 548-4757 (office).

Stephen Peet

British Film Director Stephen Peet To Visit

In 1989 the documentary feature "Roger & Me" told the story of Flint, MI, in the 1980s, after General Motors had closed down its auto plants and destroyed the city's local economy. Another documentary that shows Flint during better days is "The Great Sit-Down," produced for the British Broadcasting Corporation and directed by filmmaker Stephen Peet as part of his BBC series "Yesterday's Witness in America."

On Monday, April 23, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Science Hall Auditorium Peet will present his film in person. His appearance is sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee as part of the "Culture of Work" lecture series.

Peet's film tells the story of the sit-down strike against General Motors in 1937, the strike that gave the United Auto Workers the power to bargain with the major auto producers for better wages and improved working conditions.

Peet, who also will lecture on documentary filmmaking on Tuesday, April 24, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium, created the extremely successful, "Yesterday's Witness" series that ran for a decade on BBC television. He not only created the series but personally directed half of the 80 films produced over a dozen years. He is regarded as the film director of who introduced the idea of oral history to British television.

The public is invited to both the film showing and lectures. For additional information, call 543-6100 or 543-6030.

Chris Brady Performs At Gull's Nest

Singer, songwriter Chris Brady, who just released his debut LP on Lauris Records, performs Wednesday, April 18, at 9 p.m. at the Gull's Nest.

Brady is touring the club and college circuit as a one-man show, using his voice and acoustic guitar to promote his new album and to cover songs by other artists such as James Taylor, Jimmy Buffet, John Cougar Mellencamp and others. Although he is a solo act, his show is high energy and involves the entire audience in sing-alongs such as "American Pie" and "Amy." His debut LP, "Risk It All," is getting good reviews. It consists of 10 Brady originals, recorded near his hometown of Charlotte, NC, and was produced by Jamie Hoover, who along with other Charlotte musicians backs up Brady on the LP.

Dr. Bellavance receives a $20,000 check from H. Furlong Baldwin, chairman of Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company in Baltimore, to endow the Peninsula and Mercantile Banks Scholarship. The gift will allow students in the Perdue School of Business to attend the International Business Seminar, a three-week trip in January to five European countries featuring visits to 20 multinational corporations. Peninsula Bank in Salisbury and Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company are affiliates of Mercantile Bankshares Corporation.

Peninsula, Mercantile Fund New Scholarship

H. Furlong Baldwin, chairman of Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company headquartered in Baltimore, and Hugh W. Mohler, president of Peninsula Bank here, announced a joint gift of $20,000 by those banks to endow a scholarship for Eastern Shore residents attending the Perdue School of Business. Both banks are affiliates of Mercantile Bankshares Corporation.

The Peninsula and Mercantile Banks Scholarship will enable Perdue School students to participate in the International Business Seminar, a three-week trip in January to five European countries featuring visits to 20 multinational corporations.

"We are very grateful to Mercantile and Peninsula for their investment in Salisbury State University," said Dr. Bellavance. "This gift is a validation by the corporate community of what the Perdue School is doing. That's important to me."

"Salisbury State University is a leading academic institution on the Delmarva Peninsula," said Baldwin, a native of Northampton County on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. "Along with Peninsula in Salisbury, we at Mercantile are delighted to provide this scholarship for students from the Shore.

"We hope this gift enables Salisbury State University to continue to fulfill its very visible commitment to the community," said Baldwin, who has held his position as chairman of the board at Mercantile since 1984. He is extremely active in community affairs and serves as chairman of the board of trustees of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Baldwin is also on the boards of Baltimore Gas & Electric Company, Consolidated Rail Corporation, Constellation Holdings, Inc. and USF&G Corporation.

Mercantile has a number of affiliated banks on the Shore in Maryland and Virginia and recently added Delaware to the states it serves.

Mohler said, "We are pleased to join Mercantile in making this gift. Not only does the endowment aid local Eastern Shore residents, it also supports the Perdue School, which has done such a magnificent job over the last few years under the leadership its dean, Dr. Timothy Mescon."

Mohler, like Baldwin, is also community leader. He is on the board of trustees of Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center and the board of directors of Salisbury Wicomico Economic Development, Inc. and Somerset County Economic Development. He is vice chairman of the Greater Salisbury Committee and chairman of the Salisbury School. He is also on the board of Delmarva Oil Co.

Baldwin was introduced to the University community last fall when he made a presentation in the Perdue School's Great Leader Lecture Series. Mescon sees the new Peninsula and Mercantile Banks Scholarship as completing a link for students initiated by the Great Leader Series.

"The lecture series exposes students to CEOs and CEOs to students," said Mescon. "This private sector funding allows students to see first hand what they have been studying in the classroom and what these business leaders have been discussing."

Mescon added, "the Perdue School needs to recognize the importance of the globalization of industry in today's world market so we can effectively prepare managers for the next century. We appreciate the vision shown by these two banks in meeting scholarship opportunities to make this happen."

Fleming Selected

Dr. Jessie L. Fleming, professor of music in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, was selected to sing with the Music Educators National Conference Chorus at the MENC National Convention in Washington, D.C. on March 30. Another member of the ensemble was Virginia K. Russell, a former faculty member of the SSU Music Department.

The chorus, comprised of 75 singers representing 17 states, performed the Faure "Requiem" in a memorial concert to honor deceased members of MENC. The conductor was Dr. Harold Decker, retired professor of music at the University of Illinois.

Fleming attended a variety of seminars, lectures and demonstrations, and also heard several fine concerts by high school and college ensembles, as well as the U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force bands. Fleming is a life member of MENC.

Talent Scout Comes to Campus

"Rising young stars and talented hopefuls will want to attend this exciting program," said Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre.

Salisbury State Theatre brings Peter Sklar to campus on Thursday, April 19, at 3:30 p.m. Sklar conducts programs nationwide designed to bring young people interested in the performing arts together to learn the business of "show business" and to recruit new talent for the leading casting directors of New York who handle young people for commercials, television, film and, of course, Broadway.

Sklar's session involves a 45-minute discussion of the ins and outs of auditions, with plenty of opportunity for questions and answers. This is followed by a brief videotaped interview during which Sklar offers individual suggestions and advice. Later, the videotape serves as a reminder of those interviewed.

Sklar then contacts those students eligible for his summer training course. The course, a nine-day program, involves over 30 hours of professional workshops, classes and private coaching and culminates at the master's level in a solo monologue, song or dance on an off-Broadway stage in front of an audience of leading casting people, agents and managers. Many of these casting directors attend sessions at the camp as instructors offering valuable advice.

"This is a remarkable opportunity for any young person (age five to college age) who has acting aspirations," said Pfeiffer.

The seminar is free of charge and will be presented at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 19, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. No preparations are needed. All young people are welcome.

Services Specialist

The Horticulture Department is seeking a coordinator to implement the needs of the Athletic Department with respect to playing fields.

Applicants should be familiar with athletic complex operations and have a working knowledge of field lining, athletic equipment set up and turf management including turf nutrition, seeding, sodding, rolling, aerating and mowing. Responsibilities include performing the aforementioned duties, supervising others and ensuring coordination between the Athletic and Horticulture departments.

Effective oral and written communication skills are mandatory. Applicants should have completed high school or GED and have at least five years of full-time work experience, including one year of supervisory experience. Work on some Saturdays, Sundays and possibly holidays, with appropriate compensation, will be required. This is a full-time state position with a starting salary of $17,261.

Interested applicants should submit a resume to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801 by April 27. Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Customer Service Seminar

"It costs five times as much to get a new customer as to keep a customer you already have."

That has been a truism in customer service circles for more than 50 years. The acquisition cost per customer is lowered with each additional or repeat purchase.

"How to Design, Implement and Manage a Superior Customer Service Program" is the title of a two-day seminar offered to sales managers, middle managers or senior executives, anyone in the corporate world, on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 24 and 25, from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. each day, at the University Center.

The registration fee for the seminar is $795 per person and includes luncheons, refreshment breaks and all meeting materials. To register call the Perdue School of Business at 543-6394.

Lifeguard/Pool Operator Course

Those individuals who are currently certified with advanced lifesaving may retrain in the new lifeguard training course beginning on Friday, April 27, to Sunday, April 29. The class will be held in the Maggs Center. The fee for the course is $25.

SSU will also host a National Pool and Spa Institute (NSPI) Certified Pool Operators course on Friday, May 5, to Sunday, May 7. The course satisfies new Maryland state health regulations. The fee for the course is $145.

For more information or application forms contact Rosie Barretta, aquatic director, at 543-6357 or 543-6340.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

The men's lacrosse team will put its 8-2 record and sixth place national ranking on the line against Hampden-Sydney on Saturday in a 1 p.m. game. SSU has won its last four contests and six of its last seven, while Hampden-Sydney is 6-4 overall and ranked 15th in this week's polls. Following Saturday's game, the Gulls close out the season with games at Washington College and Kutztown as SSU looks for a return trip to the NCAA Tournament.

The women's lacrosse team plays its final regular season game next Wednesday when it hosts Goucher at 4:30 p.m. Coach Dawn Chamberlin's team will then finish the season in the Maryland State Tournament, where the Gulls will look to defend their 1989 championship.

Also looking to defend its championship is the men's tennis squad, which plays in the ESAC Championships at Allentown, PA this Saturday. Salisbury State gets a final tune-up with a match at Cabrini on Friday, beginning at 3 p.m. The women's tennis squad, which played its conference season in the fall, closes out its spring season with a match against UMES on Tuesday.

Deane Deshon's baseball team plays a pair of conference doubleheaders on the road this weekend, with two games at Frostburg State on Saturday and two at Shenandoah on Sunday. Mark Perry and Brad Beck, who have each won their last two pitching outings with complete game efforts, are scheduled to take the mound on Saturday. This weekend's four games should determine whether the Gulls will return to the ESAC Championship game and have a chance to defend their '89 crown.

The women's softball squad, now 8-9 overall, visits Trenton State on Thursday, then hosts Shenandoah in an ESAC matchup on Friday. The Gulls will have little time to rest however, as they also welcome Kean College on Sunday. The men's and women's track teams travel to Emmitsburg, MD, this Saturday for the Mason/Dixon Relays at Mount St. Mary's College.

Patt Prepares for Gala

Gerry Patt (left) and student Steve Collins are shown working on the setting for Salisbury State University Foundation's 11th annual Gala on Saturday, April 28. Tickets are available for the Gala and may be obtained by calling the Foundation office at 543-6175.

It's one of the hottest tickets in town. It's the social event of the year. It has all of the aura of "Opening Night."

And for Gerry Patt, for all practical purposes the 11th annual Salisbury State University Foundation Gala is Opening Night, accompanied by all the nervous apprehension that goes with being the set designer for a major Broadway production.

This year, like the last four, Patt is in charge of transforming a college cafeteria into something it very definitely was never intended to be. On Saturday evening of April 28, in keeping with this Gala's theme of "Casablanca," the Ruth Powell Dining Hall will magically become Rick's Cafe American, with palm trees, Moroccan arches, paddle fans, a white piano—even waiters wearing fezzes.

"There will be lots of shadows projected on to the walls," said Patt describing his attempt to recreate the atmosphere from the 1943 Oscar winning movie about romance and intrigue in Nazi-controlled Morocco and starring Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman.

"We're going to do some real fun things," said Patt. "It will be interesting to see if we can pull it off."

After four straight Oscar-deserving efforts, Patt has precious few critics.

"If he can pull it off? Did he really say that," said Robert Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation. "Probably the single most exhilirating aspect of Gala evening is the decor, the way Gerry manages to create a unique atmosphere each year. No one's worried about what Gerry is going to do. Quite the contrary, we're like kids counting down to Christmas, exceedingly anxious to open that big, elegantly wrapped present from the uncle who never fails to satisfy. We can't wait to see how Gerry is going to top last year."

That would be "Phantom of the Opera," in which Patt used 4 ft. by 8 ft. stylish air brush pictures of the Phantom by SSU student Ed Cox to masterful effect.

"We even had a (student dressed as the) Phantom gliding through the cocktail party crowd," recalled Patt. "It was a neat evening."

His favorite was the "Black and White" theme of the 1987 Gala.

"It was pure class," said Patt recalling the giant Beardsley prints, the black and white drapes, the tables covered with white calla lilies and black ribbons. There were so many things we could do in terms of set and decor, but what we did fit. It was elegant."

Patt's artistry should surprise no one. Before joining the SSU communication arts faculty as the designer and technical director for the theatre program, he was a set designer in New York for 12 years. His credits include soap operas "One Life to Live," Ryan's Hope" and "All My Children" as well as the legitimate theatre ("Evita" and "Dracula") and industrial shows.

Still, that wealth of experience did not completely prepare him for the singular problems—err, "challenges"—in preparing the dining hall for a major social event.

"For a scene designer," said Patt, "there are a lot of parallels between what we do on stage for a theatre performance and the dining hall's transformation on Gala night. The run for the Gala is not that long (one night in fact), but the preparation is not much different—stage design, sound, lighting.

"Of course the dining hall was not constructed with a theatrical production in mind," said Patt smiling.

The biggest hurdle to get over each year says Patt is the vestibule between the two main dining rooms. It was almost his undoing for "Black and White" in what Patt characterized as his most "hare-brained scheme."

Patt and his hard-working and underappreciated crew of students strung tiny white Christmas lights between the two rooms—hundreds of tiny white Christmas lights.

"If I had ever known how much time it would take to string all of those lights," said Patt shaking his head without answering his own hypotetical question. "And, they kept going out. In the end, though, I must say they were very effective."

For "Casablanca" Patt has ideas popping on and off incessantly.

"I've seen the movie nine times and every time I see it again I see something different," said Patt.

So Gala goers will have to wait until 6:30 on the evening of April 28 to see what Patt has pulled off this year.

As in the previous five years, Patt will work until 2 a.m. the night before the Gala, then from 9 in the morning right up until showtime. He will return around 7:30, as debonair as ever, his prematurely gray hair a handsome contrast to his black tuxedo, and enjoy a glass of champagne, a nice meal and some conversation.

When the ball is over for most, however, there's still work to be done by Patt, who must dissassemble Rick's Cafe and convert it back into a cafeteria for hungry college students.

Opening Night is after all Closing Night at the Gala for Gerry Patt. However, the accolades never seem to end.

Tickets for the Gala are available and cost $150 per couple. For tickets or additional information contact the Office of Research and Development at 543-6175.

Bradley Gives Furnace Town Talk

Bradley Gives Furnace Town Talk "The People of Furnace Town" is the subject of a presentation to be given by Sylvia Bradley of the History Department at Furnace Town historic site on Thursday, April 26, at 7 p.m. This will be the keynote address for the opening of the newly redesigned R. Frank Jones Museum and the new exhibit, "The People of Furnace Town," a project made possible in part by a grant from the Maryland Council for the Humanities.

The museum exhibits will be open for viewing beginning at 6:30 p.m. Call 632-2032 for more information.

No Greens Fees At Nassawango Club

Nassawango Country Club is waiving its greens fee charge for golfers playing the Snow Hill course from Monday, April 23, through Sunday, April 29.

Greens and fairways are in superior condition, according to club officials. Additionally, the club recently purchased a new golf cart fleet. (Please note, those taking advantage of the greens fees waiver must ride a cart, which is not included in the offer.)

Full membership at Nassawango is limited to 450 members. There is a $500 savings on full-membership initiation fees for those who join before May 31.

For more details on membership call Wayne Blades at 749-0510. For tee times call 632-3114.

Employee Opinion Survey

Employee Opinion Survey Mercer, Meidinger and Hansen, the consultants for the University of Maryland System's pay study, have provided each campus with an individual copy of the employee opinion survey results as they applied to that campus. Any employee who is interested in reading more about the survey results may come to the Personnel Office and review a copy.

Hedeen, author of "Naturalist of the Nanticoke" and "The Oyster, the Life and Lore of the Celebrated Bivalve," credits the Wicomico delegate with putting the brakes on the U.S. Navy's Empress II project which would have shot electrical current into Tangier Sound. Johnson also was instrumental in drafting the Critical Areas bill which put state limits on wetlands development and seeing it through the torturous legislative process. Johnson has gained a reputation as a compromiser between western shore and Eastern Shore interests which are frequently at loggerheads on environmental matters, Hedeen said.

Johnson's talk is free and the public is invited. His appearance is sponsored by the SSU Earth Day Committee.

From EARTH DAY, Page 1

According to Dr. B.A. Fusaro, professor of mathematics and coordinator of Wicomico County Earth Day, highlight of SSU's Earth Day activities is "a major address by one of the world's most innovative ecologists and environmentalists, Dr. H.T. Odum." Odum will be at the University for Earth Day and honored at a dinner in the University Center sponsored by the Wicomico Environmental Trust (WET).

On Monday, April 23, he will speak on "Prosperity and Ecological Values." According to Fusaro, who is president of WET, Odum is "one of the top two or three people internationally" in the ecological movement—"he's a creative genius." Trained as an environmental engineer, the University of Florida professor was elected to the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences and presented the academy's Crafoord Prize by King Carl Gustaf in recognition of Odum's landmark discoveries on the workings of ecosystems. The Crafoord Prize is conferred on work in fields not covered by the Nobel Prize. Odum also has received the Prix de l'Institute de la Vie in France. His address is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Activities also are planned for the weeks before and after Earth Day including a film, display, letter writing campaign, outdoor games and a political update on environmental issues in the 1990 Maryland legislature presented by Del. Samuel Q. Johnson III of Wicomico County. Johnson serves on the house Environmental Matters Committe.

Activites will conclude, as they began, with a tree planting ceremony in Red Square on Friday, April 27, at 10 a.m.

For more information on Earth Day activities at SSU, contact Lawler, SSU Earth Day Committee chair, at 543-6496.

For information on Wicomico County Earth Day activities, contact Fusaro at 543-6470.

From ODUM, Page 10

65-year-old Odum said. "Every afternoon my mother would send me out to dig a hole and put the garbage in the ground. The older I got, the harder it got to find a place. When you think of a small boy doing that, you see how stupid it is.

"One thing you don't want to do is further concentrate it (garbage); you want to get it back to nature in a way that nature can use it," he said. "You want to re-use what you can, and disperse the rest. Nature can take a rusting can here and there, but not all in one place. If it can't be broken down by nature, then don't make it: We've already done that with DDT and some other things."

One impediment to changing the way we value our resources, Odum suggests, is America's too-recent emergence from a rural tradition. "The economy looks around and says, 'What's working?' and that's what everyone does," he noted. "In pioneer times, what worked was borrowing money, dog-eat-dog, grabbing land in Oklahoma.... We're still carrying those ethics with us...," although he believes now we're starting to argue about them.

"A pet interest of Odum's is wetlands," Fusaro noted, "and Odum created the Center for Wetlands at (the University of) Florida." He and his colleagues found little sympathy in the halls of commerce in the 1960s and '70s when they argued that swampland was a valuable commodity.

Their premise that the mucky swamps with a rotten-egg smell were the key to the pure water gushing out of Florida's limestone springs seemed too far-fetched, Odum said.

Now, increasingly people comprehend that wetlands are a vast natural filtering system. Water accumulates in the wetlands. Some impurities in the water become nutrients for aquatic plants. Other impurities are left behind in the layers of deep mud as the water works its way to the limestone.

Then "a couple of cases of toxic contamination" of groundwater supplies occurred in Florida and communities and businesses discovered how expensive it was to deal with those problems. As more groundwater contamination occurs, Odum thinks the proposal that wetlands be bought and used for water filtration will seem more practical.

According to Fusaro, comparisons have been made to Florida's wetlands and those on the Eastern Shore.

The moon might still belong to everyone, but the best things in life—air, water and the like—should no longer be considered free (for exploitation), Odum noted.

As for Odum's economic theories, Fusaro said the Florida scientist has tried to create a measure for nature's contribution to a community's or society's economy. He has tried to do so in an accessible language that the layman can understand.

"Mainstream economists blithely ignore nature's contributions to our economic well-being, for example the value of tides, winds, the cleaning action of wetlands—they refer to these as 'externals' which don't count," the SSU mathematician said. "What they really mean is they don't know how to calculate their value. This has led to all kinds of long-term development problems which usually result in higher taxes for the public," Fusaro said. "We're starting to see that here on the Eastern Shore. Who knows, maybe Odum's visit will ultimately save area taxpayers some money."

The Florida scientist credits the first Earth Day in 1970 with launching the 1970s environmental movement which caught many journalists and government leaders off-guard.

"When I was a boy, nobody did anything about race in the South," he pointed out. "Then, there was a pulse, and something was done. That's the way it happens when a need builds up. You can say what you would do today, and then go to a public meeting and feel the need that has built up, and boom—something happens."

Odum's visit to Salibury is sponsored by the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology and the Wicomico Environmental Trust. On Sunday, April 22, the trust is sponsoring a dinner in Odum's honor at the University Center. A few tickets at $10 each are still available. For information call Dot Goetz at 742-0930.

Federally Funded $500,000 Project Established for Nursing Education

Over the next three years, some 60 licensed practical nurses, nursing assistants and nursing students from disadvantaged backgrounds will have the opportunity to earn their B.S. degree in nursing at Salisbury State through the help of a new $500,000 federally-funded and University-backed program.

Called the MENTOR project, it is named after the Greek nobleman known for his wise counsel, and under whose guise Athena, the goddess of wisdom, sometimes appeared.

The MENTOR proposal has had the enthusiastic support of education officials in three states as well as the backing of Maryland's U.S. senators.

"I think this program is an excellent example of the federal and state governments working together through a Maryland university to confront two critical needs: the nursing shortage in rural areas and economic opportunity through education for the disadvantaged," said Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes. "MENTOR is in the best tradition of public service showing both commitment and imagination."

"We are particularly fortunate that our senators from Maryland provide strong national support for nursing education and health care proposals," said Dr. Bellavance.

"They make it possible for programs such as this to exist. Their backing allows SSU to offer important needed projects for the Eastern Shore."

"The proposed program . . . (will) provide a great service to the people of the lower Delmarva Peninsula, a region with areas of economically disadvantaged people and a shortage of trained health care professionals," added Shaila Aery, Maryland Secretary of Higher Education.

MENTOR (Meeting Education Needs Through Outreach and Retention) has been endorsed by the superintendents of 12 school systems on the lower Shore, including those in Virginia and Delaware. SSU will be establishing a recruitment and referral network with these and other high school agencies, said Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences.

Dr. Bellavance and Dr. Elizabeth Barfield, dean of the School of Nursing and Health Sciences, are shown with U.S. Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes.

Stipends will be provided to 10 students the first year, 18 the second and 24 the third, Barfield estimates. The program also will give individualized attention including tutoring to others who may not need financial help.

Over three years the federal goverment is expected to contribute $413,299. The University will provide in-kind contributions which will place the value of the project in excess of $500,000, Barfield said.

In Memoriam

Lisa Ann Kolodny, a 21-year-old Salisbury State University senior, died Saturday in a fire at a house she shared with two other students on Woodcrest Ave.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Kolodny of Gaithersburg.

An elementary education major, Lisa was "enthusiastic and always bright-eyed," her advisor, Dr. Lee Garigliano said. Scheduled to do her student teaching next semester, "she was eager to work with children," and had served as a volunteer in several off-campus children's programs.

Friends and faculty described her as "a bubbly personality with a great sense of humor...a super person," Dr. Carolyn Bowden added.

Vice President of Kappa Psi Kappa sorority, Lisa was a volunteer at the Pemberton Elementary after school care program, organized a sorority visit to Peninsula General Hospital Medical Center's pediatric unit to entertain children at Halloween, and last summer worked for the Wicomico County Department of Parks and Recreation playground program. She also was involved with the Special Olympics. She headed up her sorority's Super City Walkathon for muscular dystrophy and had been nominated by KPK for the Outstanding Female Greek Award.

A member of the Student National Education Association (SNEA), she was scheduled to be initiated into Kappa Delta Pi, the international honor society for education, next Monday.

Said one good friend, "No matter what the situation, Lisa always put other people before herself. No matter how down, she always had a smile on her face."

Services were held on Tuesday at the Danzansky-Goldberg Memorial Chapel in Rockville. An oncampus memorial service will be scheduled at a later date. As an expression of sympathy, the family suggests that contributions be made in Lisa's memory to the Special Olympics.

System Pay Study Releases Results of Employee Survey

A distinct majority of University of Maryland System employees are satisfied working on their campuses and feel very positive about their supervisors.

But, only about one out of five is satisfied with the System's policies dealing with pay. Few understand how salary decisions are made and fewer than half feel their job descriptions accurately summarize their current jobs.

These are among the findings of last December's survey of System employees and focus group meetings with groups of employees at each of the 11 System campuses early in the new year.

Results of the Systemwide pay program study undertaken by the consulting firm of Mercer Meidinger Hansen will be used to reposition the System's pay program, according to interim chancellor, James A. "Dolph" Norton.

About half (4,808) of the recipients completed the mail-in survey form, and, because such a broad cross-section of employees participated, the results have a high degree of accuracy, notes project manager Bram Groen.

Overall, according to the study, about two-thirds of those surveyed say they are satisfied with their jobs. A majority believe their supervisor does a good job, is fair, and generally sets high standards for work.

Supervisors, however, feel they do not have enough authority and flexibility when it comes to salary policies and classification decisions.

Most employees were candid about what they see as shortcomings in the UMS pay policies and most give the pay program marginal marks.

In both the survey and focus groups, employees identified four aspects of the current pay program that need attention.

Internal equity. Employees believe that similar jobs on campus don't always receive similar pay and many feel pay is unfair between campuses.

Competitiveness of salaries. Most employees believe their salaries are lower than those paid by other local employers.

Classifications. Many employees believe job classification should be a more objective process and expressed confusion over how and why positions become reclassified.

Pay for performance. Most employees feel their supervisors do recognize their day-to-day performance and contributions. Many, however, would like to see a stronger link between exceptional performance and pay decisions.

Medical Technology Applications Due

Students who intend to register for upper division medical technology courses are reminded that applications are due in the Department of Medical Technology by May 1.

Those who apply should have reached sophomore standing and are seeking admission effective in the fall of the junior year. Students who have previously declared the medical technology major will be given the application form when they see their individual advisors for program planning.

Others who have not previously declared the major and wish to seek application or information regarding the program should phone 543-6364 or 543-6331 for more information.

Insurance Info

TIAA-CREF recently announced the availability of a new annual renewable term life insurance policy at competitive prices. The special charter application period for this new offering ends April 30. Anyone who would like more information or an application, please call the TIAA Life Insurance Planning Center toll free at 1-800-223-1200.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Accounting Seminar

A one-day business seminar, "Managing the Accounting Department," will be held on Monday, April 30, from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. at the University Center.

The seminar is designed for potential supervisors, new managers, experienced managers, and owners and executives. They will learn to set objectives, develop organizational skills, create management standards, motivate and communicate, and develop people.

Leading the seminar will be Gregg M. Heininger, senior partner of Heininger & Murtaugh Corporate Consultants, principal of Gregg M. Heininger Certified Public Accountants and chairman of Bright Horizon Holding Company, a newly formed mini-conglomerate primarily dealing in the area of importing and distribution. He previously taught undergraduate and graduate courses in accounting and finance at Rutgers University.

The registration fee is $325. For registration materials contact the Perdue School of Business at 543-6394.

Harrington Published

Dr. Gary Harrington, assistant professor of English in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, recently published "Faulkner's Fables of Creativity: The Non-Yoknapatawpha Novels" with the Macmillan Press in Britain and the University of Georgia Press in the United States.

Harrington's book explores connections among the five novels Faulkner set outside of his fictional county of Yoknapatawpha and speculates upon the relationship of these five novels to the Faulkner canon as a whole.

In an interview which Faulkner gave late in his career, he maintained that "a writer's total output should have a design." "Faulkner's Fables of Creativity" examines the ways in which the non-Yoknapatawhpha novels constitute a crucial component of the Faulknerian design.

Harrington participated in the National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Institute, "The Southern Novel and the Southern Community," in June and July last year at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. For the last three years in succession Harrington has been selected by the NEH to evaluate proposals in the field of American literature for the NEH's Younger Scholars Program, a program which provides funding to high school and university students to enable them to devote their summers to humanities based projects.

Ralston Presents Papers

Dr. Scott Ralston, an assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, presented two papers in March.

The first was titled "Use of the Box-Cox Methodology to Estimate the Functional Form of a Contingent Valuation Model" and was presented at the Southern Regional Science Association annual meetings in Washington, D.C.

The second paper was presented at the Southwestern Economics Association annual meetings in Fort Worth, TX and was titled "Use of a Contingent Valuation Model to Estimate Recreational Benefits."

'Brighton Beach Memoirs'– Neil Simon's Love Letter

"Brighton Beach Memoirs," which T.E. Kalem in Time Magazine called "Neil Simon's love letter to his past," will be presented April 27-29 and May 3-5 by Sophanes, the student theatre club.

In "Brighton Beach Memoirs," said Kalem, we see ". . . compelling glints of an urban 'Morning's at Seven' a ghetto 'Our Town' and a wryly caustic 'Ah, Wilderness!' Like them, 'Brighton Beach Memoirs' belongs to the family genre where the passwords are forgive and remember."

Leading the cast of the SSU production is David Cherry, a senior communication arts major who appeared in "The Foreigner" and "The Pirates of Penzance." Other members of the ensemble are David Hyland, Laura Foran, Will Shupe, Heather Campbell, Kelly Sottile and Kristin Lyons. Direction and set design are by David Dull, Costume design is by Suzanne Bickford, lighting design is by Thomas H. Godwin and stage manager is Amaya Doty.

Performances are in Holloway Hall on stage. Show times are 8 p.m. except on Sunday, April 29, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. Tickets are free to SSU students, faculty and staff. The Theatre Box Office opens April 16 for reservations, which may be made by calling 543-6228. For more information call 543-6235.

Meehan Participates In NEH Program

Dr. Grady B. Meehan, assistant professor of geography in the Henson School of Science and Technology, has been selected to be a participant in the Summer Seminars for College Teachers program funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

He will be one of 12 participants in the six-week seminar, "The Role of Technology in American History," being held at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, OH, starting June 26.

The purpose of the NEH Summer Seminar Program is to provide college teachers from around the country with the opportunity for advanced study in fields related to their interests.

Meehan's long-standing interest in technological development and modernization were rekindled during the fall semester when he was selected to participate in the first Faculty Global Seminar sponsored by Salisbury State. He feels that the seminar was a valuable experience, allowing him to provide a global perspective in his course, "Introduction to Human Geography." He also teaches the cartography courses in the department.

On April 7, Meehan participated as an invited speaker at a conference sponsored by the University of Vermont and Apple Computer called, "The Macintosh Computer in the University Curriculum." His talk, "Urban Mapping and Census Data," was one of the more than 30 presentations at the conference.

Over 200 persons from colleges and universities from northern New England and New York state attended the two-day conference. Topics presented by speakers were drawn from teaching and research applications in physical and social sciences, humanities, engineering and medicine.

Dr. Robert Crist

Translating Literature Subject of Lecture

"The Experience of Translating" literature from one language into another is the subject of a talk by Dr. Robert Crist of the University of Athens, Greece, on Thursday, April 26, at 4 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 102.

Part of the English Department's Scholars-on-the-Shore series, the lecture, "will be lively, informal and informative" said SSU professor Michael Waters. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Born in Huntington, NY, Crist grew up in West Virginia and was educated at Haverford College and the University of Chicago where he earned his Ph.D.

He has taught at De Paul University, Pennsylvania State University and the University of Colorado, and is currently Professor of American Literature at the University of Athens.

His critical studies include "The Works of Georgos Heimonas"; "Four American Modernists: Frost, Eliot, Williams, Stevens"; "Structures of Whitman's Leaves"; and "Language and Being in Faulkner." His poetry, translations and criticism have appeared in World Literature Today, Translation Review, Prairie Schooner, Lexi, Nea Estia, English in Texas and other journals.

Among his translations from the Greek are works by Samarakis, Stampoulopoulos, Papapetrou, Nobel Prize-winner Elytis, Maragkou, Xanthoulis, Alexandrou and Heimonas. He is a resident of Greece and his wife, Despina, is a fiction writer and critic.

For more information contact the English Department at 543-6445.

Senior Art Show

The University's 17th annual Senior Art Show has its opening on Saturday, April 28, from 7-9 p.m. The public is invited to the exhibition and to the reception hosted by the graduating art majors.

The show is located in the University Gallery on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open until May 17. For more information or Gallery hours contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

James Burgess, chair of the Art Department, said, "There will be a wide variety of art work from these talented seniors which will include printmaking, drawing, painting, photography, ceramics, sculpture and advertising design."

Student portfolios will be presented to the public during opening night.

Exhibiting senior artists include Dreux Carpenter, Dale Chandler, Cathy Castle, Sara Hammett, Claudia Hannon, Cecilia Hochmuth, Robert Jadick, Debbie Lynn, Susan Massey, Patrick McNulty, Judy Smethurst, Steven Spalding and Scott Willing.

Attention May Graduates

Caps and gowns will be available in the Book Rack beginning May 1.

For those graduates who did not take advantage of purchasing the personalized announcements, announcements are available in packs of 10 for $7.35. Seniors who placed orders for announcements after the deadline can expect their announcements to arrive April 30.

Caps and gowns may be picked up during regular Book Rack hours. If someone will be picking up the gown for you, please send a written authorization giving your name, social security number, height, cap size (S,M,L,XL) and signature. There is no additional fee for your gowns as this is included in your graduation fee.

Please note that caps and gowns will be available only until Friday, May 25, at 2 p.m. Please make every effort to pick up your gown before this time. If there are any questions, contact the Book Rack.

Wheelchair Games

Volunteers Needed Volunteers are needed May 11-13 to help with all Wheelchair Games events. You don't have to volunteer for the entire three days, just the time that you can afford or the event that you like.

The events will be as follows: Friday, May 11, table tennis (1 p.m.), weightlifting and swimming (7 p.m.); Saturday, May 12, track and field (8 a.m.), air weapons (9 a.m.), archery (1 p.m.), slalom (3 p.m.); and Sunday, May 13, archery (9 a.m.).

Sign-up sheets are in the main Computer Center and with Helga Aikins, social work secretary (both in Caruthers Hall), and at the University Center information desk. Please sign up before April 30.

Outdoor Club News

Outdoor Club meetings are held on Mondays at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B of the University Center.

On the weekend of May 4-6 the club is offering a hang gliding trip to Naggs Head, NC. On May 7, at 8 p.m. in Nanticoke Room C of the University Center, Cindy Ross will be speaking. Her topics will include her trips through the Sierra-Nevadas and different types of hiking equipment.

Closing out the spring semester will be the annual picnic social at Jane's Island State Park on May 11 and 12. Further information can be obtained at the meetings.

Noble Awarded Loyola Scholarship

Rebecca Noble, a senior accounting major in the Perdue School of Business, is the recent recipient of the $1,000 Loyola Federal Scholarship.

The scholarship is awarded each semester to a junior or senior in the Perdue School who has demonstrated a commitment to volunteer service to the University community and/or the Salisbury community, who demonstrates financial need and has a grade point average of at least 2.5

"The United States must become more competitive in today's global marketplace," said Terry Daly, regional vice president of Loyola Federal Savings and Loan Association. "One way to do this is to attract good students such as Ms. Noble into the business field.

"We believe that by supporting these students through scholarships from the business community we can help accomplish this goal," said Daly. Noble is president of the SSU student chapter of the National Association of Accountants, a member of the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program and a tutor for Perdue School accounting classes.

A resident of Ocean City, she assisted its Paramedic Foundation over a five-year period with publicity, ticket sales and other fund-raising related activities.

She has a 3.7 grade point average at SSU.

The daughter of John and Gloria Stroop of McDonald, PA, she is a 1981 graduate of Ft. Cherry High School there.

E.M.B.A. Program Seeks Applicants

The boom in graduate business degrees over the past 10 years has taken on an additional dimension with the growth of Executive M.B.A. programs.

"While the nominal result is still a master's degree," said Dr. Wayne Decker, director of graduate programs in the Perdue School of Business, "executive programs are geared toward experienced veterans of the business world. Programs offer a real-world approach to learning that emphasizes application in the classroom. The demand for E.M.B.A. curricula is so great that over a 100 programs nationwide have been established."

Unique to this service area, the Perdue School offers an executive program that makes an M.B.A. attainable in 20 months through Saturday on-campus classes. Students register for nine hours per semester and follow a lock-step curriculum that takes advantage of state-of-the-art classroom and computer facilities.

To apply a candidate must submit his or her Graduate Management Admissions Test score, undergraudate transcript, a resume and two letters of recommendation. The director of graduate business programs at the Perdue School is accepting applications now for admission to the next E.M.B.A. class beginning in September.

To request a prospectus on the program call 543-6317.

In addition, the Perdue School will host an information reception on Tuesday, May 1, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall. Prospective students for both the executive and evening programs will have an opportunity to meet and talk with faculty about academic requirements and program coursework. An invitation is extended to anyone with an interest in earning an M.B.A. at Salisbury State.

Whack & Hack Set for June 4

Whackers and hackers take note: This year's Whack & Hack is set for Monday, June 4, beginning at noon at Nassawango Country Club near Snow Hill. As usual, golf, tennis, swimming, food and good fellowship will be featured.

Look for more details next week.

Electrical Outages Due to Construction

The Fulton Hall construction project and the age and capacity of the present campus electrical system has necessitated the upgrade of the system to a higher capacity.

The bulk of this work is planned for and will be accomplished during this summer; however, some of the work along with the potential outages that are inherent in the work will have to be accomplished in the academic year, including this spring and fall. It is anticipated that most, if not all, of the electrical upgrade part of the construction project will be accomplished by November 1.

In order to minimize the problems associated with the electrical outages and downtime which may periodically occur during this upgrade the following actions will be taken.

A memo announcing this planned electrical work and the potential outages will be distributed at least three to five days prior to the scheduled time.

The work will be scheduled to be accomplished on Sundays from 6-9 a.m. All equipment should be turned off during the time the work is scheduled.

Physical Plant maintenance personnel will be on hand during the time the work is scheduled in order to take immediate corrective action should any outage occur.

Everyone's cooperation and understanding during this renovation and construction period is appreciated.

Book Rack Super Clothing Sale

The Book Rack is once again having a super clothing sale. Many articles of clothing have been drastically marked down. Included on the sale table are high quality sweatshirts, both hooded and crew, sweat shorts, sweat pants, bike/running shorts, golf shirts and more.

The Book Rack adds to the table almost daily.

Honor Society Inductees

The University Delta Psi chapter of Lambda Iota Tau, an international honor society for students of literature, has inducted four new members. To qualify, students must be English majors, must have completed 60 hours toward graduation, earn a 3.0 GPA in 12 hours of literature beyond freshman English and have a minimum 2.76 GPA overall.

The new members and their paper titles are David G. Holland of Pocomoke, "The Process and Extent of Lear's Development in Shakespeare's 'King Lear'"; Randi M. Miller of Salisbury, "Reasoning and Motives in 'Paradise Lost'"; Melissa R. Robbins of Cambridge, "Hearts of Gray—A Comparison of Tolstoy and Conrad"; and Laura J. Schollenberger of Waldorf, "'How Mr. Hogan Robbed a Bank': More Than Just an Interesting Story."

Elwell Examines Program

Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, associate professor in the Social Work Department, chaired the site visit for reaffirmation of accreditation of the social work program by the Council on Social Work Education at Indiana Wesleyan University in Marion.

The Council on Social Work Education is the national organization which accredits social work programs at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Brunch and dinner will be served in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Saturday, April 28, at the regular meal times (brunch, 11 a.m.-1 p.m.; dinner, 5-6 p.m.).

This change is necessary because of the annual spring Gala, the premier fund-raising event for the SSU Foundation.

Meal service resumes in Powell Dining Hall at brunch on Sunday, April 29 (11 a.m.-1 p.m.).

David Cherry as Eugene Jerome and Laura Foran as his mother, Kate, rehearse "Brighton Beach Memoirs," Neil Simon's comedy about a budding writer's coming of age in 1937 Brooklyn. "Brighton Beach Memoirs" plays April 27-29 and May 3-5 in Holloway Hall on stage. For information and reservations call 543-6228.

Low Cholesterol Choices Available at Gull's Nest

"We've been listening to our customers, and have constantly been changing to meet their needs," said Van Glaman, assistant director of University Dining Services.

"Some customers have asked us for low cholesterol alternatives," said Glaman. Although many of our menu items already fit into this classification, some have asked for low cholesterol eggs."

Present low cholesterol items include carved turkey, salad bar, broccoli spears, a special chef's cheese sauce with low cheese content, muffins from fat modified recipes and several dessert selections. A choice is offered between fresh eggs and low cholesterol eggs on the omelet bar, and a selection of fresh fruit has been added to the salad bar.

Those wishing to attend brunch are urged to make reservations by calling 543-6103 or 543-6105, Monday-Friday. Brunch is offered in the Gull's Nest from 11 a.m.-2 p.m., May 6 and May 13. Groups of five or more are asked to make reservations early to allow time for better accommodation of special requests.

The Gull's Nest Sunday Brunch is open to the general public and features the following menu: curved steamship round or whole tom turkey, omelet bar, salad bar, broccoli spears and special chef's cheese sauce, Belgium waffle bar, bacon, sausage links, biscuits and gravy, scrambled eggs, hash browns and toast. Prices are $6.95 for adults and $3.95 for children for this all-you-can-eat buffet.

Voice Recital

A voice recital will be presented on Tuesday, May 8, by private voice students studying with Katherine Turner-Barlow and Dr. Duane Karna, voice faculty members in the Department of Music. The informal recital will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

A reception for the students is scheduled to follow the performance in the University Center's main lounge. Selected students will be singing repertoire from their spring semester study, and composers such as Barber, Brahms, Schumann, Faure and Ralph Vaughan Williams will be represented.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Students Win Awards At Fine Art Show

The recent annual Spring Fine Art Show held at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and sponsored by the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury was well represented with works by students from the Art Department.

Taking the prize for first place professional abstract entry and best abstract entry for an untitled hand-made photograph was Barbara Stitcher, a junior Bachelor of Fine Arts major. Stitcher is concentrating in graphic design/visual communications. She also won third place professional abstract entry for a silkscreen titled "Female Figure #1."

Also taking a prize in the professional category was Ed Cox for an acrylic airbrush work. Cox, another B.F.A. student in graphic design, won the second place professional acrylic prize.

Several other students won awards in the amateur category. Adelina Arroyo, for her mixed media painting titled "Herman Cortez and Marina," received the second place amateur abstract award. For an untitled photograph Stephanie Hunt received the first place amateur photography award.

Taking third place in the amateur category for his photograph "Late Afternoon Stoop" was the Salisbury State Yearbook editor Kenny Ruback.

Judy Smethurst, a senior art major, received the first place amateur drawing in color award for her work titled "Saying Goodbye." The third place amateur black and white drawing award was received by Melissa Cullen, a sophomore art major.

Other students represented in the show were Claudia Hannon and Rebecca Taylor-White, both in the professional category.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

By G. Paul Ohanian

Two of the nation's top five Division III lacroose team's clash this Saturday as the fifth-ranked Sea Gulls, 9-2 overall, visit second-ranked Washington College in Chestertown, MD. SSU, coming off a 17-9 win at Hampden-Sydney last Saturday, has won five straight heading into this weekend's "Shore Showdown." The Gulls continue to get outstanding production from the attack unit, with Rick Berkman, Bucky Sharretts, Rusty Pritzlaff and Eric Ungleich providing consistent scoring. Salisbury is averaging 18.3 goals/game, and has outscored opponents 201 to 88 this season. Goalie Scott Bentkowski is averaging 11.7 saves/game.

The women's lacrosse team will be looking to repeat as Maryland State Champions as it plays in the annual state tournament this Saturday and Sunday. SSU won the rain-plagued tournament at Anne Arundel Community College last year, and hopes to duplicate that feat at Essex Community College this weekend. Kim Marlatt and Andie Phillips continue to lead the Gull offense, with 39 and 35 points, respectively, while netminder Lisa Kallis averages 15.6 saves in goal per game.

Congratulations go out to Coach Dean Burroughs' men's tennis team as the Gulls successfully defended their ESAC Championship last weekend in Allentown, PA. Bill Stern's individual championship at number two singles and a sweep of the two doubles championships by Tre Moore/George Wines and Mike Kaminski/Dave Hardesty vaulted SSU past the rest of the field with 22 points. Frostburg finished second with 18 points, followed by Allentown, 12; Wesley, 10; and Cabrini 6.

Also looking to repeat as ESAC champions this weekend is Deane Deshon's baseball team, which will host the conference championship game against Allentown this Sunday. The Gulls won three of four road games against conference rivals Frostburg State and Shenandoah last weekend to capture the ESAC's Southern Division title. Junior 1B Frank Szymanski's grand slam was the key hit in the first game and Mike Marinelli's triple scored Mike Shockley with the winning run in game two as SSU swept Shenandoah last Sunday, 5-2 and 5-4, to clinch the division.

Sonja Akers and Debe Clarke helped lead the softball team to wins in three of four games last weekend, as Akers pitched a three-hitter and Clarke banged a grand slam to lead SSU to a sweep of Shenandoah, 5-0 and 17-1. The Gulls split a pair of games with Kean last Sunday, losing 1-0 and winning 6-2. Kristy Keil had two hits, including a triple, and knocked in four runs, in the win.

Senior distance runner Doug Mock set a new meet record in the 1,500 meter run at the Catholic University Cardinal Classic last Saturday as he won the event in a time of 3:53.08. His time also qualified him for the national championships later this spring. Mock will lead a partial team of SSU runners in the prestigous Penn Relays on Thursday and Friday. The full squad returns to action on Saturday when SSU hosts the Sea Gull Invitational, beginning at 10 a.m.

Dance Company's 'Yerma' Opens Friday, May 11

In 1936 at the height of his creative powers, 38 year-old Federico Garcia Lorca was abducted by Spanish fascists and assassinated by a gunshot to the head at a village near Granada.

Lorca was the most popular poet of his generation, according to biographer Edward Honig. In the three years prior to his assassination the young dramatist had written three plays now considered classics of 20th century theatre: "Blood Wedding," "Yerma," and "The House of Bernarda Alba."

Often beautifully poetic and symbolic, Lorca's Spanish tragedies reflect the spirit and folklore of his native Andalusia and the dark temperament of a Spain on the verge of Civil War. Lorca had an uncanny ability to create vivid and truthful women characters, according to Kathryn Martin, director of the Salisbury State University Dance Company. Martin is directing a dance theatre interpretation of "Yerma" May 11-13 in Holloway Hall on stage, and it's a production which has special meaning for her.

"Last year I was taking a modern theatre course at the University of Colorado, and we read all of Lorca's work," said Martin. "I was amazed at how he was able to write women characters who think the way women really think, and act the way we would act. Some people tell me I'm being sexist, but few male writers create women characters who really behave like women."

For Martin, "Yerma" resonated with contemporary issues. Lorca's drama of a country woman, radiant and full of life, who is caught with a husband incapable of giving her children and whose radiance turns to anguish and violence is more than a story of thwarted motherhood, according to Charles Marowitz in The New York Times.

The title character's name means "barren" in Spanish and Yerma's deeper tragedy is her inability to conform to society because of its unnatural social bonds. "Yerma" is plotted like a Greek tragedy and in such a flawed world its protagonist's fall becomes inexorable," said Martin.

"I think many women and men feel a similar futility today," she continued. "Women are expected to be successful careerists, and wife and mother at the same time. Men must put in long hours to be a business success yet, as every TV commercial shows, somehow must be there for their children and play ball with their sons. Even so our society provides very few supports to help them achieve these goals with things like reliable child care, neighborhood schools or secure streets. No wonder many people feel doomed or barren in some aspect of their family or professional lives.

"Obviously, I think 'Yerma' is a very relevant play," Martin added.

Although she has transformed literary works into dance dramas before, the dance company director considers "Yerma" her most ambitious production to date. Because she wants it to remain accessible, she has moved the setting from a rural Spanish village to the New World's southern hemisphere. Like New Orleans during Mardi Gras, "Yerma" will reflect a variety of influences: Spanish, Catholic, African, voodoo, even Asian. "I want the production to have a dreamlike quality to it," she said, "just as a Latin American festival is surreal."

Both the costumes and music, which includes everything from steel drums and calypso to New Age and Phil Collins, were selected to create a succession of images which tell the story and convey emotion in a world where everything is slightly askew, Martin said.

"Yerma," opened at the Spanish Theatre in Madrid in December 1934, winning both public and critical acclaim. "I'd like my dancers to have a great success," Martin continued, "but that isn't our ultimate goal. If we challenge our imaginations enough, I think we'll not only find keys to making 'Yerma' meaningful for a modern audience, but meaningful answers to questions Lorca asked of his countrymen—and we are beginning to ask of ourselves."

Performances are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 11-12, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, May 13. Tickets are $4, $3 for senior citizens and students, free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information contact the SSU Dance Company office at (301)543-6353.

Ivory Coast Trip Planned for January

In January, as part of winter term, Drs. Cyril Daddieh and Phillip Bosserman will lead a "Study Seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa." This will be a field experience in the political and social dimensions of development. The Ivory Coast is, in many respects, a perfect case study. This nation has a colonial past, having been a possession of France from the 19th century until independence in 1960. This colonial heritage deeply affected the way the Ivory Coast has approached development, and the types of problems it has had to surmount.

Secondly, the Ivory Coast is a part of the vast continent of Africa containing in its boundaries several types of land, fauna and flora, making it particularly valuable to observe first hand. The Ivory Coast's reliance on a few crops will let us understand single factor economics which are so prevalent in less developed countries having a colonial past.

Fourthly, the Ivory Coast is made up of a wide diversity of peoples, religions, languages and cultures. Though the official language is French, some 30 other languages are spoken. Religious variation exists, though the country is predominantly Moslem. The richness of West Africa cultures is very apparent in the dress, food, dance and other expressions.

"The end result is that we will come to know what a developing country is like and at the same time become acquainted with a region of the African continent which remains very much unknown to most citizens of the United States," said Bosserman.

An interest meeting for this Ivory Coast Study Trip will be Thursday, April 26, 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 111. "We hope all who are interested can be with us," said Bosserman. "If not, please contact either Dr. Daddieh (political science) or me (sociology) for information."

During the course of the pay study, Groen says, Mercer Meidinger Hansen will systematically examine and verify whether these employee perceptions are validated.

During the process, employees will continue to be involved and informed. For example, a questionnaire to describe job responsibilities will be distributed soon.

Entrepreneur Seminar

An International Entrepreneur Seminar will be held on Monday, May 7, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

The seminar is designed for new or experienced entrepreneurs who are interested in making contacts and tapping the growing international market. It will focus on turning the unparalled growth in the international import/export arenas into an opportunity for local entrepreneurs.

Emphasis will be on joint venture acquisition, networking and market planning.

he seminar will feature the following program sessions: "Overview of Opportunities for the Entrepreneur in the International Market," 9:15 a.m.; "Financing a Venture," 9:30 a.m.; "Marketing Your Product. Creating a Network," 10 a.m.; Negotiating Skills. How to Open and Close the International Deal," 11 a.m.; "Cross Culture as a Business Tool. Thinking Internationally," 1 p.m.; and "How to Develop a Joint Venture," 2 p.m.

Sponsors of the seminar are the Eastern Region of the Maryland Small Business Development Center, the Perdue School of Business, the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Center for International Business Development at SSU, the European America Business Institute and the Maryland International Trade Division.

The cost of the seminar is $60, which includes lunch. The registration deadline is May 3.

For more information, contact Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Small Business Institute at SSU, at 543-6394.

Aquaculture Seminar

An Aquaculture Business Management Seminar will be presented on Monday, May 14, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

The past few years have witnessed a tremendous rise in aquaculture development as a business in the Mid-Atlantic and nationwide. Along with that industry expansion has come a heightened need for information on basic economics, marketing and business management assistance.

The seminar, designed for investors, aquaculture managers, venture capitalists and small business entrepreneurs, is set up to address those needs and help establish aquaculture as a viable business venture for the future.

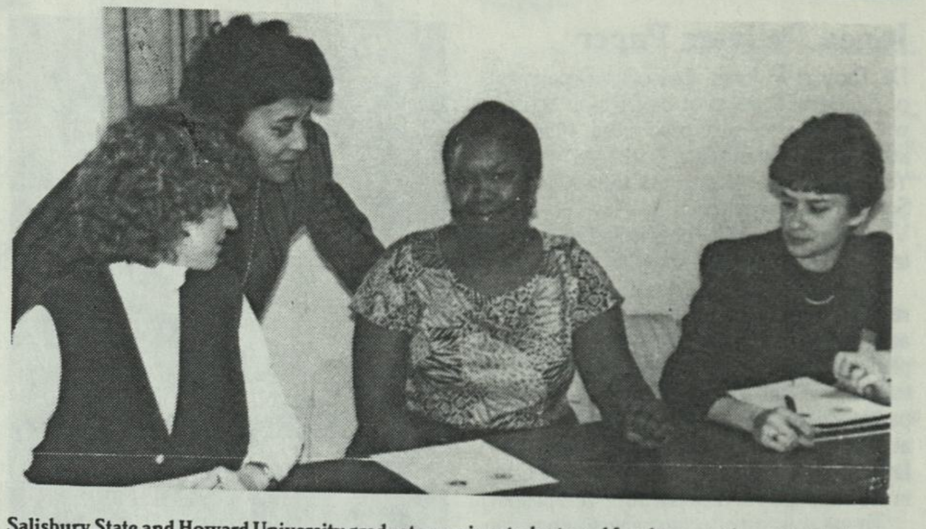
The seminar program sessions include: "Aquaculture Products in a Competitive Industry. Which Ones Fill the Niche?" 9:15 a.m.; "Creating an Aquaculture Business Management Plan. Investing in Your Future," 10 a.m.; "Product Marketing. Even Though It Swims, Will Your Product Fly?" 10:45 a.m.; "Reviewing Case Studies in Aquaculture Management," 11:30 a.m.; "Business Management Assistance Programs. Where to Get Help," 1:15 p.m.; and panel group discussions, 2 p.m.

Instructors come from the staffs of the Maryland Sea Grant Program, the Maryland Department of Agriculture and the Small Business Development Center.

Sponsors are the Eastern Region Maryland Small Business Development Center, the Perdue School of Business, the University of Maryland Sea Grant Extension Program, the Center for International Business Development at SSU, the Maryland Department of Agriculture and the Maryland International Trade Division.

The seminar fee is $60, which includes lunch. The registration deadline is May 10.

For more information, contact Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Small Business Institute at SSU, at 543-6394.



Salisbury State and Howard University graduate nursing students and faculty recently met in Easton to discuss the similarities and differences in their respective programs. Pictured here (left to right) are Sharon Stagg, an SSU student; Dr. Coralease Ruff, associate professor of nursing at Howard; Yvonne Taylor, a Howard student; and Tina Collins, an SSU student.

SSU, Howard Nursing Students Meet

Graduate students and faculty from the School of Nursing and Health Sciences and Howard University's College of Nursing met recently in Easton for a collaborative session.

"Objectives of the health care session were to share and analyze information on family health care and delivery in rural versus urban areas, to discuss results from current research performed in our respective graduate programs and to exchange graduate program information," said Dr. Mildred Roberson, associate professor of nursing at SSU.

"We find these sessions an excellent opportunity to share with Salisbury State students what we are doing in the inner city," said Dr. Coralease Ruff, associate professor of nursing at Howard, "and, in turn, find out what health care problems one has to face in small towns and rural areas."

Howard students were particularly interested in learning about the unique health care needs in a migrant population. SSU students asked their Howard counterparts about the dilemma of health care for the homeless in an urban area. Howard students were somewhat surprised to find that health care for the homeless was also an issue on the Eastern Shore.

Howard recently received a $1 million grant for development of a nurse-run clinic in a Washington, D.C. shelter for the homeless.

Roberson and Ruff organized this second annual event and were joined by Dr. Barbara Kellam of SSU and Teresa Acquaviva of Howard. SSU graduate student participants were Bonnie Breeding, Denton; Tina S. Collins, Salisbury; Lyne Jarrett, Salisbury; Michele Owens, Salisbury; Sharon Stagg, Easton; and Michele Vernon, Seaford. Howard graduate student participants were Nadine L. Eads, Falls Church, VA; and Yvonne Taylor, Silver Spring, MD.

As a result of the meetings, according to Roberson, "Dr. Ruff will be coming to Salisbury State as a consultant to examine the possibility of research collaboration as well as clinical exchanges between the two universities. Salisbury State students would spend time in Howard's program, and Howard students would study here."

"The additional experience gained for the students of both institutions would be invaluable," said Ruff.

'Car Talk' Contest Scheduled for June 9

Tom and Ray Magliozzi, hosts of National Public Radio's hilarious automotive advice program "Car Talk," will have its first national Soc' Hop Contest.

Scheduled for June 9 at the Magliozzi's Good News Garage in Cambridge, MA, the event will be a '50s- and '60s-style dance hosted by Tom, Ray and their special guest, NPR's Susan Stamberg. The Soc Hop will feature an assortment of period food and live music from the Boston-based Blue Suede Boppers.

The winner will be selected in a random drawing on WSCL-FM 89.5 on the June 2 edition of "Car Talk" at 10 a.m. He or she and a guest will receive roundtrip airfare, accommodations and chauffeur service to the Soc Hop in Tom's '74 Chevy.

Entrants should send a postcard with name, address, day time phone number, station they listen to "Car Talk" on, and a 25-word-or-less description of why they want to attend the Soc' Hop (not a requirement for entry).

Entrants must be at least 21 years old. Entries must be received no later than May 19. National Public Radio and NPR member station employees and their families are not eligible. Contest rules are available upon request.

Five SSU nursing professors known for theirexcellent teaching and rapport with students are the backbone of MENTOR. They will be directed by Dr. Karen Badros, chair of the Nursing Department.

The professors will create an individualized nursing program for each student and throughout the student's college career give in-depth academic and personal counseling. A program to assist professors working with disadvantaged students will be offered to all nursing faculty and others in the University community.

University-supervised tutoring and additional small group work will be used to shore up any scholastic deficiencies.

A new computer learning center also is to be established for nursing where MENTOR students can study on new interactive video programming designed to simulate the nurse-client relationship, supplementing their internship experiences.

The Nursing Department has spent four years developing MENTOR, which was endorsed by the National Advisory Council on Nursing Training for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

For more information on MENTOR, contact the School of Nursing and Health Sciences at 543-6401.

Jones Delivers Paper

Dr. Thomas W. Jones, chair of the Department of Biological Sciences in the Henson School, will deliver a scientific paper titled "Phytoplankton, Oysters and Fatty Acids: Are You What You Eat?" at the Atlantic Estuarine Research Society (AERS) meetings on May 3-5 at the Virginia Institute of Marine Sciences in Gloucester, VA.

The data Jones will present is from his research on the effect of differences in the fatty acid biochemistry of oyster food (phytoplankton) on oyster biochemistry and growth, especially juvenile oysters (spat). This work was performed in conjunction with other scientists at the University of Maryland Horn Point Environmental Laboratories and was conducted in the Choptank River over a three-year period.

The work is part of a comprehensive program within the state of Maryland to determine the impact of pollution on the rapidly disappearing oyster population in the Chesapeake Bay.

Jones has served as the program chairman for AERS and recently was elected as the president of the Society for 1990-92. AERS has a membership of over 650 scientists and regionally covers research on estuaries from North Carolina to New Jersey. It is an affiliate society of the International Estuarine Research Federation.

In addition Jones was co-author on two papers presented at the April meeting of the National Shellfish Association in Williamsburg, VA. The title of the papers were "Factors Regulating Reproduction and Recruitment in Populations of the American Oyster Crassostrea Virginica" and "Omnivorous Feeding by Crassostrea Virginica Larvae: Consumption of Naturally Occuring Phytoplankton, Protozoa and Bacteria."

Whitehead Presents Paper

Dr. George Whitehead, professor and chair of the Psychology Department in the Fulton School, recently presented a paper at the 61st annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Philadelphia, PA.

The paper examined differences in the way physically attractive and physically unattractive people present themselves and was titled "Judgments of task difficulty as a function of physical attractiveness and publicness." The study continued Whitehead's previous work on self-presentation theory that is included in the book, "Public Self and Private Self."

In the recent study he found that physically attractive and unattractive people differed in their private explanations for success. The public selves of physically attractive and unattractive were similar whereas the private selves were different. Privately, physically attractive people's explanations were more self-serving in that they claimed greater credit for their successes. Publicly, the physically attractive utilized their superior social skills and lowered their self-serving explanations.

The study is part of a program of research conducted by Whitehead and a colleague at Indiana University Northwest.

Dr. Asa G. Hilliard

Multicultural Conference Features Asa Hilliard

"Building Strength through Diversity" is the theme of a conference on multicultural education May 2-3. The conference, sponsored by the School of Education and Professional Studies, emphasizes the implications for multicultural education in the 1990s.

The keynote speaker is Dr. Asa G. Hilliard, III, the Fuller E. Callaway Professor of Urban Education at Georgia State University. A social psychologist and historian, Hilliard recently co-authored "Saving the African American Child." His address is scheduled for 8 p.m. on May 2 in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

On May 3, workshop sessions are in the University Center. The workshops are designed to help education majors at the University gain an understanding of ways in which they can deal with cultural diversity in the classroom. The workshops are conducted by faculty members of the School of Education and Professional Studies, as well as by faculty members of the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

During a roundtable discussion, education and government leaders from Maryland and local levels will address critical issues involving multicultural education involving ways to advance multicultural understanding in the schools.

For more information or to register for the conference, contact Dr. Carolyn Bowden or Dr. Ann Taylor at the School of Education and Professional Studies at 543-6280.

Fulbrights for Seniors

Graduating seniors at Salisbury State University are invited to participate in a new Fulbright Program for study abroad.

The program will allow students to pursue an academic year of study or research in the country of their choice, outside of Western Europe. The program is open to all fields of study.

Students currently enrolled at SSU should contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, the Fulbright Program adviser on campus, located in the Sociology Building for brochures, application forms and further information. The deadline for the receipt of applications is May 23.

The new Fulbright Program recognizes the need to develop tomorrow's business, professional, educational and political leaders, and is intended to insure an opportunity for younger students to expand their knowledge of the developing world.

It has the backing of the United States Information Agency (USIA), the Board of Foreign Scholarships (BFS) and the Institute of International Education (IIE).

Applicants are not required to have formulated specific educational or career goals beyond those necessary for a successful grant experience abroad. These awards will allow for younger students to broaden their horizons, to experience other cultures and to bring greater focus to their future plans. Successful candidates will represent the best and brightest of the U.S. educational system from all backgrounds.

All applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant. Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but must have four years relevant training or study. All applicants are required to have sufficient proficiency in the language of the host country to carry out their proposed study.

These fixed sum grants will provide round-trip international travel, a maintenance stipend, medical insurance and tuition waivers, if applicable.

For more information contact Bosserman at (301) 543-6430.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

MAY 3, 1990

VOL. XI NO. 28

65th Honors Convocation Is Friday

Salisbury State University will honor some 400 outstanding scholars and student leaders at its 65th Honors Convocation on Friday, May 4, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

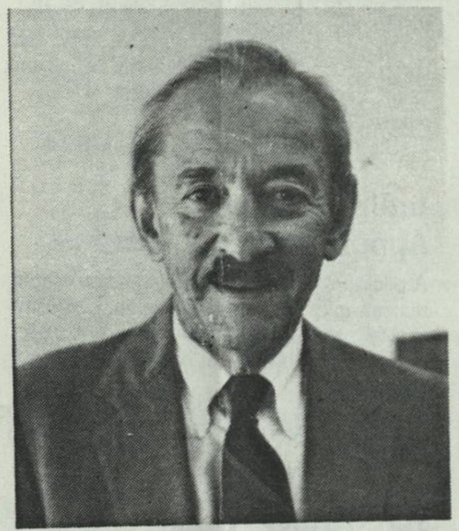
Two hardworking SSU seniors will receive the University's most prestigious honors in business and education, respectively: the Richard Bernstein Achievement Award for Excellence and the E. Pauline Riall Achievement Award. Each includes a $5,000 gift to the honoree.

The Honors Convocation, which dates back to the founding of the University in 1925, this year recognizes students in nearly 60 different areas of academic life.

The awards reflect organizations as diverse as international honor societies to the Wall Street Journal to local clubs memorializing civic and education leaders such as Doris G. Calcott.

Keeping with recent tradition, an SSU alumnus will deliver the keynote address.

Sam Seidel, Salisbury business and civic leader, is this year's speaker. Seidel always has shown a keen interest in public school education. He endowed a nursing scholarship at SSU honoring his wife, Marilyn, a registered nurse. Last spring he donated $50,000 to the SSU Foundation to establish new scholarships for future teachers. For two years he served as president of the Foundation board during which time the University received two of its largest gifts, the multimillion dollar Perdue and Henson endowments.



Sam Seidel

Seidel, who attended Salisbury State, taught and coached at Wicomico High School after World War II. In 1951 he coached the U.S. All Star Basketball Team on its South American tour.

In 1952 he went into the insurance business and established three companies which became the largest privately-owned operation in Maryland. In 1988 he sold the business to British International Insurance Company, but continues as president.

Throughout his professional career Seidel has been a popular figure. For 20 years he was Salisbury City councilman and received numerous awards including the Martin Luther King Service Award, the Brotherhood Award from the National Council of Christians and Jews, the Rotary Four-Way Test Award and the Salisbury State Distinguished Alumni Award.

His convocation address is titled "Preparation for the Future."

According to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, "Honors Convocation is both a symbolic and substantive way for the University to express its reason for being. It obviously is an honor for those students who are recognized for their accomplishments, but it is also an opportunity to the University to emphasize and reinforce the necessity for scholarship and learning. The process goes on every day in classes but this is a particularly

Yerma: A Collaboration of Talent

"Yerma," a classic play from the 20th century theatre canon by Federico Garcia Lorca will be interpreted in dance by the University Dance Company May 11-13 in Holloway Hall on stage at the SSU campus.

"Although the work was set in Spain, we are translating it to an African-American genre by using blues and gospel underscoring, and design," said Dance Company Director, Kathryn Martin.

Martin enjoys creating imaginative worlds for her dancers and audiences. This past fall her production of "At the Hawk's Well," by Irish poet, Y.B. Yeats, won critical plaudits at the National Opera Association Conference in Albuquerque. The Yeat's play, which Martin directed at the University of Colorado at Boulder earlier that year, used a Japanese Noh theatre motif.

"One of the most exciting things about 'Yerma' is the array of talented artists who are working together to make it happen," said the Dance Company director. Cleon Deal, has composed gospel music for the dance play. Dana Simpson-Orth, a Somerset County artist, has designed costumes and also written original music as well as co-designed a sound track which includes dialogue from the Lorca play. Other music will range from steel drums and calypso to Pink Floyd, Phil Collins and New Age.

Because the play is at times surreal, "Yerma" has been treated as a woman's dream, with a timeless period and setting.

Set design is by Dave Jones, a Salisbury sculptor. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of SSU theatre who also has a reputation as an excellent costume designer, is creating masks for a pagan ritual scene. Sound and lighting design is by Tony Broadbent, who has made a cohesive high tech sound tape from a complexity of music, dialogue and special effects.

Thirty-two students will be performing in this dance drama which Martin calls her most ambitious project during her six years at SSU. In the title role is Holly Boda, an SSU graduate student in education and Dance Company

Holly Boda, Nick Lutzio and three-year-old Ben Hawkins take a break from rehearsals of "Yerma," a Spanish drama interpreted by the Salsibury State University Dance Company to be performed May 11-13 at Holloway Hall on stage. The story centers on a woman's efforts to conform to her society's strictures, including her desire for children.

Kolodny Memorial Service

There will be a memorial service for Lisa Ann Kolodny on Thursday, May 3, at 3:30 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Social Room.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Senior Art Show

The University's 17th annual Senior Art Show has its opening on Saturday, April 28, from 7-9 p.m. The public is invited to the exhibition and to the reception hosted by the graduating art majors.

The show is located in the University Gallery on the second floor of Blackwell Library and is open until May 17. For more information or Gallery hours contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Attention May Graduates

Caps and gowns will be available in the Book Rack beginning May 1.

For those graduates who did not take advantage of purchasing the personalized announcements, announcements are available in packs of 10 for $7.35.

Caps and gowns may be picked up during regular Book Rack hours. If someone will be picking up the gown for you, please send a written authorization giving your name, social security number, height, cap size (S,M,L,XL) and signature. There is no additional fee for your gowns as this is included in your graduation fee.

Graduation information will be given to each May graduate at the time caps and gowns are picked up. It is IMPORTANT for every graduate to carefully read this information because it provides instructions on where and when to line-up in the Civic Center and the correct way to wear caps, gowns and hoods. This information also appears on page 4 of this newsletter.

Please note that caps and gowns will be available only until Friday, May 25, at 2 p.m. Please make every effort to pick up your gown before this time. If there are any questions, contact the Book Rack.

Voice Recital

A voice recital will be presented on Tuesday, May 8, by private voice students studying with Katherine Turner-Barlow and Dr. Duane Karna, voice faculty members in the Department of Music. The informal recital will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

A reception for the students is scheduled to follow the performance in the University Center's main lounge. Selected students will be singing repertoire from their spring semester study, and composers such as Barber, Brahms, Schumann, Faure and Ralph Vaughan Williams will be represented.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Judicial System Appointment Applications

Applications Applications are being accepted from students interested in serving on the University Judicial System for the 1990-91 academic year. Students serve on judicial boards and also as advocates.

Applications are available at the Office of the Dean of Students (room 212, University Center) and must be submitted by May 11.

Bay Bridge Walk

Club Maryland invites all its members and other employees and their families to pull on their walking shoes for the big one, the annual Bay Bridge Walk. The date is Sunday, May 6, and the Club Maryland Chesapeake Bay Bridge Brigade will be out in force.

There will be special parking and shuttle buses, and following the walk a special celebration for the participants: the fourth annual Bayfest, a full day of entertainment, food and education about the Chesapeake Bay.

For more details regarding the walk and the Bayfest, contact the Personnel Office at 543-6035, or stop by Holloway Hall, room 222.

English Position Reopened

Salisbury State University is accepting applications for a tenure-track position to begin in the fall at the rank of assistant professor. Qualifications include the doctorate and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Specialties should include Applied Linguistics and TESOL. The person hired will have undergraduate and master's level teaching responsibilities, including freshman composition, second language acquisition, and introduction to modern grammars. Applicants should expect to teach a four-course load, advise students and participate in departmental activities. The salary will be competitive.

The present search represents a second effort to fill the position. Applications will be accepted immediately and until the position has been filled. Applicants should send letter, vita, three recommendations, and evidence of teaching effectiveness to Dr. Wavie Gibson, Chair, Search Committee, English Department, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Summer Jobs

The Conference Services Office has 13 full-time summer jobs available for mature, responsible students.

The positions are for the period May 31-August 23 with evening and weekend work required. Wages are $4.50 per hour with housing and food service allowances.

For more information call Robyn Roberts, conference services manager, at 548-4507, or stop by the office in Nanticoke Hall basement, room 006.

Ivory Coast Trip Planned for January

In January, as part of winter term, Drs. Cyril Daddieh and Phillip Bosserman will lead a "Study Seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa." This will be a field experience in the political and social dimensions of development. The Ivory Coast is, in many respects, a perfect case study.

For more information contact Bosserman in Sociology, or Daddieh in Political Science.

Entrepreneur Seminar

An International Entrepreneur Seminar will be held on Monday, May 7, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

The seminar is designed for new or experienced entrepreneurs who are interested in making contacts and tapping the growing international market. It will focus on turning the unparalled growth in the international import/export arenas into an opportunity for local entrepreneurs.

Emphasis will be on joint venture acquisition, networking and market planning.

The cost of the seminar is $60, which includes lunch. The registration deadline is May 3.

For more information, contact Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Small Business Institute at SSU, at 543-6394.

Aquaculture Seminar

An Aquaculture Business Management Seminar will be presented on Monday, May 14, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

The past few years have witnessed a tremendous rise in aquaculture development as a business in the Mid-Atlantic and nationwide. Along with that industry expansion has come a heightened need for information on basic economics, marketing and business management assistance.

The seminar fee is $60, which includes lunch. The registration deadline is May 10.

For more information, contact Dr. Richard Palmer, director of the Small Business Institute at SSU, at 543-6394.

Book Rack Super Clothing Sale

The Book Rack is once again having a super clothing sale. Many articles of clothing have been drastically marked down. Included on the sale table are high quality sweatshirts, both hooded and crew, sweat shorts, sweat pants, bike/running shorts, golf shirts and more.

The Book Rack adds to the table almost daily.

Campus Thefts

In the last two weeks, two offices in Holloway Hall were entered by an unknown person and cash and a wallet were removed. Because of these recent thefts the Public Safety Office is making the following recommendations:

- Keep your purse, wallet and other valuables in a secure location such as a locked desk or filing cabinet.
- Immediately report any suspicious person loitering in your area by calling public safety at 543-6222.

Recycle Glass

Don't know what to do with all the bottles and jars used at your house? Recycle them! Separate clear, green and brown glass containers into grocery bags or plastic bags and bring them to Carol and Phil Bosserman's, 300 Whitman Avenue (corner of Emerson and Whitman Avenues) and put them in the blue and white trailer. This is a project of the Wicomico League of Women Voters.

Choir Concert May 14

The spring concert performance of the University Concert Choir is scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, May 14, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Free and open to the public, the evening's program features varied choral literature presented by the 40-member mixed choir, representing such composers as Felix Mendelssohn, Ernst Toch, Samuel Barber, Vincent Persichetti and Giovanni Pergolesi, and spirituals arranged by Robert Shaw.

Three settings of the "Agnus Dei" text as well as choral works for both men's and women's voices will constitute a portion of the program. Student soloists will also be featured.

Dr. Duane Karna, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at Salisbury State, is the conductor of the choir. During the 1990 winter term, Karna conducted members of the choir on an acclaimed concert tour of southern Bavaria, returning an exchange with the chamber choir from Augsburg University.

The SSU Choir performed well-received concerts in Altenstadt, Marktoberdorf, Augsburg and Munich while living, studying and rehearsing for two weeks in residence at the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf, Germany.

The SSU Choir was the only choral ensemble from the United States invited to participate in the music academy's 1990 calendar year of events, seminars and workshops.

Heinrich Weirauch, music critic of the Altenstadt newspaper, wrote: "In conjunction with a tour of Germany, the Salisbury State University Choir from Maryland gave a concert in the St. Michael's Church in Altenstadt. In spite of the lack of heat in the thousand-year-old church, the sanctuary was filled to the last pew. A third of the choir consisted of music majors; the remainder were studying a variety of other diciplines. The positioning of the singers, not in like voice groups, but to rather mix them colorfully was unusual, yet the result became an astonishingly homogeneous and highly-flexible unity. Clearly and purely the difficult choir phrases were mastered. The choir members sang with astounding certainty and freshness."

Upon the choir's return, the members were invited by Gov. William Donald Schaefer to perform for a legislative dinner reception at the Governor's Mansion in Annapolis.

For further information contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Fulbright Program Open to Seniors, Grads

Recent graduates as well as current seniors of the University are invited to participate in a new Fulbright Program for study abroad.

The program allows young students to pursue an academic year of study or research in the country of their choice, outside of Western Europe. The program is open to all fields of study.

Students currently enrolled at SSU as well as recent graduates should contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, the Fulbright Program adviser on campus, whose office is located in the Sociology Building, for brochures, application forms and further information. The deadline for the receipt of applications is May 23.

"The new Fulbright Program recognizes the need to develop tomorrow's business, professional, educational and political leaders, and is intended to ensure an opportunity for younger students to expand their knowledge of the developing world," said Bosserman.

It has the backing of the United States Information Agency (USIA), the Board of Foreign Scholarships (BFS) and the Institute of International Education (IIE).

Applicants are not required to have formulated specific educational or career goals beyond those necessary for a successful grant experience abroad. These awards will allow for younger students to broaden their horizons, to experience other cultures and to bring greater focus to their future plans. Successful candidates will represent the best and brightest of the U.S. educational system from all backgrounds.

All applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant. Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but must have four years relevant training or study. All applicants are required to have sufficient proficiency in the language of the host country to carry out their proposed study.

These fixed sum grants will provide round-trip international travel, a maintenance stipend, medical insurance and tuition waivers, if applicable.

For more information contact Bosserman at 543-6430.

Run to the Beach

On Saturday, May 12, the Semper Fi Society is holding its first annual "Run to the Beach" to benefit the United Way. Ten participants will cover the distance from Salisbury to Ocean City. Contributions are being accepted until the day of the run and are tax deductible. Interested individuals should contact David McCulloh at 749-7382 or Grant Pennington at 546-0834.

Geranium Sale

Mother's Day is right around the corner and the Commuters Club is sponsoring a geranium sale (with the help of Allan Banks Nursery). The 4 1/2 inch plants will grow and bloom in beautiful red flowers throughout the summer, and may be planted outside. The cost will be $2.50 for each geranium plant, and they will be distributed by Friday, May 11. To order call the Office of Student Activities and Organizations, 543-6313 (Agata) or 543-6215 (Linda).

Philosophy Cookie Colloquium

On Thursday, May 3, at 3:30 p.m. in Caruthers 122, the Philosophical Society will hold its Spring Cookie Colloquium featuring Dr. William Zak of the English Department who will speak on "The Riddle of the Sphinx and Ancient Pieties." Zak currently is writing a book on Greek tragedy which discusses the ancient hero's plight in relation to the Socratic understanding of piety.

The talk is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

SSU Students Give Health Tests

Nursing and respiratory care students will offer a health screening as part of the Community Services Supermarket at the Salisbury Festival on Saturday, May 5. Vision and lung function testing will be performed free of charge from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Shuttle bus transportation will be available from the civic center to the downtown Salisbury area.

Ross Slide Lecture

Cindy Ross, author and long distance hiker with over 5,000 cumulative miles including the entire Appalachian and the Pacific Crest trails, will present a slide lecture at the University on Monday, May 7, at 8 p.m.

Her presentation, "Traverse of the High Sierras-800 miles," will be in the Nanticoke Room of the University Center. It is sponsored by the University Center and the SSU Outdoor Club.

Ross had already hiked the 2,000-mile length of the Appalachian Trail, stretching from Maine to Georgia ("A Women's Journey," East Woods Press, 1982), when "to escape deadening daily routine, she once again set off to the wilds to "sort it all out," she said. But now it was a more rugged arena: the Pacific Crest Trail, a mostly mountainous 2,600-mile route from Mexico to Canada including an 800 mile trek in the High Sierras.

In narrating her story, Ross deftly brings the reader into the physical and emotional landscape of long-distance hiking.

"Long distance hiking is not a vacation," Ross said. "It's not recreation. Too much toil and pain are involved. It is a way of life. A very simplified, Spartanlike way of life. Life on the move. The movement seems to speed up the experiences: different storms, mountains, people, predicaments, challenges. You must deal with situations, survival situations, that force you to think and take action. Lots of growth happens quickly.

"The hard times, the days of rain, miles of snow, heavy packs, sweating brow—they make you appreciate warm sunshine, companionship, cool water. The best way to appreciate those things that are precious and important in life is to take them away. So we learn what really matters. We come out here to gain a clearer vision. We come out here to learn about ourselves.

"The biggest prize of long distance hiking is the gift of free time. Time to be by yourself. Time to look. Time to think. Time to feel. All those hours you spend with your thoughts, you don't solve all of your personal problems, but you come to understand and accept yourself."

Ross, a resident of Kempton, PA, has been a hard-rock miner, a waitress and a model for life-drawing classes, among other pursuits. She and her husband operate a hostel for hikers along the Appalachian Trail, and are building their own home a log cabin.

For more information on Ross' lecture call the SSU Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Student Piano Recital

A student piano recital will be held at the University on Monday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center.

Participating in the recital is, Karen Orr, a junior from Bel Air, MD; Bryan Hurley, a junior from East New Market; and Wynel Cooper, sophomore, Scot Hawkins, senior, and Amanda Meyer, junior, all from Salisbury. They will perform selections from Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, Medelssohn Prokofiev and Khachaturian.

The event is organized by Linda Cockey, director of keyboard studies in the SSU Music Department. The evening is sponsored by the Department of Music and the University Center.

For more information on the recital call the Music Department at 543-6385.

Faculty Pay Schedule

Faculty Take Note: If you wish to change your pay schedule for the 1990-91 school year (i.e. go from 21 to 26 pays per year or 26 to 21 pays) contact the Personnel Office, HH 222, prior to the end of this semester.

May 1990 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 26, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be The Honorable Thomas V. "Mike" Miller, Jr., President, Maryland State Senate.

3. Caps, gowns, and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning May 1. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday through Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. [Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.] The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 25, 1990 from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 5 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., The Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the School (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement Exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, May 21. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend: those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony you will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing will hold a

12. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Saturday, May 26. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

13. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through L, Gary P. Lay, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Stephanie Layman through the letter Z will report to Drs. Jerome Miller and Geraldine Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows, facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart.

14. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through Kimberly Ann Marlatt, will report to Drs. Harry Basehart and Arthur Delpaz at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

15. Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with Mark Albert Marmo through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Gerald St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

16. Bachelor of Arts in Social Work candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

17. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center and report to Dr. White in the cross corridor leading to the Midway Room. Dr. White will place you in line appropriately. You will sit with the B.A.S.W. candidates in Section 6 of the seating chart.

18. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A. M.Ed., and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to Drs. John Lewis and Norman Johnson in the corrdior nearest the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. M.Ed. candidates will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. M.A and M.B.A. candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart.

19. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.

3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.

4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.

5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air-conditioned).

7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.

2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President.

3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

20. Graduation Decorum–Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Wind Sinfonia Concert May 13

On Sunday, May 13, the University Wind Sinfonia will present its annual spring concert in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 2 p.m. The event is free and open to the public. The Wind Sinfonia concert is sponsored by the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music.

Featured guest artist is Mario L. Hunter who will perform the "Clarinet Concerto No. 2. Op. 74" composed in the 19th century by Carl Maria von Weber. Hunter presently resides in Salisbury and pursues an active career as a free-lance artist.

He has performed with the Winston-Salem Symphony Orchestra, the North Carolina Symphony at Raleigh and the National Opera Company at Raleigh. Recently he performed as principal clarinetist with the Salisbury Symphony Chamber Orchestra along with featured SSU soloist Linda Cockey and Dr. Nancy Cooper.

Hunter has also appeared as artist-in-residence at the Lenoir Community College in Kingston, NC and at the Beaufort County Community College in Washington, NC. He received his undergraduate degree in performance from the North Carolina School of the Arts and his master's in performance from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

In addition to the guest artist, three ensembles formed from the wind and percussion chamber music performance program are featured. Chamber works to be performed include "Cazon Septimi toni No. 2" for double brass choir by Giovanni Gabrieli. "My Bonnie Lass" by Thomas Morley and the "Antiphonal (Hodie: Christus Natus Est)" by Jan Sweelinck are performed by the SSU Brass Quintet. "Sinfonia No. 3" by J.C. Bach, transcribed for woodwind quartet, is performed by the SSU Saxophone Quartet.

Three selections by Australian composer Percy Aldridge Grainger are presented by the Wind Sinfonia. These include "The Duke Marlborough Fanfare" for brass choir, Grainger's arrangement titled "Folktune" derived from Eugene Goosens "Sheep Shearing from Somerset," and Grainger's "Bach-March" adaptation for winds from J.S. Bach's "Clavierbuchlein."

Other selections for band include Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Sea Songs," "Mother Machree" by John Zdechlick, "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night" by Elliot Del Borgo and "Apollo March" by Austro-Hungarian Keler Bela.

The SSU Wind Sinfonia is comprised of 40 select wind and percussion players presently associated with Salisbury State. Members are derived from both University and community musicians. The Wind Sinfonia is one of four wind organizations representing the Department of Music including the Chamber Music Ensemble, Jazz Ensemble and the recently conceived University/Recreational Band. The Wind Sinfonia performs repertoire from both historically signficant literature and current compositions written by recognized leaders in wind music. The Wind Sinfonia continues to emphasize the use of flexible instrumentation dependent solely upon the composer's wishes.

Richard L. Johnson serves as director of wind activities at SSU. Besides his conducting responsiblities, Johnson teaches classes in music theory, conducting, brass and percussion methods, and low brass techniques.

Before coming to SSU Johnson enjoyed success as conductor and department chairman to high school music programs in Illinois and Wisconsin. He has also served as conductor to adult community bands in Illinois and Michigan.

Johnson continues to be active as music consultant, clinician, adjudicator and guest conductor in Delaware, Illinois, Maryland and Michigan. He received his undergraduate and graduate degrees in music education from the University of Illinois at Urbana. He is completing final degree requirements for the Doctorate of Musical Arts in conducting and performance from Michigan State University at East Lansing.

For more information on the concert call the SSU Department of Music at (301) 543-6385.

SSU Math Students at Conference

The Mathematical Association of America recently sponsored a one-day conference for college students held at Goucher College. Organized by Dr. Ben Fusaro of Salisbury State, the conference, called "Cultivating Mathematical Talent," helped kick off a week of planned activities throughout the United States to celebrate Mathematical Awareness Week 1990.

Four conferences were planned. "This was the first regional conference in the country for students," said Fusaro. Three students from SSU participated (Kelly Anderson of Centerville, Robert Simms of Salisbury and Leanne Wells of Pittsville), along with others from universities throughout the mid-Atlantic area. The SSU students were accompanied by mathematics professor Kathleen Shannon.

Earlier this academic year Simms and Wells were members of a team from SSU in the "Mathematical Contest in Modeling," a national competition for university students created by Fusaro. Their team which included Brenda Figgs of Snow Hill, received national ranking. Simms and Wells jointly presented a paper to the conference about their team's involvement in the contest.

In addition to student presentations, the conference included a luncheon and a panel of two mathematicians, Dr. Lee Seitelman of Pratt and Whitney (Connecticut) and Dr. Lynn Wilson of AT&T Bell Laboratories (New Jersey).

Seitelman, who has worked at Pratt and Whitney for over 20 years solving problems in applied mathematics, has also worked in jet engine design and development, and currently holds a patent in gear chamfering. His talk was "The Best Courses You Never Took."

Wilson's talk was "Industrial Environments—an Inside View." In her work at AT&T Bell, she is involved in technical analysis of business problems which can be solved by mathematical methods.

A fractals workshop, lead by Dr. John Elton of Iternated Systems, Inc. of Georgia, was also part of the conference. Fractal geometry is used to solve problems involving the complexities of nature in fields such as geology, biology and meteorology.

Gift Books

This is the time of the year when many are cleaning out offices (or attics, basements, etc.)

If you have books or periodicals that you don't need, throw them in the direction of Blackwell Library. Blackwell staff will even pick them up for you. It's a tremendous method of recycling and getting information into the hands of those who can use it.

All items that we do not add to the Library's permanent collection will go into its stock for its annual Monster Book Sale. Due to the success of last September's sale, that stock is depleted and now needs an infusion of new material. Keep the tradition alive by donating those books and periodicals that are crowding you out of office, house and home. Contact Keith Vail at Blackwell at 543-6520 if you can help.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

Salisbury State's quest for a fourth consecutive conference baseball championship was put on hold as rain washed out last Sunday's Eastern States Athletic Conference championship game. SSU and Allentown are planning on making up the game this Saturday at Sea Gull Stadium. If the game is scheduled, the Gulls will try to rearrange Saturday's previously scheduled doubleheader with York College for another date.

Rain also caused a disruption in last weekend's Maryland State Women's Lacrosse Tournament, with last Sunday's scheduled championship game now slated for this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at Essex Community College. Salisbury won five of six games to earn a berth in Sunday's championship, and will meet the winner of the Georgetown/Frostburg State semifinal, set for 12:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Jim Berkman's lacrosse team closes out the regular season on Saturday with a 1 p.m. game at Kutztown, then awaits word on its possible NCAA tournament selection on Sunday. The Division III lacrosse championship provides for an eight-team, single-elimination tournament, which will begin at on-campus sites on Wednesday, May 6. The Gulls, losers to Nazarath College in the quarterfinals of last year's tournament, are ranked fifth in the nation this week and hope to rebound from last Saturday's 14-12 loss to second-ranked Washington College.

Senior distance runner Doug Mock continues to forge a banner track season as the Bowie, MD native posted a time of 14:38 in the 5,000 Meters at the Penn Relays last week, thus qualifying in a second event for the national championships later this month. Mock had already earned a ticket to the nationals with a time of 3:53.08 in the 1,500 Meters.

The softball team closes out its 1990 campaign with a three-day tournament at Eastern Connecticut University this weekend. Salisbury looks to add a strong finish to the season to carry its 11-14 record over the .500 mark.

Banks Nurse of the Year

At the recent annual meeting and banquet of the Eastern Shore District, Maryland Nurses Association, held at the Green Hill Yacht and Country Club, an award for "Nurse of the Year" was presented to Phyllis Banks, an assistant professor at the University, by association president Mildred Roberson.

In presenting the award, Roberson said that Banks received the award by virtue of her outstanding service both to MNA and to the nursing profession, her exceptional dedication and commitment to the ideals of nursing and her exemplary record of accomplishment on behalf of nursing and nurses.

The Eastern Shore District of MNA is comprised of over 120 professional nurses from any nine counties on the Shore. "This annual award is a much coveted honor, indicating recognition by nursing leaders throughout the Shore," said Roberson.

Burroughs Speaks On Wellness

A. Dean Burroughs, associate professor of physical education, recently addressed the professional women at Secretary Appreciation Day at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. The topic of Burroughs presentation was "Wellness & Fitness for the 90's."

The event was sponsored by the Salisbury Chamber of Commerce.

Cheerleading Practice

Cheerleading practice to determine the fall 1990 team will be held May 7-11 at 4 p.m. in Maggs upstairs gym. All full-time male and female students are encouraged to try out. For additional information call 543-6344.

Wilkerson at Seminar

Dr. Ken Wilkerson, professor of communication arts in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, has been awarded a position in the National Endowment for the Humanities summer seminar on "Poetics and Social Life" at Indiana University. The seminar begins in early June and conludes in early August.

Wilkerson's research project concerns the rhetoric of display in Classical and Hellenistic Greece. Dr. Michael Herzfeld of the Department of Anthropology at Indiana is the seminar director. Wilkerson was a member of a summer seminar, also in anthropology, at the University of Virginia in 1983.

Photo Awards

Wanted: Students To Work Summer Orientation

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the Summer Orientation (testing, advising and registration) Program for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 18-21, June 25-28 and July 9-11. Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extra-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and services/organizations on campus, and be good role models and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required. Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience office in the Physical Plant building. Deadline for application is May 16.

Part-Time Secretary

Contractual (no state benefits), 20 hours weekly, $7 an hour, skilled typing required, experience with Wordperfect, Lotus 1-2-3 a must. Must have ability to perform responsibilities with minimal supervision in the Affirmative Action/Institutional Research Office. Send letter of application and resume by May 11 to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Summer Pool Jobs

Lifeguards and swimming instructors are needed May 28-August 28 at the University pool. Starting pay is $4 for guards, $5 for instructors. Submit a letter of application, proof of certification, and two references to Rosie Barretta, Aquatic Director, Maggs Physical Activity Center or call 543-6357. Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Wicomico Environmental Trust

Come and rejuvenate the Earth Day spirit. The May meeting of the Wicomico Environmental Trust will be held at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, May 6 in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. The featured speaker will be Phil Tilghman, a member of the Wicomico County Council who has been associated with environmental protection. The meeting is free and open to the public. For more information call B.W. Fusaro at 543-6470.

Singles Study

Single Purpose, the singles ministry of Epworth Fellowship Church, located on Sycamore Road in Laurel, DE, is conducting a group Bible study. The study will be seeking a Biblical solution to today's emotional problems for the single individual, whether divorced, widowed or never having been married.

The session is held on May 5, at 7 p.m. in Fellowship Hall. All are invited to attend. Babysitting will be available. For further information call Tom Morris at (301) 546-4406 or June Smart at (302) 875-3384.

Final Newsletter

The final issue of the SSU News for the spring is Thursday, May 17. The deadline is Friday, May 11, at 4 p.m. To all those students, faculty and staff who this year helped us disseminate the news about so many things happening on campus our congratulations and thanks. Best wishes for a relaxing and happy summer.

Delmarva's Past: A World Remembered

Native Eastern Shoremen whose parents and grandparents were born in this region will be interested in an exhibit, "Mapping Delmarva's Past," opening Friday, May 4, at the University.

Sixty-three year old maps and atlases, recording the growth of the Delmarva Peninsula from early settlements to the present day, will be on display through May 18 at the Atrium Gallery in the University Center.

Hours will be 11 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon - 4 p.m. on Sundays.

One of the exhibits, an 1877-atlas covering Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties, is so detailed that modern-day Shoremen will be able to locate their grandparent's homes, churches and even the general stores where they shopped.

History buffs, geographers and admirers of the engraver's and mapmaker's art also will find much of interest in this exhibit, being sponsored by the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture based at the University.

A highlight will be a talk, "Map Collecting: A Guide to the Past," by John E. Jacob, Jr., Salisbury attorney and historian, who has donated some and loaned the remainder of the exhibits to the Research Center. He will speak on Friday, May 11, at 7 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center.

Also in connection with the exhibit, Richard W. Cooper, a Salisbury surveyor and historian, will speak on "Surveying the Mason-Dixon Line," on Thursday, May 17, at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room B of the University Center. The talk will deal with the historic boundary between Maryland's Eastern Shore and the western edge of Delaware.

Admission to the exhibit and lectures is free. A printed catalogue will be available.

"These old maps and atlases bring Delmarva history to life," said Sylvia Bradley, a director of the Research Center. "Many evoke images of ships plying the Chesapeake with cargoes of tobacco or sailing out of Delaware Bay with grain shipments for Caribbean ports. They tell of the steamboat era, the rise and decline of the railroads and the coming of modern highways."

Along with maps, examples of early surveyor instruments loaned by Cooper will be displayed. One is an 18th-century surveyor's compass made by Goldsmith Chandlee. Only four are known to exist. The others are kept at Mount Vernon, Colonial Williamsburg and the Smithsonian Institution.

Among the oddities on exhibit, Jacob said, will be a map of Wicomico County extending to the Atlantic and taking in Ocean City.

Also of special interest, he said, is an early Dutch map, copied from John Smith's map of the Chesapeake region. The Dutch map, Jacob believes, was the kind used by King Charles I in making his grant of Maryland to Lord Baltimore.

The Research Center is a respository of information relating to Delmarva. Its collection, which is available to scholars, researchers and the community at large, includes personal papers, diaries, court records, oral histories, folklore materials and other records relating to the Peninsula.

SSU's IABC Students and Chapter Win National Awards

Two student members of the Salisbury State University Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC), as well as the organization itself, have received awards for entries in the IABC Silver Quill/Student Chapter Conference.

IABC's professional judges gave Bruce Smith, an SSU junior from New Castle, DE, majoring in communication arts, an Award for Excellence for his submission of video work. Sandy Adams of Lexington Park, who is a senior also majoring in communication arts, was given a Certificate of Merit for her written public service announcement. In addition, IABC/SSU was awarded a Certificate of Merit for its participation in the Silver Quill Awards Contest and was recognized as Outstanding New IABC Chapter at the Student Conference.

Peggy Klein, IABC's faculty advisor teaches in the Communication Arts Department, established the student chapter here in October, 1989. "I am tremendously proud of the organization for achieving such success in so short an amount of time, and I hope their growth and success continue," she said.

IABC/SSU president Shelley Christian attended the March 23 conference which was held at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, VA, and accepted the awards on behalf of the organization. All U.S. and Canada student chapters were invited to attend. The awards were officially presented on campus on April 10 during IABC/SSU's monthly meeting by special speaker Andy Rohrbach, manager of Quality Systems for Campbell Soup, Inc.

IABC/SSU is open to all students and does not discrimiate on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, age, national origin or handicap. IABC has over 11,000 members worldwide and many student chapters.

Anyone interested in IABC/SSU should write to: IABC/SSU, Box 3072, Salisbury, MD 21801.

assistant director. Boda has danced with the Northern Colorado Dancers which toured the Rockies, Dance Wyoming and was also an apprentice with "Up With People" where she taught movement to handicapped cast members. A graduate of the University of Northern Colorado, she has both choreographed and performed at Colorado University. She has been awarded a scholarship next fall to Texas Women's University near Dallas, where she will finish her Master of Fine Arts and then her doctorate. TWU is one of a handful of universities in the country offering a Ph.D. program in dance.

On stage all but five minutes, Boda must not only dance but act, conveying all the emotional and mental nuances of her character through movement. "One of the most exciting and hardest parts is a Mardi Gras scene where Yerma realizes she is not going to have the life she wanted and the impact of that . . . (on her)," said Boda.

"Yerma" is the tragedy of a woman whose sense of honor prevents her from leaving a childless marriage nor having an affair with a man who could give her a child. Her despair ultimately leads to violence.

Written in 1933 by one of Spain's leading poets, it was one in a series of Lorca plays which explored women's relationships to Spanish tradition and society.

Other featured performers are Ian Graham as Juan, Yerma's husband who values land more that children, Nick Lutzio as her would-be lover, and Christine Macabenta as Yerma's best friend.

Performances are at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12, with a matinee on Sunday, May 13, at 2 p.m. Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information or reservations call the SSU Dance Company at (301) 543-6353.

VOL. XI NO. 29

Distinguished Faculty Awards Announced

This year's winners of the Distinguished Faculty Awards were announced at the May 1 meeting of the University Forum. The award recipients are Dr. Thomas Erskine and Dr. John Wenke of the English Department, Mrs. Sylvia Bradley of the History Department and Dr. Edna Quinn of the Nursing Department.

Award recipients are selected from among the nominations submitted to the Faculty Welfare Committee early in the spring of each year. The awards are given to faculty who, during the previous year, have shown truly outstanding work and achievements in all three areas of faculty endeavor including teaching, service and scholarship.

The four award winners will be formally recognized at a fall meeting of the Forum at which time each will receive a plaque and be honored at a reception.

Miller Is Commencement Speaker

The Honorable Thomas V. Mike Miller, Jr., president of the Maryland State Senate, will address the University's 66th year graduating class on Saturday, May 26, at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Miller was elected president of the Maryland Senate at the beginning of the 1987 session of the General Assembly. As Senate president, Miller is only the fifth Prince Georgian to hold this position since colonial times. From 1983 - 1986, Miller served as chair of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee as deputy majority leader and as chair of the Prince George's County Senate delegation.

Miller is a native of Clinton, MD. He graduated from Surrattsville High School, received his B.S. in 1964 from the University of Maryland and his LL.D, J.D. in 1967 from the University of Maryland School of Law. He was admitted to the Maryland Bar in 1967. Miller is a member of local, state and national bar associations.

The oldest of 10 children, Miller has practiced law in Clinton for the past 22 years. His family is active in the local business community, and Miller is a participant in a broad range of civic activities. He and his wife, Patti, live in Clinton with their five children.

Orchestra, Brass Quintet To Perform Spring Concert

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra and the Annapolis Brass Quintet will merge their talents to provide music lovers with what promises to be a memorable performance Friday, May 18, and again on Saturday, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

As guest artists, the Annapolis Brass Quintet, acclaimed as among the world's finest chamber ensembles, will play four compositions, two of them in combination with the Salisbury Symphony.

The 55-member orchestra, making its second concert appearance of the performance season, will also offer a well-rounded program of works by Beethoven, Wagner, Mussorsky, Berlioz and Walton.

Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, chair of SSU's Music Department, will conduct. The program will be the same for both performances.

Founded four years ago, the orchestra gives two performances each spring and fall in Salisbury. This fall it also plans an appearance in Talbot County for the first time. The aim is to increase the number of performance sites by at least one a year over the next five years.

At the upcoming concert, the ABQ, which has performed throughout this country and in Europe, will join with the Salisbury orchestra in two works by Maryland composer, Elam Ray Sprenkle.

First will be "Quaker Bottom," which Sprenkle composed for the ABQ and the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra. It was first performed by them in 1982.

Next the quintet will join with the orchestra in "Baroque Fanfares," a lively set for strings and brass arranged by Sprenkle and including music by Susato, Pezel and Scheidt.

The orchestra will open each evening's program with the "King Stephan Overture" by Beethoven, followed by Procession to the Cathedral" from Wagner's "Lohengrin"; "Gopak," a Slavic folkdance from Mussorgsky's opera, "The Fair at Sorochinski"; and "Crown Imperial" by William Walton.

After the intermission, the ABQ will make its appearance, playing two works on its own, "Canonic Fanfare" by Heussenstamm and "Cassazione" by Petrovics, followed by the two in combination with the orchestra.

The evening will conclude with the orchestra playing "Hungarian March" from Berlioz' opera, "The Damnation of Faust."

Attention May Graduates

Caps and gowns will be available in the Book Rack beginning May 1.

For those graduates who did not take advantage of purchasing the personalized announcements, announcements are available in packs of 10 for $7.35.

Caps and gowns may be picked up during regular Book Rack hours. If someone will be picking up the gown for you, please send a written authorization giving your name, social security number, height, cap size (S,M,L,XL) and signature. There is no additional fee for your gowns as this is included in your graduation fee.

Graduation information will be given to each May graduate at the time caps and gowns are picked up. It is IMPORTANT for every graduate to carefully read this information because it provides instructions on where and when to line-up in the Civic Center and the correct way to wear caps, gowns and hoods. This information also appears on page 4 of this newsletter.

Please note that caps and gowns will be available only until Friday, May 25, at 2 p.m. Please make every effort to pick up your gown before this time. If there are any questions, contact the Book Rack.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away form alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in Holloway Hall, room 022, 543-6222.

Ivory Coast Trip Planned for January

In January, as part of winter term, Drs. Cyril Daddieh and Phillip Bosserman will lead a "Study Seminar to the Ivory Coast, West Africa." This will be a field experience in the political and social dimensions of development. The Ivory Coast is, in many respects, a perfect case study.

For more information contact Bosserman in sociology, or Daddieh in political science.

Yerma: A Collaboration of Talent

"Yerma," a classic play from the 20th century theatre canon by Federico Garcia Lorca will be interpreted in dance by the University Dance Company May 11-13 in Holloway Hall on stage at the SSU campus.

Performances are at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12, with a matinee on Sunday, May 13, at 2 p.m. Admission is free to SSU students, faculty and staff. For more information or reservations call the SSU Dance Company at (301) 543-6353.

English Position Reopened

Salisbury State University is accepting applications for a tenure-track position to begin in the fall at the rank of assistant professor. Qualifications include the doctorate and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Specialties should include Applied Linguistics and TESOL. The person hired will have undergraduate and master's level teaching responsibilities, including freshman composition, second language acquisition, and introduction to modern grammars. Applicants should expect to teach a four-course load, advise students and participate in departmental activities. The salary will be competitive.

The present search represents a second effort to fill the position. Applications will be accepted immediately and until the position has been filled. Applicants should send letter, vita, three recommendations, and evidence of teaching effectiveness to Dr. Wavie Gibson, Chair, Search Committee, English Department, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. Women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Campus Thefts

In the last two weeks, two offices in Holloway Hall were entered by an unknown person and cash and a wallet were removed. Because of these recent thefts the Public Safety Office is making the following recommendations:

- Keep your purse, wallet and other valuables in a secure location such as a locked desk or filing cabinet.
- Immediately report any suspicious person loitering in your area by calling public safety at 543-6222.

Summer Jobs

The Conference Services Office has 13 full-time summer jobs available for mature, responsible students.

The positions are for the period May 31-August 23 with evening and weekend work required. Wages are $4.50 per hour with housing and food service allowances.

For more information call Robyn Roberts, conference services manager, at 548-4507, or stop by the office in Nanticoke Hall basement, room 006.

Run to the Beach

On Saturday, May 12, the Semper Fi Society is holding its first annual "Run to the Beach" to benefit the United Way. Ten participants will cover the distance from Salisbury to Ocean City. Contributions are being accepted until the day of the run and are tax deductible. Interested individuals should contact David McCulloh at 749-7382 or Grant Pennington at 546-0834.

Final Newsletter

The final issue of the SSU News for the spring is Thursday, May 17. The deadline is Friday, May 11, at 4 p.m. To all those students, faculty and staff who this year helped us disseminate the news about so many things happening on campus our congratulations and thanks. Best wishes for a relaxing and happy summer.

Geranium Sale

Mother's Day is right around the corner and the Commuters Club is sponsoring a geranium sale (with the help of Allan Banks Nursery). The 4 1/2 inch plants will grow and bloom in beautiful red flowers throughout the summer, and may be planted outside. The cost will be $2.50 for each geranium plant, and they will be distributed by Friday, May 11. To order call the Office of Student Activities and Organizations, 543-6313 (Agata) or 543-6215 (Linda).

Choir Concert May 14

The spring concert performance of the University Concert Choir is scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, May 14, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Free and open to the public, the evening's program features varied choral literature presented by the 40-member mixed choir, representing such composers as Felix Mendelssohn, Ernst Toch, Samuel Barber, Vincent Persichetti and Giovanni Pergolesi, and spirituals arranged by Robert Shaw.

Three settings of the "Agnus Dei" text as well as choral works for both men's and women's voices will constitute a portion of the program. Student soloists will also be featured.

For further information contact the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Fulbright Program Open to Seniors, Grads

Recent graduates as well as current seniors of the University are invited to participate in a new Fulbright Program for study abroad.

The program allows young students to pursue an academic year of study or research in the country of their choice, outside of Western Europe. The program is open to all fields of study.

Students currently enrolled at SSU as well as recent graduates should contact Dr. Phillip Bosserman, the Fulbright Program adviser on campus, whose office is located in the Sociology Building, for brochures, application forms and further information. The deadline for the receipt of applications is May 23.

For more information contact Bosserman at 543-6430.

Wind Sinfonia Concert May 13

On Sunday, May 13, the University Wind Sinfonia will present its annual spring concert in the Wicomico Room of the University Center at 2 p.m. The event is free and open to the public. The Wind Sinfonia concert is sponsored by the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and the Department of Music.

Featured guest artist is Mario L. Hunter who will perform the "Clarinet Concerto No. 2. Op. 74" composed in the 19th century by Carl Maria von Weber. Hunter presently resides in Salisbury and pursues an active career as a free-lance artist.

For more information on the concert call the SSU Department of Music at 543-6385.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Thursday, May 8	Baseball vs. Methodist (DH)	3 p.m.
Sunday, May 13	NCAA Lacrosse Semifinals (tentative)	TBA

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

by Paul Ohanian

The Sea Gull baseball team closes out its season Thursday afternoon with a home doubleheader against Methodist College, beginning at 3 p.m. The diamondmen, 14-14-1, captured their fourth consecutive Eastern States Athletic Conference championship last Saturday with a 10-6 victory over Allentown. Randal Holt led SSU's 20-hit attack with a 5-5 performance, including two doubles, four runs scored and an RBI. Freshman Steve Wooters finished 3-5 with four RBIs. Senior OF Mike Shockley also set the new single-season steal record with his 40th theft of the season, breaking Chuck Hebron's 1978 record of 39.

The women's lacrosse team came three goals short of a successful title defense at the Maryland State Tournament last Sunday, losing to Georgetown, 14-11, in the championship game. Senior co-captain Andie Phillips led the Gull offense with six goals and two assists, and finished the seven-game tourney with a team-high 30 goals. Salisbury finished the year 6-6 overall.

Eight Sea Gulls earned all-conference honors at the Mason-Dixon Track Championships last weekend, highlighted by senior Doug Mock's Meet MVP Award. Mock captured first in both the 1,500 meters and 5,000 meters, and will now prepare for the National Championships, May 23-26, in Naperville, IL. The women's 4 x 100 relay team of Angela Waters, Cheryl Ish, Noella Denise and Amy Spishock also established a new school record with a time of 54.58.

Wednesday's quarterfinal round men's lacrosse game was SSU's second straight NCAA playoff berth and 12th bid since lacrosse became a varsity sport in 1974. The Gulls carried a 10-3 regular season record into Wednesday's game with Franklin & Marshall, and tuned up for their NCAA appearance with a 28-8 win at Kutztown last Saturday. Rick Berkman and Rusty Pritzlaff led the scoring barrage with six goals and two assists each.

Relaxation Techniques

Psi Chi is sponsoring a booth, displaying stress and relaxation techniques, in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Wellness Day, May 14. Beat the finals blues of test anxiety by visiting the Psi Chi booth from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Wellness Day May 14

Music? Balloons? Food? Fun? Wellness? Fun and Wellness? YES!! The fifth annual Wellness Day is around the corner. Once again, the University and community organizations join forces to provide an educational and enjoyable event to anyone who wishes to participate.

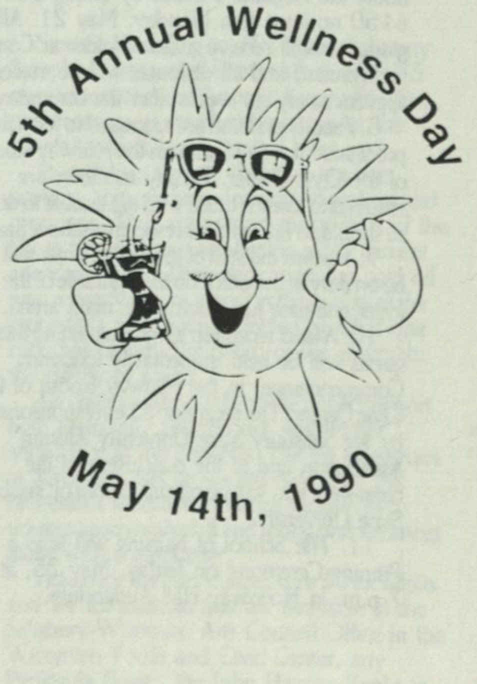
Wellness Day this year will be at a new location: the University Center, on Monday, May 14, from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. With the new location come new ideas: a Wellness Wagon with a variety of delicious fresh fruit and chocolate dip; car bashing, provided by the Young Republicans; nutritional analysis given by Food Services; and a Crystal Lite presentation. Other annually shown exhibits include health screenings, drug and alcohol education, AIDS prevention, relaxation techniques, recycling information and introduction to new and health oriented organizations.

Performances this year include Tai-Kwan-Do and Karate demonstrations, Steve "Trash" and Baltimore Care Connection. The two latter are new performers at SSU. Steve is one of the most unique comedy attractions because he performs magic with garbage. He will appear at noon on stage and then perform roving acts on the University Center's grounds.

Baltimore Care Connection will present a 30 minute rap show. It is designed to educate and encourage safe practices pertaining to AIDS prevention among the young adult population.

The sponsoring organizations: Health Center, Program Board, Office of Student Activities and Organizations, Union of African American Students, Drug and Alcohol Prevention Resource Center and Dining Services hope to make this an event to remember.

We would like to extend our thanks to the SSU Foundation for donating money for T-shirts.



May 1990 Commencement Information

Please Read Carefully

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 26, in the Wicomico County Youth and Civic Center. No tickets will be required, but it is suggested that graduates limit their number of guests to no more than eight. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center.

2. The Commencement speaker will be The Honorable Thomas V. Mike Miller, Jr., President, Maryland State Senate.

3. Caps, gowns, and master's hoods will be distributed through the University bookstore beginning May 1. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Announcements may be purchased in the bookstore, but quantities are limited and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours Monday through Thursday are 8:30 a.m.-7 p.m. [Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.] The bookstore will be open on Friday, May 25, 1990 from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Graduates must pick up the necessary items before 2 p.m. on that date.

4. Students will be awarded degrees by school (e.g., The Fulton School of Liberal Arts) and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard and then be seated.

5. The faculty marshals will give each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the School (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card is then given to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name. Dr. Butler will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. The name on the card must not be changed for any reason.

6. During the recessional graduates and faculty are to return to the area where they assembled prior to the ceremony. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

7. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the Commencement Exercise must notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6150 no later than Monday, May 21. All graduates will receive a blank folder at Commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

8. Faculty and staff are requested to form the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should so inform their respective school dean.

9. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following Commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony you will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. The School of Nursing will hold a Pinning Ceremony on Friday, May 25, at 7 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

12. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the University Center on Saturday, May 26. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

13. Bachelor of Science candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through L, Gary P. Lay, will report to Drs. Maurice Bozman and Edward Shaffer and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. Bachelor of Science candidates beginning with Stephanie Layman through the letter Z will report to Drs. Jerome Miller and Geraldine Rossi, and will line up alphabetically along the windows, facing west (the front of the building). You will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart.

14. Bachelor of Arts candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors on the side nearest to the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letters A through Kimberly Ann Marlatt, will report to Drs. Harry Basehart and Arthur Delpaz at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). You will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart.

15. Bachelor of Arts candidates with last names beginning with Mark Albert Marmo through the letter Z, will also go the the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Gerald St. Martin. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

16. Bachelor of Arts in Social Work candidates will also go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center. You will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to Dr. Arlene White. You will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. You will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart.

17. Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) candidates will go to the right after you enter the front doors of the Civic Center and report to Dr. White in the cross corridor leading to the Midway Room. Dr. White will place you in line appropriately. You will sit with the B.A.S.W. candidates in Section 6 of the seating chart.

18. All Master's Degree candidates (M.A. M.Ed., and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to Drs. John Lewis and Norman Johnson in the corrdior nearest the Midway Room. They will direct you into a line according to your degree. M.Ed. candidates will sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. M.A and M.B.A. candidates will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart.

19. Dress Code

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) - no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) - no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks - no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional (the Civic Center is air-conditioned).
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) No decoration of any kind is to be placed on the mortarboard.
2. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the President.
3. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
4. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate.

20. Graduation Decorum—Graduation ceremonies are by their very nature festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Whack & Hack, June 4

Jack Nicklaus. Gary Player. Arnold Palmer. Lee Trevino. Nancy Lopez. Gerald Ford. Golfing legends all. And, in a fabulous coup by tournament director Leon (the Green) Burks of the Admissions Office, none will be competing at this year's event on Monday, June 4, at Nassawango Country Club near Snow Hill.

"Their absence really throws this year's tourney wide open," said an ebullient Burks. "On any given day anyone can win this thing if they put on their shoes one at a time. All the credit, though, for maintaining the long-standing elitism associated with the Whack & Hack and for preserving its competitive nature belong with the Tournament Committee.

"Without the efforts of people like Barry (the) King (of Swing), Jack (the Golden Pear) Spence and Bob Gearhart (of the Hole), this event simply would not be receiving the recognition it so richly deserves," said Burks.

Costs for Whack & Hack participants are $27 for golfers and $15 for tennis players and those attending for the meal only. This year's dinner features, barbeque ribs and chicken, baked potatoes, two vegetables, rolls and butter, coffee, tea and dessert. Assorted beverages will be available on the course.

The master of ceremonies will be Terry Clay of Center of Personal and Professional Development. Entertainment will also be provided during dinner. Additionally, the swimming pool will be open to all.

The golf format will be the traditional Texas Scramble. (Please note this should not to be confused with the traditional Texas Scrabble format popularized in the early '70s at Toys R Us openings by Fran Kane.)

Prizes this year include longest drive (male and female divisions), closest to the pin—but must be on the green (male and female), worst team score, top three team finishers (with gifts to each team member) and worst looking golf clubs.

The tournament is open to all faculty, staff, students, alumni and guests. Golfers should arrive by 11:15 a.m.

Send checks made out to the SSU Foundation to Dee Hedrick in Holloway Hall, room 209. The first 80 registrants will receive an official Whack & Hack golf hat. All subsequent registrants will receive two hats.

For more information, please contact Burks at 543-6160.

Salisbury State Hosts Maryland Wheelchair Games

Three days of athletic competition will highlight the ninth annual Maryland Wheelchair Athletic Games at Salisbury State beginning Friday, May 11.

The Games, a series of events sanctioned by the National Wheelchair Athletic Association (NWAA), will run from Friday through Sunday and feature competition in table tennis, weightlifting, swimming, track and field, air weapons, archery and slalom.

While the emphasis of the competition is fun, participation and sportsmanship, the Maryland Games also allow athletes an opportunity to qualify for the national championships by meeting certain qualification standards.

Nationally renowned wheelchair marathoners Steven Lietz, LaVerne Achenbach, Kenneth Carnes and Bill Fuller will be among those competing. Many other athletes who have competed internationally will also be among the participants.

This year's event features an international flavor in another sense, with representatives from the Republic of Panama here to observe the competition in hopes of duplicating the success of the Maryland Wheelchair Games in that country.

The Salisbury State campus is fully accessible and the Maggs Center and outdoor facilities are outstanding venues for wheelchair competition, according to Dr. Thomas Stitcher, SSU athletic facilities coordinator. "We are well prepared for an event of this type," said Stitcher.

Registration and check-in for the competiton begins at 10 a.m. on May 11, with preregistration for athletes interested in competing required by Thursday, May 10. Further information is available from Elaine Harrington at the Maryland Department of Natural Resources at 749-2461.

The schedule of events for the 1990 Maryland Wheelchair Games is:

Fall History Courses

The History Department suggests students consider a pair of courses for the fall.

The Eastern European Revolutions (IDIS 479-151, Thursdays, 7-8:21 p.m.) is a new course in interdisciplinary studies for students who want to learn more about the events which have convulsed Eastern Europe over the past few years and their impact on the future.

Focusing primarily on social aspects of change and offered by a team of experts from sociology, history, political science, modern languages, economics and other fields, films, videotapes and guest lecturers are used to generate lively discussions.

Contemporary Cultures: The Russian People (MDFL 248-001, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 2:20-3:15 p.m) provides the opportunity to learn more about the people of this country and their way of life, even as it may be falling apart. The course looks beyond glasnost and perestroika and into the lives of the Russian people, investigating the way they live and work, what they think and their life in general.

Both courses satisfy General Education Requirements. Call the History Department at 543-6245 for details.

New Med Tech Course

The Medical Technology Department at SSU is offering a new and innovative elective, "Safety in the Biological, Chemical and Clinical Laboratory," beginning in the fall.

The department, which teaches clinical laboratory science, has always recognized the need to instruct students in prudent laboratory practices. However, this instruction has usually been conducted on a "need-to-know" basis. Current concern for the environment and the health of individuals exposed to chemicals and biological specimens, however, has resulted in increased scrutiny of all laboratory practices.

Routine laboratory practices have been altered substantially within the last few years as a result. In addition, incidents such as medical waste washing up on beaches and the discovery of chemicals in drinking water have created new regulations regarding waste management and laboratory procedures that students must be aware of early in their science educations.

"It is for this reason that a general laboratory safety course was conceived," said the course instructor, Diane Hayes. "The department wanted students to develop safe laboratory habits as early as possible in their education." The one-credit course was designed for freshman and sophomores with no prerequisites required.

The course is unique in that a broad range of hazards will be discussed including chemicals, biological hazards, laboratory animals, radiation, electrical equipment, fire, glassware and compressed gases. In addition, governmental bodies and regulations will be reviewed as they relate to laboratory practices. Students will also learn basic first aid and the use of protective equipment and clothing in the laboratory.

The concept for a laboratory safety course was endorsed by many faculty as an excellent offering for all science majors, but the originality of the idea presented a problem of its own. No textbook could be located which was current enough to incorporate recent changes in laboratory practice and which also included the broad range of topics which the department felt was necessary to cover.

Consequently, Hayes needed to literally write the book for the course. She rewrote an old edition of a laboratory safety text, and this spring "Overview of Safety in the Clinical Laboratory" was published by Educational Materials for Health Professionals in Ohio.

For more information, call Medical Technology at 543-6365.

Since its founding in 1986, the Salisbury Symphony has grown from less than 30 to 55 musicians committed "to providing quality, live performances of standard literature for the people of the Eastern Shore," Elliot said.

Its members include students, teachers, lawyers, homemakers, doctors and professional musicians. They come from many parts of the Shore to rehearse, maintaining a 90 percent attendance rate. Their dedication has paid off with a steady improvement in the quality of the orchestra's performance, including what one critic has called, "the polish of the ensemble, the clairity of sound. . . ."

Also noteworthy has been the public support both financially and through enthusiastic attendance at the concerts. The list of patrons at $50 each has grown steadily since the orchestra's inception. Patrons receive two tickets to each of the fall and spring performances along with a newsletter.

Tickets for the May concerts are $6 for adults and $4 for students and are available at the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council Office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, any Peninsula Bank , the John Hanson Banks in Salisbury or at the box office. For more information phone 543-6385.

Day Camp Counselors

The University's Summer Day Camp has openings for counselors in the following areas: arts and crafts instructor and swimming instructor.

Previous experience working with children is preferred but not required. However, the swimming instructor must be certified in lifesaving and WSI.

The Day Camp is August 6-10 and August 13-17. Rate of pay is based on experience.

Interested applicants should contact Wayne Gorrow at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs or call 543-6349.

Census Bureau Looking for Help

The U.S. Census Bureau is entering the non-response follow-up of the 1990 census. In order to complete this operation the Census Bureau must hire hundreds of enumerators (census takers) in each district office area.

SSU students are eligible to apply for census work.

Census takers pick up questionnaires from residents, interview them to obtain missing or incomplete census information from processed questionnaires and/or interview residents who did not return their forms. Enumerators are paid $6.50 per hour and 24 cents per mile car allowance.

Applications for employment are being taken on Thursdays at 6 p.m. in the University Center's Choptank Room. A 30-minute test is also given at that time. Students should bring two forms of identification (drivers license and SSU iD).

Pizza Kit Sale

People In Action, a local non-profit organization, is planning a fund-raising event, selling pizza kits.

One kit includes three round, pre-baked pizza crusts (individually wrapped); three packs of mozzarella cheese; and three packs of sauce. Those selecting the sausage or pepperoni pizzas will receive either three packs of sausage or three packs of pepperoni.

The pizzas may be frozen made up, or individually packaged. Refrigerated kits will remain fresh for up to two weeks. Cost for a cheese pizza kit is $11.75; pepperoni pizza kits are $13; and sausage pizza kits are $13.25.

Deadline for orders and money is May 24. Pizza will be delivered to purchasers at work on Monday, May 28.

Please contact Katrina Grogan, 543-6070, to order or for more information.

46 Percent of Juniors, Seniors Work in Community

If you're looking for Salisbury State students, don't limit yourself to the campus classroom. You might find them organizing recreational activities for the elderly in an area nursing home, doing research for NASA or the National Cancer Institute, counseling inmates at a correctional facility or doing camera work for a television talk show.

Last fall, almost half of the full-time upper classmen at SSU completed internships and field experience jobs at over 300 sponsoring agencies and organizations. Forty-six percent of the juniors and seniors worked more than 70,000 hours gaining valuable experience in their chosen fields of study.

According to Grady Armstrong, chair of the Department of Leisure Studies, "Internships give students an opportunity to apply and practice the knowledge and skills acquired in the academic setting. They provide students with an opportunity to function as professionals."

"I did my communication arts internship with Cable News Network (CNN) in Washington, D.C.," said Scott Krinsky, a senior from Olney. "I primarily worked with the producer of 'Capital Gang,' the show that won the ACE (Awards for Cable Excellence) for Best Talk Show last winter. I did everything from researching topics, teleprompting, camera work and distributing wire reports, to attending Senate hearings and helping interview the senators and congressmen who were guests on the show," he said. "This background is invaluable to me in my career goals."

Rita Ware of Salisbury had the opportunity to do summer research in chemistry as part of a laboratory fellowship at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. "Students involved in summer research fellowships at other universities have an excellent opportunity to discover what research is like in the graduate school environment," said Dr. Ed Senkbeil, SSU chemistry and physics professor, and internship coordinator.

Ware agrees. "The internship allowed me to perform research independently," she explained. "And it was beneficial to see what graduate school is like and to talk with several grad students—especially now that I'm applying to several schools. I feel much less intimidated applying to a larger school because I now realize that in comparison with the other students there, Salisbury State has done a good job preparing me."

Julia Parks of Rockville is doing her social work internship with Worcester County Youth and Family Counseling where she counsels students in grades six through eight. "The field experience program gives me a chance to work in my chosen area," she said. "It's made me realize that things don't always go by the book. In the book little Johnny has a problem, you work with him for a short time and everything turns out fine. Real life is just not that way. It moves much slower and I have to see the small advances as steps in the right direction."

As part of the General Assembly Internship Program, Iris Whiting of Wye Mills, a senior political science major at SSU, had the opportunity to see advances at the political level. Interning with Delegate Sylvania Woods Jr., first black chair of the District 24 delegation, she also learned how to deal with people. "I saw how the total Maryland system works—how laws are made from the writing of letters to constituents to the actual sessions where they are voted upon," she said. "I also learned about diplomacy—how to be sincere, tactful and make people happy. And I was able to attend political receptions where I met leading political leaders in the state. Every day I learned something new," she added.

Kurtzweil Reader Available

When 30-year-old Randy Wamples of Cambridge began loosing his sight two years ago, the one-time policeman and security systems manager knew he would have to prepare for a career change.

Returning to Salisbury State where he graduated in 1982, the young diabetic found the world of a graduate student who is legally blind vastly different from that he experienced six years earlier. Helping him to make the transition were a variety of resources he heretofore did not know existed on the Eastern Shore campus: student readers and notetakers, machines for magnifying print up to 60 times, even a talking computer. The latest piece of equipment which is state-of-the-art actually reads books and magazines out loud, and may be the first of its kind on the Peninsula, say University officials.

Called the Kurtzweil Personal Reader, "This is the best piece of equipment you can buy if you're visually impaired. It's the Cadillac," Wamples noted.

"It allows me more use of the library and use of a book immediately, instead of having to send away to the Library for the Blind."

Purchased by the University's Office of Disabled Student Services for approximately $13,000, the Kurtzweil Reader is housed in Blackwell Library. According to coordinator John Fields, the library's central location and extensive hours allow maximum access to the electronic reader for SSU's 20 visually impaired and dyslexic students. The University is also making it available to the local community when not in student use.

With training the machine is simple to work, according to Wamples. At its most basic, a printed page is placed on a scanner which recites it aloud in synthesized speech—up to 40 pages at a time.

The student has a choice of electronic voice characters to listen to including a child's, old man's, lady's, or businessman's. Wamples listens to the latter because he is usually reading journalistic articles or technical writing.

The reading speed of the synthesized voice may be adjusted from 120 to 350 words a minute, a difficult passage repeated over again, and even words spelled out. Punctuation is recited aloud on request.

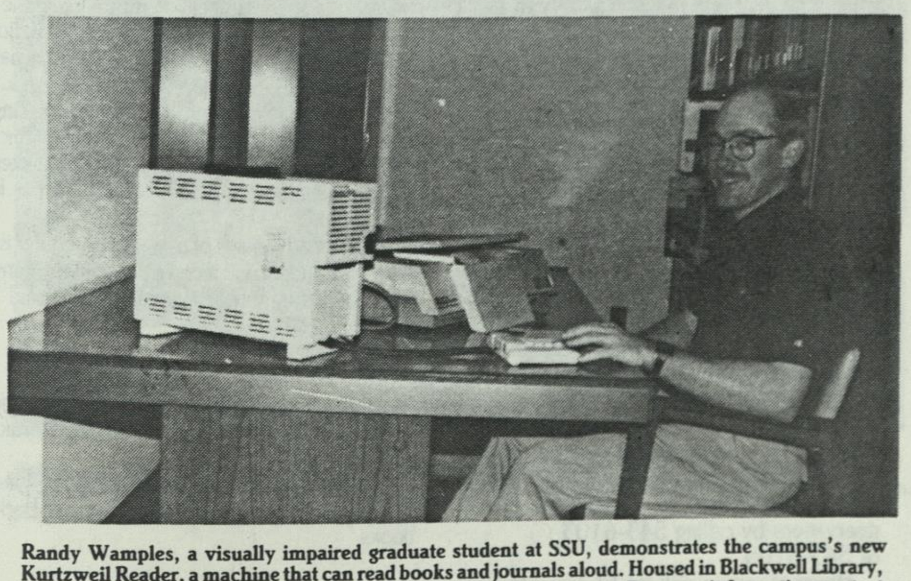
The 18-key control pad has four levels which allow the brains of the machine to also serve as a simple calculator.

"There are some things I still haven't learned to do on it yet," Wamples said. The two pieces of equipment, which are about the size of a portable typewriter and a small printer, are set up in a sound-proof study carrell on the library's main floor. He usually brings a cassette recorder and tapes short articles to later replay in his room when he is studying or writing papers.

Wamples, "who is outgoing and has a great rapport with both students and faculty," according to Fields, is the only legally blind resident assistant on campus. Completing his master's in education with a concentration in counseling, he is enthusiastic about what such equipment means to people with visual impairments.

Until returning to SSU "I had no idea this kind of thing was out there," he said. "The University is fortunate to have the resources. . . . Without that type of equipment, I don't think I could have made it here."

Training sessions on the Kurtzweil Reader, which take approximately an hour, are available weekdays by appointment, said Keith Vail, associate director of the SSU library. For more information contact Vail at 543-6520.



Randy Wamples, a visually impaired graduate student at SSU, demonstrates the campus's new Kurtzweil Reader, a machine that can read books and journals aloud. Housed in Blackwell Library, the reader is available for use by the public on a space available basis. For more information contact Associate Library Director Keith Vail at 543-6520.

Faculty Pay Schedule

Faculty Take Note: If you wish to change your pay schedule for the 1990-91 school year (i.e. go from 21 to 26 pays per year or 26 to 21 pays) contact the Personnel Office, HH 222, prior to the end of this semester.

Gift Books

This is the time of the year when many are cleaning out offices (or attics, basements, etc.)

If you have books or periodicals that you don't need, throw them in the direction of Blackwell Library. Blackwell staff will even pick them up for you. It's a tremendous method of recycling and getting information into the hands of those who can use it.

All items that we do not add to the Library's permanent collection will go into its stock for its annual Monster Book Sale. Due to the success of last September's sale, that stock is depleted and now needs an infusion of new material. Keep the tradition alive by donating those books and periodicals that are crowding you out of office, house and home. Contact Keith Vail at Blackwell at 543-6520 if you can help.

Wanted: Students To Work Summer Orientation

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the Summer Orientation (testing, advising and registration) Program for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 18-21, June 25-28 and July 9-11.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extra-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs and services/organizations on campus, and be good role models and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience office in the Physical Plant building. Deadline for application is May 16.

Summer Pool Jobs

Lifeguards and swimming instructors are needed May 28-August 28 at the University pool. Starting pay is $4 for guards, $5 for instructors.

Submit a letter of application, proof of certification, and two references to Rosie Barretta, Aquatic Director, Maggs Physical Activity Center or call 543-6357.

Salisbury State University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Qualified women, minorities, and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Singleton Elected

Dr. Donald Singleton, associate professor of communication arts in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, was elected vice chairperson and chairperson-elect of the Mass Communication Division of the Southern States Communication Association, a group of communication and rhetorical scholars.

In his capacity as vice chair, Singleton will plan the mass communication program for the 1991 conference to be held in Tampa, FL.

Singleton was elected at the recent SCA convention held in Birmingham, AL. He also served as critic for a panel of mass communiation papers submitted to the conference. Singleton teaches broadcasting communication courses at Salisbury State.

Mom's Day Treat, Brunch on the Hill

Van Glaman, assistant director of University Dining Services reminds all that Sunday, May 13, will be the final Gull's Nest Sunday Brunch of the semester.

Since this will be Mother's Day the Gull's Nest staff has decided to make this an extra special event. When asked how, Cathy Schmager, Gull's Nest manager said, "Van and I have a surprise or two in store for all mothers who attend on the 13th. We think this is a day for Mom, and we're going to give her a treat."

"Get Mom out of the kitchen! I'll do all of the cooking!" said production supervisor Dave Cacciamani, whose skill in the kitchen regularly delights brunch patrons. The brunch menu always includes but isn't limited to: carved steamship round, whole tom turkey, omelet bar including low cholesterol eggs, salad bar, fresh fruit selection, belgian waffle bar, broccoli with special chef's cheese sauce, biscuits and gravy, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, french toast, and a selection of fresh breads, pastries and desserts.

Michael Ruane, dining services intern, thinks this will be a big family day at the brunch and encourages parties of five or more to make reservations by calling 543-6103 or 543-6105.

Hours of service will be 11 a.m. -2 p.m. Prices remain $6.95 per adult and $3.95 per child under 12 for the all-you-can-eat buffet.

Book Buy Back Now Computerized

The Book Rack is holding a new computerized book buy back May 21-25 at the bookstore and in Red Square. The new computerized method will prove to be more accurate and quicker for all involved, according to Stan Shedaker, Book Rack director.

When the books are brought back, the buyer codes the book's identification number into the computer which brings the book's information onto the screen, including the price to be paid and the number of that book already sold back.

"This is a more accurate method than looking up each identification number in a catalog which was the method used in the past," said Shedaker. "This also makes the process much quicker for the student."

"Another advantage of using the computer is that every student will receive a receipt showing the amount they got back for each book," said Shedaker.

"This last feature will probably be a favorite because the majority of students who were asked about the book buy back said that they thought it was their right to know how much was given for each book.

"The new computerized method will definitely be a quicker and more efficient way to sell back books."

Fultons Endow School of Liberal Arts With $2.5 Million Gift

At a press conference with Governor William Donald Schaefer last fall, a major gift of $2.5 million to endow a School of Liberal Arts at Salisbury State University, was announced by Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton of Snow Hill, and Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of Salisbury State University.

This is the third multimillion dollar endowment for a school at the University in the past four years. In 1986 Franklin P. Perdue, chairman of the board of Perdue Farms,Inc., donated $2.5 million to endow a School of Business. Last year Richard A. Henson, chairman of the board of Henson Aviation, Inc., also gave $2.5 million to endow the School of Science and Technology.

"This is truly a great day in the history of Salisbury State University," said Bellavance. "The gift by the Fultons will touch the life of virtually every student on campus. Some 45 percent of all SSU graduates major in the liberal arts and all undergraduates must study a strong core curriculum in sciences and humanities (the largest of which is in liberal arts).

"Everyone associated with the University is deeply indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Fulton," said Bellavance, "both for their generous gift and their personal commitment to enhancing the quality of education in our region and the state."

"It is difficult to fully measure the impact of this very generous gift," Gov. Schaefer said. "Students at Salisbury State University will benefit for years to come because of the generosity of Charles and Martha Fulton.

"They have done something wonderful for Maryland and we are very grateful to them."

Highlights of the Fulton endowment include the development of curricula emphasizing internships and community service through the liberal arts, a major scholarship recruitment drive to attract highly motivated students, the underwriting of faculty research and development, the enhancement of library holdings and the support of a visiting scholars program.

Guerrieris Donate $1 Million for Scholarships

At a press conference with Governor William Donald Schaefer this spring, a million dollar scholarship fund for Salisbury State University was annonunced by Alan and Patti Guerrieri of Ocean City, MD, and Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, president of the University.

Alan Guerrieri is president and chief executive officer of Showell Farms, Inc.

"We are extremely pleased by the generosity of the Guerrieri family," said Gov. Schaefer. "It is exciting to see others recognize the quality of higher education offered at Salisbury State and the support this institution has drawn from the community. The Salisbury State example is one I hope can be repeated at other state colleges and universities."

"This is the most generous endowment for scholarships in the history of the University," said Bellavance.

"My wife and I feel that Salisbury State University is something to be proud of," said Alan Guerrieri. "Not enough people realize what we have here. If they visited, I think they'd understand why we are giving this gift (to the University). We hope others will."

In the last four years the campus of some 5300 students has become the highest-endowed four-year comprehensive state university in Maryland. According to the Council for Aid to Education, Salisbury was second in the nation in endowment gifts among public comprehensive universities in 1987-88, the most recent available figures. The University's Foundation assets now exceed $10 million.

"Today is a hallmark for Salisbury," its president continued, "and for higher education in Maryland. This gift by the Guerrieris will allow us to provide considerably more academic scholarships to the brightest and best in every school of the University. These scholarships will not be limited to students in any one area of study. The Guerrieris' wish is that the aid go where needed, which is both generous and

1980s: A Decade of Growth at SSU

The decade of the 1980s at Salisbury State University has been one of extraordinary growth at the University, transforming it into one of the most in-demand schools on the East Coast.

Ever increasing interest in the University is evidenced by a whopping 250 percent increase in applications for admission in the last 10 years. That surge in applications has been achieved while the University has held enrollments relatively stable, growing by a modest 700 students to 5,300.

The heightened interest has led to greater selectivity on the part of the Admissions Office. Average scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test among entering freshmen have skyrocketed 143 points. This fall's class will be the first in University history to average over 1,000.

Why do more and more and better and better

46 Percent of Students Complete Internships

If you're looking for Salisbury State University students, don't limit yourself to the campus classroom. You might find them organizing recreational activities for the elderly in an area nursing home, doing research for NASA or the National Cancer Institute, counseling inmates at a correctional facility or doing camera work for a television talk show.

Last fall, almost half of the full-time upper classmen at SSU completed internships and field experience jobs at over 300 sponsoring agencies and organizations. Forty-six percent of the juniors and seniors worked more than 70,000 hours gaining valuable experience in their chosen fields of study.

According to Grady Armstrong, chair of the Department of Leisure Studies, "Internships give students an opportunity to apply and practice the knowledge and skills acquired in the academic setting. They provide students with an opportunity to function as professionals."

"I did my communication arts internship with Cable News Network (CNN) in Washington, D.C.," said Scott Krinsky, a senior from Olney. "I primarily worked with the producer of 'Capital Gang,' the show that won the ACE (Awards for Cable Excellence) for Best Talk Show last winter. I did everything from researching topics, teleprompting, camera work and distributing wire reports, to attending Senate hearings and helping interview the senators and congressmen who were guests on the show," he said. "This background is invaluable to me in my career goals."

Rita Ware of Salisbury had the opportunity to do summer research in chemistry as part of a laboratory fellowship at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. "Students involved in summer research fellowships at other universities have an excellent opportunity to discover what research is like in the graduate school environment," said Dr. Ed Senkbeil, SSU chemistry and physics professor, and internship coordinator.

Ware agrees. "The internship allowed me to perform research independently," she explained. "And it was beneficial to see what graduate school is like and to talk with several grad students— especially now that I'm applying to several schools. I feel much less intimidated applying to a larger school because I now realize that in comparison with the other students there, Salisbury State has done a good job preparing me."

Julia Parks of Rockville is doing her social work internship with Worcester County Youth and Family Counseling where she counsels students in grades six through eight. "The field experience program gives me a chance to work in my chosen area," she said. "It's made me realize that things don't always go by the book. In the book little Johnny has a problem, you work with him for a short time and everything turns out fine. Real life is just not that way. It moves much slower and I have to see the small advances as steps in the right direction."

As part of the General Assembly Internship Program, Iris Whiting of Wye Mills, a senior political science major at SSU, had the opportunity to see advances at the political level. Interning with Delegate Sylvania Woods Jr., first black chair of the District 24 delegation, she also learned how to deal with people. "I saw how the total Maryland system works—how laws are made from the writing of letters to constituents to the actual sessions where they are voted upon," she said. "I also learned about diplomacy—how to be sincere, tactful and make people happy. And I was able to attend political receptions where I met leading political leaders in the state. Every day I learned something new," she added.

Students are not the only ones benefiting from this program. Agencies and organizations are usually getting top-notch workers who are eager to put their classroom skills into practice.

Carol Wright, CTRS, director of activity therapy at Deer's Head Rehabilitation and Chronic Hospital Center, has been employing Salisbury State interns since the fall of 1982. "I can't say enough to praise them," she said. "They are very professional and contribute a great deal to the department. Students really do make a difference—they get right in there and do the job well and the patients love them. They provide an enthusiasm, a youthfulness and are always coming up with fresh, new ideas," she added.

Lisa Massi of Somerdale, NJ, who is working at Shore Hospitality in Salisbury for leisure studies credit, perhaps sums it up best. "Internships are so instrumental in the learning process that I think that they should be mandatory because that's where you really learn the business."

Students Receive Audubon Scholarships

Two Salisbury State University students were among seven students chosen in the state of Maryland to receive scholarships from the Maryland Ornithological Society Committee to attend week-long summer sessions at the National Audubon Society Camp in Maine.

Scholarship recipients were chosen on the basis of their dedication to develop in young people an appreciation of our wild heritage and a sense of responsibility for the care of our natural resources and for the quality of our environment.

Monica Cofiell was awarded the Jimmy Wood and Edith Bourne Memorial Scholarship to study the beautiful birdlife of coastal Maine. Field identification and biology will be stressed as she tours the outer islands of Penobscot Bay. Matinicus Rock, which displays the greatest diversity of seabirds in the Gulf of Maine, will be the highlight of the trip. Visits to fir and deciduous forests, freshwater and saltwater marshes, and coastal beach habitats will provide Cofiell with a broad exposure to Maine wildfowl.

A senior with a 3.84 grade point average majoring in biology at SSU, Cofiell resides in Salisbury with her husband, Gene, and their two children, Christopher, 12, and Emily, 8.

The Helen Miller Scholarship will enable Noelle Anuszkiewicz of Mardela Springs to attend the National Audubon Society Camp in Muscongus Bay, ME. The workshop format will provide her with a comprehensive introduction to the natural beauty of the Maine Coast. Established in 1936 as a pioneering experiment in nature education for teachers and other adult leaders, the Maine camp occupies the 333-acre Todd Wildlife Sanctuary on Hog Island, a wild paradise that seems a million miles from the urbanized world.

Anuszkiewicz, a 1984 graduate of Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, is a senior with a 3.4 grade point average also majoring in biology at Salisbury State. She is the daughter of Jerome Anuszkiewicz of Baltimore and Barbara Anuszkiewicz of Glen Burnie.

As a result of her experiences on her biology field trips along the Chesapeake Bay, Anuszkiewicz has become committed to the protection of our environment and she plans to convey this commitment through teaching.

"I'm from the city and didn't have much of a chance to get out in nature when I was growing up," she said. "When I transferred to SSU from Towson State last year, I was amazed at the number of field trips we were required to take as biology majors and at all the information I picked up by going on them. In the city, all the species I studied were just so far removed from me—I couldn't touch them or feel that they were really there," she continued. "Here on the Eastern Shore all I have to do is step outside and look around. I'm still so elated over my new-found discoveries that I want to excite other minds to the same things," Anuszkiewicz added.

Cofiell has received a $1,000 SSU Richard A. Henson Scholarship for the past two years and is a member of Beta Beta Beta biological, Kappa Delta Pi educational and Phi Kappa Phi national honor societies. This semester she student taught biology and chemistry at Bennett Senior High School and is currently student teaching life sciences and general science to sixth and seventh graders at Berlin Middle school.

"I am really happy over the prospect of going to the Audubon Camp because it will provide me with a much more extensive background in birds—a subject which I am going to be teaching," Cofiell explained. "And hopefully, I will come back with a lot of pictures to use in my classes."

University Center Receives Barrier-free Award

"The most difficult part of being handicapped is depending on other people for help in doing day-to-day things that everyone else takes for granted. Salisbury State University has gone a long way in making sure people like me can be self-reliant," said Randy Whaples, a visually-impaired graduate student from Cambridge, majoring in education, who is heading for a career in counseling.

One reason Whaples, and the 30 disabled students who attend SSU, chose the University is the $13 million University Center which has been selected as one of 10 buildings in Maryland to receive the 1990 Barrier-free Design Award from the Governor's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities. The award was given on a recommendation from the Lower Eastern Shore Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

"Complete accessibility for the handicapped was one of our main concerns from the initial planning stages," said David Ganoe, University Center director, of the 76,000 square foot, airy building which anchors the south end of the campus. That concern is born out in the ramped entrances, giving way to wide walkways throughout the structure. Doors, elevators and restrooms have been designed with the handicapped in mind. Wheelchair-level controls operate drinking fountains. The Center, like many campus buildings, houses telephones and other equipment for the visually and hearing impaired.

Schaefer's award does not mean SSU will rest on its laurels. "We are constantly updating our facilities to make sure the handicapped can integrate with campus life as fully as possible," said Ganoe. The updating is the result of a healthy interaction between students like Whaples and the administration through SSU's Office of Handicapped Services.

Scheduled for completion this October is a $400,000 handicapped-accessible garden linking the University Center and the main campus. The design incorporates a fountain, brick patios and walkways which contain tree-studded turf areas. The highlight of the project will be a 252-foot-long, vine-covered pergola with three pavillions connected by doric colonnades.

Dori Spittel, an elementary education major from Ellicott City, who can be spotted racing around the campus in her wheelchair, has praise for both the University Center and other on-campus facilities. "I'm a gregarious person, and SSU allows me to make the most of my studies and social life," said Spittel, recipient of the 1989 Maryland Handicapped Youth Award, from her specially designed St. Martin Hall dorm.

Paul Rendine, chairman of the Lower Eastern Shore Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and an SSU graduate, is a paraplegic who combines his position as vice president of Wheat First Securities with a busy schedule of community involvement. "Anyone may become handicapped, whether due to an accident, or gradual loss of sight or hearing," said Rendine. "The many thousands of disabled people on the lower Eastern Shore are valuable as a work force, and as consumers. On behalf of the disabled of our area who have benefitted from the University's efforts, I congratulate SSU on its work, sensitivity and compassion for their needs."

University president, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, sees the Barrier-free Design Award as a symbol of many of SSU's aims. "Our University Center should be exactly that," said Bellavance. "We want all students to enjoy campus life to the fullest, including the many events offered by the University Center. We are honored to receive such recognition and will make sure it represents a benchmark in our on-going plan to provide a barrier-free education for everyone."

English Faculty Net Poetry Awards

Dr. Michael Waters, associate professor of English, and Jon Davis, visiting professor of English, of Salisbury State University have both received Individual Artist Awards in Poetry from the Maryland State Arts Council for 1990.

Both received $3,000, the top financial award given to writers, on the basis of artistic excellence. More than 600 Maryland artists applied for grants; 50 were given.

According to Dr. Connie White, chair of the English Department at SSU, "This award to two professors from our department in a field as competitive as creative writing is a testimony to the excellence of their work and esteem with which our faculty are regarded. What goes unheralded is the attention and encouragement Professors Waters and Davis give to students who wish to write well and the impact I have seen these two excellent teachers have on young minds.

"To be a good teacher or a good poet is a singular achievement. To be both is rare."

Waters has published four volumes of poetry, his latest, "The Burden Lifters," in 1989. He has won numerous awards including fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts, two Pushcart Prizes and the Towson State University Prize for Literature.

Davis is also a National Endowment for the Arts fellow. He has received a fellowship from the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown, MA, and the General Electric Award for Younger Writers. His first book of poetry, "Dangerous Amusements," won the Peter I.B. Lavan Award, given by the Academy of American Poets.

Johnson Is Bernstein Award Winner, $5,000 Richer

Douglas Lee Johnson of Salisbury started exhibiting proof of his entrepreneurial spirit when he was in junior high school. "I started out with one push mower and a gas can mowing lawns for a couple of women who worked for my grandfather," said Johnson, "and my business expanded to their friends and neighbors. People were happy with the work I did; they'd give me a reference and my list of clients started to grow," he added.

And grow it did! Johnson, age 22, is now owner and operator of Lawn Masters, a landscaping and lawn care business in Salisbury. He has six part-time employees working for him including his 18-year-old brother, Kevin, and his parents, Carolyn and Lee Johnson III. His business covers a 10-mile radius of Salisbury.

Johnson is this year's recipient of Salisbury State University's Franklin P. Perdue School of Business Richard Bernstein Achievement Award for Excellence and its accompanying $5,000 check. Richard Bernstein, president and general manager of K & L Microwave, Inc. in Salisbury, established the award four years ago to recognize students who display outstanding academic abilities and show evidence of an entrepreneurial spirit.

"I started just mowing lawns but little by little I got involved in things like landscaping and lawn maintenance," Johnson explained. "We'd be at a particular lawn and someone would ask us to trim a shrub, mulch or put down fertilizer—basically things they had been doing but didn't want to do anymore." Anxious to meet his clients' needs, he took landscaping maintenance and design classes at Wor Wic Tech right after high school and worked on the grounds of Salisbury State under the supervision of Les Lutz, Jr., director of horticulture, during the summer after his sophomore year at SSU.

But Johnson has not confined his efforts solely to his business. He is president of the Financial Management Association (FMA) at SSU, an organization for students interested in the fields of finance, banking and investments. A lot of Johnson's energies are directed into bringing the three business clubs at SSU together, sponsoring activities such as field trips to places like the New York Stock Exchange and contests like last year's AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge, and arranging guest speakers.

A 1986 graduate of Parkside High School, he is also a member of Phi Beta Lambda business honor society and the Financial Management Association National Honor Society.

Johnson was stunned when he found out that he had won the Bernstein Award. "I was up against tough competition, and I felt honored to have been chosen" he said. "Five students were in competition for the award and the others were all bright, well-rounded individuals from the Perdue School."

According to Dr. Gary Lee Pielemeier, vice president of research and development and a member of the Bernstein Award selection committee, "Doug's entrepreneurial spirit speaks for itself. It is unusual for a student his age to come right out of college into his own self-established business."

Johnson plans to invest the money by acquiring more equipment for his business this fall. "In a service business, getting enough commercial equipment is difficult. A lawnmower can cost you $13,000 and a larger truck with a dump bed can run around $18,000 easily. It's very expensive to get started," he continued.

"Since I graduate this month, this fall will be the first time I'll be able to devote full time to an off-season. I'll be able to expand things like fall cleanup (raking leaves, trimming shrubbery, cleaning flower beds, etc.). In the past, I've had to turn business away because I just didn't have enough time with my classes and everything else I was involved in." Johnson's typical day during the school year begins at 7 a.m. "Then I either go to classes or attend an FMA meeting or go look at a job and write up an estimate. After classes, I work until dark and sometimes after dark, especially if it's a commercial site which is well lit. Then I do my paper work for the business until 9 p.m. and from 9 to hopefully no later than midnight, I do my homework."

He credits Dr. Khashayar Khazeh, professor in the Perdue School, for his guidance in helping him schedule his classes. "I came to the business school not knowing what concentration I was interested in," said Johnson. "I took a personal financial planning course with him and he convinced me to try a class in the finance concentration. Once I started taking finance classes, I enjoyed them and they came easily to me.

"I could readily apply some of my business courses to my business—especially those involving cost benefit analysis problems," he continued. "They really made me stop and think through all the angles involved. There's a lot more to it than just throwing the equipment into the truck and going on the job."

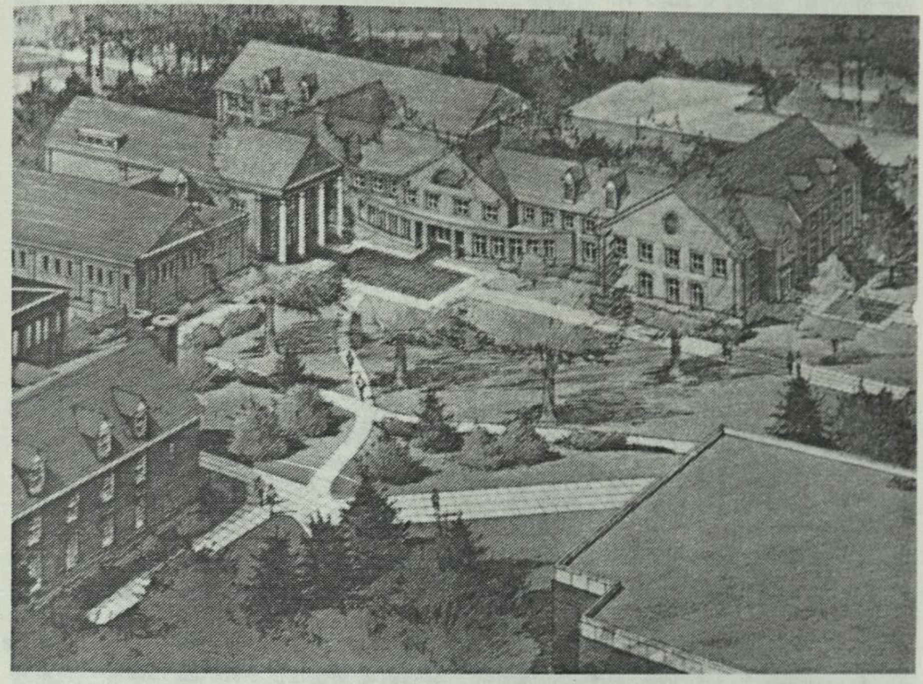
SSU Breaks Ground on $15.2 Million Fulton Hall
First New Academic Building in More Than a Decade



Pictured is a rendering of the new $15.2 million Fulton Hall-the first new academic building in more than a decade at Salisbury State

Before a festive audience of friends of the University and members of the campus community, Salisbury State broke ground on November 9 for its first new classroom building in more than a decade, the $15.2 million Fulton Hall.

This is the first new state-supported structure on campus since Maggs gymnasium, which opened in 1977. New construction since then, mostly dorms and a University Center, has been paid for with non-tax dollars.

"A positive result of the new University of Maryland System governance structure," said SSU President Thomas E. Bellavance, "is that construction for this new complex is starting now. Under the old system the building wouldn't be coming up for funding for another two to three years.

"I also offer kudos to the state Department of General Services and its secretary, Earl Seboda, for their tremendous cooperation," Dr. Bellavance continued, "and to (SSU) Vice President of Administration Joseph Gilbert, who has worked for two years to get the kind of building we can be proud of."

The most expensive construction project in SSU history, the structure is an 85,000 square foot complex which covers approximately the same amount of land as Holloway Hall, the campus administration building, and provides some 12,000 square feet more space than the new University Center, which opened in 1988.

The new structure will be on the site of Tawes Hall (a one-time gymnasium that was unfeasible to renovate), an annex building to Holloway and a temporary parking lot. Occupancy is expected during the spring semester of 1992.

A sister structure to Holloway whose soaring classical columns and weathered copper cupola have become emblematic of the University, Fulton Hall also will be Georgian in style with Flemish bond brickwork, a high peaked slate roof, a two-story columned entrance, and ornamental bricking and roof dormers. Curving pathways, small brick plazas and a gently arced one-story portico add to its friendliness.

Like Holloway, Fulton Hall appears to be less a massive structure than a series of wings, each with its own personality and function. The new complex will house a variety of academic disciplines, and bring together under one roof for the first time in the history of the University, performing and fine arts programs in the School of Liberal Arts.

Off the main entrance will be a 3,000 square foot art gallery, some three times larger than the current one. The present University Gallery is "basically a corner of Blackwell Library," noted Vice President Gilbert.

Increased gallery size "will make the University eligible for traveling shows that are much more extensive than what we can now accommodate," said dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Sharon Rubin.

East of the gallery will be a raked mini-auditorium for lectures and slide/film presentations. Immediately west off the lobby is a black box theatre with flexible audience seating accommodating up to 200.

"For the first time," said vice president of Academic Affairs, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, "we will have a theatre designed as a theatre and an art gallery designed as an art gallery."

Beyond the lecture hall, the complex houses new music facilities. Highlights include an electronic studio and a modern music library. Currently the Music Department is being housed in a one-time restaurant off Rt. 13.

Neighboring the Music Department will be military science and art. Art will have not only various studios, but an outdoor ceramics and sculpture garden for students working with larger pieces and welding work, and new photographic darkrooms including one for color film.

"Nationally and internationally there is more and more collaboration in the arts today," Dean Rubin added. "For example 'performance art' may incorporate theatre, music and the visual arts. By having all of our fine arts together we can encourage the kind of cutting edge collaboration and exploration which is so exciting, particularly in a university setting."

The south wing which faces the main campus plaza is entirely devoted to academic and administrative computer services. It will provide 24-hour access to computer students..

Throughout the structure are classrooms, faculty offices and student spaces.

Designed by Gzesh & Associates in joint venture with Bohlin, Powell, Larkin and Cywinski of Pittsburgh and Baltimore, the two-story building with its extensive southern exposure and many windows appears light and airy. According to Jacob J. Gzesh, principal of the firm, the new complex "reflects the human scale found in Holloway Hall...." It's meant to be a building where students, faculty and visitors can interact and feel comfortable, he added.

The name Fulton Hall was chosen to honor Charles and Martha Fulton of Snow Hill, who this year donated $2.5 million to endow the School of Liberal Arts.

Contractor is J. Roland Dashiell and Sons of Salisbury.

University officials agree that by moving programs and departments that are being housed in temporary facilites to Fulton Hall, all will have new opportunities for continued growth in depth and excellence.

Said Dean Rubin, " I anticipate a 'synergy' taking place . . . with exciting things happening we can't even guess about yet."

Salisbury Among Best Small Cities to Call Home

Salisbury is among the top 25 small communities in the United States to call home, according to a newly published book.

The Rating Guide to Life in America's Small Cities ranks 219 "micropolitan" areas for their desirability as alternatives to living in the nation's large metropolitan centers.

Salisbury tied in the 23rd slot with Ithaca, NY, and Winchester, VA.

San Luis Obispo-Atascadero, CA rated as the best small city to live.

The book's author, G. Scott Thomas, defines micropolitans as cities of between 15,000 and 50,000 people in counties of at least 40,000 population.

The communities cannot be part of regions designated as metropolitan areas by the U.S. government as of June 15, 1989. Most suburban communities are disqualified because they are included in metropolitan areas.

"More than 15 million people live in micropolitan America, nearly 6.5 percent of the nation's population," said Thomas.

The cities were assigned a points in 10 categories: climate, economics, education, health care, housing, public safety, transportation, urban proximity, sophistication and diversions.

The latter two categories measured things such as voter turnout, population turnover, newspaper readership, movie theaters, parks, golf courses, restaurants and retail stores.

1989-90 Winter/Spring Sports Roundup

by G. Paul Ohanian

During fall '89, several Sea Gull teams enjoyed winning seasons and two teams—field hockey and volleyball—captured championships. Following that lead, the winter and spring sports squads built on that success with two more championships, one new national record and a third claim on the conference's All-Sports Trophy.

Employing a new offensive philosophy this season, the run-and-gun Sea Gull men's basketball team established a new NCAA Division III scoring record with an average of 104.5 points per game. Coach Ward Lambert's team surpassed the 100-point scoring mark in 15 of its 27 games, including a new single-game scoring record of 141 points vs. Eastern College in late January. The Gulls finished the year 14-13 overall and placed second in the Eastern States Athletic Conference (ESAC).

The women's basketball team finished with its sixth straight .500 or better record, at 12-12, and advanced to the semifinals of the ESAC Tournament. Guard Sandy Jankevicius ended her four-year career as the fifth all-time scorer in Gull history with 1,173 points and also established new team records for career steals, 325, and most steals in a single season, 93. Her 39-point effort against Mary Washington was one-point short of the single-game scoring record.

Several fine individual performances highlighted the SSU wrestling season, with perhaps the season's best effort recorded by junior Marty Lewis, who captured first place in the 177-pound weight class at the competitive Metro Tournament in New York City. Lewis, named the team's MVP, finished with the best match record on the squad at 15-6-1.

The outdoor spring season was highlighted by conference championships in men's tennis and baseball, as well as a trip to the national semifinals for the men's lacrosse squad. The Gulls, under second-year coach Jim Berkman, recorded their 11th straight winning lacrosse season as they finished 11-4 and ranked fifth in the final Division III poll. SSU's 12th appearance in the NCAA playoffs also brought the team's first postseason win since 1984, a 17-7 victory over Franklin & Marshall in the quarterfinals.

Despite Coach Deane Deshon's first losing season since 1986 and just his second losing season in 16 years, the baseball team, 14-16-1, did win an unprecedented fourth straight ESAC championship with a 10-6 win over Allentown. Senior outfielder Mike Shockley established a new record for most steals in a season, with 42 and also finished the year with a .362 batting average, second only to fellow senior Mike Marinelli's .370 average. Marinelli, who also topped the squad in hits, 43, and doubles, 12, was additionally honored as an academic All-American.

Also repeating as conference champion was Dean Burroughs' men's tennis squad, which finished 10-4 overall. Freshman Bill Stern captured the ESAC singles title in the number two flight, while the tandems of Tre Moore/George Wines and Mike Kaminski/Dave Hardesty each won doubles championships. Sophomore Jimmy Ireton ended the year with the best singles match record, 12-2.

Like the baseball team, Coach Dawn McCrumb saw her consecutive streak of winning softball seasons snapped, with a 13-18 campaign her first non-winning season in six years. Bright spots during the year included freshman pitcher Sonja Akers, who filled in for an injury-riddled pitching staff with 11 wins, senior catcher Debe Clarke, whose grand-slam keyed a 17-1 win over Shenandoah, and senior outfielder Kristy Keil, who finished the year with eight hits in her final 16 at-bats. Keil was also named as the team MVP.

Coach Dawn Chamberlin's women's lacrosse team came three goals short of winning its second straight Maryland State Tournament, losing in the championship game to Georgetown University, 14-11. Senior co-captains Kim Marlatt and Andie Phillips carried the scoring load throughout much of the season, finishing with 46 and 43 points, respectively. The Gulls closed the season with a 6-6 record.

Eight Sea Gulls earned all conference honors at the Mason-Dixon Track Championships that closed out the men's and women's track seasons. Senior distance runner Doug Mock highlighted the meet by earning the MVP trophy after placing first in both the 1,500 meter and the 5,000 meter runs. Mock qualified for the NCAA Division III National Championship in both events for the second consecutive year. Two new women's records were established during the season: sophomore Cheryl Ish in the discus, 107' 1/4", and the 4 x 100 relay team of Angela Waters, Ish, Noella Denise and Amy Spishock with a time of 54.58.

In all, Salisbury State captured one-third of the ESAC's 12 team championships during the 1989-90 year, thus winning the All-Sports Trophy for the third straight year.

Wildfowl Museum Exhibits

For generations artists have had a special relationship with wild things. From the first cave paintings to the most modern three-dimensional art, humans have found the need to celebrate the spirit of the wild in paintings and sculpture.

The Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art on the campus of Salisbury State University celebrates this art form and provides visitors with a sense of how wildfowl art has contributed to American history and culture.

The Museum has one of America's largest and finest public collections of antique decoys, representing the major waterfowling areas of the country. The collection is arranged chronologically, so the visitor can explore the evolution of the art from the simple reed decoys used by the American Indians in the Southwest, to the graceful working decoys of the market gunners of the 19th century, to the intricate, expressive sculpture made by leading artists today.

The collection shows how wood sculpture changed during this century, progressing from practical working tools to three-dimensional art which captures its subject not only with accuracy but with visual excitement intuition and understanding.

The Ward Museum is located in the south wing of Holloway Hall, the University administration building. Hours are from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m. on Sunday. There is a small admission fee for adults; children under 12 are admitted free. From more information or to arrange group tours, call 742-4988.

Pastels by Laura Hickman
Born in southern Delaware, Laura Hickman received her B.A. in studio art from Hood College in Frederick, MD. She received her B.F.A. from the University of Delaware where she majored in printmaking with a minor in painting and drawing. She has taught art at UMES and the Savannah College of Art and Design. Hickman is active in the Rehobeth Art League, exhibits her work in galleries in Wilmington and Phiadelphia and is now working full time at making her art. Many of her pastels portray local Delmarva scenes, especially the areas of Bethany Beach and Fenwick Island. Her unusual palette and use of shadow and light make her paintings unique.

The Atrium Gallery is located in the University Center. It is open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 11 a.m. - 9 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

Research Center Hours

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture at Salisbury State University will be open by appointment during the summer months (June-August). To schedule an appointment to use the Center, please contact Ellen Fykes, History Department 543-5245 room 380, Holloway Hall. The Research Center is located at Holloway Hall, rooms 270-271.

Preservation Awards Announced

Preservation Awards Announced (Left to right) James Jackson, outgoing president of the Wicomico County Historical Trust, congratulates SSU professors Sylvia Bradley and G. Ray Thompson. Bradley and Thompson were honored by the local trust committee for their contributions to preservation in Wicomico County through the preservation of rare documents and historical records from the lower Delmarva region.

wise. "Their gift is a clarion call to all private citizens and the corporate sector to recognize public institutions for their on-going commitment to excellence. All of us at Salisbury are grateful for this major investment in the future of the University.

"We expect great things of our Guerrieri Scholars."

Showell Farms, Inc. began in 1908 as a family-owned live chicken market on 11th street in New York City. The Guerrieris moved to Berlin, MD, outside of Ocean City in 1941 and after World War II relocated to Salisbury, 30 miles away. Their business thrived and from their Eastern Shore base they continued to provide service to the New York City region.

Alan Guerrieri joined the company in 1953. Under his stewardship Showell Farms has grown from its home some 11 miles west of Ocean City to plants in four states employing 3500 people.

Still privately owned, this vertically integrated corporation, which does everything from breeding its own eggs to distributing the final product, last year processed over a half billion pounds of chicken. Showell Farms is the second largest producer of roasters in the world. It sells directly to the Far East including Japan and Hong Kong, and other foreign markets are currently being explored.

Patti Guerrieri, who is an alumna, met her husband while she was still a student at SSU in the early 1950s. After their marriage they continued to live in Salisbury and three of their five children attended the Salisbury State Campus Elementary School, a laboratory for classroom teaching and innovation.

"When my sister and I went to Salisbury, everything was in one building—the library, dining hall, dorms, gym, everything," Patti Guerrieri said. Now the campus has 25 buildings. Despite the growth, "I'm glad that Thom (Bellavance) wants to keep the enrollment at its present level, to preserve the small college atmosphere. The campus is a marvelous thing to have in the city of Salisbury."

"Over the years we really hadn't gone over there (to SSU)," Alan Guerrieri said. Then, a few months ago, at the invitation of Bellavance, they visited and were impressed; in Alan Guerrieri's words, "We were surprised. . . ."

The visit "brought back a lot of memories," Alan Guerrieri continued. And then with a smile he added, "Now we'll be getting over more often."

The first Guerrieri Scholars are expected to be announced this fall.

Said Chuck Fulton, "I've always been a firm believer in the importance of education for our nation. The world's problems are becoming more and more complex and will have to be solved by better educated people."

"Salisbury State University is an asset to the community and to the area," Martha Fulton noted. "A lot of Eastern Shore people would not have the privilege of attending college if it were not here on the Shore. I think a college education is very important in this day and time."

"I'd like to stress three things," Chuck Fulton continued. "This gift is a tribute to the thousands of men and women who helped create an environment where my wife and I would want to work and live. It's also a way of saying thank you for the opportunities to live and work in the great state of Maryland and saying thank you to Gov. Schaefer for his leadership in making the state a better place for all ...to raise our families and share in the quality of life here."

Said Perdue of the Fultons' gift, "I want to commend Chuck and Martha for their generous gift. I can think of no better way to give something back to the community than to support this University as the Fultons have done, making it not only a major economic force in our area, but a vital and exceptional cultural resource affecting the lives of all."

Said Henson, "I am indeed gratified to hear that Chuck and Martha have become another major benefactor to Salisbury State in initiating the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts. It is not only a great tribute to higher education, but it will be a lasting asset to the entire Eastern Shore area."

Chuck Fulton grew up on a farm in Kenton, OH, and started working in the poultry industry during the 1930s for $12 a week. He first met his future wife, Martha Nock, at the 1939 World Poultry Congress in Cleveland. A veteran of World War II, he moved to Snow Hill in 1946 and for the past 43 years has been actively involved in the lives of Eastern Shore farmers, buying grain and selling both chickens and feed to many of Delmarva's growers. In 1965 he merged the companies of Fulton Grain Corporation, Fulton Broiler Service and Nock's Snow Hill Hatcheries with Holly Farms Poultry Industries, Inc., of Wilkesboro, NC. In 1968 Holly Farms merged with the The Federal Company of Memphis, TN. At one time the largest poultry supplier in the nation, Holly Farms Foods, Inc., was processing seven million chickens weekly at the time of its sale to Tyson Foods in July 1989.

Chuck Fulton served on the separate boards of both The Federal Company and Holly Farm Foods, Inc. He also serves on the board of directors of First Maryland Bancorp in Baltimore, the second largest bank in Maryland and 86th nationwide.

Martha Fulton's roots on the Eastern Shore are both deep and wide. The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Nock of Snow Hill, Martha Fulton attended Salisbury State in 1937 and 1938. Her classmates included Hamilton P. Fox, later prominent Salisbury attorney and leader in Maryland politics; Dr. S. Goldsborough Tyler, who became a highly students want to attend Salisbury State University? What happened in the '80s to create this tidal wave of interest? As one might expect, the reasons are varied.

The snowball effect certainly stands out. As more and more students visit Salisbury State and discover its many qualities, those students then spread the word to others. "There is this little jewel of a university on the Eastern Shore of Maryland that offers everything one could ask for in undergraduate education in a picture-post-card setting."

Salisbury State has been a first-rate institution of higher learning for some time. This was no overnight transformation. The name change to "University" in 1988 did not reflect a sudden metamorphosis; rather, it more accurately represented what the institution had evolved into: a comprehensive university offering undergraduate programs in the liberal arts and the professions.

Yet there have been significant changes and additions to the University in the '80s which have certainly enhanced its reputation.

Chief among those are the multimillion dollar gifts the University has received in the last four years to endow The Franklin P. Perdue School of Business, the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology and the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Those endowments enable those schools to offer additional scholarship monies to highly qualified applicants, to provide faculty with added funds to pursue research and continuing education studies and to purchase state-of-the-art-equipment.

The University's academic structure was reshaped during the '80s, with departments clustered into five schools, the three endowed ones and the School of Education and Professional Studies and the School of Nursing and Health Sciences.

Five new undergraduate majors were added in the decade: accounting, art, music, political science and respiratory therapy. Dual degree programs were established in engineering. Pre-professional programs are now offered in law and medicine, dentistry and other health related careers. Graduate programs were initiated in business administration and nursing.

The face of the campus changed dramatically in the last 10 years, over $40 million worth of building construction taking place. A modern and spacious $13 million University Center opened in 1988, providing the campus community with an array of tastefully decorated lounges and meeting rooms as well as being home to the book store, post office and many administrative offices.

Three new residence facilities were completed, boosting on-campus housing to 1,850, or more than half of the full-time undergraduate population.

As the decade ended, the School of Nursing and Health Sciences was moving into a newly built facility featuring cutting edge equipment and laboratories; the $2.2 million renovation of Holloway Hall to house the Perdue School of Business was completed; and the construction of the $16 million liberal arts building, Fulton Hall, was underway.

As the campus' facelift was in progress, spirits soared on the playing fields as University intercollegiate athletic teams enjoyed unrivaled success. Men's and women's squads of Salisbury State's premier student-athletes collectively won over 60 percent of their contests. A highlight was the field hockey team capturing the NCAA Division III National Championship in 1986 as well as earning three other Final Four appearances. The football team made the NCAA Division III playoffs three times, going to the National Championship game in 1986. Additionally, the University hosted the NCAA Division III National Championship in tennis.

Intramurals, clubs and cultural activities continued to flourish in the '80s, as students were provided with ever more opportunities to develop outside as well as inside the classroom.

Students were taking their classroom knowledge into real world experiences in the workplace. A recent study showed over 75,000 hours devoted to field experiences by SSU students in the fall of 1989 alone.

While changes have been abundant at Salisbury State University in the 1980s, a constant has been the personal attention provided to students by the faculty. Freshmen and alumni studies alike, in 1980 and in 1989, depict a University that places individualized attention at the top of its academic priority list.

Will success continue unabated at Salisbury State University in the '90s? Will SATs rise and the endowment grow? Will the value of an SSU diploma gain even greater prominence in the private and public sectors as well as in academic circles?

Yes, because Salisbury State firmly believes that to adhere to its mission, to provide its students with the best education possible, it must continue to grow. Its track record for the '80s gives ample evidence of the University's ability to achieve its goal of being grouped among the elite small public universities on the East Coast.

respected professor at Salisbury State University; and poultry magnate Frank Perdue. Her family includes distinguished civic leaders: Her aunt, Beulah Nock Allen, was a missionary to India and her cousin, Dr. Gladys Allen, was both a medical missionary there and later served as Somerset County Health Officer. Allen Memorial Church, a prominent Baptist church in Salisbury, was renamed honoring the Allens. An uncle, Dr. Randolph Nock, a noted surgeon during World War II, performed many of the operations in this area at that time. His widow, Mrs. Frances Nock, still resides in Salisbury. Another cousin, Garland Nock of Salisbury, was married to the late Sen. Mary Nock, President Pro-Tem of the Maryland Senate who served there longer than any other woman in the history of the Maryland Legislature.

The Fultons are deeply concerned about the problems and education of young people in all its aspects, and are active members of Whatcoat United Methodist Church in Snow Hill.

They live on a working farm outside of the historic county seat of Worcester, located some 20 miles southwest of Ocean City. Near their 18th century farmhouse is a pond which serves as home to hundreds of migrating Canada and snow geese during the winter, as well as mallards, black ducks and peacocks all year round. The setting has attracted photographers from National Geographic magazine.

The Fultons' daughter, Jennie Lynn, is married to A.W. Owen also of Snow Hill. The couple have two children and live nearby.

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts has 11 undergraduate majors: art, communication arts, English, history, liberal studies, modern languages, music, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology. Three graduate programs offer the Master of Arts in English, history and psychology. It is the largest school in the University.
